The Everlas

The prophet saw an angel fly
On rapid wings across the sky:
He bore to men of every race
The grandest story we can trace.

A superhuman hero lives
A matchless life until he gives
Himself to death for erring men
That those who die may live again.

This richest, grandest world's short story
Will come to fill the earth with glory:
Both men and angels fly or run
And will till all the task is done.

Whence Come Wars?

Saint James asks this question and answers it. He finds the cause of war in evil desires, lusts. There are many classes of wars: international, factional, community, family, individual. All are covered by James' explanation. One party if not both is actuated by evil desire. Covetousness accounts for many wars. One party has something that the other desires. A war of robbery results. Many fierce battles are fought over mere material possessions. The aggressors are moved by evil lust. Nations as well as individual men have become aggressors in wars for territory or other property. Thus there are bandit nations. Then there have been many wars for mere prestige. The historians tell of many wars in Europe that were brought on by the desire of one nation to gain the ascendency over another. All wars with the possible exception of wars of misunderstanding are brought on by evil desire or ambition. War has been so nearly continuous in the history of the world that some have said that warfare is man's natural state. But man has or may have two natures. If he has a nature to which war is natural, he also has a higher and better nature to which war is repugnant. James spoke out of this higher and better nature in his declaration that war comes of evil desire. War does not spring out of man's new nature, the Christian nature, Sons of Adam may be carnal warriors. Sons of Christ—those who are born of the Holy Spirit—fight only a spiritual warfare.

As long as there are wicked men in the world there must be defense against them. Individual policemen are needed and also collections of policemen—sometimes armies. It is necessary for the state to provide for the defense of the country and its people. But this should be done within reason. A standing army is not needed to restrain a few sporadic crimi-extreme to train all the popularge military force in any country will almost surely lead that country into war.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE BOND CAMPAIGN

Summary of Sales

High Point	$15,100
N. C. Conference	11,700
General Church (Maryland excepted)	3,700
Maryland Conference	7,100
Total	$37,600

It will be noticed that the form of my report is changed this week. "Variety is the spice of life." In next week's report we will give the standing of the charges in North Carolina.

Another charge has reached its quota. It might be yours, watch for it next week. Since my report two weeks ago $8,700 worth of the bonds have been sold and reported to us.

Our time for the last two weeks has been spent in organizing the conference, instead of trying to sell bonds. An agent or committee has been appointed at a large number of the churches who are pushing the campaign in the respective localities.

—Our people will be greatly interested in the outcome of Rev. G. F. Millaway's hospital treatment in Boston. Some will wish to write him while he is there. He may be addressed at Deaconess hospital, Boston, we are informed by telephone by a relative of his, though he names the Diabetic hospital in his note written before he left home. To be sure of reaching him it might be well to write Deaconess hospital, care of Diabetic hospital, Boston, Mass. Whether you write him or not, pray for him.

—The killing of one man started the World War. We hope the assault on an American consul by three Japanese soldiers in Manchuria will not start another. The Japan government promptly apologized and promised to punish the guilty parties, though asserting that the consul provoked attack by haughty demeanor. According to report the consul was not seriously injured.

—One of our ministers had $1,000 in a bank. While he was thinking about withdrawing it and investing in High Point College bonds the bank closed its doors and he could not get it.

DENOMINATIONAL YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY

Theme: Christ In and Through Us

Program materials for the first special day of the New Year have been mailed to Pastors, Sunday School Superintendents, Christian Endeavor Lealers, and other leaders of Young People, about 5,000 strong.

Nothing has been left undone to give to the Church the very best of program materials at a minimum cost. We have issued the following materials which are to be had without cost to any local church observing Young People's Day:

A Preparation Bulletin containing an appropriate sermon outline prepared by Dr. C. E. Forlines and detailed directions for preparing and conducting all services.

A pageant, The Knight of the Holy Grail, was prepared especially for the evening service by Miss Dorothy Elderdice. Where the pageant is not used two other types of services are suggested in the Preparation Bulletin..

An Attractive Program Leaflet, to be distributed in the congregation, contains the outline for both the morning and evening services. One may be had for every person attending the services.

Special Christian Endeavor Programs. One is to be used in the regular society meeting on Young People's Day and the other to be used in the regular society meeting on Christian Endeavor Day.

Each church or organization oberving Young People's Day is to take an offering for New Century Service. Due to the fact that this is the fifth Sunday, it affords an opportunity for every church to bring its General Conference apportionment up to date. If for any reason your church leaders have not received sample copies of the above materials please write us at once and we will send you copies promptly.

F. L. GIBBS,
Director of Young People's Work.

LIFE

What is life? I sit and look out of the window and gaze upon the winter dearth. It all looks dead and hopeless out there. I drop my eyes upon the little flower garden in front of my window. It, too, looks dead and lifeless on this New Year of 1932. Still I gaze—I see something green. Is it true? Yes, it is true. Beneath the dead leaves and stems which were so beautiful in summer and autumn time, I see two beautiful October pinks. That cheered me all through Christmas time. They are still there to welcome the New Year's chime. Is there life amid the dead and decaying beauties of the gone by summer and autumn time?

Yes, the strange thing we call life still lives. What is life? I do not know. I look for a definition. I do not find one, but there are many. What is it that makes the meadows green and the flowers bloom? We say it's life come back again; after a winter's slumber it has reproduced itself and come back more beautiful than ever. What is life? I really don't know. That strange thing within that makes me sometimes cry, smile and laugh, get up, sit down, run around, holler, whoop, run, jump, sometimes dance, pat, see, hear and understand. This is life, we say. Surely it is God within me that we call life. He is the life of the wicked man or woman as well. Should He withdraw from me whither would I go? Like the little flower I see. We bud in spring: bloom in summer and fade in autumn. In winter they say we are dead. What is death? Jesus called it sleep. If it is sleep we shall wake again to bud and blossom on some fairer shore, where loved ones will meet to part no more. We will be robed in beauty and glory to shine in His Royal Diadem for evermore. This will be life immortal. As I stand in the autumn of life, I look over the hills; I see winter's night dawning. A short sleep and then I shall awake in His likeness. It is life with God. H. L. POWELL.

PRAYERS: BIG AND LITTLE

The great soul prays, "Lord, make me as big as my problem" while the little soul prays, "Lord, let me off easy."

The giant soul asks, "Lord, give me strength sufficient for a hard day" as the small soul begs, "Lord, let me have a lighter load."

The great heart prays, "Lord, let me stand firm when the fight is hardest," the craven heart cries, "Lord, let me escape."

The crusader soul sends up the prayer, "Lord, stand with me until I finish my task."—Good Tidings.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

In Boston Hospital

We learned today, through Brother Pritchard, that Brother G. F. Millaway is is a Boston hospital that specializes in the treatment of diabetic patients. We understand that his suffering recently has been very intense. We trust that his treatment may give him prompt relief. He will have the deep interest and earnest prayers of his many friends throughout the conference.

Appointment Called In

Our appointment at Fallston last Sunday was called in on account of the death of a relative, Mrs. Jacob Shutt, Advance, N. C. The funeral was held in the Methodist Episcopal church, South, at Advance, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment followed in the church burying ground. I am to be in the Fallston section Sunday, January 10, though I am not informed as to place of appointments. President Humphreys and Brother Harrison are to be at Fallston, in a college meeting, Saturday, January 9. I will join them Sunday. We each have appointments with the charges in that section on Sunday. The charges included in the Fallston center are Fallston, Cleveland, Caroleen-Bess Chapel, Lincolnton, and Connelly Springs.

We note, too, the passing of Mrs. John Hunt of Lexington, sister of Mrs. Whitaker, wife of the late Dr. C. L. Whitaker. Sister Whitaker will have the sympathy of the conference in this sorrow.

Bond Sale Group Meetings

We have been in three up to this writing this week, as follows: Lineberry church, Davidson charge; Community church, and Pleasant Hill church on West Forsyth charge. The largest attended group was the one at Community church last night. In all of these groups there has been an earnest response to the presentation of the bond matter. New interest is being awakened in the college, and a good foundation is being laid, we think, for the sale of these bonds. More and more we are being convinced that our people are able to absorb the allotment of $37,500 that we are asking our people in North Carolina to take. Dr. Humphreys was compelled to be absent at the Pleasant Hill meeting, owing to an important appointment which he had in Greensboro. He was with us and addressed each of the other two meetings. Pastors present in these meetings are Bingham, Short, Maier, Madison, Bell, Way, Hunter, A. L. Hunter, R. A., and Pritchard. The attendance of laymen and laywomen has been gratifying, and the interest shown has been encouraging. Our people are interested in High Point College and want to see it succeed. The full proof of this is the buying of these bonds. They MUST be sold. And what MUST be done, CAN be done. Let's make the slogan popular: "BUY A BOND! BUY A BOND!"

District Rallies

Rev. J. L. Trollinger, Chairman of the 6th District, is announcing a Rally to be held at Brown Summit on the 5th Sunday in January. Chairman Whitehead (Rev. T. J.) is also working on the program for the 3rd District. We trust that other Chairmen are planning for these Rallies. It is eminently worthwhile to get our people together—just get them together. There is merit in that. But there is also merit—and this is the chief value, of course—to get them to think together and talk together about the things that we are trying to do—trying to do together. Information is imparted through these occasions, and inspiration generated that is of much value when it gets back to the local church. There is where the work is to be done after all; but we need these mountain top experiences to renew our strength. Plan your Rallies, brethren, and let us have them right along in each district. We trust that several may be held on the 5th Sunday in January. We are publishing elsewhere in this issue of the paper the Districts and Chairmen.

Call to Prayer

A recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the General Conference designated Sunday, January 10, as a day of fasting and prayer. President Broomfield has notified pastors and people of this action by letter and through the church press. We are glad to give emphasis to it here. It is in line with our conference week of prayer, beginning last Sunday and closing with the coming Sunday. There is no merit in having these designated periods for prayer, if that is all there is to it. But there is much to it if we really pray. Let us pray! Let us pray!

Brother Pritchard's S. O .S.

It is still sounding. Have you heard it? Just $5 from each church will "Save Our Ship." If yours has not gone in, please send it NOW. The need is SO urgent, and the amount SO small! Let's fill a whole column in the HERALD next week with a lost of these FIVE DOLLAR CHECKS. PLEASE DO help us, brethren, with this matter. This need is VERY urgent.

Courage

Defeat is always within. As long as we can keep courage strong, we may rest assured of ultimate victory. And for God's minister there is no justification for a faint heart. Always he may hear the assurig words of the Overshepherd, "Lo, I am with you." And with him with us, what can be against us to make us afraid. Many things, of course, will try the courage of God's ministers. His sky will not always be bright, nor his path easy and smooth. This was not so of the Master; it will not be so of his servants. But in his heart there was always courage. He was never defeated within, nor did he ever sound on behalf of his work a disparaging note. He knew that ultimately he must win. And this courage that was his unfailing bulwark may likewise be ours. It comes from the consciousness of inner strength, and it keeps us true in the face of every discouragement and gives us victory over every foe.

PROHIBITION OR REGULATION, WHICH?

Those who drink together with those who would commercialize intoxicants for beverage purposes are on a rampage for the overthrow of prohibition. Their Utopia lies in that old notion of Personal Liberty which concedes to them the privilege to drink even unto drunkenness and none dare molest or make them afraid; and which gives to them also the personal right to dispense to others that which would unbalance their emotions and dethrone reason, leaving only the ''beast'' to fill the man's shoes.

Under such conditions an addled electorate usually corrupts the ballot and perpetuates demagogues in power, thereby lowering social and moral standards. Can the modificationists who favor repeal run on such a policy? Not on a personal liberty issue. That has to a great extent lost its appeal. Times have changed, and new issues are to be met.

(a) For instance, the automobile mania is now modifying almost every human energy—King Alcohol bows to King Gas. Formerly alcohol made the weak to be strong, and made the poor to be rich, ironically speaking. Now it is the automobile which fills that innate desire for power. A little driver, for example directing a big truck takes the middle of the road. Add a drink or two to the big truck and it takes the middle of the road and both sides also.

Such is the power these things develope in men.

(b) New theories in sanitation. The germ theory, but recently promulgated, has changed man's attitude toward man. The causes of things have become more fully the principles which actuate men—''an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure,'' says the proverb.

And this principle has its application as directly appropriate to the germ of alcoholism as to that of smallpox and typhoid. He who himself is not infected may not convey germs to others is the logic which causes phoibition to prohibit; for the most illiterate know that drunkenness follows the manufacture and sale of whiskey as closely as a shadow follows the object which casts is.

(c) Morals and Religion. The church is an institution of divine origin. Its chief characteristic is that of purity, and its main function is in ''making men'' or ''moulding manhood into men.'' The saloon, on the contrary, is an institution whose main characteristic is that of carnality—''to be carnally-minded is death,'' says the Word; and its main function is to debauch men by immoral lust. These institutions are as opposite as the poles and there can be no fellowship between them, because there is nothing common. The burdens of one are the victims of the other.

Mr. Volstead, the statesman, together with his colleagues has walled in, so to speak, the good morals of our people by prohibition. May the Lord raise up a modern Nehemiah to martial the defenders of good morals and prohibition against the blight of regulation and drunkenness.

THE HERALD CAMPAIGN

"The Methodist Protestant Herald in Every Methodist Protestant Home"

3,000 SUBSCRIBERS—"IT CAN BE DONE"

TO SUBSCRIBERS WHOSE SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE DUE FOR RENEWAL:

As a special favor to the HERALD please renew your subscription promptly and not let the paper run in arrears. The paper needs the money badly, and needs your support, and you are asked to not let your subscription expire but stand by the paper at this time. Please hand the price of the paper to the Subscription Chairman for your church.

TO A VERY FEW PASTORS ONLY:

Prior to the Annual Conference held November, 1929, in Calvary church, Greensboro, pastors were not charged for their subscription to the HERALD, but owing to the deficit which was rising every year, this was changed. I am calling attention to it here for the reason that just a few pastors have overlooked this point and never started to pay for their paper, though they have been getting it regularly ever since. Please read Resolution No. 4, on page 92 of the Conference Journal for 1929, which is as follows:

> "Whereas, we believe that the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD is the Pastor's best assistant and we wish a vote of this conference recommending that each Pastor give his time to securing subscriptions AND PAY FOR HIS OWN SUBSCRIPTION IN FULL."

This Resolution was submitted and signed by Brothers E. A. Bingham and Geo. L. Curry and was adopted by the Conference as set forth at top of page 34 of the above referred to Journal. In fairness to those Pastors who are paying for their paper, I feel that all Pastors should pay. Therefore please look on your address label and it should show an expiration date, if it does not it most likely means that you failed to begin paying for your paper after the Conference adopted the above resolution. And I am mentioning it here, for I feel that it is an oversight and that to call it to your attention will give you the opportunity of paying up. Thank you.

TO SUBSCRIPTION CHAIRMEN:

Do not hesitate to ask even your Pastor for his subscription renewal, he will know that you are doing your duty and appreciate it. Please keep behind all expiring subscriptions and not let us lose a subscriber if it is possible to secure renewal. Congratulations to those who have been sending in subscriptions regularly, that means that you will soon reach your quota. Charlotte, Thomasville First and Whitakers reached or more than reached the half-way mark last week. There will soon be more coming out in Capitals. And look—Spencer only has 1 1-2 subscribers yet to get. Come on, Spencer you will look good in Capitals too. Send in the subscriptions and I will quit writing these long letters, then we will all be glad.

"IT CAN BE DONE"

E. L. DOUGLAS, Chairman Directing Committee.

OUR STORY PAGE

DOCTOR GRENFELL'S ADVICE TO BOYS

I was reading today a letter from a man called Tertullian. It was written to his school, and the letter is nearly eighteen hundred years old. I suspect you will hardly believe it, but the letter was really and truly to prepare the scholars to meet martyrdom bravely and not flinch at the suffering.

Here is a thing he says: "An overfed body may be good for the beasts, but it is no use to God."

If you are to be plucky and brave and worth while when trouble comes, you must keep yourself hard and fit.

In Labrador we have no penny, blood-curdling novels and five editions of a newspaper a day. Lots of our boys can not read and write. But they can endure hardness like good soldiers.

One winter one boy of fifteen was left with two teams of huge, wolfish Eskimo dogs, while the doctor and his men traveled on to kill some deer. He was warned not to move, or they would possibly be lost. As it happened, the men got parted by heavy snowstorms, and only found a house fifty miles away on the third day after. They at once sent a gang of men to look for the boy. Do you think he had run away in all that long time and during those dark, cold nights? Not a bit of it! He was just where they had left him.

I have had to look death in the face once or twice, and there is nothing in the world that helps you to keep cool and give him the slip like not having the skeleton of an impure life to weaken you and trouble you. The best thing in the world is not gold and silver or food and clothing—no, not by a very long way.

If I left a watchword with you, it would be: "Learn to keep your eyes open and to see chances where you can be useful. You will have a life then and a career behind you that kings will envy."—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

BY THE GRACE OF GOD

Valentine Burke, St. Louis burglar, was converted in the Moody meetings. His reformation was complete.

One day there came a message from the sheriff that he was wanted at the courthouse, and Burke obeyed with a heavy heart.

"Some old case they've got up against me," he said, "but if I'm guilty I'll tell them so. I'm done lying."

The sheriff greeted him kindly: "Where have you been, Burke?"

"In New York."

"What have you been doing there?"

"Trying to find a decent job," said Burke.

"Have you got a good grip on the religion that you told me about?" inquired the sheriff.

"Yes," said Burke, looking him steady in the eyes. "I have not lost my religion."

It was then that the tide turned.

"Burke," said the sheriff, "I have had you shadowed every day you were in New York. I suspected that your religion was a fraud. But I want to say to you that I know you have lived an honest Christian life, and I have sent for you to offer you a deputyship under me. You can begin at once."

He began. He set his face like a flint. Steadily, and with dogged faithfulness, the old burglar went about his duties until the men high in business began to tip their hats to him, and talk of him at their clubs. Moody was passing through the city and stopped off an hour to meet Burke. Moody told how he had found him in a closed room upstairs in the courthouse serving as trusted guard over a bag of diamonds. Burke sat with the bag of gems in his lap, and a gun on the table. There was $60,000 worth of diamonds in the sack.

"Moody," he said, "see what the grace of God can do for a burglar. Look at this! The sheriff picked me out of his force to guard it."—Publisher Unknown.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE CHOIR TO GIVE PROGRAM

The A Capella Choir of High Point College, under the able directorship of Prof. E. B. Stimson, will give a concert at First M. P. church, Henderson, Thursday, January 14th, 7:30 p. m.,; at High School auditorium, Mebane, Friday, January 15th, 7:30 p. m.; at Shiloh church, Shiloh charge, Sunday, January 17th, 1:30 p. m. There will be no charge for admission, but a silver offering will be taken at each place.

The college choir is considered one of the best in the country. The following are some of the comments: Greensboro Daily News: "The beautifully trained choir of young voices expertly led by Mr. Stimson, sang———. The perfect timing and exquisite harmony of the music without accompaniment held the crowd spellbound"; Mrs. H. O. Steele, past president of N. C. Federation of Music Clubs: "They gave us a beautiful program which showed careful training and keen musical understanding. The tone quality was excellent, altogether, it was a delightful and finished performance"; Mrs. Wm. Wallace, an officer of the N. C. Federation of Music clubs: "The varied program showed versatility, careful training and excellent control of the singers, by their capable leader. The tone quality, interpretation, climaxes of the choral numbers delighted music lovers."

BROKEN THINGS

We are not sure who is responsible for the following, but it is so beautiful and true that we wish to share it with our readers:

"It is when a beautiful grain of corn is broken up in the earth by death that its inner heart sprouts forth and bears hundreds of other grains. And thus on and on, through all history, and all biography, and all vegetation, and all spiritual life, God must have broken things.

"Those who are broken in wealth and broken in self-will, and broken in their ambitions, and broken in their affections, and broken ofttimes in health; those who are despised and seem utterly forlorn and helpless, the Holy Ghost is seizing upon, and using for God's glory. 'The lame take the prey,' Isaiah tells us."—Elim Evangel.

Mrs. W. Lee Spratt, Indianapolis, Ind., 2 dozen dolls.

We have tried faithfully to keep track of every package and every article which came to the Home during the Thanksgiving period and also during the Christmas period. It has not been easy to do because many of the packages were left at the door and the donor hurried on and sometimes we had difficulty in telling whence came the package. One man from Greensboro, a stranger to us, left 12 dozen 5c packages of candy and would leave no name. If perchance we have missed your name, or have left out any article in any package we will be glad to make correction if you will just give us the correction.

Many have been the kindnesses and many have been the kind, beautiful expressions to us and concerning the work we are trying to do for the Lord and for our church. The work is taxing and at present we cannot see our way through; but God is good and the people are kind and generous so in some way, if we keep pulling together and trusting in our heavenly Father we will come out all right. We had a good Christmas by your help, and on yesterday morning all our children were well enough to take their places in school.

We are thankful to you for all your help, and to a kind heavenly Father for all the privileges and blessings of life which we enjoy. God bless and prosper every one of you during 1932.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Henderson.—There are a few items overlooked by our reporter that I wish to mention. We have a good reporter but she can not be at all meetings and see and know all that takes place.

One important thing that took place at the first quarterly conference was the decision of the conference to pay the pastor's moving expenses. Already a check for the amount—$25—has been handed to the pastor. This is certainly greatly appreciated.

On December 13th the pastor proposed a slogan for the church which was adopted heartily by a rising vote. The slogan is: "Not Our Bit But Our Best for Christ This Year." We hope to keep this slogan before us throughout the year and endeavor to live up to it.

The Sunday school starts off well under the leadership of Brother C. F. Tankersley, Jr. He is enthusiastic about the work and the rest of the school is responding to his leadership. This, I understand, is his first experience as a superintendent but he bids fair to be an efficient one.

Our church treasurer has already sent $10 to Dr. Brown in response to Brother Pritchard's call on behalf of the Board of Extension. Also the Sunday school decided to send Dr. McCulloch $5 on deficit for printing Herald. The Thanksgiving offering to the Children's Home was $67. So it seems that in spite of the depression the church here is trying to support these worthy causes. The pastor appreciates the fact that $200 has been paid on his salary.

We have not been able to do much with the college bond sale yet. And we do not know what we can do. The bank in which the pastor and the church treasurer and many of our people carried their accounts failed to open for business last Saturday. However, we will do what we can.

The congregations yesterday were very encouraging. The prospects for a good year's work are good.

This pastor extends new year's greetings to the editor, and to all our pastors and churches. May this be a good year for the cause of Christ. May the year see a great turning of the people to God and to his Church.

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

West Forsyth Charge.—One of the New Year's resolutions of the writer is to reduce or condense his reports to the Herald during 1932, and allow space for others. But things will happen to cause the pastor of a charge to write for the Herald. We were at Baltimore church for the regular appointment last Sunday morning. We had a good service, with splendid attention and interest. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered. When the pastor and family came out to their car they found a very pleasant surprise. While the service was in progress some of the people had filled the car with a aariety of articles of food and gifts for members of the pastor's family. When a number of Christmas packages were observed among other things, we were made to think that the Christmas season had not ended, and it had not ended with the good people of Baltimore church, who wanted to remember their pastor and his family with suitable gifts. It was the largest pounding we have received since we have been on West Forsyth charge. We are deeply appreciative of the many gifts and for the spirit of thoughtfulness which prompted the giving.

From the service at Baltimore church last Sunday we went to the splendid home of Bro. J. Frank Phillips, where we had been invited a month ago. Here we were seated to a good dinner and given genuine hospitality. Bro. Phillips is now a subscriber to the Methodist Protestant Herald, and will be a better informed Methodist Protestant in the future. We trust that other members at Baltimore will follow his example.

At Stony Knoll church we met the usual size congregation for the service there at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Splendid attention was given to the message of the pastor, which was followed by the observance of the ordinance of the Lord's Supper.

On New Year's day the pastor and family enjoyed a sumptuous dinner at the home of Brother E. R. Long, of Pleasant Hill church. The invitation was given several days prior to the occasion. Mrs. E. M. Long, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Long and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dinkins, the latter a newly married couple, were other guests for the occasion, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

While this is being written we behold a beautiful scene in nature. The day is typical of an ideal spring day, with the warmth and beauty of the sunshine in evidence and the music of the birds from the trees is heard. Surely God has been smiling down upon the earth during these days of economic depression and unemployment, giving us pleasant weather conditions. Are we more thankful than the nine lepers who were cleansed and failed to return and render thanks for their healing? In the midst of discouragements and disappointments, we should be thankful that our condition is no worse, and perhaps not as bad as many others who are struggling for an existence.

Our appointments for next Sunday will be with Union Hill church at 11 a. m., and Tabernacle church at 7 p. m. These two churches have changed the hours of their appointments, Union Hill changing from 2:30 p. m. to 11 a. m., and Tabernacle changing from 11 a. m. to 7 p. m. each second Sunday. We trust that the new arrangement will prove satisfactory to both churches.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Gibsonville Church.—Fifteen attended the watch-night service at the church on Thursday of last week. They report a splendid meeting.

Last Sunday there were 132 present at Sunday school and apparently most of them stayed for the preaching service. Assistant Sunday school officers for the ensuing year were elected: Assistant superintendent, L. G. Hammer; secretary and treasurer, Samuel Whitsell; pianists, Misses Florence Olga Kivett and Ruth Nelson.

At the 11:00 o'clock service Mr. Bethea preached an interesting sermon using as a subject, "The Need of Courage in Christian Living."

Choir practice will be held on Thursday night, 7:30, followed by quarterly conference. All interested in the choir are invited to attend the practice. All officers are requested to be present for the conference.

Misses Eula Apple and Ruth Wilson will be joint hostesses to the members of the Young Ladies' Bible class on Friday night of this week, at the home of Miss Wilson. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected at this time. All members are especially urged to attend the meeting.

An oyster supper sponsored by the Young Ladies' Bible class, will be given on Saturday evening, January 9th, in the Masonic hall. You are cordially invited to visit the hall at this time, bring your friends and be served to the best oyster supper that you have eaten since the last one. Come!

Students who were visiting their parents in town during the holidays were: Misses Mary Ruth Huffman, Greensboro college; Esther McCollum, Guilford college; Clara Faucette, St. Leo's hospital, Greensboro, N. C.; Vance Bethea, Charlotte high school, Charlotte, N. C.; Louis Bethea, High Point college; and Dwight Davidson, Jr., High Point college.

Professor Bergeron, wife, and children of High Point, visited Rev. and Mrs. Bethea. Rev. L. W. Gerringer and family, of Henderson, were visitors at the parsonage last Thursday morning. Miss Ruth Jones of Burlington also was a visitor at the parsonage during the holidays.

REPORTER.

Fair Grove Church.—There are quite a few visitors in the community for the Christmas holidays.

The Christmas exercise and tree given Wednesday night, December 23rd, was enjoyed by quite a large crowd.

Preaching was held Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock, which enacts the new program adopted by the church and will be carried out through the coming year. Preaching will be at 10:00 o'clock on fourth Sunday's and at 11:30 o'clock on second Sunday's.

Mr. J. W. Fogleman, superintendent of the Sunday school, has fully recuperated from an attack of flu.

Very truly yours,
REPORTER.

Midway.—The mother of one of our most devoted members has passed away. The community mourns with the relatives the loss of Mrs. Matilda Iddings Frazier. She has been a member of the community practically all of her life. She is survived by four children, three of whom are members of our church.

We had our Christmas program on Wednesday evening, December 23, at 8:00 with an ununusually large audience present. The children's program consisted of recitations, dialogues, songs and a pantomime. Ben Lamb and his male quartet rendered several splendid numbers. The choir furnished special Christmas music, including individual numbers. The program was very successful, and the children very well trained. Those having charge of the program were: Miss Beulah Suits, Mrs. E. C. Walters, and Mrs. G. E. Nicholson.

At the close of the program the presents were distributed from the attractive Christmas tree. The Sunday school treat was then given out. We were glad to have our pastor, Mr. Charles Grant, and his family present at our program.

Since the new officers have been installed in our Christian Endeavor society it has been progressing nicely. The good attendance and keen interest shown has enabled us to have very successful programs. Our C. E. meets at 7:30 every Sunday evening. On December 20 after a short C. E. program our pastor talked to the children for a while, his subject being "The Babe of Bethlehem." The children were very much pleased with the program, and we hope to have other programs of this type soon.

The Ladies' Aid met with the Misses Suits at their home on the High Point road at 7:30 p. m., Friday, January 1. After a short business meeting a social hour was enjoyed. A large number attended this meeting, the first of the new year.

On January 13 at 1 p. m. there will be a meeting at our church of Guilford, Kernersville, and Midway-Shady Grove charges. The speakers will be Dr. Humphreys, Rev. N. M. Harrison and Dr. Taylor. This meeting is in the interest of the High Point college bonds.

Mt. Zion, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion Charge.—We are glad to have Brother Hunter with us again. He has been with us so long that we would be completely lost without him. Not only is he our pastor but also our leader in singing.

Our Sunday school was so pleased with the leadership of our superintendent, O. P. Jones, that we re-elected him for another year. The depression, that is talked of so much these days hasn't yet affected the attendance of our Sunday school. It is progressing very nicely. The Sunday school gave a Christmas entertainment on Wednesday evening, which was well attended.

Two young men of our church were married during the holidays: Mr. Edgar Lane to Miss Lucy Lanning, of Denton, N. C.; Mr. William Fowler to Miss Mattie Lee Scot, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—After having read from Revelation 21:1-5 and II Peter 3:13, our pastor gave us a very helpful message on "A New Heaven and a New Earth" which was very appropriate for the season of new year.

In order to have next year better than the last one, Dr. Johnson said that each one would have to take it as a personal matter. As the world grows better it must be brought about by individuals. We must decide upon what is to be left behind and what is to be taken up and stand up to this decision. We may get helpful inspiration on this from Tennyson's lovely poem called, "Ring Out, Wild Bells!"

Dr. Johnson spoke of three conditions that prevail today that make people unhappy. First there is the spirit that is back of taking from others—that of greed. Second, there is the spirit of selfishness or unwillingness to share with others. The world will not grow better with these spirits prevailing. We should feel that "what is mine is yours." The Christian spirit is that of sharing with the needy. Someone ha said that the way out of this depression is a revival of religion. Third, people have forgotten or gone away from God. If we drift away from God troubles come upon us but when we return we are forgiven and blessed. Let us see that the one life that each of us controls be turned toward Christ for the year of 1932.

Mrs. Plato Futrelle and son, Jack, were welcome worshippers with us in our preaching service. Kinney O'Neal also worshipped with us.

We were glad to have two of our members who have been away, spend the Christmas holidays in the community and worship with us. These were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bowman, Mr. Bowman is now a student at Westminster Theological Seminary.

The Lord's Supper was observed in this service.

Mr. D. Grant Coble and others from this charge attended the meeting in Burlington in regard to the High Point college bonds.

Friendship, Shiloh Charge.—The fiirst quarterly conference will meet at Shiloh church Saturday, January 9th, at 2 o'clock.

We are glad to have our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. W. M. Byerly, back at Sunday school, who had been sick. We had a large attendance last Sunday. Everybody seemed to be willing to try to work for a better year. The election of teachers for 1932 numbered 18; an unusual event, no one objected. The following are the teachers: Class No. 1, Miss Lelia Byerly, assistant, Mr. Dan Crews; class No. 2, Mrs. Zeb Snyder, assistant, Mrs. Dan Crews; class No. 3, Mrs. W. M. Byerly, assistant, Alice Snyder; class No. 4, Mr. Ray Michael, asistant, Alvin Walser; class No. 5, Miss Arlene Shoaf, assistant, Nellie Shoaf; class No. 6, Mrs. Ray Michael, assistant, Addie Shoaf; class No. 7, Miss Berth Delapp, assistant, Juanita Phillips; class No. 8, Mrs. A. L. Hartley, assistant, W. C. Lanier; class No. 9, Miss Maie Shoaf, assistant, Mrs. D. K. Miller.

Sunday morning, January 10th, at 11 o'clock is preaching hour. We want everybody to come because there is always something good in store for those who come and listen.

Spring Hill Church, North Davidson Charge.—There was a good crowd out for Sunday school Sunday evening at 2 o'clock and several were re-elected. We are trying to make this the outstanding year in Sunday school work. We have a splendid superintendent, Mr. C. W. Haynes, of which we are thankful.

Mr. Loy delivered a wonderful sermon Sunday evening using as his text the 23rd chapter of St. Luke, the 33rd verse, "And when they were come to the place which is called Calvary, there they crucified him and the malefactors, one on the right hand and the other on the left." His subject was, "A cross for all." Mr. Loy went on to say that every cross is not uplifting and desirable to man. Everyone has a cross to bear, whether it be a cross to help his fellowman or a cross that is the result of a sinful life. There are two crosses when we look at it from the spiritual standpoint: (a) the cross that has a cause, as did the cross of Jesus and we all are benefited by it as it was the salvation to a lost world; (b) the second cross was the natural consequence of a sinful life. Some characteristics of Jesus' cross were: unselfishness and love for man. Characteristics of the sinful cross are: poverty, suffering and drunkenness. The greatest thing for man to overcome today is himself. Today we all are carrying a cross or on the road to carry one and are we carrying the cross to help fellowman or the outcome of a sinful life?

A special quartet from High Point gave some good selections during the evening.

The Young People's C. E. met last Sunday evening at 7 o'clock with Ruth Haynes as leader.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. Henry Byerly Saturday evening. There were not many members present, due to sickness in the various homes.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Ernie Pickard is confined to her bed. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

The girls' Intermediate class won over the boys' Intermediate class in the contest held during the last three months. The purpose of the contest was to see which class could bring in the most visitors and new members at Sunday school. The girls had 408 points while the boys had 248.

The girls' class entertained the boys' class at a Christmas party December 26 at the home of Edith and Howard York. Around 40 people were present. Special music was rendered by some of the boys which proved to be interesting.

Spring Church Charge.—The Christmas holidays have passed, but not the spirit that makes Christmas what it is. It is that same eternal spirit that makes life worth while.

We were generously remembered in various ways around Christmas time. We were given six grown chickens, and fresh meat in abundance. Some of this can easily be kept for months to come. Other valuable items have found their way to the parsonage. We thank each and all.

Spring church and Pleasant Hill each observed Christmas, using our denominational programs. We are planning to observe Y. P. Day in each church.

Miss Virginia Massey of High Point college, and Miss Catherine Crew of N. C. C. W., were home for the holidays. Both are members of Spring church. Each returned to college last Sunday.

First Church, Thomasville.—As our reporter has been reporting regularly I have not been saying anything through the Herald, but at this time I have a few things to say personally.

We were happy to return to this church to work with these good people another year. Prospects for a successful year are bright and the people are cheerful and co-operative in their attitude toward the work of the church. I have never worked with a more faithful people and one of the greatest assets of the church is in the young people, a number of whom attended all of the services of the church and are ready to do anything which they are called upon to do.

Our Christmas exercise was given on Wednesday, December 23, at 7:30 p. m. It consisted of carols, a tree and a pageant entitled "The Eternal Quest." Santa Claus visited us and did not fail to gladden many hearts. A large congregation was present and everybody seemed to enjoy the evening. The church, different Sunday school classes and various individuals remembered the pastor and family with gifts such as an Esmond blanket, a $5 gold piece, tie, flashlight, dictionary, dishes, a Christmas cake, toys for the baby, nuts, candies, fruits, etc. And at other times various people have remembered us with vegetables, milk, fresh meats and other useful gifts. Almost a year ago Mr. D. R. Connell had a radio installed for us which we have enjoyed very much. We sincerely appreciate all these tokens of kindness.

T. GLENN MADISON.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—Christmas was duly celebrated at our church by a very impressive program given by the children of the Sunday school. Much credit is due Mrs. R. S. Woody and Miss Bessie Coble for their splendid work in preparing this program. After the program Santa visited us and a very pretty tree was unloaded.

Our C. E. society is still growing. Although it is a young organization it is fast becoming a vital part of our church. New officers were elected Sunday night. With Roy Johnson as president; it is looking forward to a good year.

Our Sunday school has been re-organized recently and a new class has been formed. We are very fortunate in having such an efficient superintendent as Mr. R. S. Woody.

Mr. J. L. Davis has joined our church. We are very glad to welcome him into our fellowship

Rev. Mr. Whitehead continues to bring us wonderful messages. He preached a very inspiring New Year's sermon at his last appointment.

Quite a few of our members were married during the Christmas season: Mr. Neal Hargrove and Miss Lenota Ivey were married a few weeks before Christmas; Miss Edith Woody became the bride of Mr. Tommie Fain during the early part of December; Mr. O. T. Rogers and Miss Daisy Cooper were married December 23, and Mr. John Johnson and Miss Lois Braxton were married at the bride's home December 24. All these young people have the best wishes of the church.

MRS. L. E. GUTHRIE, Reporter.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—On December 16th, a banquet was given in the Heathville school building near Brinkleyville. The purpose was to organize a "Brotherhood" for the men of this charge. A very interesting program was rendered. Talks were made by Rev. L. W. Gerringer, Rev. H. F. Surratt, Rev. H. B. Anderson, pastor of Enfield Baptist church, and Mr Jasper B. Hicks, of Henderson. Mrs. Charlie Miller of Enfield, sang several selections, enjoyed by all. A bountiful supper was prepared by the members of the various auxiliaries of Halifax charge. This banquet was sponsored by our pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, who never does anything by halves. Many, many thanks to him.

On December 27th, the sermon by the pastor was especially interesting and helpful. His remarks were based on Gal. 4:4. The subject was "In the Fulness of Time; A Christmas Meditation." The message centered around the thought that there is a "continuous and orderly movement in life leading toward the redemption of mankind and the enthronement of God in all the relationships of life." The incarnation "fits into this scheme and constitutes its most important link."

On Monday evening, December 28, a Christmas tree and program was given by the Sunday school. Old Santa was present and presented each member of the Sunday school and all the children who were present from other Sunday schools a treat. Mrs. Carey Ellington and the writer prepared the program.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

Dulin's, Mocksville Charge. — Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. It gave a Christmas program, which was very much enjoyed.

We are indeed glad that conference sent Rev. G. B.Ferree back to us.

We have purchased a new stove which adds much comfort to the congregation.

We are still handicapped with the depression, but we are going to try to make this new year a success.

We had a number of visitors from another church on this charge. We were glad to have them.

LEONA HENDRIX, Reporter.

Moriah.—Rev. M. P. Chambliss, our pastor, delivered a very impressive and wonderful sermon last Sunday on "Happy New Year." I think each one present went away encouraged and with a grim determination to make it a better year.

On Wednesday night before Christmas, the Christmas exercise was rendered. We had a very good program and I think everyone enjoyed it. After the exercise the lights on our beautifully decorated tree were turned on and the gifts were given out. Every child in the Sunday school received a nice treat. We wish to thank everyone for the co-operation in getting up this splendid program.

I hope each and every one will have the very best year possible. "Happy New Year."

REBECCA SHARPE, Reporter.

Tabernacle Charge.—The work of the new conference year seems to be starting off in a satisfactory way. Attendance for Sunday school and preaching services at both churches is very gratifying. All the organizations are functioning well. Starting with the new conference year, a prayer and praise service has been held at Tabernacle church every first Sunday afternoon, conducted by one of the class leaders. These meetings are held jointly with the C. E. meeting.

A Christmas service was held at Tabernacle church on the afternoon of December 24. At the close of the service the Christmas tree was undressed and the presents distributed to the people, the pastor and wife receiving a number of beautiful and useful presents. One pleasing feature of this service was the sending of presents to the shut-ins and unfortunate people of the community—in this way showing the real spirit of Christmas. Julian church is not left out. Miss Annie Hardin arranged a Christmas tree for her class in her class room and Mrs. W. T. Hanner entertained her class in her home. This church also presented pastor and wife a cash present of $5.50. We are very grateful for the many Christmas remembrances and the beautiful cards received from our own folks and former parishioners.

For the past two years Tabernacle charge has reached her quota for the Herald. We shall do our best this year. Miss Ola Whitley and Miss Annie Hardin are the appointed agents for Tabernacle and Julian churches. We are grateful to them for the splendid service they are rendering.

The pastor is very grateful to Rev. T. F. McCulloch for preaching at Tabernacle on the fifth Sunday in November. Our people are always glad to have Brother McCulloch come back home.

The following have our thanks for donations for the pantry since conference: Miss Lelia Kirkman, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hanner, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Smith, Mr. C. R. Fields, Mrs. Samuel Deviney, and Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Smith.

H. L. ISLEY.

Richland Charge.—We would not like to be considered on the inactive list, although this is our first report since we arrived on this new field. We arrived on this charge November 20. We had hardly gotten located and reconciled to the new surroundings when on Wednesday night we were disturbed by a commotion on the outside; investigating, we found the yard filled by cars and numerous people laden with packages rushing toward us as if they meant business. We surrendered and said come in.

On the following Saturday night this same disturbance was repeated and, my, what a storm of everything imaginable supplied our pantry for weeks to come. And this is not all. After this bombardment and before we were recuperated from these two sieges, again we were swept off our feet by just such another incident. We say to these three churches, Giles, Charlotte and Browers, thank you and may God bless, come again.

On Friday night of December 18, the Quarterly Conference was held at the Richland parsonage, Brother R. C. Stubbins presiding. Numerous items concerning the interest of the charge were discussed and acted upon. Apportionments of salary and conference claims were allotted to the different churches. We hope by the next quarter to have a woman's organization at each church. Committees in the interest of High Point college bonds have been appointed for all churches as follows: Browers, Brothers Zell Brown, Earl Vestal, Arlie Pugh; Cedar Falls, Brothers Clyde Redding, Mebane Ferree, Dannie Trodgen; Charlotte, Brothers A. B. Buller, T. T. Redding, E. W. Buller; Giles, A. W. Picket, R. H. Davis, John R. Rich; New Union, A. E. Williams, Miss Emma Walker, Mrs. J. H. McDowell.

Q. L. JOYNER, Pastor.

Littleton Charge.—We were gladly surprised on Tuesday night, December 15, when a number of our Corinth people came in and filled our kitchen with good things to eat. We wish to express our deepest appreciation for all given us. May God bless us all together and give us a greater determination to carry on the work of the kingdom to greater and greater success.

We were glad to have Dr. S. W. Taylor with us in our first quarterly conference on Saturday, December 19. Some important items of business were handled at this time. Dr. Taylor also preached three times for us on the third Sunday: Littleton, Weavers, and Vaughn. I am sure his messages were very much appreciated by everyone present. We hope he will come and be with us again.

Two of our churches, Weavers and Hawkins, had Christmas exercises. The trees were pretty and the programs very good. The children were especially pleased at the opportunity of seeing Santa Claus. We received some nice things from the trees. Please accept our many thanks. Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

P. E. BINGHAM, Pastor.

Davidson Charge.—The Lineberry Sunday school gave a short Christmas exercise, followed by a talk by the pastor, treat to the school, and giving of special gifts. The Christmas tree was nicely decorated. The third Sunday evening in December the Epworth League of Silon M. E. Church, South, rendered a very interesting and helpful program. Their pastor, Rev. Mr. Sisk, then preached a good sermon. We thank each one and invite them to come again.

The fourth quarterly conference of last year voted to repair and cover the parsonage barn. The first quarterly conference met at Lineberry church and after some of the members looked the old barn over, decided that it would be best to build a new barn. The lumber is now on the ground and next Tuesday is being announced for a working day to build the new barn. About two months ago the pastor had the misfortune of losing his cow. Some of the neighbors decided to help buy another cow for pastor and family and have already paid about $12. During the Christmas holidays a number of our neighbors and members have remembered us with cakes, pies, fruits, fresh meats, etc. The Lineberry Ladies' Aid gave Mrs. Bingham a negligee for a Christmas present. Mrs. Bingham has been sick and it became necessary for her to go to the High Point hospital for a few days treatment. Our neighbors certainly have been good to help us in any way they could. For the lack of space we are not going to try to mention all the names or gifts, but we wish to thank each one for their helpfulness. We also pray God's richest blessing upon them.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Ed Morris, who has been in the Thomasville hospital for an operation, is improving and expecting to come home soon.

Miss Freda Loftin has been in High Point hospital for an appendix operation, but is back home and getting along nicely.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Our very efficient reporter has been sick for some time, so it falls to my lot to send some items to the Herald.

The first has to do with the Christmas service. The pageant, "Christmas Day in the Morning," was given in the church on the Sunday before Christmas. It was one of the most effective services the church has had. A great pile of "White Gifts," as well as a substantial offering of foodstuff, was presented at the altar. And the folks were asked to come forward with their gifts of silver. Out of this we paid our Herald allotment—and a little more for good measure—and had a bit left over for the A. C. B. As a part of the service a little gift was presented to one of the King's daughters, Miss Vivian Sullivan, our ever-faithful organist, and to Dr. McCulloch, on behalf of the class he has taught ever since the church was organized.

The work of making over the balconies in the church for the use of the Sunday school classes has so far advanced that they were occupied last Sunday for the first time. The rooms are going to be a great help. Our thanks to our faithful carpenter-members, who have given otherwise idle time to this task.

The parsonage family has been the recipients of a number of tokens of love this Christmas from the members of the church. They are all greatly appreciated. The parsonage itself received a Christmas present from the Auxiliary in the shape of a new rug for the living room. And, thanks to our members who live outside the city limits, or whose pigs live on the outside of the limits, we have been supplied with about as much backbones and spareribs and sausage as preacher-folks (or any other kind of folks), ought to eat.

This coming Sunday night we are having a "Candle-Lighting Service." Music and reading, and the lighting of candles as figures symbolizing the months pass by, are all going to make a service-long-to-be-remembered.

The pastor is preaching a series of sermons on the "Fruits of the Spirit," at the morning services. The first one last Sunday on the "Fruit of Love," was well received, and I trust was helpful. This coming Sunday the subject will be "The Fruit of Joy." We extend a cordial invitation to any who read this, who may be in Greensboro for Sunday, to come to Calvary.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

First Church, High Point. — On Sunday morning the church school convened under the leadership of Supt. J. H. Jennings, lined up for another year's work. As a preliminary in the morning service, Rev. Mr. Farmer announced the receipt of a request from Pres. J C. Broomfield to set aside next Sunday, Jan-10, as a day of prayer and fasting, and to give the difference between the normal Sunday dinner and a meagre meal to the different benevolences of the church. It is estimated by this plan $1.00 per family would be contributed, and from 40,000 families the sum of $40,000 would mean the difference between success and a serious curtailment in the program of the general church and its various activities. This plan would be a fitting opening of the week of prayer for the Churches of Christ in America. The minister chose as his text for a most helpful and timely sermon, "Occupy till I come" from Luke 19. The word "occupy" comes from a word which means "Be busy." Moffatt says "trade until I come." None of us made the rules of life, but we must all obey them. God has made a niche or corner for each one of us, which we must occupy until He comes. There are three things of vital importance for members of First church to remember: First, that all Christians have a definite business for Christ to transact, and everyone has a task assigned him in God's great plan. Neglect to do our duty means failure for us, but His purpose moves on, though we fall by the wayside. The greatest fear comes when you have not been in the fight, but on a furlough or back in camp. The one who has strength and courage is the one who has improved his talents. In the World War doctors and nurses sent back 80 per cent of the wounded to the front ranks. Second, those whom He calls to do His work He furnishes with a talent. If God calls us to do a piece of work He girds us with power to move forward and consecrate our energies to labor in His kingdom. If we take God's grace, 1932 will be a memorable year for the church. Third, in the kingdom of God where work is to be done Christians must have courage. We admit that sometimes

"There are moments for us here when seeing
Life's inequalities and woe and care,
The burdens laid upon our mortal being Seem heavier than the human heart can bear," but from Owen Meredith's immortal lines comes promise of strength and reward in perseverance:

"Honest love, honest sorrow,
Honest work for the day, honest hope for the morrow—
Are these worth nothing more than the hand they make weary,
The heart they have saddened, the life they leave dreary?
Hush! the seven-fold heavens to the voice of the spirit,
Echo: He that overcometh shall all things inherit."

Is there a man or woman here who would renounce the opportunity to serve Christ?

Continuing the series of evening services which are proving popular, Rev. Mr. Farmer on Sunday evening delivered a beautiful message on "The Three Gardens." The three outstanding gardens of the Bible, Eden, Gethsemanee and Paradise with its river of life and tree of life, play large parts in every life, and they imply that man is born to three things—labor, sorrow and joy.

The Executive Board of the Woman's Auxiliary met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. S. Coe on Hillcrest Drive. The following committee was appointed to bring forward names for officers for next year: Mrs. R. I. Farmer, chairman, Mrs C. C. Robbins, and Mrs. H. A. Moffitt. Various plans for raising money were discussed and will be presented to the Auxiliary in its meeting next Monday.

The leader for the Young People's C. E. society at 6:30 Sunday evening was Robert Russell on the topic: "Are Resolutions Worth While?" The Senior society met Monday evening and after discussion of the topic, "What Jesus Teaches About Truthfulness," a pleasant social was enjoyed.

The Workers' Council will meet Wednesday evening after supper and Mr. John C. Whitesell, chairman, urge all members to attend.

The Fellowship Supper meetings have been resumed on Wednesday evenings and in spite of inclement weather, fifty attended last week. The slogan is, "Wednesday Night Belongs to the Church—Bring the Family." The minister will discuss "Jesus As a Creator of Cheerfulness."

We are pained to announce the serious illness of Mrs. Martha E. Blair at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. M. Raskin. She has pneumonia, and grave fears are felt for her recovery. Another daughter, Mrs. R. W. Noble of Chicago, arrived today to be with her mother.

Many friends extend loving and sincere sympathy to Mrs. C. L. Whitaker in the death of her sister, Mrs. John C. Hunt of Lexington, which occurred last Wednesday evening as the old year drew to its close. She had been ill for several weeks. Born Miss Bessie Peebles of Davie county, she was known and loved by a wide circle of relatives and friends for her sweetness of character and consistent Christian life.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hutchinson and Reed Surratt, Jr., of Charlotte, spent a part of the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. June Gray and family.

Rev. Mr. Farmer is again bereaved by the death of his uncle, Mr. John Taylor Farmer, of Lakemore, Ohio, near Akron. He had been ill only a few days, having attended funeral services of his brother, Mr. O. E. Farmer, on December 8th. Much sympathy is extended to our minister in this double sorrow. May the kind Heavenly Father sustain and comfort him.

Whitakers Chapel, Enfield Charge. — On January 3, Mr. H. F. Surratt gave some very good plans for the new year. After the Lord's Supper he took a collection for children's home, and also a dime from each member to go to Mr. McCulloch, as we understand he is having to take money out of his pocket to keep printing the church Herald. Now if every member will just do this bit it will help a lot; don't say it will pay him, but it will go a long way.

Glad to see so many at church the first Sunday of the year; hope they will increase every Sunday.

Some of our members have been sick. Mr. J. E. Lawrence has been sick quite a while but he is improving; also glad to report Miss Lelia Holiday was able to be at church; always glad to see Miss Lelia at the old chapel We were all very sorry to hear Mr. Sam Lewis had the misfortune, while cranking a gasoline engine, to sprain his arm, hope he will soon be able to use it again; also hope Miss Virginia Whitaker will soon be wll again.

Wishing every reader a pleasant new year.

Fairview Church, Anderson Charge.—On Wednesday night, December 23, Mr. T. B. Nalley delightfully entertained the members of the Ladies' Aid society and their husbands at his home, with a banquet. Everyone present seemed to enjoy it to the fullest extent both in eating and in amusements.

Our Sunday school is steadily growing. We had 168 present Sunday. New officers and teachers for the ensuing year were elected: Superintendent, Mr. T. B. Nalley; assistant superintendent, Mr. D. T. Foster; manager and treasurer, Rev. Henderson; secretary, Bieman Henderson; pianists, Misses Ann Henderson and Elizabeth White; singing clerk, Mr. Heyward Addison; reporter, Bertha Connelly. Mr. L. H. White was elected teacher of the Men's Bible class. The others were: Miss Monez Henderson, Mr. J. W. Smith, Elizabeth White, Ann Henderson, Mildred Nalley and Mrs. E. F. Connelly.

We are having some very interesting discussions of different chapters of the Bible in our Senior Christian Endeavor now by our pastor, Rev. M. C. Henderson. We had a very helpful program Sunday evening and at the conclusion of the meeting new officers were elected: President, Miss Montez Henderson; vice-president, Claude White; second vice-president, Knox Lamar; secretary and treasurer, Bertha Connelly; and corresponding secretary, Mildred Nalley. Our various committees for the past term are certainly to be commended for their splendid work. Our number has steadily grown until our present number is 82. Some splendid programs have been given, especially our Christmas program and we have had at least one social a month which everyone has enjoyed.

Our social for December is to be Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Heyward Foster.

We have on a drive now in the hopes of raising funds with which to build Sunday school rooms. They are greatly needed and we are hoping to see them erected soon. The men are to furnish the lumber and the Ladies' Aid the other materials.

Our Ladies' Aid is a very wide awake organization. Besides buying a new piano for the church, they have quilted two quilts for the Children's Home and are now busy on plans for the Sunday school rooms.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—The Christmas program was well attended. The children were well trained and each child spoke his part well. Mrs. Beulah Moore had charge of training the children. The tree was beautifully decorated and beneath was laden with presents. Also a nice treat for each member of the Sunday school.

The Sunbeam and Mission Band classes asked for a donation of handkerchiefs and they got 40 in their box and the handkerchiefs were sent to High Point Children's Home to be given out to the children there as a Christmas gift.

The Ladies' Aid society has placed a new bedroom suit at the parsonage. Something that had been needed for some time. Was a guest bed room. So now the parsonage is very nicely furnished, although the Royal Blue class gave Mrs. Barnes a linen shower.

There will be a pie and cake sale at the hut next Saturday afternoon, the proceeds to go to the ladies' class.

The young men's class will hold a class meeting next Thursday night with their teacher, Mr. P. A. Garner. This class of young men had charge of the opening service at Sunday school on Christmas Sunday with Mr. Edward Morris as their leader. Special music was furnished and Mr. Oaks, our superintendent, told the young ladies that they would be called on soon to open Sunday school.

The Ladies' Aid will meet Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Garner at the parsonage for their regular monthly meeting. There will be no prayer meeting Wednesday night, this has been called off to attend a special meeting at Grace church.

Our Sunday school and preaching services are well attended and are looking for a good year's work.

First Church, Albemarle.—The fifth Sunday night the regular union service was held in our church. Rev. M. L. Dorton of West Albemarle Baptist church, delivered the sermon, and the men's chorus from the Tabernacle M. E. church furnished the music. The church was filled to overflowing. These services mean so much to our people, it is an occasion that we have come to look forward to with great anticipation.

The Woman's Auxiliary met in the ladies' parlor the second Tuesday in December. A very interesting meeting was held.

The first quarterly conference met December 16th with Rev. J. R. Anderson, presiding. A large attendance was present. Many important features were discussed at this meeting. With the interest shown at this meeting I feel safe in saying that we are going to have one of our greatest years in 1932.

Rev. N. M. Harrison was with us at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday. He delivered a very inspiring message, using as his text, Ephesians 3:19, "Filled with all the fulness of God." He said in part that every individual was inclined to be like God; take for instance the sinner who has gone far in the depths of sin and seems to have forgotten all that is good in life; if we would stop and take the time to study this character we would find some good in him. God has a plan for every individual life; however we do not always carry out his plan. He has one measuring stick by which he measures every life, that is, that we be filled with all the fulness of God.

There are four distinct marks of a Christian. First, that we be filled with love; if we are filled with this love it will cause us to endure persecution; this love made Christ carry the cross, it caused him to pray to his father, it caused him to speak to the thief on the cross. So there is nothing greater than having God's love in our hearts. Second, that we be filled with knowledge; it is very essential that we acquire all the knowledge that we can possess. There are many kinds of knowledge but the one which is most essential in our lives is the Divine knowledge of God. Third that we be filled with faith; when we have the true faith in God we will be firm in our belief, when doubts arise and fears press us we will have that faith that never wavers. This same faith causes us, when clouds seem darkest and the tempest seems high, to anchor our ship upon the rocky shore and endure the storms of life with a zeal for the coming day. Fourth, that we be filled with all power; we must have power to control our minds, body and soul. Therefore with love, knowledge, faith and power we can win the world for Christ.

Shiloh Charge.—The work is moving along very well; the people have a mind to work, and they are doing it. The times are hard, and they know it, so they are not folding their hands and saying I can't, but they tre willing to face it and work. Our missionary societies are doing a good work this year; they have accepted a part of the budget beside their own budget, given to them by the woman's board; in fact, every department of the church has entered into the work. And if the Lord is willing we will come out on top.

A few Sundays ago we received two good members into Shiloh church, Mrs. Ira and Lake Koonts. We were glad to have them.

Brother Ray Leatherman is working for the Herald and he will put Shiloh on the honor roll by the end. We are going over the top with our college bond sale too. Watch the paper. Boys, let's get behind our college, and make it go. We can, we must.

Shiloh church has one of the best prayer meetings you ever attended, deeply spiritual and interesting. We have three good class leaders, Brothers Jeff Berrier, Jeff Fruth, and Bob Sink, in fact all of our officers are working hard, facing facts as they are and going ahead.

We have been remembered recently by Bro. Jeff, Mrs. and Emma Berrier, Brother York and Brother J. W. Byerly, Miss Ethel Fitzgerald, Juanita and Odell Philips, Miss Lelia Byerly with Christmas gifts and good things to eat.

We thank all these good people for the good things, along with many Christmas cards.

R. S. TROXLER.

NOTICE—First quarterly conference will meet at Shiloh church, Saturday, Jan. 9, at 2:30. Come.—R. S. T.

State St., Lexington.—On Wednesday night, December 23, there was a song service with scripture readings and prayer held in the church after which a Christmas tree in the basement was the center of attraction to a large number of children and grown-ups alike. Santa Claus came in person and distributed gifts and treats. The evening was a most enjoyable one.

The Young People of our congregation who are attending school at various colleges were home for the holidays and back in their places at the services. Mr. Loyd Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Leonard, who is an employee of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., at Charlotte, N. C., spent the holidays her with his parents. Misses Elane and Evelyn Williams of Graham, were brief visitors in Mr. Leonard's home also.

A pleasant and profitable meeting of the Men's Brotherhood was held at the church last Thursday night with a record attendance.

Our Sunday school continues to grow. We are hoping for an average attendance of 250 by early spring.

The pastor, Rev. G. H. Hendry, delivered two fine and impressive sermons here Sunday and also filled his appointment at Spencer.

Next Sunday will be our anniversary of the opening of our house of worship and will be celebrated in a fitting manner. We are expecting an address by Dr. Humphreys of the High Point college and other interesting features including luncheon served in the church dining room as has been the custom since our first anniversary.

We hope many of our friends from nearby churches will enjoy the day with us.

REPORTER.

Why Not.—We appreciate most highly the kind reception given us by the good people of this charge. We have found the folks not only kind and appreciative, but interested in all departments of church work. We have preached twice at all the churches except Love Joy and Macedonia, and we expect to preach at these appointments for the second time next Sunday. We held our first quarterly conference at New Hope on Saturday before the 3rd Sunday in December. All the churches were represented except Macedonia. Sea Grove is ahead of all the other churches in finances. They have already paid more than one-fourth of their apportionment for pastor's salary for entire year. New Hope comes next and Love Joy third. Doubtless Love Joy will be ahead after our appointment there Sunday. Up to this writing we have been there only once since conference.

We are enjoying this work fine, but find it difficult to put on aggressive programs and carry them out, since we are at each church only once a month. However, we feel that something can be accomplished because we have a people who are willing to co-operate in all the work of the church. Four of the churches had Christmas trees with appropriate exercises by the children. The first was at Fair Grove church on Wednesday, 7:30 p. m. The children rendered their parts well and all present enjoyed themselves. The pastor appreciates most heartily the box presented to him by Brother J. E. King, superintendent of the Sunday school. Brother King, we are sorry to say, has since Christmas, moved his family out of the community. The church is sorry to have them go but hopes to see them back as often as possible. Brother L. E. Cagle was elected to succeed Brother King as superintendent. In him the church and pastor feel that they have another good superintendent who will carry on the work.

At New Hope Thursday, 1:30 p. m., the children rendered a splendid program of recitations and songs and the Christmas treat that followed was thoroughly enjoyed by the Sunday school. The pastor shared in the gifts distributed and wishes to thank those who gave them.

At Flag Springs and Sea Grove similar programs were rendered and the pastor is sorry he could not be present.

We have some historic churches on this charge and will write about them later.

GEO. L. REYNOLDS.

Baltimore, West Forsyth.—Rev. C. B. Way last Sunday preached an excellent sermon from the text, "But God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world." Paul gloried in the Cross of Jesus, and we should glory in the Cross also. It was on the Cross that Jesus died for us that we might be saved, and gave us the plan of salvation.

The members of the church gave Brother Way and family a pounding; they seemed to appreciate it very much.

REPORTER.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Rev. P. E. Bingham's next service will be Sunday at 11 o'clock. We invite you all to come.

Miss Beatrice Hawkins, Jr., teacher, awarded Hubert and Willis Hawkins a prize for being present three months. She also will give another to those who come for the next three. We had one of our members from Roanoke Rapids, Mr. Willis Hawkins, also wife and little girl, to attend Sunday school Sunday. Right after Sunday school Mr. C. F. Hawkins, the class leader, sure did bring out some touching points in his service.

The C. E. society met Sunday. They postponed their meeting the fourth Sunday on account of the death of Mrs. W. S. Pepper, of Roanoke Rapids. As she was buried not so far from here.

We had our Christmas tree Christmas night. The program was carried out very nicely for the time Misses Erma, and Susie Hawkins had to get it up. We were glad Mr. Bingham could take a part in it. I must not leave Santa Claus out, for he was very nice. I don't think he missed one in the congregation that he didn't give some fruit. Collection for the benefit of our parsonage was taken.

Miss Susie Hawkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hawkins, became the bride of Mr. Irvin Hawkins, the son of Mrs. C. M. Hawkins, December 26, 1931.

Mr. Raymond Hawkins from Richmond, Va., spent Christmas with his mother, Mrs. C. M. Hawkins.

We are sorry to note Mrs R. K. Hawkins is very seriously ill with pneumonia.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville.—Our work continues to move on nicely.

Brother E. G. Cowan, on the second Sunday, preached an inspiring sermon, after which he conducted Communion service. He also filled his fourth Sunday appointment. He seemed encouraged to have an increasing congregation to preach to.

The S. S. attendance yesterday was 48, and our superintendent, Brother W. G. Silvers, told us he wanted the S. S. to double the amount next Sunday, and we would have our new song books and good music. So come and see what the church, Sunday school and Junior Endeavor are doing. We have new members each Sunday and the interest shown is gratifying.

We sincerely hope and trust this will be the best year's work in many.

LOUISE CHEEK, Reporter.

Graham.—The pastor and his family have fared sumptuously during the Christmas season. On Wednesday afternoon before Christmas a nice turkey found its way into our backyard and stayed long enough for us to eat on him all the days of our feastings. And in addition to this, pounders entered our place of habitation on a night or so before Christmas and left us supplies for many days to come. After all, there is much joy in being a minister of His, even when the times are hard. We are wont to feel that these are evidences of a sympathy and a regard for the preacher and his family from the people whom we are so fortunate to be able to serve. We hope we can prove worthy of the price, and that they in turn will be rewarded for this expression of affection.

FROM REV. G. F. MILLAWAY

I want to say a few words through the Herald to all our friends:

First, Concord people who gave us a shower of nice things just before we left there. We are very grateful to them for their kind remembrance of us.

Second, to our many friends who sent us so many nice Christmas cards.

Perhaps by the time you read these words I will be in the Diabetic Hospital in Boston, Mass., under treatment of Dr. E. P. Joshin. We desire to be remembered by all our friends and brethren in the North Carolina conference of the M. P. Church.

I do not know how long I will have to stay for treatment, but hope to get through in a reasonable time. We hope the treatment will be successful.

My home address is: RFD 2, Box 473-M, Greensboro, N. C.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES OF TEMPERANCE AND DIRECTORS OF PUBLICITY

Mrs. Ella E. Boole, national and world president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, will address the Charlotte Victory Day meeting from 8 to 9 p. m., and her address will be broadcast from WBT, Charlotte, on the Columbia Broadcasting System. If you have a radio and want to hear something from an intensely interesting speaker, tune in from 8 to 9 p. m. January 17, WBT, Charlotte.

Dr. Luther Little, who says he never turns his church (the First Baptist) over to anybody at a regular preaching service; has thought enough of this opportunity to give North and South Carolina a chance to hear this woman who is at the lead of W. C. T. U. in 57 countries, to give us his pulpit supplied with microphone, for the occasion.

Write the time and place on your radio pad now so you won't forget it.

Sincerely,
MRS. R. M. ANDREWS.

MRS. MARGARET FRANK CELEBRATES HER 83rd BIRTHDAY NEAR DENTON

On Saturday night, December 12th, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Frank entertained at their home in honor of Mrs. Margaret Frank's 83rd birthday.

Mrs. Frank is the mother of Rev. J. W. Frank, missionary to Japan, W. A. Frank and Mrs. B. K. Taylor of near Denton.

Seven grandchildren, Mrs. Nannie Maie Loflin, Jesse Taylor, Denton, Mrs. Louie Reid and Miss Kate Frank, High Point. Mrs. Margaret Heath, Chadbourne, John Frank, Mt. Airy, Grady Frank, Oxford University, England.

Six great grandchildren, Cletie, Marvin, and Jewel Loflin, Cuyler, John and Josephine Heath.

After a social hour the guests were invited to the dining room for refreshments. The birthday cake with candles was arranged on a table where ferns were banked. After beautiful and fitting remarks and a prayer by her pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, the candles were lighted by Kate Frank and Cletie Loflin. The cake was then cut by Mrs. Louie Reid.

Mrs. Frank is quite active and health very good. We are wishing her many more happy birthdays.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank our many friends for their kindness, during the illness and death of our dear wife and mother, Caroline Victoria Pegram.

SPECIAL FROM THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHILDREN'S HOME

We have on our table a stack of Christmas and New Year cards which came from loving friends throughout the church from Alabama to Michigan and from New Jersey to Iowa, and we are taking this way of expressing our very great appreciation for the love and friendship which prompted this kind remembrance. It has been well said that, "He who would have friends must show himself friendly." We are just as friendly as we ever were and we love our friends just as much as we ever did, and that meant a great deal; but in the work where our church has placed us for the present we find ourselves so overwhelmed with the duties of this home at the holiday season that we have not the time even to select the cards much less to address them and mail them. A mother who has five children to plan for and to fix for at Christmas knows what it would mean to have just one hundred more added to that five. So please know that we appreciate all the more your kind thought of us.

Another Delightful Surprise

One morning last week the same men who put down so much good oak flooring for us just before Christmas came and announced that they were here to floor the kitchen and the kitchen pantry and the hall leading from the dining room into the kitchen. They brought with them Mr. Ernest Evans, Mebane, N. C., and Mr. Will Irvin and his son, Howard Irvin, Hillsboro, N. C., all of whom donated their services for the day. Neither one of these three men is a member of the Methodist Protestant church, but they are good Christian men, and they told us they enjoyed the day with us and were glad to work for us that day for nothing except the consciousness that they had helped a good cause. We were told before the day was over that this flooring was being paid for by Mr. C. H. Jones, Mr. W. A. Davies and Mr. Atlas Williams, of Hillsboro, N. C., and by Union Grove church, Orange. We are so thankful to these good men and to this splendid people. So the good work goes on, the oak floor keeps growing, the plastering and other much needed improvements will be done without cost to the Home. O, it is fine to have so many good friends.

Free-Will Offerings

There have come to us around Thanksgiving and Christmas several free-will offerings which were beautiful in the spirit in and through which they came. Just a quotation from a few of them will serve to show what we mean. One said, "We are sending you check for $25.00, a part of our White Gifts Offering. With best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year." Another, "Our Ladies' Aid society takes up a missionary offering at its meeting each month, and we are sending this month's offering of $5.00 to the M. P. Children's Home." Another, "The inclosed gift of $15.00 is sent by our C. E. society. May God richly bless each of the children and you and Mrs. Dixon as you endeavor to teach the true Christmas spirit." Another, "I am enclosing check for $15.00. This was raised by one of my Sunday school classes. Give my love to the children as one of their friends. Success to you and Mrs. Diron." And another, "The enclosed check for $25.00 is a donation from the——Missionary circle. We hope it will bring a little Christmas cheer to the children."

And still another, "We had the White Gifts Christmas at ——Chapel S. S. this year. The children decided to give up their candy treat, which the church has given them for years, and add the price of the candy to the offering taken for the Children's Home. In addition to this they brought little gifts wrapped in white paper to lay about the manger and go afterwards to the children at High Point. We are sending check in amount of $20.00, their Christmas offering, with the hope that 1932 may be a happy year for you all."

These expressions show you just the spirit in which the gifts have come from God's children throughout the church around these holiday seasons. We appreciate it more than we can tell, and we are praying God's richest blessings upon those who have thus remembered the orphan child. And we believe your hearts would be cheered and helped if you could only hear some of our little tots praying for you.

We are already planning to observe the week of prayer and to join with all the other Methodist Protestants in praying the rich blessings of heaven upon the church and its institutions.

Yours in His blessed service,
MR. AND MRS. A. G. DIXON.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Garrett

Mrs. Mary E. Garrett passed away at home, December 18, 1931, aged 85 years, 10 months and 15 days. Mrs. Garrett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson Vestal, was the widow of Mr. G. W. Garrett who died less than a month ago.

Surviving are three sons, H. A. and W. B. Garrett, of Burlington, and E. M. Garrett of Haw River; four sisters and two brothers, Mrs. A. J. Albright, Mrs. G. W. Patterson, Mrs. Alson McPherson, Mrs. John More, G. W. Vestal, and W. S. Vestal, all of this county.

In her youth Mrs. Garrett united with the Mt. Hermon Methodist Protestant church and was ever a faithful member until she was called to her reward.

Funeral services were conducted from Mt. Hermon church, Sunday, December 20, 1931 at 11:00 o'clock. Rev. L. E. Mabrey had charge ot the service, assisted by Rev. J. E. Carroll of Yale university.

A large number of friends and relatives were gathered at the church to pay the last rites of respect and honor to Mrs. Garrett, who was a Christian woman. In passing away we feel that Mrs. Garrett has been called to receive her reward for a life of faithful service, and that our loss is her gain.

The church wishes to extend sympathy to the bereaved ones and to Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Garrett who were so faithful in caring for them in the time of need.

Yates

Mrs. Callie Elizabeth Yates, wife of the late Jesse Yates, died December 15, at her home on South State street, Lexington, following several years of declining health. Several weeks ago, Mrs. Yates fell and broke a hip, from which accident she never fully recovered.

Mrs. Yates was 70 years, three months, and ten days of age at the time of her death. For many years she was a member of the Methodist Protestant church, taking an active part in its affairs. She will be missed not only in the church but also by her many friends.

Surviving are one son, Henry Yates, who was delegate from the South Lexington charge at the last session of the annual conference; and Mrs. Myrtle Crouse, both of Lexington.

Funeral services were held at the First Methodist Protestant church at Lexington of which the deceased was a member, December 17, by her pastor. Interment was in the church cemetery. The floral tributes spoke forcefully of the esteem in which Mrs. Yates was held.

Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved family.

"CALVARY'S FAMILY"

Have you ever heard of a family tree?
Well, we have one that is hard to beat,
All the members are as friendly as can be.
To be a branch of this tree is a real treat.

Let me introduce a few of the folks,
First is head of the family, Mr. Bates,
He's very friendly, neither chews nor smokes,
Goes around ringing door bells and crashing gates.

Second is Ma Bates, she's boss they say.
The children better mind, I'll say they had.
You better pay up on your penny a day,
For if you don't it makes her very sad.

Then there's Miss Vivian, boss in the hut,
She bangs on the piano and organ too.
Thinks she can play, she does nothing else but Beats the ivories till they are black and blue.

She has some competition in this game,
That Williams girl LIZ-A-BETH.
Between the two 'tis a dirty shame,
They don't let those music boxes pause for breath.

Our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. Coe,
Tells us how to do this and that,
Makes us sing and sing some mo'—
Don't allow no fun, can't even cuss the cat.

The musical-ist man in this here family
Is Mr. Ralph Jackson, a sad case,
Since he can't reach a single high C,
He has to be content in singing bass.

Mr. Coble is the man who sings high notes,
Some times he feels he could rob a bank
But then he starts collecting the votes—
And starts filling the empty tank.

There's Willis Booth, want to know his game?
He's the man who holds the money bag
Till his wife holds him up—what a shame.
No danger of his pockets being able to sag.

Some of the women are mixed up in this
Mrs. Curtis leads these fair maidens,
They leave a home of sweet content and bliss
To enrich the treasury, may it be heavily laden.

Of all of the women you'd better beware
Mrs. Overcash, the reporter of this and that She'd make you weep, cause gray hair
If she didn't keep what she knows under her hat.

Last but not least we'll give honorable mention
To Mr. Sullivan, our Janitor, a nice man
Bear this in mind, give it close attention,
He'll make it hot for you whenever he can.

There are others too numerous to quote
But our family is quite nice you see,
If there are any whom I failed to note
Please speak up, that we may see who you be.

—Margaret A. Overcash.

A GENTLEMAN.

He does not boast or give offense,
He has a wealth of common sense.
He keeps his eyes on all his friends,
He yields but never condescends.
He always has a gracious air,
He plays the game and plays it fair.
He speaks with pleasant voice and low,
He shuns all ostentatious show.
He lives without a thought of gain,
He will not gossip or complain.
He is considerate towards the weak,
He does not adulation seek.
He knows precisely what to say,
He scatters sunshine on the way.
He tries to do the best he can,
He is an ideal gentleman.

"WHEN WILL THE JOURNAL BE OUT?"

We hope it will appear within the next two weeks. I have had about three-fourths of the proof, and will probably have the remainder before this appears in print.

I am asking the preachers if they will, to take advance orders for copies. It is very necessary that we get in the money for the Journal sooner than we have been doing. The printers need ready money—like all the rest of us—and it isn't fair to them to have to wait for twelve months for it. If we expect them to print the Journal promptly, it is only right that we should do our part and pay for it with equal promptness. (Now all you preachers say, "Amen" to that!)

This is going to be the best Journal yet. The edition is limited. Be sure and get your copy. It will be priced at 25 cents, which is about 10 cents less than it cost. And a whole lot less than it's worth.

C. W. BATES, Secretary.

In John Wesley's Day there was a question like this—

"Are We Going On to Perfection?"

This is the question now facing the Methodist Protestant Church in North Carolina. How shall we answer?

A denomination, having more than 30,000 members in the state faces the responsibility of being a dynamic force in the life of its constituency, in the outlook of communities and in the progress of the commonwealth.

Facing such responsibility—the denomination must have an educated and trained leadership, both in the ministry and laity. It must be an education that is Christian, and this means under Christian leadership, where Christian ideals and motives receive their due emphasis under wholesome influences.

Hence the recognition, long since, of the Church as to the need of the Christian College.

This is the why of High Point College. Let us face the FACTS:

HIGH POINT COLLEGE BONDS

First Mortgage 6% Secured by Deed of Trust on

A—High Point College (Land, Buildings, Equipment)		$636,805.66
B—Children's Home (Land, Buildings, Equipment)		257,445.00

C—Further Assets behind Bonds:
Real Estate Mortgage	$69,000.
Greensboro Real Estate	12,500.
		81,500.00
Total Property Assets		$975,750.66

These Bonds are in Five and Ten Year terms: Bonds for $200,000.00 mature February 15, 1935, in denominations of $100.00, $500.00 and $1,000.00.

Bonds for $150,000.00 mature February 15, 1940, in denominations of $5,000.00 each.

INTEREST at 6%, payable semi-annually in February and August.

GUARANTEED by the National Board of Christian Education.

* * *

Redemption of Bonds at Maturity pledged by the Methodist Protestant Church in North Carolina—and further underwritten by the General Church.

1. Our Church has achieved an outstanding record in High Point College.
2. Our indebtedness is not great in the light of assets, but its nature is such that the pressure is tremendous—and we must relieve the pressure.
3. In seven years High Point College has attained a yearly enrollment, standing in college circles and community confidence, that have no parallel in the history of denominational colleges.
4. The City of High Point is challenging the North Carolina Conference in this plan of re-financing through the sale of bonds. We must meet the challenge.
5. For the first time in the one hundred years' history of the denomination, the General Church, without respect to area, is being appealed to through its official leadership to back a college. And bonds are being bought outside of North Carolina. We must capitalize this support.
6. There is money enough in the possession of Methodist Protestants in our Conference to absorb our quota of bonds. Let us do it.
7. Let us say, "We are going on"—to sell these bonds, thus re-financing the College, and securing it these days of "trying times."

Is it Depression or Repression that is gripping the Church? Doubtless something of both—but now it is going to be Expression! Expression of FAITH—LOYALTY—PURPOSE.

The Life Transcendent

What was life to Nicodemus?
What did future have to offer?
Just respect from men about him,
Health of body, well-filled coffer.

Better, greater things to hope for
Never entered expectation:
Only what his rank could bring him
Under Roman domination.

Thoughtful, anxious Nicodemus,
Seeking way of satisfaction,
Goes at night to Master Teacher,
Not divining his reaction.

Master Teacher takes his measure,
Wastes no time in non-essentials,
Goes at once to root of matter,
Does not pause to show credentials.

Life is grander, richer, sweeter,
Than the ruler could conjecture,
Knowing only petty creatures
In the bounds of his prefecture.

Life on earth is not a picture
Of the life that is eternal:
Greater things will be in schedule
Than we see in times diurnal.

Grander outlook none can fancy—
Scenes of life and wondrous glory:
Saints of earth and Heaven's angels
Join in song to tell the story.

Yearning heart of Nicodemus
Cries aloud for satisfaction:
Peace with God and joy unfailing—
Can there be such benefaction?

"How to gain the wondrous bounty"
Comes from every heart that's feeling.
Master Teacher solves the query,
Speaking words the truth revealing.

Life eternal, gift supernal,
Is for those whose hearts are lowly:
Men and women, hardened, haughty,
Must be childlike to be holy.

Birth anew to life celestial
Comes alone to poor in spirit;
Sons of God by re-creation
Are the ones that life inherit.

Back of all the loving Father
Brings us hope that we should cherish:
Sends His Son to live and suffer,
Making way that none need perish.

Severe Remedies

Brother Millaway's experience of amputation calls to mind some of Jesus' teaching. He advised the cutting off of limbs and the plucking out of eyes in certain cases. Taken literally his advice is good. Physicians to this day must sometimes resort to amputation to save life. And the patient consents to it. It is better to live with one leg or one arm or one eye than not to live at all. But Jesus had reference to the moral life. There are certain evil habits which if persisted in will corrupt the whole moral life. These habits may be as dear as an eye, but they must be cut off to save life. A man will submit to severe remedies to save his body. How much more should he be willing to do so to save his soul. The gangrene of sin is a deadly infection.

More Space Needed

We wish we could enlarge the HERALD. It is not large enough for all the matter seeking publication. But enlargement cannot be seriously thought of under present conditions. What shall we do? We wish to serve to the best of our ability every interest and institution of the church. It is not pleasant to defer publication. Again we ask, What shall we do? We direct the question specially to those who send in matter for publication. Is it possible to condense this matter into smaller dimensions?

Brother Bates Bereft

Last Tuesday Rev. C. W. Bates received two telegrams telling him of his father's serious illness with pneumonia at his home in Brooklyn, New York. He took the first train for Brooklyn and arrived in time for his father's funeral service. He had seen but little of his father since he left home to prepare for the ministry and now he knows he can see him no more in the life that now is. He has our sympathy in this sad bereavement. He has the consolation of the hope of a happy reunion in the better life to follow this.

—The war between China and Japan seems to be growing in bitterness and intensity. It makes a painful spectacle to Christian peoples. Perhaps it will reveal to Christian churches the need of stronger, wiser and more persistent efforts to Christianize these nations.

WASTE OF TIME

Time is defined in Webster's dictionary as being "part of a duration," and waste is, "an act of destruction." When we put them both together it is termed as "destruction of duration." None of us want to be accused of being "destroyers of duration." Our time is given to us to make out of it what we will. We should use our time properly, and unless we know how to use it properly we can't do so.

There has never been a time when we as people of the United States of America did not have work of our own to do. Especially during this depression. We must strive to do the very best we can. Certainly there is no time to lose at the present as well as the future. We must work!

There is no time for idleness. We should refrain from being idle, and wasting time by so doing. The time we lose can not be regained, and by this being true we must make good use of the present time, when we have the privilege to do so. Don't throw your life away!

Am I guilty of wasting time? This is a good question for each one of us to ask ourselves. I am afraid many of us students as well as business people are sorry they have been accused of this dreadful thing, wasting time.

We shouldn't ever lounge around as if we have nothing to do. That is almost a crime, it seems to me.

If any of us of this fair land are guilty of wasting the time given to us by God, let's do our best at the beginning of a New Year, to refrain from idleness. "Let us be up and doing, for night cometh when no man can see."

R. Stone Payne.

PASTORS POUNDING PUBLISHER

Fifty pastors' subscriptions are due for renewal now. Please look at the address label on your paper and see how you stand. Knowing the financial need of the paper as you do, and I feel that everyone of you does know it, won't you please, immediately upon reading this, send in the money to bring your subscription to a 1932 paid-up date? Let all who are in arrears send it in this week and make it a sort of "pounding" for Brother McCulloch.

Of the fifty subscriptions mentioned above the following are the years in which they expire:

8 expired in January 1932
24 expired in January 1931
3 expired in January 1930
3 expired in January 1929
1 expired in January 1928
3 expired in January 1927

Eight have never paid anything, and yet the paper is being sent regularly to all the above. Please do the necessary and PAY UP. As to the eight who have never paid for the paper, the address label on your paper shows no expiration date. Please pay up for the years of 1930, 1931 and 1932, in line with Conference action as set forth in my article on page four of last week's Herald. If you can't do that then send in your $2.00 and subscribe for the paper beginning with the present date. I don't want this to seem harsh, it is not meant that way. I feel that some have overlooked the action of the Conference and that we have but to call it to their attention and they will gladly pay. I am writing this on my own responsibility, Brother McCulloch does not know that I am writing it—so do not find fault with him for it.

The above matter is in the way of our Herald Campaign for two reasons: First, the failure to keep your subscriptions paid up works a hardship on the publisher and adds to the deficit. Second, when you have paid up yourself you will then be in position to expect your charge to raise its quota, but the above arrears stand in the way of your co-operation in this campaign. I appeal and plead for your co-operation and for the co-operation of every Pastor in the Conference in putting over the Herald Campaign. To put it over means beginning early and working late perhaps, but it does mean beginning now. Several charges have not yet a single credit, and the year will soon be one-fourth gone. Please, please, please be concerned about this matter.

E. L. Douglas, Chairman,
Conference Directing Committee.

P. S.—If you can't pay this week, write Brother McCulloch a card and tell him when you will pay it, but please let him hear from you this week.—E. L. D.

THE CHURCH AND CRITICISM

The Church has always been a convenient target for fault-finders, infidels, and the like. It seems to give unqualified pleasure to certain classes of men, who never enter a church or support it, to reproach Christians for their selfishness and lack of Christly characters. It does not occur to these prejudiced and ill-informed people that were the conditions they describe really true, their first duty would be to join the Church and set others a good example.

"The Church is doomed," cries the mediocre mind in an attempt to justify its own shortcomings. "My golf is my Church," explains another backslider. "What is the Church doing?" inquired one who himself is doing nothing. And so on every side are voices of disappointed and dissatisfied people who seek to saddle the Church with responsibility for their own deficiencies.

Meanwhile the Church of Christ works serenely on, helping the poor, visiting the sick, encouraging the hopeless, lifting the fallen, strengthening the weak and bearing the cross. The living, purifying, vitalizing Church of God is the safeguard of our liberties and is the rock-built hope of humanity.

Grenville Kleiser.

TWO SETS OF PLEASURES

Today, said the Psalmist, I am filled; "my cup runneth over." Tomorrow and forever I shall be with the Lord, dwelling in His pavilion. If trouble overtakes me and sorrow wounds me, goodness is trailing me, and will soon overtake me and heal me; if the archers of sin should shoot me and mistakes should confuse my steps, mercy will help goodness to relieve me, for she, too, is on my track, not far behind. "Surely goodnes and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life"; and, beyond the days of this life, I shall continue to live—in the house of the Lord forever.—Christian Witness.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Our Sick

We called attention last week to the fact that Brother Millaway is in a hospital in Boston. Since then we have learned that the doctors there found it necessary to amputate one of his legs. This will be distressing news to the many friends of Brother Millaway. But let us hope that in the end it may prove good news. It is often true that the surgeon's knife is the only remedy for our physical ailments. It will be sustaining to Brother Millaway and to his family to know that many prayers will be offered daily for his comfort and recovery. His address is, New Deaconess hospital, Deaconess Road, Boston, Mass.

We note, with much satisfaction, that Brother Shelton is out of the hospital and able to meet his appointments again. We trust, however, that he may not presume too much on his strength in these early days after his operation.

Young People's Day

The date is January 31—the last Sunday in January. This day is appointed by the General Conference, and is the first of the four special days of the conference year. A complete and easily rendered program has been prepared by the Department of Religious Education and sent out to our pastors, superintendents, and other leaders of young people. We urge our people to observe the day, and take the offering for New Century Service. It counts on the budget of the local church, of course. When it is sent in to Dr. Brown, it should be marked, "Young People's Day." If it is not convenient to observe this day January 31, then select some other date that will be convenient and give the program at that time. This day is well worthwhile from every standpoint, and we trust that our churches throughout the conference will observe it, and give it all possible emphasis.

Another Call to Prayer

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is calling upon the churches throughout this country to observe Sunday, January 31, as a day of prayer for God's blessings on the World Disarmament Conference that meets in Geneva, Switzerland, during the first week in February. Throughout the world, Christian churches will be praying that God's guiding hand may be on this conference. It is certainly high time that wars should cease in the earth, and there is no surer way to bring in this good day of world peace than through prayer. Our conference, of course, will want to join this movement. Let us pray for this peace conference, and let us continue to pray for wisdom and strength with which to go on with our conference and denominational work. Great problems are facing us, but surely God is sufficient for these things.

Group Meetings

We continue to hold them in the interest of the sale of college bonds. We were rained out at Midway, Haw River charge, on last Wednesday, only the pastor being present. He was hopeful, however, that his charge would take some bonds. The meeting at Grace was held Wednesday night, as appointed. The charges in this grouping are, Grace, Calvary, St. Paul, West End, Moriah-Liberty, and Tabernacle. All were represented but one. President Humphreys, Brother Harrison, and myself addressed the meeting in the interest of the bonds. Some bonds have been sold in this district, and we are hopeful that more may be placed.

Alamance

January 9, Saturday.—Our schedule on this date took us to Center church, Alamance. The occasion was the meeting of the first quarterly conference. Owing to the rain the 11 o'clock preaching service was not held. After dinner, which was served in the church, we had a devotional service, and then the conference. Rock Creek and Sapling Ridge were not represented. Pastor's salary and budgets were apportioned, and all other business incident to a first quarterly conference was transacted. Brother J. W. Whitehead was re-elected secretary for the 39th year in succession. During the 38 years that he has already served he has missed about ten quarterly conferences. We wonder if there is another charge in the annual conference that has a quarterly conference official with a record like this? Our opinion is that there is not. Brother Whitehead is an efficient secretary, a loyal Methodist Protestant, and a consecrated Christian. This quarterly conference was late because the pastor, Brother J. A. Burgess, took a vacation—we believe his first ever—immediately upon the adjournment of the last annual conference, and visited Washington and other points north. He is beginning his eighth year with this charge, and is recognized by his people as an able preacher. The report on finances showed but little raised thus far in this conference year. However, all charges had paid the $5 requested by Brother Pritchard for the Board of Church Extension. The Sunday Schools on the charge are good. Center has paid balance on piano; Sapling Ridge is running on through the winter months, which is a new thing for this school; the attendance at Bethel has nearly doubled in twelve months. This school has an orchestra of stringed instruments. Center, Rock Creek, and Sapling Ridge support the Women's Work by monthly payments, though they do not hold regular meetings. Bethel church has a live and well organized Auxiliary, and paid all obligations in full last year. Center has a C. E. society, though it will likely be suspended during the winter months. A agent for the sale of college bonds had been appointed at each church. The charge is in its normal good condition, and the pastor and his people will be faithful in carrying on the work this year.

Released

By an agreement between Brother O. B. Williams and the Porter church, he has been released from the pastorate of that charge, and Rev. J. R. Anderson appointed to the work. Bro. Anderson began his duties as pastor there last Sunday. We hope and pray for him a prosperous year with this charge.

Hope

The Bible has a great deal to say about hope. Paul says that we are saved by it. Our full salvation in eternal blessedness is a hope. We have not yet realized that hope, but we look forward to it in full confidence of its realization. This hope sustains us, comforts us, and keeps us strong in our purposes to press forward in the Christian life. There is something better ahead, and God is bringing us to it. And just that same sort of hope is needed for the life that now is—for the work that is to be done, and the opportunities that wait at our doors. We are to seize these opportunities, and we are to do this work in HOPE. In the hope that comes out of a good conscience; the hope that is encouraged by faithfulness; the hope that is anchored in the promises of God. We can't see the way that lies ahead, but the hand that leads us on gives us hope. We know if He leads, we can't go amiss, and that no obstacles along the way can successfully defy our progress. Let us then exercise day by day the Christian's hope, and abound in it. God is for us, and He is more than all that can be against us. "Hope thou in God."

Appointments

January 17.—Richland charge.

January 24.—South Winston, at night.

January 25.—Concord, in meeting of Pastor's Federation.

January 31.—In Rally of Sixth District, at Brown Summit.

February 3.—State Street, at night in quarterly conference.

THE FOGLEMAN RESOLUTION

The change in our method of raising our church budget suggested by Brother Fogleman to the last Conference and referred to the representatives to the next general conference for consideration has merit in it.

While the General Conference in session fixes the total amount to be raised by the entire church, it also says that the "Church expects to raise this money by the voluntary gifts of its members through their local churches."

So after all the amounts to be secured are expected to come through the voluntary gifts of the members, which by the way, is the only method a Protestant Church can work very satisfactorily; and that is not always so.

Now the change proposed by this resolution would mean that instead of the General Conference, through its budget Council, handing down to each annual conference the amount of money that conference was to raise each year, the local church would send up to the annual conference the amount of money it was pledging itself to raise for the coming year, which amount would then be stated to the proper authority of the General Church and then the Budget Council would allocate to the various boards the money so alloted by the local church, etc.

As I understand this resolution, a result like that just stated would be obtained by it, if substituted for the method now employed.

Naturally, we ask will it work? Well, it does work. Many denominations use a similar method and they raise more money per capita than does our denomination. It is for us to decide

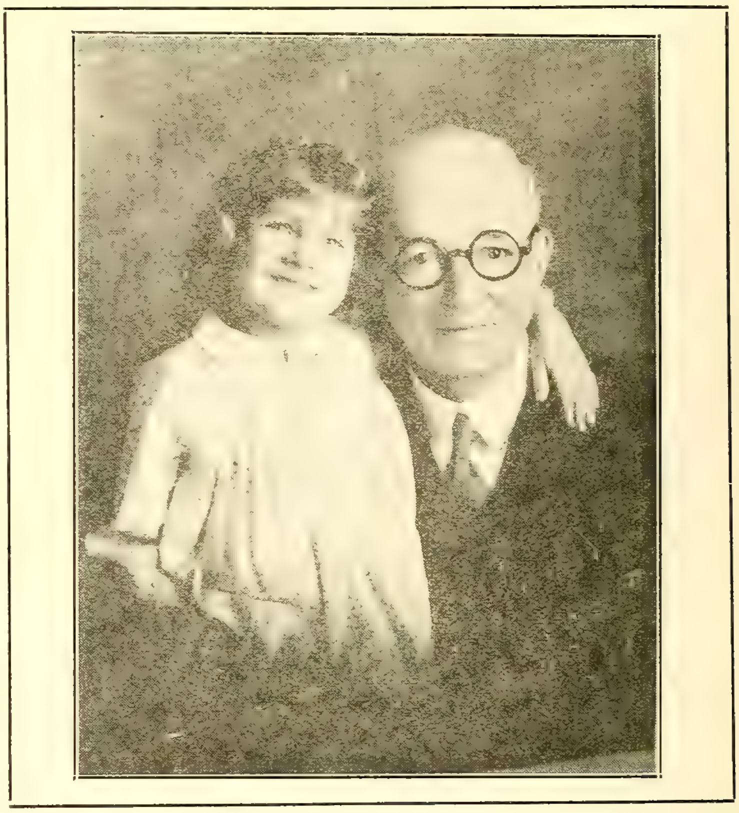
NEW CENTURY SERVICE'S LATEST PICTURE



Some few of you were present when the inspiration for this picture came. Dr. Dixon was about to make his annual report to the North Carolina conference in High Point and asked the writer to "say a few words." He re-enforced his report by displaying the Home family on the platform; the children singing, reciting and the like. In the center front was Barbara Ann who sang "Break thou the bread of life, dear Lord, to me." It was sweet beyond measure.

Well, what to say. The trite, usual things were so easy. And then she sang. There's the text! So Dr. Dixon brought her to me and when our time came, with Barbara Ann in my arms: "Well, you've been wanting to see New Century Service in the flesh. Here it is. And as soon as this meeting's over we're going out and have our "pitcher" taken and send it all over the denomination. But close your eyes just for a moment and let's hurry over to Japan, and into Miss Coates' kindergarten, and here's a little Japanese girl in my arms, and in China, and in India, and so . . . . "

Well this is a crucial year for New Century Service. And what we do by April 30 in our Evangelistic and Up-to-Date appeal will decide if "Break thou the bread of life" has any genuine meaning for many who belong to our benevolence family.

Yes, it's very nice to have a home; to have about you those who love and keep watch. And the Heavenly Home! May the dear Lord keep us faithful.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE STRAY-AWAYS

On the floor beside the couch lay Harold's new picture book. In the little low rocking chair was Fay's hat, just where she had thrown it an hour before. Milly's newest doll had somehow found a resting place back of the book-case, and Joe's ball was under the table.

Mother looked around the room—and laughed.

"I declare," she said, "the Stray-Aways are the busiest people. I don't believe they're ever idle—all of them at once, I mean."

Joe looked up from his book, and Milly from the doll's bonnet she was making.

"Whew," whistled Joe, "I should say they are busy."

"Guess we'd better be busy, too," added Milly, laying down her materials on the window sill. "C'mon, Fay," she called to her little sister, playing outside, "the Stray-Aways have to be looked after again."

Fay came running in, and Harold left his blocks in the other room, and joined them.

"I'll get the most," he cried, "see if I don't," and off he raced. The others followed, each on the lookout for some member of the Stray-Away family.

"One, two, three, four," counted Harold. He had found three magazines and one newspaper scattered about in the living room, when they should have been on the library table.

"One, two, three, four, five," shouted Joe, gleefully, picking up the blocks that Harold had left on the floor.

Milly's thimble, needle, scissors and thread were all Stray-Aways, for they belonged in her work basket.

Harold found the doll back of the book-case, and Fay's hat in the rocking chair, so his count was one ahead of Joe's.

All over the house they went, discovering the hiding places of Stray-Aways and chasing them back to their homes.

Mother's crochet hook was captured on the kitchen table and taken home by Fay. Father's old hat was discovered on the back porch, far from its home.

In a half-hour, the four were back in the living room. Not a single Stray-Away was to be found anywhere. Little Fay had found six. Harold, sure enough, had the most. For he had chased no less than seventeen Stray-Aways home.

"Cough drops, most of them," he explained. "The box on mother's stand had upset."

So, since Harold had the most, it was his privilege to choose the games they should play for the rest of the afternoon.

"Blind Man's Buff," a favorite with them all, came first, and before they had had enough of that, Mother called to supper.

"I do believe chasing Stray-Aways is hungry work," she laughed, as they came trooping into the dining room.

"Yes, indeedy," agreed Joe.

" 'Specially," added Fay, "when there are as many as we had today."—Helen P. Metzger in Child's Gem.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

His wife and two children were sick; one of the children was in the hospital.

And yet this is not a "hard-luck story." But for the facts stated certain valuable lessons might never have been learned.

A married student at the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, was confessing that he had not known how to "rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for Him." He did not know the meaning of praying with assurance.

"We had been fortunate in our family for a number of years," he said, "in escaping sickness and other disabilities requiring the service of a physician. For this reason, and because of our limited income, we budgeted but a small sum to our health account.

Living as carefully as possible, there was barely enough to meet necessary expenses from month to month. How could a formidable medical and hospital bill be met?

"Satan made capital of our concern," he testifies, "and before long we were in the slough of despond. No extra work was available, and no source of added income appeared. Praying continued for several days, but these prayers were too sadly faltering and lacking in confidence. Nevertheless, victory was ahead.

"One morning God gave us a spirit of assurance that all our needs would be met. From that hour we had perfect rest and confidence."

Four days later a letter came to hand, bearing the date of the day of blessed assurance, written by a young man whom the student had some years before influenced in a Sunday School class of which he was a teacher. This distant friend indicated that he seemed led of the Lord to forward a check to his former teacher, though he knew nothing of the great need. The inclosed check was for a sum sufficient to cover all the expenses chargeable to sickness.

whether it would be best for us. But could some such method be employed, it would at least co-ordinate the way our money is secured by allowing those who have already been paying the amounts they elect to pay, say also what they want their church to be assessed for such claims. It would put the entire matter into the hands of the local church membership, and it might cause a deeper sense of responsibility to pay. It is rather foreign to the profession of our freedom, for the local church, as a church, to have no voice in fixing the amount it is expected to pay, except as it had it in the representative at conference.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

The Executive Committee of North Carolina Branch, Women's Work, will meet with Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer, Asheboro, at 10 a. m., January 28. Plans for Branch meeting at Enfield will be discussed. A good attendance is desired and reports from all secretaries are expected.

MRS. GEO. R. BROWN.

AUXILIARIES TO BUY AND SELL HIGH POINT COLLEGE BONDS

1932 Branch Meets in Enfield

Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer, president of North Carolina Branch of Women's Work, urges the women of the state to invest in High Point College bonds, and to increase efforts to complete year's work in a way that will eclipse that of other years. There are only approximately three more working months before the end of the missionary year, and this year closes the quadrennium, when it is hoped good reports may come from all sections. Let us in North Carolina do our best. Mrs. Hammer writes as follows:

Asheboro, N. C., Jan. 8, 1932

My dear Co-Worker:

The new calendar year is here, and as we face new problems it behooves us to begin planning to meet emergencies. As you know the North Carolina Branch assumed the support of Rev. and Mrs. Minnis in India. So far a comparatively small amount has come in. We must not fall short in our contributions for the Children's Home, Bethel Home and our general church interests. Our missionaries must have the support of those of us in the home land, who are being represented by them.

The High Point college, probably the most important of all, must have the financial and moral support of our women. Only three of the approximately 85 auxiliaries have bought or sold bonds for High Point college as by request which went out following the Executive meeting at Bethel Home last summer.

Will your Auxiliary not begin this new calendar year with a resolution to buy or sell one $100.00 bond which will draw six per cent interest semi-annually? A good investment for the purchaser and a great service to High Point college and our beloved church.

The N. C. Branch will meet at Enfield in April with the congregations at Whitakers, Eden and other neighboring churches assisting in entertaining. Those who have heard of the invitations from these loyal and hospitable women are looking forward with pleasure to the meeting and with the belief that the work of the women in that section will be strengthened.

Assuring you of my interest and anxiety to be of service to you in your work, I am,

Very truly,

MRS. WM. C. HAMMER.

SPIRITUAL LIFE DEPARTMENT

We are asked to pray this month for the Pine Ridge work and workers.

To Our Secretaries:

If you have not already ordered the program material for the World Day of Prayer, February 12, 1932, please do so early. Order from Mrs. Marie Thompson, 516 N. Charles St., Baltimore, Md. Let's order now before supplies are gone, and go to work on this program soon. You will find the list of material for this service on page 2 of December 11 Missionary Record.

Should you find it impossible to hold this World Day of Prayer in your local church will you please arrange to unite with other churches in observance of the day?

"People of all lands are passing through times of unusual testing. Unemployment, hardship, deprivation, sorrow and hunger are all around us. As we approach the World Day of Prayer may we think and plan and pray for united, purposeful intercession in behalf of the world, that this may be a season when we shall put ourselves so closely in tune with God, that we may know not only His will for us, but how we may best help His children everywhere."

There is comfort in taking a part in such a service, so we beg of you to make plans for your auxiliary to have this privilege. May it be a great day in the life of our North Carolina Branch!

Sincerely yours,

MRS. J. M. STONE.

514 Fifth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

FROM THANK-OFFERING SECRETARY

Dear Friends, Auxiliaries and Churches:

February is the month in which we are expected to put on in our churches a specially prepared thank-offering program, with two things as the desired goal. First, the missionary work of our church to be put before the people in an interesting manner as to be a spiritual benefit to all. Second, a financial benefit to our missionaries through the money received by the free-will offering given from thankful hearts.

Let us not fail those whom we have promised to support with our prayers and money, but set aside one day in February for this purpose. If you can use envelopes, please let me know about how many and I'll be glad to send them. Give every one a chance. Use the suggestive program in "The Missionary Record," January 1932, or use the program suggested in the M. P. Herald of October 8, 1931. I have more copies of those: will be glad to send to anyone wishing them. Let every thank-offering secretary in N. C. begin plans now for her special service, and let us hear from her.

Believing God will bless our feeble efforts if we give the best we can.

Your N. C. Branch Thank Offering Sec.

MRS. J. W. BOYLES.

We do not have space in this issue to reprint the "Suggestive Program for Thank-offering Service" and "a Pageant of Boxes" which Mrs. Boyles, Thank-offering Secretary, wished printed this week. Both these articles are in January, 1932, "Missionary Record." All societies getting this paper are already supplied. Any others should write to Mrs. Marie Thompson, editor, 516 N. Charles St., Baltimore, Md., or they might borrow a "Missionary Record" from some larger society.

TO JOHN SMITH

I like your name, John Smith,
It sounds so good to me;
We've met so many times,
At home and 'cross the sea.

Despite the way it's spelled,
To me it is the same;
Honest, plain, sincere,
A dear old-fashioned name.

John Smith, Ion Skmiton,
Ivan Skmittowski,
Jan Schmiths, Jean Lefevre,
They all sound good to me.

Jahon Schimmit, Juan Smithas,
Ivan Schmittiweiski;
Giovanni Fabbroni,
Are all the same, you see.

And so I like your name,
In any tongue so true;
John Smith, where'er we meet,
I doff my hat to you!

FROM SHILOH WIDE-AWAKE CLASS

The Young Men's Wide-Awake class started the new year in a very fine way with 51 on roll. Today we had 52 bright-faced young men present with the determination to make this the most successful year in the history of our class. We feel with the leadership of our teacher, Mr. J. L. Evans, that we will accomplish this.

He delivered a stirring message on the lesson, "What It Means to Follow Jesus." He urged that all of us follow Jesus each day. "When we have Jesus in our lives," he said, "we can tell our children, brothers, or sisters of our Jesus and help them to see the joy of serving Him." We were glad to have our new members. Also we were glad to have the visitors in our class.

Wishing all the Herald readers the best of success this year.

FRED BERRIER, Class Reporter.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Henderson.—The second meeting of the Workers' Council of the Sunday school convened January 6th. There were many more teachers and officers present at this meeting than the meeting held in December. The pastor, Rev. L. W. Gerringer, was in charge of the devotional period and made a splendid talk on the importance of prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Many of the Sunday school problems were brought out and some of them solved or a plan adopted of solving them. The superintendent of the primary department asked the council to purchase six extra song books for her department, the secretary was authorized to write and get prices on these books and present it to the Sunday school.

The Sunday school superintendent, Mr. C. F. Tankersley, Jr., advised that he felt that the Workers' Council should have a reporter. Mrs. T. J. Evans name was presented and she was elected as reporter.

Mr. F. M. Harward, leader in church work of the Christian church here, was invited by the superintendent to meet with us in this meeting. After the business sessions were over he brought us a very interesting and instructive talk on the importance of Co-operation. He brought out in his talk the wonderful opportunity the members of the Council have to render great good to both the Sunday school and church but they would need Co-operation.

The meeting closed with prayer by the pastor.

Friendship Station.—In the beginning of the Conference year, we were greeted by a real old time Methodist pounding that made our dining room look like a modern grocery store; on that occasion we thanked the folks, and thanked God for them. We have some fine loyal members here who are always thoughtful of the need of their church and pastor. The president of our conference, Dr. S. W. Taylor, paid our church a visit Saturday night, December 10th. We feel that his message has helped our church members a great deal. We hope that he will find time to come again this year.

We have made a new plan for the collecting of our salary and conference claims. We now have four boards of stewards, representing the various organizations of the church, this plan distributes the responsibility to a large number of our young people as to the older ones; we are expecting this to be a good year financially as well as spiritually for OLD FRIENDSHIP CHURCH.

Our young people are well organized into a Christian Endeavor society, they prepared and delivered a fine Christmas pageant, and directed the annual Christmas tree program on Christmas Eve night; the program was under the direction of Prof. William Snotherly assisted by Mrs. O. B. Williams and Lottie May Hatley; Vernon Snotherly was the electrician for the occasion and rendered a great service; the congregation was large and we heard many favorable comments on the entire program; near the close our superintendent, Joe Snotherly, was given a fine chair as a Christmas present from the Sunday school. He has served as superintendent for the past thirty-five years; he is indeed our faithful friend.

Our Ladies' Aid society is a good organization, they are raising our Annual Conference Budget; they have an "Egg Club" and have undertaken the task of making our church and parsonage buildings and grounds more beautiful.

The pastor and his wife received many beautiful and useful presents and a large number of Christmas cards; and the pounding goes on. We thank you kind friends and we promise you and our Lord that we will try to do our duty.

Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point college, was our preacher last Sunday morning, he brought us a great message, at the close of the service Dr. Humphreys explained the Bond issue of the college; the committee appointed to sell bonds consists of:The pastor, Prof. William Snotherly, J. H. Harkey and Mrs. Walter Sides. We were glad to have Dr. Humphreys and Prof. Snotherly as our dinner guests at the parsonage.

Ruby James Harkey, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harkey, is in the Yadkin Hospital in Albemarle slowly recovering from an appendix operation three weeks ago.

Brother Jona Hurlocker remains about the same, with creeping paralysis; please join us in prayer for him.

O. B. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Asheville.—After the smoke of our old discarded furnace cleared away and with it, perhaps, some church depression, we began to warm up to a creditable activity.

A candy pulling on December 4 given by the primary and junior departments of the Sunday school for the adult division may have done something toward making a start. This was followed in order by a womanless wedding given by the men of the church and made fun of by the Christian Endeavor society which also profited in dollars and cents. The purpose was to raise the remaining $25.00 of a $100 pledge. Most of this was done.

Those taking part in the wedding were: Richard Hanner, H. O. Charnock, George M. Foster, E. H. Pratt, J. W. I. Boling, J. A. West, L. H. Ammons, T. C. Steaban, A. J. Buckner, A. M. Johnson, Donald Brigman, John Drake, jr., Joe Davis, H. L. Hanner, Bill Kibby, J. A. McIntyre, L. S. Neville and E. C. Fawcett.

After the wedding the presents were sold at auction.

A white Christmas with a program by the little folks furnished gifts and provisions for three families. Then a Christmas party for the Young People's class held at the home of Misses Louise and Arline Hanner furnished bountifully for four more families.

A Christmas tree and treat given by the Sunday school on Tuesday evening, December 29, brought forth delight, gifts and presents to more than one hundred who were in attendance.

All of this fun and friendliness and generosity, however, beautiful as it always is, was eclipsed by the devotional programs given morning and evening of December 27th. The cantata, "Child Jesus," Clokey, given at the morning service was followed in the evening by the more spiritual artistry sustained reproduced in "Music of Bethlehem," by Holton.

Novella McIntyre at the piano, the regular numbers of the choir were assisted by Willie Belle Cotton, Helen Johnson, Lillian Carrier, Reece Walters, Leno Solany, Lee Whitaker, Sam Fox, Charles Hines and J. A. McIntyre.

Both services were well attended and the Christ spirit seemed to brood over the congregation.

This report is long enough but we do not wish to close without making mention of the spirit of co-operation which the church members feel and which bids well for the future.

E. H. Pratt and family went to their old home in Maryland for the holidays, and L. S. Neville to his home at Enfield, N. C. Mrs. Rivers O'Brien, daughter of Mrs. U. S.Miller, Forrest Taylor, son of Mrs. M. F. Taylor, both spent Christmas with their parents in Asheville.

E. C. FAWCETT,
Superintendent of S. S.

Shiloh, Randolph Charge.—Our pastor gave us a very interesting and helpful sermon on January 10. His text was: "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him and and he shall bring it to pass." His subject was "God's Cure for Care or Anxiety." He expressed the belief that the present financial depression is caused by our leaving God out of our lives, and that the sooner we realize that we are leaving Him out the sooner we shall have prosperity. The talk was indeed appropriate for the present day conditions.

During the sermon an offering was taken for the benefit of the church Herald. We realize that the offering is very small compared with others, but we trust that it will prove beneficial to the editor.

No definite plans for progress have been made for the new year, but it is the desire of all to progress greatly in the work of the Master. With the help of each member of our community and of other communities let us make the year 1932 the most prosperous and helpful year yet.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers. May these many readers increase until there is a Herald in each Methodist Protestant home.

CLARICE WHITAKER, Reporter.

Forsyth.—We have been on the Forsyth charge long enough to say, in the language of the Psalmist, "The lines have fallen to us in pleasant places." During the Christmas holidays and since, we have been the recipients of many gifts, including a large load of kindling wood and many good things to eat. Most of these gifts came from members of our churches; some from our friends of other churches. All are greatly appreciated.

The churches of this charge observed the Christmas season with appropriate services. The programs were splendid and the congregations were large.

The first quarterly conference was held at Maple Springs church with President Taylor presiding. The attendance was unusually large and the interest splendid. The pastor recommended the following slogan for the Conference year, which was unanimously adopted: "All together for all the program of all the church."

We are making some progress in our efforts to find the homes of our members, but Christmas, inclement weather, etc., have interfered to some extent with our endeavors. Wherever we have gone we have found the people hospitable and seemingly glad to rceive the new parson into their homes.

A very pleasant feature of our two months' stay here has been the many visits from our friends and relatives. In addition to those who have come from the churches of this charge, quite a number of members of First Church, Winston-Salem, where we were pastor for five years, have reminded us of "old times," by calling to see us. We were also delighted to have the Gerringers drop in to see us for a few minutes while they were on a visit to Mrs. Gerringers' parents in Kernersville, and to have Miss Elizabeth Polston of Henderson spend several days in our home during the Christmas holidays. We feel fortunate also in having such good preacher neighbors as Brother Pritchard, pastor of First Church, Winston, and Brother C. B. Way, pastor of the West Forsyth charge.

With best wishes to our friends and co-workers everywhere and with the prayer that 1932 may be the "best year yet," for all of us, I am yours in His name.

R. A. HUNTER.

Winston-Salem, First.—Realizing that it is almost impossible to do much for people until you can get them to go to church regularly, we have put forth great effort during the past year to build up a larger congregation. Its rise or decline has been watched with great concern. Yesterday our record was, 149 in S. S., 102 in morning church service and 64 in evening service. One year ago next Sunday we began counting the church attendance, next Sunday, to equal the record of a year ago, it will be necessary for us to have 90 at the morning service and 36 at the evening hour. We find that the average person overestimates the number in a service from fifty to one hundred per cent. If you do not believe this just try counting for awhile.

We have in our congregation two people who deserve some publicity. They are Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Pegram who will have been married fifty years Febraury 23. I am not telling how old they are but you can judge for yourself, and yet they seldom ever miss a service either morning or evening even though they live at least a mile from the church. Brother Pegram drives his car to Sunday school where he teaches a class, they both stay for church and at the evening service they come on the street car, even though they have to change cars once on the way. Hats off to Mr. and Mrs. Pegram and may they have many more years of happy service for their Lord.

Mr. B. K. Millaway has been appointed to sell the High Point college bonds in our church and the writer has agreed to assist him with every prospect. Already a good part of the canvassing has been done.

Our people have been very much concerned about Rev. G. F. Millaway who is in the Deaconess Hospital in Boston and they are now greatly delightaed to hear that he is getting along nicely.

Mr. Gorrell Hopper of our church has been sick with pneumonia at the Baptist hospital here, but we are glad he is improving.

Like so many other preachers I can say that the people have been good to us during the holidays. At Thanksgiving Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wagner sent us a turkey, but before we got it killed some thief came into the back yard on a moonlight night and carried it off. Guess he has been boasting of how nice it was. The other gifts that have come have been appreciated just as much as the turkey, but I will not take space to enumerate them or to mention the givers. We have already thanked them privately.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Midland.—Things are still happening over here. Pine Bluff seemed to become alarmed at the leanness of their pastor, this fear produced action so they poured in on us loaded with enough eats to last us for months. Won't burden you with names more than to say that it was a two-sided affair. I noticed that in the bunch there was a 5 lb. bucket of choice brand coffee and toilet articles bearing the name of M. D. Coley and wife of the M. E. church. No charge can beat Pine Bluff folks in up-to-dateness in doing things. God bless them for their kindness.

Pageland is the crowning joy of the charge. They are businesslike and fervent in their worship that it's a real joy to be in their midst. They are paid up to date on salary. Who said that people had no money?

And now, we are just begun, but we like Brother Way's motto and will adopt it, if he doesn't backslide.

We are still having a joyous time meeting and greeting our old friends, and our hearts are being made sad as some are passing into the great beyond. We have conducted three funerals since coming to this field: Brother R. L Hartsell of the M. E. church, Mrs. Efird and our aged brother and friend Wm. C. Whitley. They all died in the faith.

May God comfort the bereaved

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge—Brother E. A. Bingham filled his appointment the second Sunday at 2 p m., his subject was "The Lord Is My Shepherd I Shall Not Want," also administered the Lord's Supper. All enjoyed his sermon. Our Sunday school is moving along all right; I am quite sure some ones' prayer has been answered; there is more interest in the church than usual and a goodly number partook of the Lord's Supper. We pray that the church will get on higher grounds. We pray that this year will be a great soul-winning year. We welcome all at our Sunday school and preaching services. Best wishes to the church work and to the Herald.

Pleasant Grove.—Some of the things that have taken place since our last report: On the night of December 18th a number of our members sent the first real pounding we have had in quite a while. It was sufficient to reduce the grocery bill for a long time. We greatly appreciate the visit and the gifts. On December 23rd we received a nice turkey, and we received many nice Christmas presents and lots of cards. We thank everyone who had any part in making our Christmas pleasant.

On the night of December 24th we had our entertainment at the church. Brother Clarence Robbins, superintendent of the Sunday school, appointed Mrs. J. R. Meredith to have charge of the Christmas program. She called on Mr. Clyde Payne, Mrs. Pauline Payne, Mrs. Wallace Kennedy and Mrs. Fonzo Sink to assist her in getting up the program. The program consisted of songs and recitations by the children and a pageant by the young people. It was all well rendered. The church was beautifully decorated; a large tree reaching to the ceiling; the entire S. S. received treats and the children their presents.

On New Year's night the Brotherhood met with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Meredith. New officers were elected for the year: Mr. B. E. Payne, president; Mr. Clyde Payne, secretary; Mr. Homer Veach, treasurer. After the business session was over we were served delicious refreshments, and all enjoyed the new year.

Draper.—We were happy to return to this work and have the privilege of working with these people again. I feel sure that there are no better to be found. They are very faithful and loyal. We appreciate very much the kind reception given us upon our return; also the supplies we found upon our table just before Christmas. There was enough to last for weeks.

We held our first quarterly conference December 2nd with all the official board present except one. All of our officers are working hard and it seems now that this will be a better year spiritually speaking than last year. Finances are coming along nicely; at the rate they are going they will overpay the pastor's salary.

We are now ready to send in our full quota on Methodist Protestant Herald if all those who promised still want the paper.

Our Sunday school is going nicely under the leadership of our faithful superintendent, Mr. A. F. McGee.

We still have new faces at the preaching services and we feel we are almost sure of several new members.

Roberta Station.—We are located in Roberta and it begins to seem like home. It was hard to leave old friends on Richland Circuit. But, thank God, we find good people everywhere we go. We have been here just one week, but we have been very kindly received. We did not get to come to their Christmas entertainment on account of the sickness and death of our brother-in-law, G. W. Hendricks, but the people here did not forget us and on last Sunday morning Bro. Zeb Cochran presented Mrs. Trogdon and self with a $5 bill and we have plenty of sausage and liver pudding brought in by Mrs. Robert Corhran; so we are sitting pretty good for a while. We are very thankftl for these deeds of kindness. Yet there is a burden on our hearts that can not be moved by material gifts. We are here on business for our King, and He came to seek and save those that were lost. And while we find good people here we find many are lost, and we feel our only business here is to help the Savior save those for whom He died; and when people take Jesus into their lives then it is easy to carry on all the work of His kingdom here in the world. The thing the church needs to do today is to get back to the old paths of consecration, faith, and truth in the great Head of the church, Jesus Christ our Lord. Then the Holy Ghost will convince men of sin and of righteousness and of a judgment to come. I ask that all who pray will remember us to a throne of grace that His will may be done in us, that His name may be glorified and His kingdom advanced in this part. JOEL B. TROGDON, Pastor.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The C. E. society began the new year with 50 members.

New officers for 1932 were elected as follows: Mr. Ray Leatherman, president; Mr. Alvin Sink, vice-president; Miss Stamey Leonard, secretary and Mr. Paul Leonard, treasurer, along with several other minor officers and committees.

We expect by the help of God, the able leadership of our president, Mr. Leatherman, and the prayers of each individual in the society, to make the coming year the most sucessful year for Christ that we have ever witnessed; that each one of us will become more devoted Christians and will be able to lead others to Him who is able to lift them out of the miry pits of sin. He said, "Come unto me, all ye who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

May God bless each reader of the M. P. Herald and may they realize that Jesus is our sin bearer. C. E. REPORTER.

Cedar Falls.—It has been the best Christmas, in a way, of my life, notwithstanding the mills in the village have stood a good deal during the year. There is one person living here that was living here when I came here. She was then a small tot. She is now a great-grandmother. The people of the little town and the neighbors around that have known me all of their lives just showered us with presents and fruits and candy and other good things. The Sepora Cotton Mill Company sent us over a large basket of nice treat. I now have the honor or dishonor of being the oldest man in the community.

On Wednesday before Christmas I was called on to go to Giles Chapel to assist in the funeral of George W. Hendricks, a man 60 years old, that I have known from his childhood. Then on Sunday night, Roy Luck, one of our neighbor boys, 20 years old, was killed in Asheboro in an automobile wreck. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Luck of Cedar Falls. The funeral was held on Tuesday in the M. P. church at Cedar Falls by the Revs. Mr. Lefler, pastor of the M. E. church, and Mr. Ephraim and the writer. The Junior Order, Council No. 210, took charge at the grave. Being the chaplain, I performed the duties pertaining to that office.

Wishing all a happy New Year.

Pinnacle and Mt. Zion.—As there has been no report from this charge since Conference I will try to give a few items of interest.

We have been able to fill all appointments, and had Christmas entertainments at each of the churches with a treat for the children.

We have had good congregations, which gave us a hearty reception, and have been showing their appreciation in a substantial way. Mt. Zion gave us a generous pounding of necessary things, and Bro. Ernest Stone and wife invited us over to get a Christmas present they had for us, and when we got there they presented us with a large shoulder of meat. We have received about eight bushels of corn. The other churches have remembered us with fresh meats, vegetables, canned good, etc. Wish we could itemize all articles and name all donors but haven't space. God knows every one, and will abundantly reward, and we all greatly appreciate everything. We have received $60 on last year's salary above what was reported.

Our first quarterly conference met at Pinnacle church Saturday, December 26. The usual business was transacted harmoniously.

Sickness and death seem to be abroad in the land. We have conducted four funeral services since Conference. Have married one couple, Mr. William Fowles and Miss Mattie Lee Scott. We wish for these young people a happy married life.

Mrs. T. O. Mickey, who has been confined to her room nearly five months with two broken legs sustained in an automobile wreck, is again beginning to walk with crutches. She has been missed in the church during her absence. We are now hoping for her a speedy recovery. A. L. HUNTER.

Randleman Charge.—Christmas programs were observed at all four of our churches. I could not attend but two of them. The pastor and family were well remembered during the holidays in many ways. On December 23 Bro. W. L. Ward notified us that he was leaving a turkey at Worthville store for our Christmas dinner. We were surprised to find so many things left for the pantry. Many thanks for each one. Our poundings go on the year around. These people never have anything too good that they would not share with their pastor. Just before Christmas the Ladies' Aid of Mt. Lebanon visited the parsonage and left 85 pieces of chinaware. Mt. Lebanon Sunday school gave the writer a nice rain coat. Many thanks to all that remembered us in any way.

We are grieved to announce the illness of Bro. M. J. Hughes, the aged father of Bro. L. R. Hughes. Miss Minnie Hill is in the High Point Hospital for an operation.

We were sorry to lose Mrs. A. R. Groce last week by death. Her husband was taken October 17 of last year.

Mt. Lebanon Woman's Auxiliary meets with Mrs. J. J. Lambe next Thursday night, January 14. The Woman's Bible class meets Friday night at Mrs. J. M. Howell's.

Our S. S. and preaching services are well attended and we are hoping for a good year's work. T. A. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Mitchell's Grove, Guilford Charge.—We had our regular missionary meeting the second Sunday in December. We elected new officers, with Mrs. E. O. Peeler, president; Miss Ada Kersey, vice-president; Miss Josephine Parsons, recording secretary; Miss Gwendoline Jones, corresponding secretary. We are trying to do some little things and hope to do much bigger things this new year. We have made and given six quilts to Mr. and Mrs. Billings, who had the misfortune to have their household burned. We sent one quilt to Bethel Home, bought and made the necessary things for one of our members to enter a tuberculosis sanitorium, sold Christmas cards, had one dollar to send to one of our members who needed a little present Christmas; also will send the church Herald to this member for six months with our card money. We were in debt some on our carpet. The Missionary Society has paid $15 on the carpet, $1 on heatrola. A few years ago (we have forgotten the exact time) Miss Reed was stopping at the Children's Home and going out to different churches organizing Home Missionary societies. Mr. H. A. Garrett brought her over to our church and she organized our society, and while we have at times only, it seemed, kept the society alive. Yet we have never let it go, and we feel very grateful to our Heavenly Father for His watchful care over our lives and kept us going, for we realize that all these things, opportunities and privileges come to us from above. We are laborers together with God and how we should feel honored to have a place to work with our gracious Heavenly Father. While the church is the best organization in the world we do feel the missionary society can and will do a more definite work by this organization and so we thank the Lord for sending Miss Reed this way and helping us to be saved. May we all work and do what ever our hands find to do and do it with our might.

Charlotte.—Last Sunday was communion service, and one of our members said, "It was surely the most impressive and inspiring service I have ever witnessed, for so many took part." The Lord is very near to own and bless if our lives are in tune with His.

Since our challenge for an attendance contest has not been accepted by any Sunday school in our sister churches, we have one among our own classes, and see us work! Sunday Mr. J. C. Penny had 21 young men present. Mrs. McCall's class of 12 young women was next. The Intermediate Department is leading. The chairman of the Cradle Roll is on the job; she is the right one in the right place, Mrs. Fred Love. The total enrollment is 72. There were five additions Sunday.

Circles Nos. 1 and 2 are to meet with Mrs. Fesperman on Tuesday afternoon.

The Baraca class basketball team lost their first game last Thursday evening—the rain dampened their enthusiasm, I suppose, but they are coming back with an oyster stew next Monday evening, January 18th, at 6:30 to 9:30 in the dining room of the church. The proceeds of this supper will go to finish paying for their suits. The boys are going to cook the supper and serve it. Come on, folks, let's lend our aid.

Sunday morning Dr. Andrews made an earnest and stirring appeal to his members in behalf of the various organizations of our church at large. The morning hour was largely given over to prayer for each of the various phases. Our members everywhere are greatly concerning and may we pray eanestly that God will give wisdom and undestanding to our leaders in this hour of need.

Dr. Andrews in the few remaining minutes gave a very forceful talk on "Stewardship of Life for the Kingdom," basing his remarks on the parable of the talents. God is holding you and me responsible. Our tasks should be tasks of joy rather than a burden. We should choose a definite work and do it cheerfully as unto the Lord. Fear keeps us from doing things. Faith makes things move. Paul says present yourself a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto the Lord which is your reasonable service. So Dr. Andrews urged his hearers to present their lives, money and talents to the Lord.

The C. E. meetings are well attended and interest is increasing both among the young and old.

The evening service was well attended. Dr. Andrews announced an unusual text and an unusual sermon. Isaiah 28:20: "For the bed is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on it; and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it." He compared the financial condition of America (a prohibition land) with that of England and Germany, (liquor countries) to show that no financial benefit could be derived from the liquor traffic. He said also that drunkenness had largely decreased in this country, which could be readily proved by personal observation on the part of those who were old enough to remember conditions previous to prhibition. Finally, he challenged anyone to show wherein good could come from liquor: Would it make a man a better father, a better husband, a better church member, or a better citizen? On the contrary innumerable evils resulted from its use. REPORTER.

Kannapolis.—We had two fine services today. Bro. Smith delivered two sermons which were enjoyed by all. We are indeed glad to have a man ike Bro. Smith with us.

We had a fine Sunday school today. We are glad to see the young people take so much interest in the Sunday school.

State Street, Lexington.—An epidemic of whooping-cough is bringing down our Sunday school attendance, yet the work is going on very encouragingly.

The fifth anniversary of the opening of our house of worship was celebrated Sunday in a fitting and interesting way that was very helpful in both a spiritual and social way. The minister's address at the 11 o'clock hour was forceful and convincing for the advantages and blessings of the church when viewed from every angle. Special music was an enjoyable part of the service.

We were happy to receive into church membership Sunday Mr. and Mrs. John Leonard and their two attractive and talented daughters, Mildred and Margaret, and their two young sons, Bruce and John Burke. Messrs. B. H. and Robert Leonard and their families were received a short while ago. All of these are fine church workers and practically all are talented singers. They are valuable additions to the church.

Luncheon was spread in the church dining room at 12:30. A social period was then enjoyed, after which a program of music was given by Mr. B. F. Sink and his male quartet, some unusually fine singing by the choir and a solo by Mrs. Gray Davis. Mrs. Davis was Miss Willie Veigh Leonard before her marriage last summer.

At 2:45 Dr. Lindley, dean of High Point College, gave an address from the Scripture, "I was glad when they said unto us, let us go up to the house of the Lord." Dr. Lindley's splendid ability as an orator and in every sense an unusually appealing speaker is well known throughout the denomination and further. Many expressions of gratitude and appreciation were heard on every side by those who heard him Sunday p. m. We were glad to have with us some friends from out of town, among these were Mr. and Mrs. Blanton and their attractive little son, Francis, of Salisbury; Mr. Lloyd Leonard, of Charlotte; Miss Adele Williams, of Graham; Mrs. Jackson, of High Point, and many from nearby country churches.

The Women's Bible class held a business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. J. A. Walser last Thursday night. At this time plans were made for more extensive lines of service during the year.

MRS. J. F. BURKHART, Reporter.

First Church, Concord.—The work here is getting along nicely. For the past two Sundays our attendance has been very good. Last Sunday we had 445 present and the past Sunday we had 390 and our offering was $5.24. We are hoping to have a better offering next Sunday.

Our pastor, Bro. Morgan, brought a very helpful message at the morning service. The subject was "Prayer." I have never listened to a better sermon. I am so glad that God is present with us and I hope that each one left the church feeling stronger and more determined to follow in His steps. It is so wonderful to be able to feast our souls on the heavenly manna as we are able to do as our pastor preaches such wonderful sermons each Sunday.

I would like to say just a word about our young people's class. They have a splendid man for their teacher, Mr. B. F. Waddell, who is a wonderful Christian man and who is able to lead his class into greater fields of service for the Master. For some time the class had been having a contest, naming each side, one the Red and the other the Blue. It seems that the Red side brought more members than the Blue, so one evening during the Christmas holidays a nice supper was served in their honor in the basement of the church and I'm sure every one had a lovely time. After the social hour was over our-pastor helped us to organize a Senior C. E. Society and we are expecting a fine work to be done for the Master by this group of boys and girls.

The people of Concord regret very much the illness of dear Bro. Millaway and our hearts are lifted to God in his behalf for mercy and we hope and trust if it can meet God's will that he will be restored to health again. We can never forget what a blessing Bro. and Sister Millaway meant to the work here in Concord.

We ask each one to pray for the work here and also our pastor. REPORTER.

Flat Rock, Flat Rock Circut.—At the beginning of the Conference year I was appointed reporter of our church work to the M. P. Herald. On the 11th of December I came to Greensboro to be under a doctor's care. On the 24th of December I came to High Point and have been confined to my bed ever since. The above is my excuse for not reporting. This past week I have read the Herald a little and am pleased at the reports from our circuit. I am quite sure our "new" pastor will conform to his past record. As well as finding him one of our best preachers, you will enjoy mixing with him socially when you can prevail on him to stop long enough to show you his talent in that direction.

The church's past year was a good one under the gentle leadership of Rev. J. P. Pegg. He preached good sermons which showed that he had studied his subjects. The lame, the sick, the aged will miss his visits.

The Sunday school has been well attended during the year. The Christmas entertainment was reported as good. Cannot report these things only in a general way.

I wish our women members would decide to organize an Aid Society at Flat Rock. We can and must do something more to reduce the debt on the church. Every little that we do will help some. I can help plan, but can't do the work, and there is so much needs doing. So many of the older members went home last year that the mantles must fall on the younger shoulders. First, in October of 1930, R. L. Ogburn. In March, 1931, his father, John B. Ogburn. Followed by Mrs. W. I. Roberson and P. L. Wilson; then W. J. Roberson in November, 1931.

I just want to say to the High Point reporter that there was just a little error about the Ogburn old mill. It was built in 1899, but prior to that time there had been a saw mill on the site. Do not know when that was built. Possibly the age of the mill was mistaken for the age of the grandfather's chair.

I miss the Sunday school and church services at my home church, but I listen to a radio sermon every Sunday; so am not quite a "shut in."

With sincere wishes for a good year.

MRS. J. B. OGBURN.

Anticch, Mecklenburg Charge.—Our pastor has filled all appointments, also was with us in our Christmas service. He brought us a wonderful message yesterday at 11 o'clock, using for his subject "Zaccheus." He pointed out to us the many blessings that are in store for us if we only have that hungering in our hearts for just a glimpse of Jesus as Zaccheus did. Though we may feel that we are pressed on every hand, still there are blessings for us that we may not concieve of, if we just strive for them.

Our first quarterly meeting was held at our church on last Saturday night. There was a large representation from each church. Some changes were made regarding the preaching hours. Our new ones are at 3 o'clock on the second Sunday afternoon and at 7 o'clock the fourth Sunday night.

Many recommendations were made and adopted by the conference which, if they are carried out, will be very helpful to both pastor and churches. REPORTER.

Creswell Circuit.—Light has come to brighten the parsonage at Creswell. Brother Norman Davenport "hooked up" the parsonage with the lines of the Virginia Light and Power Company. We are grateful to Brother Norman for his generosity in giving us light without waiting for the committee to raise the $18.00 "cut in" charge, which he himself assumed.

We also wish to express our gratitude for the generous way in which the good folks of the circut have been looking after our bodily needs. When the pastor entered Mt. Hermon church Tuesday before Christmas for the Bible study hour, he thought he had entered a grocery store by mistake as he was confronted by a great array of good things to eat. We wish to also make somewhat belated but none the less thankful acknowledgement of a nice shower of a similar nature at the Rehoboth church at Thanksgiving.

The shadows have also fallen across our pathway since our last report. Death has robbed us of one of our oldest and most faithful members, Mrs. William A. Wiley. The details of her life and death will appear in the obituary column, but the writer feels constrained to add his personal appreciation of her life and the personal loss that he feels in her departure. She was a good friend to her pastor and family as well as to her church. We shall all miss her very keenly and long remember her very affectionately. Her bereaved companion who survives her is bearing up bravely in his sorrow and loneliness. His patient resignation to the will of God is an eloquent tribute to the power of religion to sustain the soul in the hour of trial and to rob death of its sting.

Darkness indeed descended upon the home of our young brother, Jimmy Spruill, of our Rehoboth church when the little nine-monthsold golden-haired, sparkling-eyed ray of sunshine went out in a sudden attack of colitis and congestion that lasted less than a day. It was a terrible shock to the young parents, who were wrapped up in this, their first and only child. They have our deepest and fullest sympathy. We are reminded by this tragedy of the universality and ruthlessness of the reign of sin and death; that indeed "There is a reaper whose name is Death, and with his sickle keen He reaps the bearded grain at a breath, and the flowers that grow between."

Union Grove.—We have a bright new year to look forward to. We trust we all will try our best to "be kind to everyone we come in contact with" this year.

Rev. O. C. Loy delivered his first sermon for the new year on Sunday morning, January 3. After the message the communion service was held. The majority present took part in this service.

The roll is small to start with for this year but we are praying it will increase soon. Please remember us in prayer. We will assure you all the same. REPORTER.

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—In the opening of our service on January 10th Dr. Johnson read Dr. Broomfield's "Suggestions for Day of Prayer and Fasting," after which prayers were offered for the financing of both our Methodist Protestant church and other denominations.

The sermon was on prayer. After Dr. Johnson read from Luke 11:1-13 he gave an analysis of the lesson as follows: Verses 2-4, the model prayer; verses 1-2, how prayer should be offered; verse 9, one of assurance; verses 10-12, the promise of an answer; verse 13, how willing God is to give good gifts. Four instances where prayer undoubtedly brought results that would not have come without it were given. One was taken from New Testament history and three from modern history, thus showing that prayers are answered now as in days of old. The impressive service was closed by singing the very appropriate hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour."

The children were delighted with one of Dr. Johnson's helpful stories. They always enjoy having him direct a part of the service to them.

Prof. R. W. Utley, principal of Nathanael Greene High School, was a visitor worshiping with us Sunday.

We were glad to welcome the following teachers in our Sunday school after the holidays: Miss Emily D. Goyle, of Farmville, N. C.; Miss Peary Thompson, of Laurinburg, N. C.; and Mr. Fred G. Gireath, of North Wilkesboro, N. C. These are very active members of our Sunday school.

Our Sunday school has been re-organized for this year and there are signs of unusual interest being taken in Sunday school work. This, of course, looks quite encouraging for this year. DORTHA E. CAUSEY.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—We are glad to see our young people take hold of the Sunday school work. Last Sunday at 11 Brother Bingham preached a fine sermon. He told us to have the presence of the Lord to go with us, we should try to live every day as the Lord would have us to. We should read our Bibles, pray, and be good to all and try to help all. After preaching he administered the Lord's Supper.

We were glad to have Misses Blanche and Ida Surratt, of High Point, to worship with us. ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Rose Hill Church.—Rev. W. D. Reed delivered an inspiring sermon December 20th. The Christmas play was given by the Junior Christian Endeavorers. It was rendered splendidly and enjoyed very much.

The last Sunday in September Mrs. Henry Nance was sick. We missed her so much.

The Ladies' Aid Society was re-organized last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Gathings. The officers are as follows: President, Miss Janie Gathings; vice-president, Mrs. H. B. Sowell; secretary and treasurer, Miss Elise Marge; program committee, Mrs. Will Clark, Mrs. Lee Smith and Miss Leo Sowell; special committe, Mrs. J. A. Turner, Mrs. J. H. Turner and Mrs. H. D. Bushing. Membership committee, Mrs. J. H. Marze, Mrs. J. E. Smith.

An offering for the orphan children was brought to the home of Mrs. J. H. Marze.

Choir practice Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Will Clark; all are asked to be present.

Sunday school next Sunday at 10; preaching at 11. Come out and enjoy a good sermon.

We hope this will be a good year for all our pastors and churches. May this year turn the people to God and to His church.

Mt. Moriah, Cleveland Charge.—Our beloved pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, last Sunday at 11 o'clock brought us a splendid New Year's message. His subject, "A Set Purpose," was enjoyed by a very large audience.

We organized our prayer meeting January 4th. Bro. Alfred Brackett and Bro. Bunch Turner are our class leaders. Had a good number to join. Hoping to gain many more. I think our prayer meeting services will be a great help to build up the church. This meeting will be held every first Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Our Sunday school is moving along fine. Have had very good attendance all winter.

Our Christmas tree and program was given on Wednesday night, December 23. The program was given by the Juniors, Primary Department, and Beginners. The children did fine.. We enjoyed having our pastor and family with us. Our pastor made a nice talk on the meaning of Christmas. At the close of the program old Santa Claus came in with a big bag full of fruits and candy, which was given to the children as a treat from the Sunday school. The children enjoyed old Santa very much. He told them if nothing happened he would be visiting them next Christmas.

We were more than glad to have Rev. Charlie Grant from Shady Grove, Midway charge, to preach to us on Sunday, December 27. Bro. Grant is one of our Cleveland charge members. We all are going to miss Bro. Grant very much. This is his first year to preach. We are wishing him a successful year.

Union Grove, Mocksville Charge.—Since the revival meeting our church work has been successful.

One of our most faithful members, Mrs. Huie Templeton, has helped us to organize a Christian Endeavor Society. It meets every Sunday evening at 6:30. This society is proving very successful and we hope it will continue its usefulness. Mozelle Templeton has charge of the smaller folks, from the age of 12 years down. They are having a very interesting contest.

We also have a well organized prayer meeting, by the young and old. This body meets every Sunday evening at 7:30, immediately after our Christian Endeavor Society. The subject for last Sunday evening was "Temperance," which everyone ought to study seriously.

Four of our Sunday school scholars were in a wreck on Wednesday before Christmas. They were: Sallie Mae Wooten, Kermit Walker, Pauline Daniels, and Mr. J. W. Daniels. Mr. Daniels is still in the hospital, but it is hoped he will be able to come home soon.

Although it is growing late to speak of Christmas, our Sunday school rendered a very good program and every member of the Sunday school was treated by Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus.

Our Sunday school has an average attendance of about 80, and all our teachers and superintendent are proving faithful by attending regularly. In the past quarter the Intermediate class, with Mrs. O. G. Templeton as teacher, had a contest of regular attendance. Helen Templeton and Hal Templeton had attended regularly for the whole quarter. Most of the class had come about every Sunday.

I hope our reporter will pardon me for writing, but it seemed as if I had to tell of our church work. "May peace and prosperity with the good will of mankind be yours for all time." A WORKER.

Salem, Saxapahaw Charge.—Sunday morning at 11 o'clock our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, brought us another splendid message.

Offering of $2.85 was taken for our Children's Home.

We had our Christmas program on Christmas eve night. All seemed to enjoy the program. After the program the tree was undressed and the presents were delivered to their owners. The offering taken amounted to $2.40.

We have done quite a bit of cleaning on our church lawn, which makes our church much more attractive. We plan to meet again January 18 at 1:30 p. m. with our county agent, Mr. Shivers, and our State Extension Horticulturist, Mr. E. B. Morrow, and plan to set shrubs. After we have decided what to set and where they should be placed we will set another date to plant them. This will be done later in the year. We shall be glad to see all our members and those who are interested out January 18th.

May I ask all who are not taking the Herold in their homes to please give me your subscription at once. Or if you are a subscriber and your subscription is out, will you please give me your renewal?

Best wishes for the New Year.

MRS. T. R. CRAWFORD, Reporter.

Lexington, First.—Today there were 249 in Sunday school. The preaching service was also well attended. We have started a contest in the Sunday school classes: the class having the highest percentage for attendance at the morning preaching service for the first three months will be given some award, and we are expecting to see some real interest taken by the adult classes.

Our evening services were well attended; the church was filled to capacity, and Bro. Isley preached a very interesting and forceful sermon and held the close attention of the large congregation.

On Tuesday night after Christmas our Sunday school superintendent, Bro. H. C. Koonts, gave a nice chicken and oyster supper to the Sunday school scholars who had made a perfect attendance through the year; also the officers and teachers and their wives and husbands. There were 40 present for the supper and all enjoyed it fine.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet at Mrs. G. W. Ridenhour's on Thursday night to get started on some work for the year, and we are expecting a good attendance and some real interest in the society meeting.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—In response to the call to prayer issued by Dr. J. C. Broomfield and Dr. J. H. Straughn to all our churches for the relief of New Century Service, special prayers were led by Dr. A. G. Dixon and Dr. P. E. Lindley. The minister delivered a helpful message on "Blessing in Disappointments." Ruskin in the "True and Beautiful" says that it is better not to exist than to defeat the aims of our existence. Isaiah was living in troublous times, and he was a Christian patriot—an optimist for the glory of his people. "The head is faint, and the heart sick," and what better message can we in High Point hear than this: "Come now and let us reason together; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow." In every experience of bitter sorrow, we may see God if we are faithful to Him. God is the only solution of our problems. Dean Brown of Yale University often said, "The man who has no sense of sin, has no sense at all." Until we see God, we will not come out from this depression. I do not presume to lay the blame, but somebody has sinned! Somehow God wants human co-operation in carrying out His plans. It is a brave spirit that sees God in the hour of trial. The magnificent Leland Stanford Junior University in California was erected in memory of an only beloved son of his parents. What I want pou to see is a new sense of sympathy for those in sorrow, distress, or bereavement, for suffering and struggling humanity, and together we must sacrifice and take care of the needy and unfortunate. Our church is going to be called on to support six families during the winter months, and we will soon be bringing groceries to church to deposit in a basket in the lobby. The ordinary comforts of life ought to be accessible to every human creature. O, Christian believers, there is a better day dawning!

At the evening service the fourth in the series of popular sermons was presented on the subject, "Four Good Anchors." Rev. Mr. Farmer said that one steady anchor is the fact that in all ages there have been great souls raised up for leaders, Savonarola, St. Francis of Assisi, Abraham Lincoln, and a host of others; in God's good time they will arise and lead us through night to the dawn. Another anchor is the spirituality of man, which steadies us in meeting the storms of life. The third anchor is the interest of Christ in us. He never limited food nor caused pain, and he will help us now. The fourth anchor is the supremacy of God; He is present and is loving us.

"I like the man who faces what he must,
With step triumphant and a heart of cheer,
Who fights the daily battle without fear:
Sees his hopes fail, yet keeps unfaltering trust
That God is God; that somehow true and just
His plans work out for mortals; not a tear
I shed when fortune, which the world holds dear,
Falls from his grasp—better with love a crust
Than living in dishonor. He alone is great
Who by a life heroic conquers fate."

The general monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. S. Coe on Hillcrest Drive. There was an attendance of 50 members. Plans for a barbecue to be given at an early date were left in the hands of a committee. An entertainment for the young people of High Point college was discussed. It was voted for the Auxiliary to furnish groceries and supplies for six needy families for ten days of three months, which will mean a support for one month. After the business session, a social hour followed, and Circle No. 4, Mrs. W. H. Cecil, chairman, served refreshments.

The Senior C. E. Society, Tyson T. Ferrel, president, will meet Monday evening at the church, and Mrs. L. R. Peacock will lead the discussion on the vital topic, "What shall I do with my money?" Our young people, boys and girls, are urged to attend these meetings and receive inspiration and courage.

The Fellowship Supper meeting will be held again next Wednesday at 6:45 o'clock, and after the covered dish supper which will be contributed by those in attendance, a prayer and song service will begin at 7:20 o'clock, closing at 8. Then the High Point College rally for the sale of bonds, with Dr. S. W. Taylor, Rev. Nat M. Harrison, and Dr. G. I. Humphreys as speakers, will be held. Joining with First church will be neighboring churches, Lebanon, Welch Memorial, English St., and Pleasant Grove.

A new organization, the Junior C. E. society with Miss Daisy Lee York superintendent, will be launched next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock for children of 9 to 11 years of age. At the time Mrs. Mabel Williams Russell will direct a story hour and Bible drill for the smaller children from 6 to 9 years old. Children of 12 years and upwards are expected to attend worship services with the adults in the main auditorium.

Rev. R. I. Farmer has been invited to address the Graduate Nurses association of the city Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. rooms.

Judge Lewis E. Teague by special invitation, addressed the Young People's League of Wesley Memorial M. E. church on the subject of Prohibition last Sunday evening, and his message is being highly complimented.

Mrs. Martha E. Blair, who has been critically ill of pneumonia at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. M. Rankin for two weeks, shows improvement, and hopes for her recovery are much brighter.

Mrs. J. R. Mebane, of Elon College, is spending the winter with his daughter, Mrs. S. C. Vuncannon, on W. Broad St.

Mr June Gray, who has been kept at home by illness for several weeks, is back at his post in High Point Hardware Co.

Alex M. Rankin, Jr., is here on a visit from Miami, Fla., where he and his family are spending the winter months.

Laurel Hill.—We were very fortunate in having Dr. Taylor with us Sunday morning, January 10th, at 11 o'clock. He preached a wonderfully inspiring sermon. We extend a hearty welcome to Dr. Taylor to visit us any time possible.

We were very glad and thankful that our pastor, Rev. A. D. Shelton, was able to be with us Sunday also.

Our Sunday school attendance has been very good. Teachers seem to be taking a great interest in the school.

Our song service is coming on fine under the leadership of Mr. Walter Sain. Our superintendent, Mr. A. A. Sain, is still unable to be with us. May God bless and keep him and may he soon be able to worship with us.

We were very glad to have several new members to join our Sunday school.

Rev. Mr. Shelton was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Sain Sunday.

Fountain Place—The Christmas pageant pictured a Christian family on Christmas eve with each member of the family giving informally a special contribution to the Christmas spirit in poem, interesting fact, song or devotion. After hanging the stockings, having family devotion and listening to carols, the family retired for the night. This original idea was very impressive and is suggestive of an ideal way for a family to spend Christmas eve. The co-operation of all participants made the program a success. After the program the children received their treat from the Sunday school.

Saturday night before Christmas the Woman's Auxiliary gave a Brunswick stew supper in connection with a "handkerchief convention" at the church. The handkerchiefs donated by friends far and near numbered about 70 and were attractively displayed in the dining room. Despite the fact that people were talking hard times and a bank here had just failed, a good sum was netted from the supper and sale.

Although we don't have the numbers we want and should have, the attendance at all services is holding up pretty well. The Woman's Auxiliary made a good beginning for the new year last night under the leadership of our new president, Mrs. L. H. Gibbs. The contributions were not so large, but the number was and enthusiastic plans were made for the coming month. Our new president is one of the younger members and with her interest and good ideas I am sure she will lead us well.

At our next preaching service, Sunday night, we hope to have Dr. T. M. Johnson, our neighbor and friend, preach for us. He has been a visitor in our evening services several times since Conference.

Plans are being made for the observance of Young People's Day soon. The county Young People's Sunday School Conference will be held here at the First Christian church January 20. We hope to have a representative group in attendance.

May we all in this new year determine to serve our Lord more humbly, faithfully and joyously is my prayer.

MRS. A. V. AMICK, Reporter.

Union Grove, Mocksville Charge.—We continue to have great interest in our Christian Endeavor and prayer meeting. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely.

Bro. Ferree last Sundap preached a very interesting sermon. Mr. Feree and his daughter, Agnes, sang two selections, "The Royal Telephone," and "Life's Railway to Heaven." We enjoyed this very much. We had a large congregation and we expect to increase every service and our church to still prosper under the wise guidance of our pastor. We gladly welcome Mr. Ferree and family back.

REPORTER.

Randolph Charge.—Our work is going along as usual. Attendance at all of the services is holding up well; we believe the congregations are better than last year this time. The pastor and family have received many tokens of kindness since beginning the year. During the Christmas season we were kindly remembered in all of the churches on the charge. We had the privilege of attending Christmas exercises at Bethany and Bethel. The programs were good. Those in charge deserve much credit for their efforts. We regret that we could not be with the Gray's Chapel people in their service. We learned that they had a nice time.

EDW. SUITS.

Liberty.—Our new pastor, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, brought a very able and inspiring message Sunday morning. The Lord's Supper was administered.

Sunday evening his message was especially for the poung people. The Christian Endeavorers gave over their service to hear him.

We regretted very much to give up Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Williams; still, everyone likes our new pastor very much.

Our Sunday school is growing this mild winter weather. New officers and teachers were elected recently, viz.: Mr. Will Smith, superintendent; Mr. Clarence Highfill, assistant superintendent; Miss Helen Isly, secretary; Dwight Gregerson, assistant secretary; Dr. A. D. Gregg, teacher of the Baraca class. Mrs. W. H. Albright, teacher of the Philathea class; Miss Bertine Shepard teacher of the Bible class; Mr. R. L. Elkins, teacher of the Junior Baracas; Mrs. W. H. Wiley, teacher of the Junior Philatheas. Primary teachers are: Mrs. J. B. York, Mrs. V. H. Dameron, and Mrs. John W. Curtis.

Mrs. F. A. Shepard gave a lovely tea at her home one evening during the holidays in honor of the bride.

F. A. Shepard, Jr., a senior at the University of North Carolina, spent the week-end with his mother.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

BERTINE SHEPARD.

First Church, Burlington. — Withstanding the panicy conditions and unfortunate circumstances, our ships for 1932 are out at sea carrying passengers piloted by a fearless captain. They are carrying, it seems, with them new enthusiasm, pep, vim and vigor, and a heart full of willingness to do God's will. We observed last week as the Week of Prayer. All the various organizations and members joined the pastor in praying especially for the home, church and community. On Tuesday night of last week a special prayer service was held in the church. Several families cooperated with the conference in fasting or cutting down the meals yesterday at least a dollar and then turning the dollar in to the pastor to be credited to the General Conference budget.

The attendance is climbing and has improved considerably. The Woman's Auxiliary met in the Hut Monday evening December 21, with a very small number of the members present. The program was so arranged as to carry out the Christmas season. Mrs. Harlan McPherson was in charge of the program. She led in the devotional after which Miss Ila Stafford led in prayer. Miss Susie Stafford gave two readings, "Women's Part Toward World Peace" and "Privacy Toward World Peace." Mrs. Herbert Wade so sweetly sang a solo, "The Birthday of the King." A Christmas poem was read bp Mrs. Edwin Moore. The business was then turned over to the president, Mrs. M. A. Coble. All the reports were given, which were very gratifying. Mrs. Ollie Moser went over the top with her goal set for 1931 which was $25.00 collected from the inactive members who do not attend the regular meetings of the auxiliary. At the close of the year Mrs. Moser had 20 members of the Home Circle on roll. The auxiliary feels very proud of Mrs. Moser in that she has done splendid work and put forth special effort to accomplish her task.

The Business Girls' Circle met in the Hut Monday, January 4. The devotional was conducted by the leader. A reading, "Sacred Trust," was given by the leader and commented upon. The regular business was disposed of at this time. Special prayer was held as requested by the pastor. Circle No. 1 joined us at the social hour. Mrs. Floy Roger, and daughter, Elizabeth and Miss Swannie Coble were joint hostesses at this meeting.

All organizations of the church were very thoughtful during the Christmas season. The church held a White Christmas program. It was beautifully arranged. Everyone who felt so possessed brought their white gifts and laid them at the altar. It visualized the picture so clearly of the birth of the little Christ Child and the wise men bringing their gifts. The response to this call of the white gifts was splendid. Every organization made a special effort to help someone and to make someone happy.

This church desires to extend to all churches and their members, good wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year, striving to give God the BIGGER, the BETTER and the BEST.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY CEDAR COUNCIL, No. 210, Jr. O. U. A. M.

This community was plunged into dark depths of grief and sorrow by the violent and untimely death of our neighbor, friend and brothre, Roy Luck, on Sunday evening, December 27, 1931. Roy was the victim of an automobile crash in Asheboro. Almost instantly his spirit took its flight back to the Great God who gave it. He will ever live in the memory of his fellowmen, and especially will he be remembered in the hearts of the members of Cedar Council No. 210, Jr. O. U. A. M., of which he was a true and faithful member.

God's ways are above man's ways and beyond our comprehension but the great God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to permit the passing of this our brother, while he was still in the flower of his youth. We trust that our loss was his eternal gain. His good deeds while on earth will ever be remembered by those who knew and loved him best.

Because of our great love and esteem for this our brother, we, the members of Cedar Council, No. 210, Jr. O. U. A. M., do hereby resolve:

FIRST: That because of Roy's good deeds, his great strength of character, his faithfulness to all noble causes and his loyalty to our order, we will continue to remember his activities among us, and will write his faults upon the shifting sands, and his virtues upon the tablet of loving memory, and will strive to so live that we may meet him in that upper and perfect council:

SECOND: That we extend our heart felt sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Luck, the bereaved parents, and to the other members of the family, commending them to Christ Jesus our Lord, who is ever ready to sustain the sorrowing, and whose strong and everlasting arms are always outstretched ready to draw them to Himself, that He might console.

THIRD: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased; that a copy be sent to our county, church and lodge papers, and that a copy be spread upon the records of our council.

C. F. LAUGHLIN,
C. S. JULIAN,
Committee.

Approved and adopted by Cedar Council, No. 210.

A SONG OF HEALTH

Sing a song of sickness,
Body wracked with pain,
Four and twenty doctors,
Guess and guess again.
When the guessing's over,
Patient squirms in bed,
With his brain a-whirling,
Thinking what they said.

One said, "Acidosis,"
Another, "Heart disease,"
Ten thought "Indigestion,"
Twelve were hard to please.
Patient quite excited,
Feared he had the lot
But at last decided
It was tommyrot.

Sing a song of wellness,
Patient now all right,
No more use for doctors,
Sleeps eight hours at night,
Banished drugs and theories,
Fasted from all food,
Rest and nature cured him,
Now he's feeling good.

According to the action of the last Annual Conference, Sunday schools and Christian Endeavor societies are required to send their contributions to the Council of Religious Education to the conference Treasurer. These organizations usually have money in their treasuries and it is my request that they send the amount of their assessments to me at once. I hope the pastors will give this matter their immediate attention. This money is badly needed, and unless it is forthcoming I shall be called upon to execute a note for at least $400.00 in order to meet obligations long since due.

I am due the President two months' salary, but I have not the money with which to pay it, and I do not know where I can borrow this amount. If any member of the church who reads this can let me have $500.00 for six months, he will confer a special favor upon the Conference by doing so.

—In Philadelphia, William Dion was walking along a street smoking. Ever since a throat operation 22 years ago he has had to exhale through a tube in his throat. A passer-by saw smoke coming out of his collar, grabbed the spot to put out the fire. The tube was displaced, William Dion fell choking. A fast car got him to a hospital in time to save him from choking to death.—Time.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Hendricks

George W. Hendricks departed this life December 22,1931, aged 60 years, three months and ten days.

He leaves to mourn his departure, Mrs. Julia Hendricks, wife. One brother, Madison Hendricks, and five children: James Glenn, Daughter Marie, Ruth Evelyn, and Mrs. W. H. Trogden. One child preceded him to his grave a few years past.

Brother Hendricks was a member of Giles Mehodist Protestant church for a number of years and a consistent member, interested in welfare of his church. Interment at above mentioned church. Services were conducted by Rev. J. E. Pritchard, G. A. Laughlin, L. B. Trogden and writer.

Q. L. JOYNER, Pastor.

6 Underwood

Mrs. Sarah Kirkman Underwood died Dec. 29, 1931, age 74 years three months and ten days. She was the wife of the late Joe Underwood.

The deceased is survived by two sons, Mrs. W. L. Underwood of Randleman and Mr. C. H. Underwood of Central Falls; also, five daughters: Mrs. C. D. Hardin, Mrs. D. J. Voncannon and Mrs. C. C. Stevenson of Randleman and Mrs. W. W. Coe and Mrs. E. V. Moody of Asheboro. One sister, Mrs. W. D. Underwood, of Millboro, also survives.

Mrs. Underwood had been a member of the Methodist Protestant church since childhood. She was a member of Bethany church for a number of years.

Rev. T. A. Williams of Randleman charge officiated at the funeral which was largely attended.

We extend our most sincere sympathy to the bereaved family and wide circle of friends.

REPORTER.

Nicholson

After an illness of weeks in Rainey hospital, Burlington, Murray F. Nicholson, age 25, died on Sunday morning, December 27, 1931. Death resulted from blood poisoning following an injury to his arm. Seventeen blood transfusions and a number of operations were resorted to in an effort to check the poison. At times it would seem his condition was improved only to be followed by a relapse which seemed each time to weaken his power of resistance.

Murray was a member of Mebane Methodist Protestant church, having been converted and uniting with with the church under the pastorate of Dr. T. M. Johnson. He was a member of the young men's class in Sunday school at this time, Dr. Johnson being the teacher. He was a regular attendant at Sunday school and church with the exception of short periods of time when he was employed and living elsewhere. While living in Burlington he came back home to attend church. For the past several months he had held a position with the Boland Transport company of Burlington.

He was more familiarly known to his family and friends as "Ray" and "Nick."

"Ray" was graduated from Mebane high school with the class of 1926. While in school and since he was outstanding for his ability as an athlete.

In March, 1927, he was married to Miss Callie Lee Hurst, a school and classmate. To this union were born two children: Marie and Betty Jean.

Funeral services were conducted on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his home church with Rev. W. M. Loy, pastor, in charge assisted by Dr. T. M. Johnson of Liberty, Dr. G. W. Holmes of Graham and Dr. G. O. Lankford of Burlington. The beauty that comes from the life and energy of youth when directed in right channels was impressingly expressed at this service.

The large crowd that was present for the funeral and the many and lovely floral offerings gave sufficient proof of the high regard and esteem in which Murray was held and also expressed to those most keenly bereaved the sympathy and love that is bestowed upon them by friends and loved ones. Interment was in Oakwood cemetery, Mebane.

Surviving are his wife, two children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nicholson, two brothers, M. P., and Lewis, three sisters, Mrs. W. G. Isley, and Misses Pauline and Margaret Nicholson.

MRS. F.

Pegram

Mrs. N. T. Pegram, age 62, wife of N. T. Pegram, died Christmas eve. The funeral was conducted at Bethel M. P. church of which she was a loyal member for 40 years at 2 p. m. Saturday, December 26, by her pastor, Rev. J. R. Hutton, assisted by Rev. J. B. Trogden of Asheboro, N C.

The deceased has been in declining health for many months, her passing was not unexpected.

Surviving are the following sons and daughters: Ernest N., Irvin S., Troy L. Pegram; Mrs J. T. Williams and Mrs. Emmett Holt of Kernersvile, N. C.

TO MY CHILDREN

What does it matter if my hair
Has lost its copper hue,
And streaks of gray show plainly there?
I gave the brown—to you.

What if my eyes have lost their glow
And are a paler blue?
I think I like them better so—
I gave their light to you.

What does it matter if my song
Will all too soon be through—
When you will know, your whole life long
I gave my youth to you.

FOREST FIRE PLOW

The forest fire plow was developed especially for fighting forest fires. This new machine made its appearance during the past summer and is nothing more than a powerful tractor with a big, wide plow out in front. But it does the work wonderfully. It is used principally for constructing fire lines through fields and forests to prevent the spread of such fires. The plow cuts a furrow 15 inches wide. The dirt from this furrow is thrown 16 inches on either side. Thus it makes a path of fresh, moist earth almost four feet wide which is sufficient to stop many fires. It is claimed that tractor plow can do more in one hour than 10 men can do in a day.

WESTERN PASTORS' FEDERATION MEETS WITH CONCORD FIRST CHURCH

I am preparing a program for the meeting of the Pastors' Federation to be held at Concord the 25th of January. We are to be entertained, as heretofore, by the ladies of the church, with a small cost for the lunch. Here's our slogan:

"Good, better, best; never let it rest,
Until the good is better, and the better is best."

AN APPEAL

Dear Friends: I have been sick for the past two years and now my doctor says I must go to the hospital and being sick so long, I am without money. Am asking my brother ministers and members of our church to please help me as there must be something done speedily. I will appreciate any amount given me in this time of trouble. Please help me. I will say also that during this time I have been sick that Dr. George R. Brown and his church and Rev. C. W. Bates and his church and Brother J. A. Robbins and English Street Sunday school have been very thoughtful of me and helped me in the hard places. I am so thankful to them. Remember me in prayer.

THE BALLARDS VISIT BRO. MILLAWAY

Dear Dr. McCulloch:

Having read your notice of Mr. Millaway being in a hospital here, Mr. Ballard and I went to see him yesterday afternoon. He suffered the amputation of his leg, just above the knee, Tuesday, and was up in a wheel chair for a few moments yesterday, Sunday. Naturally he is weak yet, but the relief from the pain he has suffered for the past several months more than compensates the loss of the limb and he seems very cheerful about it.

Mr. Millaway's correct address is New England Deaconess Hospital, Deaconess Road, Boston, Massachusetts. He expects to be here until the latter part of this month and I am sure will be glad to hear from his friends in North Carolina.

With every good wish to you for the New Year.

Most sincerely,
MRS. E. L. BALLARD.

—A great many people don't know that it is an art to be able to hold the tongue. They seem to think it an indication of ignorance when they don't talk back. It is in fact a mark of greatness. Our old St. Bernard dog canters off down the street paying attention to no one. Usually there are three or four little whiffets prancing and barking about him. He pays no heed to their growls. He knows he is master and doesn't concern himself about trifles. It is just the same with men. The higher the position the more the little fellows nag at you. The best thing is just to hold your tongue and let them nag. You have work to do and can't stop to argue with every little chap that thinks he can set the world straight.

The Wonderful Man At the Well

Come, ye people, out of Sychar,
Haste away to Jacob's well:
There you'll see a man so wondrous
That he can your whole life tell!

Like a book he read my record,
From his eye was nothing hid:
Saw he all my sins and follies—
Ugliest things that e'er I did!

Yet he spoke no word of censure,
Only thoughts of hope and love,
Waking up the noblest feeling,
Like the notes of gentle dove.

Words of promise great and precious
Did he speak so very plain—
Not in tones of crazy wild man,
But in words both clear and sane.

Save from thirst and gnawing hunger,
Feed the soul with living bread—
All is found in his great promise
And much more than I have said.

Come ye quickly, lose no moment,
Your delay is robbing you:
Never was a man so wondrous—
He will tell you what to do!

A Pertinent Suggestion From Grenville Kleiser

Dear Dr. McCulloch:

Instead of "More Space Needed?" why not "Fewer Words Needed?"

I suggest you print the following on a card and mail it to everyone of your contributors:

CUT IT DOWN!
When you're writing to this press,
Cut it down!
Make it half or even less,
Cut it down!
We are fond of pithy prose,
Long-winded letters are our foes,
The Editor is the one who knows,
CUT IT DOWN!

Most Effective Sign

As the story goes, a dealer in fish put up a sign at his place of business: FISH FOR SALE HERE. Later, he concluded that the last word of the sign was unnecessary, as people would understand without it where the place of sale was. He altered the sign to read—FISH FOR SALE. Thinking further, he decided that the last two words were superfluous. People would know that the fish were offered for sale. Accordingly he altered the sign again, making it read—FISH. He thought further: Is this sign really necessary? Won't people see and smell the fish and be more impressed than they are by the sign? He concluded they would and removed the sign altogether. In general, real things are more impressive than any symbols referring to them.

This story was recalled to mind by the proposal of a California man to head an organization of cross wearers. He will have gold crosses made to be sold to Christians at $2.25 each. This fee goes to the jeweler who makes the crosses, except about 17 cents which the organizer retains to pay expenses. Those who buy the crosses would wear them constantly and conspicuously as a testimony of their Christian discipleship. The crosses, he argues, would help to remind Christians of Christ's claims upon them, would help Christians to recognize one another, and would help to distinguish the church from the world.

Badges of faith and consecration have their place, but we question the prudence of our brother in advocating this scheme. Scheming men who wished to pass as Christians might buy and wear these crosses. The cross would soon cease to be a mark of distinction. Jesus said, By their fruits ye shall know them. If a man is a real Christian there will be Christianity in parts if not all of his life. Arbitrary badges are not reliable as criterions of character.

It would take millions of dollars to equip all Christians with gold crosses. Would it not be better economy to pay the money to missionaries, preachers, and Christian teachers? We think so decidedly.

WISE WORDS FROM YALE'S PRESIDENT

Following an ancient custom the president of Yale college gives a sermon on Sunday morning to the incoming freshman class. The discourse this year by President Angel—a worthy son of the long-time President Angel of the University of Michigan, is of such wide interest that we reproduce parts of it here. President Angel says:

''More likely to attract your quick concern are certain questions of personal morals, for you may find yourself thrown with men whose ideals and practices vary widely from your own, and, in these days of shifting standards and uncertain public judgments, you may well meet grave and disturbing perplexities. These perplexities will, for many of you, be augmented by the fact that you are for the first time wholly free of the surveillance of parents and school masters, and the temptation to exploit your new freedom to the limit will be very great. Nor is the advice of your elders like to weigh very heavily with you, for you naturally discount it as biased by out-moded tradition, or by failure sympathetically to sense the temper of modern youth. Furthermore, the disposition to experiment is characteristic of the time and endorsed by many self-styled moralists and by the great body of fiction which floods our markets. And there is at least this to be said for experiment, to wit: that sound character cannot be merely handed on to youth by parents and guardians. It is always the result of actual personal struggle and effort. Merely innocuous conduct may indeed be the result of parental injunction, but until and unless it represents the thoughtful and resolute adoption of standards of action based on full and accurate knowledge of all the pertinent facts, it is merely a make-believe which is all too likely to come tumbling down under the pressure of actual temptation. But one thing I think may safely be said, even in the face of all the chatter about experimentation, that no man can conscientiously, or honorably, make moral experiments which may ruin, or gravely imperil the character of others. And in that respect, one must especially protect the young and the ignorant from action whose consequences they imperfectly understand.

Unless you are a man of extraordinary force and independence, you are measurably sure to be deeply influenced by the friends with whom you associate, and you will find in the college community the widest variety of moral types. As I have elsewhere said: ''You will find men who are punctilous to a degree in all that relates to veracity. And more frequently you will meet men to whom literal veracity is merely an amiable eccentricity. You will meet men—fortunately not often—who acknowledge no social obligation of any kind. Their every act may be keyed to the realization of some social ambition to attain which they will unscrupulously sacrifice friend and foe alike. And again you will find men of the most delicate social sensibility, men who are not only ready at all times to bear more than their share of the common burden, but men who, like St. Paul, will eat no flesh if meat make a brother to offend; men who will never turn a hand to win a social reward of which they are not thought worthy on their merits. You will occasionally find men whose ordinary speech is little more than a broth of profanity and obscenity; while there are others whose lips are never stained with blasphemy and whose speech is clean and undefiled. You discover men who regard dissipation of every kind as a badge of manhood and the abstainer from it as a weakling and a prig. Side by side are men whose lives are wholly pure, among them men of strong physique and ardent passions, but men who succeed through fineness of personality and rugged power of character in holding their appetites and instincts in leash and maintaining their purity of thought and conduct. Which, if any, of this great variety of personality types you shall simulate, it is for you to determine. The crucial effect of your choice upon the fabric of your character is not open to doubt, nor the importance of the issue for the college of which you are now a part. It is in one of the noblest and most venerable of these institutions that you are to work our your philosophy of life and write the next chapter in the development of your character. And it must be done at a time when there is stark confusion of views touching the basic issues of life, and amid men whose convictions and habits are at least as varied as I have portrayed them. A difficult task undoubtedly and one calling for all the intelligence and all the moral fibre you possess; and yet an extraordinarily exhilarating and alluring one. Life never was more interesting and alluring and college life more rewarding than today.

While morality and religion naturally converge and intertwine, there are distinct problems of religious faith which will, at times, occasion one or another of you at least a rather painful perplexity.

Some of you have doubtless come with the most extreme anti-religious views, holding all religion at best a body of harmless folklore long since outgrown by really intelligent people, and at worst a mass of pernicious superstition poisoning the minds of the ignorant. You may have achieved your position as the result of your own independent observation and thinking, but it is more likely to be an echo of the writings of some of our modern radicals of whom not a few are justly eminent. It may occasion you some amazement to meet here men of broad intelligence and wide cultivation, quite familiar with the radical literature on which you have fed, to whom religion is still a very vital thing. On the other hand, you may have been nurtured in a conservative religious tradition and the sacrilegious opinions which you will sometimes encounter on the part of men whose intrinsic character and sincerity and intellectual attainments you are bound to respect, will undoubtedly shock and disturb you. Less upsetting will be the attitude of certain men of mediocre intelligence, rather obvious posers, who sneer at religion and mock at its ceremonies as a method of identifying themselves with the supposedly emancipated. Such men can hardly be called the lunatic fringe, but they certainly contribute no distinction to the cause they espouse.

Again like every great cause, religion has unworthy onhangers by reason of whom it is apt to be gravely misjudged, men whose private lives are shallow and selfish and mean, men given to cant and to hypocrisy which seems transparent to every one but themselves. In every college community there are some persons of this type, and you will find their presence a stumbling block to the active identification of yourself with the religious life and organizations of Yale. Undoubtedly the circumstances most disturbing to men who look to the continued life of the church as the critical issue of our time is the unquestioned magnitude of the area of sheer indifference which characterizes the world outside quite as truly as it does that within the college gates. This is not the place to attempt an analysis of that fact, though an obstinate fact it is. But it is not, as is often supposed, a fact in any way peculiar to our own generation. The same thing has occurred again and again in history and always religion has survived to meet once more the enduring needs of men searching for light and leading. For, while there are innumerable questions regarding life and mind and nature for which science has found more or less convincing answers—and doubtless the future will see its accomplishments enormously extended—there are other deep and pervasive problems for whose solution we are still, and presumably always will be, thrown back on faith. Indeed, physical science itself in its predictions makes use of faith to a degree which is not always understood.

Thoughtful men are eager to secure some reasonable conception of their own relation to the great moral and spiritual forces which play upon humanity and are so evident in history. Nor does the fact that one knows man to be the tiniest speck upon one of the smaller, and probably ephemeral, planets of an immeasurably universe in any way destroy this craving, for after all, man's mind is slowly encompassing this vasty deep of space and time, and in so far forth it is subject to his thinking. And for many there is an irrepressible conviction that behind and under all this reality, there must be the person of such a controlling and creative spiritual force as men call God and with Him reverent and noble souls would have commerce, seeking to put themselves in harmony with His great thoughts and purposes. Here one stands on the borders of mysticism and intuition, for certain empirical knowledge is not to be had. But here the sensitive soul also stands in the presence of majestic ideas and overpowering emotions.

So far as concerns Christianity, its great appeal is not so much in this realm of cosmic concepts as it is in the region of commonplace daily living. In its essence the spirit and teaching of Jesus is a way of life—joyous, generous, forceful, serene. Its appeal is to just those traits in man which are finest and most unselfish. Whatever is noble in the human spirit finds its echo in His personality—undaunted courage, poignant sympathy and insight, unstinting generosity, unswerving fidelity to conviction, supreme insight into the meaning of life.

And so, at this level, the question with which you have really to deal is this: "Shall you, seeking cheap and transient ends, fix your mind on aims which will certainly eventuate in a poor, thin, ephemeral type of personality and character; or shall you, from the outset, lay hold on the deeper and more enduring realities which bring in their train not only self-respect and a conscience at peace because one has honestly sought the best that one knows, but also the certainty of growing to the fullest intellectual and moral stature of which one is capable?" "Nowhere will you find more helpful allies in the effort to make this choice than within the walls of this place and in the companionship of men who here have taken as their guide and friend, the Christ of the Cross, the Saviour of men from their baser selves."

A PLAIN TALK ABOUT IMPATIENCE

I would like to talk to all the holiness people throughout this nation of ours about one of the greatest enemies the human family has to deal with, namely, the spirit of impatience. Whenever a person is sanctified wholly, this gunpowder nature is completely burned out. Now watch and pray lest Satan drop vinegar in your honey and the spirit of impatience re-enters. Mr. Webster defines impatience as, "The quality of being impatient; want of endurance of pain, suffering, opposition, or delay; eagerness for change or something expected; restlessness; chafing of spirit; fretfulness; passion; as the impatience of a child or an invalid. Impatient; not bearing with composure; intolerant, uneasy; fretful; restless, etc., etc., often followed by at, for, of and under."

It would be well for the professors of holiness to examine themselves by these definitions, especially the words, "endurance, suffering, eagerness for change, restlessness, not bearing with composure, chafing of spirit, fretting and intolerance."

I don't care what we may have in the way of gifts or talents, without the spirit of patience and sweetness, our life gives a lie to our profession. I believe the spirit of impatience has done more harm to the American homes than the open saloon. Impatience keeps the old divorce mill running. It has separated more couples, scattered children to the ends of the earth than all other things combined. It is sepulchre of love to both God and man. The voice of love is never heard speaking while the soul is filled with an impatient spirit.

Husband and wife, the most intense lovers, while under the power of this spirit will be cold toward each other and without love.

Impatience destroys happiness. An impatient spirit is an unhappy spirit. That God wants his children to be happy and successful there can be no question of doubt, but the spirit of impatience lays the ax to the root of the tree of real happiness.

Impatience is a destroyer of faith. Faith can not flourish and grow in the soil of a fretful, chafing spirit.

Impatience strikes a death blow at all the graces and fruit of the spirit. Not a single grace can grow and flourish in an impatient soul. They may not be at once destroyed, but each will be mixed and weakened when impatience gets the upper hand in the soul. The spirit of impatience destroys soul rest. Rest and impatience can not dwell in the same breast. Whenever one comes in the other goes out. One of the beauties of being sanctified wholly is all the graces are clarified, which leaves the soul in an unmixed state. Soul rest is one sure mark of a well saved soul.

The trouble with impatience is that so many professed Christians look upon it as something mild, and that it is consistent with a Christian life. Friends, don't be deceived. This monster will eat into the Christ-like spirit like a burning acid, and all you will have left will be an empty profession.

In conclusion, let us notice God's remedies, for all impatience comes from the "Old Man" or the "Carnal Mind," then it holds good that there can not be soul rest and the sweet spirit of patience as long as the "Old Man" remains. The only cure for impatience is the crucifixion of the "Old Adam." I don't mean a play death or the chloroforming the "Old Man"; but a real death to the last and least remains of the carnal mind. But even after this we have got to be careful lest we imbibe this spirit again. Now, if you really expect impatience to remain dead, carefully avoid furnishing it nourishment. (1) Never allow yourself to be drawn into an argument, (2) Avoid a loud, sharp tone of voice. When under trial or pressure always answer in a mild, tender voice, and you will be surprised it will work wonders. "A soft answer turneth away wrath," says the wise man. (3) Refuse to repeat bad news, gossip or slander. Keep sweet. (4) Keep filled with divine love, and you will have no place for impatience. It will be surprising how the spirit of love will sweeten your temper, tongue and disposition. (5) Above all things, keep prayed up. Don't neglect a single day to pray clear through. Repeat Romans 8:28 often; here it is: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God." With this fact before us, and a great, loving Father to stand by us and supply our every need, how can the soul be impatient or worry and fret?

Yours for a Christ-like Spirit,
J. M. Hames.

PINE RIDGE NOTES

We had an unusually blessed Christmas season, but our adversary did much to spoil it. One man, father of one of our high school students, was killed on the road one mile from Pine Ridge in an automobile wreck. His funeral was held on Christmas day, and during the hour of his funeral another wreck occurred at the foot of Slade Hill in which two young men were killed—undoubtedly whisky drinking was the cause of both wrecks. The third evidence of deviltry was manifest when on the day before school closed, a representative of the lower world sold a quart of whisky to some of our boys and we had the worst case of this kind to deal with we have yet known. The outcome was that three of our boys had to be expelled, one suspended, and some others more mildly punished. The bootlegger has not yet been apprehended, but we are hopeful.

We are now planning and praying for a revival. Rev. J. H. Lynch of the Maryland Conference has promised to be with us if possible the latter part of January. Will everyone who reads this please give co-operation by joining us in prayer and asking others to do so, that God may be glorified in the salvation of many precious souls.

Another request: Will the secretaries of our Annual Conferences please send us a copy of their latest conference minutes. We have only Maryland, Kentucky, Indiana, and Iowa-Missouri.

Our English teacher, Miss Young, recently asked the students in the first year high to write an essay on "The Greatest Joy of My Christmas Holiday." One of them, a girl who was converted in one of our meetings a few weeks ago, wrote this:

"I suppose you will wonder how I can be speaking of joys in the recent vacation when the days were spent here at school. I think, though, if any one of you should have the experience you too would enjoy it more than you think.

"We all arose early Christmas morning to attend the 6 o'clock devotional service, and it was one of the most beautiful services I ever had the pleasure of attending. There was a large number present for such an early hour, and I think most all of them came for the purpose of worshiping Christ on His birthday. Everyone was happy and had the true Christmas spirit. It was a real joy and pleasure to hear the younger people testify for Christ, but the greatest joy of all was being able to testify for Him myself.

"This past Christmas had a more definite meaning to me than any one I ever experienced before, and I hope to see many more like it. I felt God's presence more in that early morning service than ever before, and I have felt closer and more secure in Him than ever. I wish that more of our boys and girls had had the pleasure of being with us. I am sure they too would have been touched with the beauty of it all.

"This is the greatest joy of my vacation, and in my estimation, I could have never had a greater one."

Let me assure those who have sent us clothing, etc., that your gifts are appreciated by many. Our business at the store is much less than it was a year ago, because of a lack of money, but the cases of real need are more numerous. One aged man to whom we sent some good warm clothing wrote me a letter in which among other things, he said, "The gift you sent was a much needed one and I feel grateful since they came, big waves of thankfulness are sweeping over me. Such acts of these can only come from a good and generous heart. 'Tis like the drying of a tear; where charity forms a part'."

Thos. R. Woodford, Superintendent.

HATED FOR HIS NAME'S SAKE

Christ told His disciples, before leaving them for His Father's side in Glory, that His followers would be hated in this world for His Name's sake. He warned His followers that they should not expect better treatment than their Master.

"Were ye of this world, the world would know its own, but being of another world, the world hateth you," said the Master.

And Jesus was the Light of the world, the bright and morning Star, and the Son of God, taking away the sins of the world.

Shall we shrink back from the fellowship with the King of Glory because of the enmity it will bring us? Or shall we follow in His steps regardless of the consequences?

Jesus said, "He that taketh not his cross, and followeth after Me, is not worthy of Me."

Declining this fellowship then would mean the severing of the connection with the Son of God, the Christ.—Selma Hedblom.

Brother Bates' Father Passes

Just a few days ago Brother Bates was called to New York on account of the illness of his father. He arrived too late to see his father alive. He will have our prayers and sympathy in this bereavement.

Fallston

January 10.—This date was given to this charge in two services—Laurel Hill in the morning and Macedonia in the afternoon. Smoke stains on one of the front doors of the Laurel Hill church aroused our inquiry. Gasoline had been used in starting a fire in the stove. The flash that followed ignited the remaining gasoline in the containing bottle and in an effort to get the bottle out of the house the door caught on fire, and the house had a narrow escape from burning. Moral: Beware of gasoline in starting fires. The Sunday School was in session upon our arrival at this church and we shared in the study of the lesson with one of the adult classes. The preaching service was very well attended, and most helpful attention was given to our effort to preach. This church is ''beautiful for situation,'' being located on highway No. 18, and at the point where this road and the one from Hickory and Newton converge. The place could easily be made a highway beauty spot. We suggest this as a project for this congregation. After having dinner with Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Cain in company with Brother Shelton, we went to Macedonia for the last appointment for the day. Our understanding is that this church does not have a large membership. However, we found here a very good church building and a group of earnest worshipers We dare say that the church is making a worthwhile contribution to the moral and religious welfare of the community. It was a pleasure to be with each of these churches and to share with them in the worship of the day.

We were a bit surprised when Brother Shelton, the pastor, came in for the Laurel Hill service. But it was a most pleasant surprise. We hardly expected that he would be able to work again after his operation, but we learned that he had already been filling some of his appointments. He does not show much emaciation as the result of his sickness. In fact, his loss in averdupois was only two pounds. It is a matter of much gratification that he recovered so readily from his operation, and we share with him and his family and the people of his charge, gratitude for his blessing.

Brother Shelton is new to this work, but he is gradually moving along with the wisdom of a worker on a new field, and is finding his place in the confidence of his people. We most heartily commend him to the charge, and the charge to the pastor. We shall watch for a good year on this field.

A Brief Minute With Brother Cranford

On our way up to Fallston we had a brief minute with Brother Cranford, and an opportunity to get a glimpse of the new Lincolnton church. It is said that seeming misfortunes are oftimes blessings in disguise. The burning of the church here a year ago seems to have been just that. A more commodious church, and one that is far more attractive and much better arranged for the work of the congregation immediately took the place of the old building. We did not have time to go over the building, but we hope to do this later in the year. While with Brother Cranford we learned from him of the death of Sister Cranford's father and mother, which occurred in December, at their home near Denton. Sister Cranford's maiden name was Cranford, though we can not give the names of her father and mother, owing to the fact that our memorandum has been mislaid or lost. In this sorrow she and her loved ones have our sympathy and prayers.

Richland

January 17.—Our appointments on this charge began at Gile's Chapel in the morning, and closed with Charlotte at night. The afternoon appointment at Browers was not well advertised, owing to rains, and the attendance was very small. After lingering a while on the grounds with the few that came, we had prayer, and dismissed. We arrived at Giles for a part of the Sunday School, and sat in the class taught by Brother Allred, father of Professor J. H. Allred, of the faculty of High Point college. At this church, and also at Charlotte, separate Sunday School class space has been provided by means of curtains. Congregations were not large at any point during the day, though pleasing interest was manifested at each place. Gile's Chapel will reach its first Centennial as a Methodist Protestant church next year. This, however, has been holy ground for a longer period than 100 years. The church is already looking forward to the Centennial observance next year.

Charlotte church has just been improved by a new metal roof. A brother who lives in Burlington was back recently at the old home church, and proposed to give the first $10 toward the project. His suggestion was enthusiastically received, and promptly the cost of the new roof was all provided. Interesting, isn't it, how movements will sometimes move? And all that is needed many times is just somebody to make a start. Plans are on now, we believe, to paint. You see one good thing calls for another. The interior presents a very attractive appearance, but the outside does need painting. This is another one of our churches that occupies a prominent place on a hard surface highway. It is about four miles west of Asheboro, on No. 90. A marker is being prepared and will soon be placed where it can be easily read from the road. We suggested to the people that they make this a highway beauty spot. The location lends itself well for this, and we are sure that the congregation would derive a great deal of satisfaction in such a project. It is our opinion that the highways of North Carolina will be greatly beautified in the years that are ahead. Why not start it with the churches? And, Charlotte, why not you start it between Asheboro and Lexington? Just a little thought, a little time, and a little co-operation, and it's done.

We were entertained at dinner with Brother Joyner, by Brother and Sister A. W. Pickett. Their daughter, Miss Juanita, received a Bible last year for perfect Sunday School attendance. It was a gift of her class, "Loyal Daughters," taught by Mrs. R. E. Talley. She is trying for a record of perfect attendance during another year. We heartily commend her in this ambition and wish her success. We enjoyed a brief stay and supper with the pastor and his family at the parsonage. This is Brother Joyner's first year on this charge. He has been cordially received, and is proceeding thoughtfully and earnestly with the work. This is a charge with good possibilities, and we earnestly trust that pastor and people may realize much happiness and success in their labors together. It was a pleasure to us to be on the charge again.

Easter

The program. "Easter Vision" is on our desk. It is well designed, and can be easily and effectively used in any of our churches. Easter comes this year March 27. There is ample time, of course, to get the program and arrange for the Easter service. However, it is well to "take time by the forelock," and begin now to think about it and plan for it.

Take Them Down

We see sometimes on our church walls posters that have long since served their purpose. They are not useful as wall ornaments, and we hardly need them to remind us of what we once did, or did not do. Let's take them down.

Brother Millaway

We have had no immediate word regarding Brother Millaway's condition; but on last information concerning him was so encouraging that we are hopeful that he is now far on the way to his recovery. His leg was amputated at 11 o'clock in the morning, he ate dinner at 12, wrote a letter within two days, and was up in a rolling chair within a week, and some of the stitches had been removed. This appears to us to be a remarkable record, and particularly for one of his age. We shall continue to pray for him, and to await his return home.

Brother R. E. Andrews

This brother has been sick for two or three years, and needs medical attention that he is not able to get because of a lack of funds. Many of our readers no doubt saw his statement of his case in the HERALD of last week. He is in need, and any help that can be sent him will be gratefully received. His address is 208 Venable St., High Point, N. C.

High Point College Bonds

We are still pressing the campaign to sell these bonds, as per the order of the annual conference. We urge our people to give this matter thoughtful attention, both from the standpoint of safe and remunerative investment, and the assistance that can be given in this way to a worthy cause. Helping High Point College is helping the church; and helping the church is helping the Kingdom. Buy a bond! Buy a bond!

Faith

These are times when we need it. The economic world is held in a paralyzing grip. Millions are out of employment, and other millions are barely subsisting. Many who were well-to-do yesterday find their property swept from them, and they are poor today. Creditors press for settlements and there is no money with which to pay. And the church, of course, is not immune. These tight money conditions are making it more difficult to go on with our work. This is particularly true of our institutional and missionary programs. But the darkest cloud does not long obscure the sun. The sky clears after a while, and a full-orbed sun floods the world with light and warmth. So it will be with these conditions that are upon us now. God is with us, and he will take care of his own. Let us have faith—faith that keeps a steady head, a warm heart, and a busy hand. "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith."

BIRDS IN THE BIBLE

In the story of the Creation birds are the second of the creatures endowed with life. First came the denizens of the sea, then the birds. After the account of the Creation one of the earliest mentions of birds is at the time of the deluge. When Noah was desirous of ascertaining whether the waters were subsiding, it will be recalled that he employed two kinds of birds, first a raven, and then a dove.

Birds are also mentioned in the passage of the Israelites through the desert. At one of the times when starvation faced them it is told that "there went forth a wind from the Lord, and brought quail from the sea, and let them fall by the camp." This is one of the earliest records of bird migrations.

There are at least 300 different references to birds in the Bible. Thirty-one species are mentioned. One hundred and thirteen of the birds mentioned are general in the sense that they are simply called "birds." The rest refer directly to certain species.

The dove is mentioned 35 times, the eagle 32, the raven, cock and hen are mentioned 12 times each. The owl is mentioned 11 times, the pigeon ten, the sparrow seven, the stork six, the pelican five, the quail, swallow and vulture four times each, the ostrich, bittern, peacock and cormorant three times each, the crane, partridge, ossifrage, ospray, kite, cuckoo, hawk, heron, nighthawk and lapwing twice each. The glede, swan and the gier eagle are mentioned once each.—Jasper B. Sinclair in Our Dumb Animals.

OUR STORY PAGE

JIMMIE THE NEWSBOY

Just one of the hundreds of newsboys in the great city of New York was Jimmie. No one knew where he had come from. The lusty wail of a tiny infant left on the streets of New York had touched the heart of one of the East side dwellers, and she had taken the tiny baby to her little garret room and had nursed him to a none too sturdy childhood.

She had been gone now several years and Jimmie had valiantly fought the battle of life alone—ragged, often hungry, but still cheerful. One day something wonderful happened to Jimmie. A sweet-faced lady, who had for some time been one of the most regular customers, invited him to come to a mission Sunday School in his neighborhood. No one had ever asked Jimmie to go anywhere before, and certainly no such lady as this had ever spoken kindly to him. Jimmie was thrilled, and long before the time on Sunday he was at the mission.

As politely as if he had been one of the rich boys whom he had seen going to school in uptown New York, the lady asked Jimmie to come in, and found a place for him among the other boys of the class. By and by it came time for the boys to recite the verses which they had learned, and to read the lesson from the books which the sweet-faced lady had given them. When it came Jimmie's turn to read, he hung his head, and when the sweet-faced lady encouragingly urged him to read his verse, Jimmie had to confess that he had never been to school once in his life and that he could not read what the book said. Gently patting him on the back, the sweet-faced lady told him not to mind, and promised that if he would remain after the others had gone she would teach him some verses.

Jimmie was glad to stay, just to be near the sweet-faced lady. But more than that he wanted to be able to say some of those verses as the older boys did. The sweet-faced lady showed him how to begin with the forefinger of his right hand, and repeat the first part of the Shepherd's Psalm, "The Lord is my Shepherd," giving each finger a word. Then she told him about the Good Shepherd who had come to die for him in order that he might have eternal life. Jimmie said the words over and over again until he knew them, and went away with a new light shining in his face, promising to be there on time the next Sunday.

Next Sunday came, but no Jimmie appeared. After waiting a little while the sweet-faced lady inquired of some of the other boys if they had seen Jimmie. It was then she learned that on the previous day, while crossing the street, Jimmie had been injured by an automobile and that he was now in the hospital, not expected to live.

Immediately after Sunday School was over the sweet-faced lady went to the hospital. As Jimmie saw her coming down the long hospital ward he slipped one hand out from under the white sheet, and with fingers extended, and a smile on his face he repeated as she approached his bed the words that she had taught him about the Shepherd.

"Do you know, lady," he said, "I like the fourth finger best of all."

"Why?" asked the sweet-faced lady.

"Because," said Jimmie, "it says my Shepherd." I never had anything in my life for my very own. I never even had a father or mother, but you told me that the Shepherd was mine, and I am glad." Then as the exertion and the talking exhausted what little strength he had summoned, Jimmie lay very quiet.

The next day when the sweet-faced lady came to see Jimmie she found that the brave little spirit had slipped away early that morning. All night long, so the nurse told her, though so weak and feverish, Jimmie had repeated again and again, "The Lord is my Shepherd." When they removed the little body from the hospital cot, they found the fourth finger of Jimmie's left hand firmly clasped by the right. In simple faith he had claimed the Lord Jesus Christ, the Good Shepherd, as his own.—S. S. Times.

"HOME-FELT KNOWLEDGE OF GOD"

I dropped on an expression in an old book that pleased me greatly. It was, "An home-felt knowledge of God." This is the kind of knowledge that God desires that all men should have of Him, for He would have all men to be saved, and salvation lies in this sort of knowledge. We know the difference between knowing a person by sight and knowing him intimately. The little Scotch lassie understood this in regard to the Saviour, when she said to her friend.

"D'ye ken Jesus, Jeanie?"

"Aye," answered Jeanie, "a' folk ken Jesus."

"Aye, but d'ye ken Him to speak tae?"

"An home-felt knowledge of God" goes further than speaking to the Lord as a Friend. It describes the knowledge that the child has of its parents, it is the knowledge that the prodigal had as he sat by his rejoicing father, while the whole house made merry because of his repentance, return, and reception; it is family knowledge, and God has sent forth the Spirit of His Son into our hearts, who believe, crying, Abba, Father. And thus we have this home knowledge of God, and it is a felt knowledge.—Scripture Truth.

SOWING AND REAPING

Two Scotchmen emigrated in the early days to California. Each thought to take with him some memorial of his beloved country. The one of them, an enthusiastic lover of Scotland, took with him a thistle, the national emblem. The other took a small swarm of honey bees. Years have passed away. The Pacific Coast is, on the one hand, cursed with the Scotch thistle, which the farmers find impossible to exterminate; on the other hand the forests and fields are fragrant and laden with the sweetness of honey which is one of the blessings of the western slope of the Rocky Mountains. Even so does every Christian carry with him some sort of thistle plucked from the old man, or honey from the new man, with which to bless or curse men, according as he makes choice for God.—Publisher Unknown.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

N. C. SECRETARY OF TEMPERANCE SUGGESTS

As secretary of Temperance let me suggest to the Secretaries of Temperance in the local auxiliaries that if possible you put on a program of temperance in your monthly meeting as early as possible. The need was never greater for real temperance teaching than at the present time. Those wishing literature on temperance can find it in our Teachers' Journal, The Missionary Record, and all of our church papers. Very helpful articles are appearing in the Christian Herald and the Christian Endeavor World.

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD.

WHY SECRETARIES OF TEMPERANCE

It seems to me that there is no bigger job in our Auxiliary work than that which should be covered by our Secretaries of Temperance, and yet in my long connection with the work I have seen little importance attached to the office by those who have held it, in the Auxiliaries to which I have belonged.

Is this because they are interested in Temperance, or because they think it will take care of itself, or they do not know what is expected of them?

There is so much being printed in the newspapers that it seems to be a good time for women to keep their eyes and ears open lest they believe too much that is said in favor of repeal of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

I heard a young woman say some time ago, "There's more drinking now than there was before the 18th Amendment." Before our conversation was ended she confessed that she lived in a dry town in a dry state and had never seen a drunken person until since the 18th Amendment was enacted.

May I quote Kathleen Norris, the author, a member of the Woman's Commission for Law Enforcement? She says: "In my girlhood, every good mother was worrying about a drinking son. I could list for you—I mean it—whole families of what we used to call San Francisco's "aristocracy" wiped out by drink. The surviving sisters and aunts turn to me innocently today and say, 'In our day there was no real drinking.' Thirty years ago there was nothing else. It wasn't shocking, it wasn't interesting, because it was the accepted thing."

A speaker in Charlotte recently said the difference between the drinking before prohibition became a law and since was the difference between a freight train and a hip flask.

Commissioner Booth says: "The wets profess to be deeply concerned over speakeasies. But in the years preceding prohibition there were 7,000 speakeasies in New York state alone, all of them paying income tax, and these were in addition to more secret speakeasies which did not pay income tax, and also to 28,000 legalized saloons."

Organized anarchy is the name which should be given to alcohol under whatever name or system it parades.

Commander Booth goes on to say: "Every brewery, every distillery, every vineyard in Europe regards our 18th Amendment as a menace to their property."

There is in Great Britain one fatality for every 118 motor cars. Open public houses there. In the United States there is one fatality for every 1,120 motor cars. Prohibition here. Note the contrast!

A member of one of our churches on the Halifax Charge sends $150.00 for the College as a memorial to her mother who recently went to take up her everlasting abode in the House not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. What a beautiful and gracious thing her daughter has done! We wonder if there are not members of others in our church in North Carolina who will be inspired by this lovely deed of this affecctionate daughter to memorialize their precious dead in a similar way. This contribution, at the request of the donor, is placed to the credit of Halifax's assessment for College in full. Now, if the other members of the charge will contribute an equal amount to the College, I venture to say that Dr. Humphreys will take the time to visit Halifax Charge and smile all over it. This contribution which was forwarded to him the day it was received enabled him to grin, I imagine, and a grin, you know, is the father of a smile. Say, boys, suppose we keep the Doctor grinning all the year. He can stand it.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mecklenburg Charge.—We are glad to note apparent new interest manifested in all the churches in the past few months. Our church and Sunday school attendance coninues to increase, especially the church attendance.

We are enjoying the satisfaction of an overflowing pantry as a result of several poundings from Beulah, Zoar, and New Hope churches. May the Loving Father recompense them for sharing of their substances.

We desire to thank good Kannapolis friends for their kind remembrances by cards and presents during the Christmas holidays. We shall not forget you. Though we be absent in body we are present in spirit.

J. L. LOVE.

Friendship Station.—The work here is getting along nicely. Our congregation is better than last year. We are glad to have our pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams, with us every Sunday morning.

Brother Williams brought a very helpful message at the morning service.

Our Ladies' Aid is doing fine; we enjoy working for the church and parsonage.

The Christian Endeavor is doing good, meeting every Sunday evening with good attendance in good spirit. We are sorry to learn of the illness of Brother Millaway. We will pray for his speedy recovery. We are glad to have Ruby James Harkey home from the hospital. We are sorry Mr. W. F. Mason is ill. Pray for his recovery.

Our first quarterly meeting was held on Saturday, December 19, with good attendance, and best of all with a good spirit.

West Forsyth.—Our services were well attended the past two Sundays. We were at Union Hill the second Sunday at 11 a. m., and administered the Lord's Supper. From the church we went to the good home of Brother Luther Poindexter, delegate to the last annual conference. Here we enjoyed a splendid dinner and genuine hospitality. At 2:30 o'clock we met a large congregation at Tabernacle church. The appointment at that church is the second Sunday night, having recently been changed from 11:00 a. m. Last Sunday we had a very good attendance at Pleasant Hill for the Sunday school and preaching service. The Lord's Supper was administered immediately after the sermon. Just preceding the sermon a vocal duet was rendered by Misses Lola and Ruth Long. Announcement was made that Rev. John Blackburn, local preacher of Baltimore church, will preach at Pleasant Hill the fifth Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

The pastor found a number of cases of sickness at Harmony Grove church last week. Among those who are in poor health are Brothers W. T. Luper, and W. S. Bodsford, Mrs. Elizabeth Warner and Mrs. J. E. Jarvis. We hope they will soon recover from their illness. The pastor and family have been remembered with useful gifts since our last report. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hendrix, the latter the postmaster at Tobaccoville. Mrs. J. H. Long, our near neighbor, Mrs. C. G. Hunter, of Pleasant Hill church, each contributing. For all of these gifts we are deeply grateful.

Wonder how many pastors and reporters read what the Editor said last week about the abundance of reports and other matter for publication. As stated by this writer early in the new conference year, I shall endeavor to condense my reports, and not write as often. Brother W. D. Reed reminds me of the possibilty of backsliding, so I will now "sign off" until the next time.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Lebanon Church, Spring Church Charge.—We enjoyed very much Brother Neese's sermon on the second Sunday. His text was, "Brethren, I count not myself not to have apprehended, but this one thing I do, forgetting the things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

The sermon was begun by the comparison of the past and the present. "We must not be continually looking backward but always forward. The man that puts his hand to the plow and looks back is not worthy to be called a follower of mine."

At the beginning of this new year there are some things we must forget and some we must remember if we are to have a prosperous year. Those we must forget are: first, our petty mistakes; second, mistakes of others; third, unkindnesses of others toward us. Those we must remember are: first, kindnesses of others; second, God's goodnesses towards us, and, third, that we are professing Christians.

Our communion service came very appropriately on the first Sunday in the new year. A good number of children and grown people rededicated their lives to the service of our Master.

Several of our neighbors, which have been sick for some time, have enjoyed the visits of our pastor.

We sincerely hope that our former pastor, Brother A. D. Shelton, will soon be well.

The reporter is very glad to be able to attend church services again. She very much appreciated the visits of Brother Neese and his wife while she was sick.

VIRGINIA GRANT, Reporter.

Cleveland Charge.—Yesterday was a good day for us with our people as Pleasant Hill, and Oak Grove.

At Pleasant Hill we observed the Holy Communion, took an offering for A. C. B., secured three subscriptions to the Herald and one of the good brethren of that church sent us word that he was ready to buy a High Point college bond. "Cleveland is going over the top with her quota."

At Oak Grove last night our congregation was larger than usual and the people were so attentive and appreciative, that it was a pleasure to preach to them.

Our C. E. society seems to be taking on new life and is doing a good work here among our young people. We are informed that the members of Kistler's have given an order for roofing to cover their church. Taking our work here as a charge we think we are making some progress along the various lines of church activity.

Even in this period of money stringency, our friends and neighborse have remembered us at different times with useful articles for the table. We will say to all, thank you, and God bless you!

Brother P. S. Gettys lost his house by fire on January 7, but his friends will be glad to learn that the building was covered by insurance.

Our district rally is to be held at Lincolnton church the fifth Sunday in January.

We are informed that we are to have High Point college choir with us on Sunday afternoon. This program will begin on Saturday night and close Sunday night.

Charges included in this district are: Cleveland, Connelly Springs, Fallston, Bess Chapel, Caroleen, and Lincolnton.

Brethren, we are expecting you to be there all day Sunday with a filled basket. Come and enjoy this splendid program.

Fraternally yours,

C. E. RIDGE.

Orange Charge.—We are still moving along as usual. Young people's day programs are being planned as follows: For the fifth Sunday in January, 11:00 a. m. Hebron; 3:00 p. m. Chestnut Ridge, and 7:00 p. m. Efland. Rev. T. J. Whitehead will speak to us at the Efland service. A similar service will be held at Union Grove first Sunday in February 11:00 a. m.

Efland and Union Grove Sunday schools have paid assessments for Y. P. board. Hope to secure these amounts from the other Sunday schools soon.

We are trying to pay something on conference claims each month.

Sincerely,

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Rehoboth Church, Granville Circuit.—On the first Sunday of the new year, our pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, delivered an interesting sermon on "The Wrath of God Upon Those Who Are at Ease in the Church."

At the next appointment, which was the third Sunday, he gave to us the remedy for this wrath of God. The topic was "Consecration." The text being found in the 12th chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Romans: first and second verses. He left us to bear in mind that, consecration or reconsecration, whichever it may be in each person's life, is the only thing that can lead out of depression. It is up to the people in the church to consecrate their lives to Christ first; for the people out of the church measure themselves by some member of the church. Usually it is the sorriest member of the church. There is such a thing as some Christians are better than others, but God wants all of us to be as good as the best.

Paul says, "Present your bodies a living sacrifice unto God." To do this we must:

Be separated from the world and sin.

Be as ready to lay our lives upon the altar as a sacrifice as Abraham was to sacrifice his son.

Be given to the Lord forever, not temporarily, but unreservedly. Give ourselves in life. Thus a lifetime in His service, for He is worthy of the best in our lives.

Be acceptable to God in the way He deserves. We must deny ourselves and follow Him.

Not drift with the crowd, but have our soul transformed by consecration and make the town, or community, in which we live, an easier place for folks to live a Christian life.

At this appointment an offering was taken to lessen the deficit in the running expenses of the Herald for the past few years.

On the fourth Sunday the hour of Sunday school will be changed to 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At 3 o'clock, Dr. Humphreys, president of High Point college, will speak to us in the interest of the college. We are anxious to have a large congregation to hear him, for we feel he will bring some helpful information. REPORTER.

Henderson.—January 10th, L. W. Gerringer conducted the 11 o'clock services in a most impressive and effective manner, using as his subject, "Prayer," in response to the special call issued by Dr. J. C. Broomfield. During the week preceding, the members of the church were urged to pray for the church at large and the work it has in charge. Mr. Gerringer also asked that families fast on January 10th and bring the savings as a sacrificial offering on the following Sunday.

Circles Nos. 1, 2, and 3 held their regular meetings last week with Mesdames T. H Hight, S. R. Watson and John Edwards, respectively.

Circle No. 4 will meet this week with Mrs. T. J. Evans, Mesdames W. E. Wilson and Silas Powell assistant hostesses. Circle No. 5 will meet Monday evening with Miss Frances Gerringer.

On Friday night, January 15th a social was held in the Sunday school department by the Philathea class. The occasion was the ending of a contest which had been in progress since October. The Blues lost to the Reds by 40 points, thus the Blues were hostesses at the social. Mrs. Clifton H. Finch, captain of the Blues, prepared an evening of real wholesome fun and pleasure which was greatly enjoyed by a large number. An attractive salad course with hot coffee was served during the evening.

On Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock services, Rev. Mr. Gerringer delivered a most timely sermon, on the subject, "One Other Great Movement That Is Needed." Speaking of our present conditions he pointed out the great need of the return of Man to God's House. Back to God and back to God's House would certainly lift our moral depression and as surely would bring a prosperous time again. The shortest route to normality again is by the way of the church. Closing the schools, closing our numerous business houses, closing our banks and other institutions, are serious and bad, continued Mr. Gerringer, but what would be the worst of all would be the closing of our churches. These great organizations which alone hold out hope, comfort and cheer to a bewildered people in such trying times as these. So again, "Back to the Church," and "Back to God," is the great movement now needed and felt, I'm sure by all God loving and God fearing people.

The choir sang "Sun of My Soul." Miss Elizabeth Fox taking the solo part. This was beautifully rendered and greatly enjoyed.

The sacred concert by the High Point college choir and orchestra delighted the audience which filled the church to capacity last night. The concert given under the auspices of the music department of the Woman's club and Mrs. F. R. Harris, who is chairman of this department, is to be congratulated upon the splendid musical treat she provided for the people of Henderson.

Although the singers were delayed by two minor accidents and arrived too late to get supper or even to go to their homes before the program, they gave a lovely concert, most artistic and inspiring.

The choir director, Professor Ernest Stimson, is a musician to his finger tips, and his skill and genius was highly evident last night. Every number was given with poise and delicacy. There was no hurry or nervousness such as might have been expected after the hectic trip from High Point.

The selections were of the highest order, begining with the ancient sixteenth century Italian music by Palestrina, and ranging through the ages and nationalities, Norwegian, Russian, English and the present day and most modern of all classics, the French Dubossy.

The vocal solos vy C. L. Gray, Wilma Planz, and Vera Smith and the piano solo by Alma Andrews, who is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Harris, also were very pleasing to the audience.

Probably the most appealing of all the numbers was "That Sweet Story of Old" in which little S. W. Taylor, Jr., sang in his sweet treble voice with the choir humming the accompaniment.

Denton Charge.—We fear that Brother Cone Surratt is not making much progress toward recovering fom an attack of serious illness a week ago. To begin with, he had been in declining health for some time. He made a business trip to Greensboro. While driving in the city he seemed to have a sudden attack which rendered him unconscious, while in this state his car collided with a large truck. He was rushed to an hospital, after several hours rtgained his mental bearings, and after a couple of days came home, but remains very ill. He is a brother of Rev. Freo Surratt of Whitakers, who has been by his bedside for several days.

The work on the Denton charge is moving on fairly well. Denton church has just installed a splendid heating plant at a cost of $1,000. We consider this rather heroic, but this is not their first heroic undertaking.

We experienced a very happy occasion last Sabbath when the friends and relatives met with Brother and Sister "Buck" Walls in a family reunion. All of the children and grandchildren were present but one daughter and her family who reside in Charlotte. This was a pleasant gathering and greatly enjoyed by all, especially this dear old couple. The birthday cake was decorated with seventy-two candles. These children are the pride of their parents, two boys and two girls, a credit to their father and mother and a blessing. May these dear old saints live to see many more happy birthdays, and continue to inspire others to noble Christian lives. Though they live miles from the church, it is seldom they do not answer roll call at Sunday school, and occupy their pew at preaching service. May God richly bless them, and may their last days be the brightest of all.

Mrs. Chandler is confiend to her bed and has been since last August. She is a very precious woman, and we should like so much to see her well again. She bears her sickness with remarkable patience, looking up through veils of tears in fond hopes of a better day.

The Christmas season brought us some fine programs in Denton and Piney Grove, churches. At Piney Grove, after the tree yielded its gifts to the waiting happy children, the pastor thought it all over. But when he opened the door of his car, lo, it was bulging with the gifts from the community which must have represented the basket and store of nearly every home in the neighborhood! Space will not permit my naming the gifts and the givers. Suffice it to say, every gift was usable, and appreciated beyond words to express it. My! at the meat, coffee, sugar, preserves, pickles, fruits, meal, flour and other things. God knows, what a need these things so abundantly supplied, and will full reward their labors of love and helpfulness. I am serving my second pastorate at this church, and they have many times before been a blessing to us. Thanks.

ROBERT SHORT.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—Dr. Johnson used "Prayer" as the subject of his most interesting and helpful sermon last Sunday. Prayers were offered in the interest of the financial conditions of the church as a whole.

The children are always anxious to hear the story that Dr. Johnson has for them. Sunday he told the children how they could show their love by helping others.

We were delighted to have Mrs. C. W. Bates from Calvary to speak to the people concerning the work of the Auxiliary. Dr. Johnson felt that it was important that the men as well as women hear Mrs. Bates' talk in order that they might become more interested in mission work. Our Auxiliary is made up of three circles and we hope to put in practice some of the fine suggestions that Mrs. Bates offered.

The Sunday school gave a rising vote as an expression of sympathy for Rev. G. F. Millaway, who is in a hospital in Boston.

Our Sunday school is planning for a Young People's Day on the fifth Sunday of this month.

MARGARET CAUSEY, Reporter.

Efland, Orange Charge.—January 20th our faithful pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, brought us two very helpful sermons. His sermons always have a deep meaning if we could only grasp it and apply it to our lives. After the morning service, communion was observed and a goodly number partook. The church members had a business session after services.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely. The attendance is very good but not what it could be in Efland.

There are several of our members on the sick list. May they have a speedy recovery.

MRS. E. S. TAYLOR, Reporter.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Our pastor filled his 11 o'clock appointment on the second Sunday in this month, using for his text the clause, "Thy will be done." The subject was well handled and the discourse was enjoyed by all present. Rev. and Mrs. Love are endearing themselves to us and we are looking forward to and praying for a profitable service of Christian fellowship together.

On the third Sunday night in December we were favored with some special music by a quartette from near Liberty. This added interest to our evening service and a large crowd was present. Then on Thursday night during the holidays some friends who were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Love gave a concert at the church, which was very fine. However, since the weather was so unfavorable only a few were present. We hope we may have them with us again.

Our Sunday school is growing each Sunday and the average attendance is good. Several new ones have come in since Christmas. We welcome them into our school.

The Auxiliary met after Sunday school Sunday with 13 members present.

Last Sunday evening Mr. Love brought us another one of his good messages, this time it was on "Christian Friendship." Each message seems to get better.

Bethesda, Halifax Charge.—Our pastor on the second Sunday gave us a very interesting and helpful sermon, afterwards administering the Lord's Supper. This was a most impressive and inspiring communion service.

Our Sunday school is getting along nicely. Our faithful superintendent, Mr. J. R. Taylor, is always there, and although our Sunday school is small in numbers we have a faithful little band and much interest is shown by those who attend. We are hoping to have a larger attendance this new year.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. N. M. Harrison, Sr. We were sorry that due to sickness some of our members were unable to be present.

Mrs. F. M. Taylor gave a very interesting chapter from the study book, which was much enjoyed by everyone present.

Plans are being made to put on the thank-offering program in February.

At our Auxiliary meeting in December we had our District Chairman, Mrs. J. M. Cutchin of Whitakers, with us. She gave us a most interesting and inspiring address, which was quite helpful and encouraging to us. We hope she will come again.

We regret to report that our former reporter, Mrs. L. B. Street, continues on the sick list. We hope she may soon be entiely well.

Sandy Ridge, Kernersville Charge.—I come this week with a sad report. One of our beloved members has gone to his reward, Mr. Henry Wise Gray died Sunday night, January 10th, aged 69 years, 11 months, and 25 days. Funeral service was held at Sandy Ridge Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by his pastor, Rev, D. D. Broom, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hill from Shady Grove church, and Rev. R. O. Nuckles from Smith Grove church.

Uncle Henry leaves his wife, Mrs. Hattie Gray, two stepchildren, Nellie and Willie Morgan, one brother, Mr. Pink Gray, of Indiana, two sisters, Mrs. E. P. Davis of Sandy Ridge and Mrs. Louise Shirley of Utah and a host of relatives and friends. Uncle Henry was a true and faithful member of Sandy Ridge church. He was always ready and willing to do anything that lay in his power for the church. As long as he was able you would always find Uncle Henry at Sunday school and preaching. Our church and community has sustained a great loss. Our Lord's will be done.

Uncle Henry ran a store and you could go there any time and you could find him reading his Bible. He will be missed by the whole community.

West Thomasville.—We wish the Herald and all of its readers a most prosperous year in every way. We are looking forward to the best year ever for our church.

We have preaching services the first Sunday night, and the second and the fourth Sunday mornings. Our pastor preached us a good sermon last Sunday after which we observed communion service.

Our pastor and a number of other men fixed our church up very nicely the past week, putting down carpet, putting curtains in front of the choir, and fixing an altar rail. We all appreciate this more than we can express.

Our Sunday school broke all records December 20th with 207 present. We have set our goal for 225 within the first six months of this year and we are expecting to reach it.

We had an unusually large crowd at our Christmas exercise: many could not get inside the church.

Our first quarterly conference will meet at the church next Saturday evening at six o'clock. We are hoping for some good reports, although our finances are far behind.

Our Ladies' Aid society is still working. We are planning an oyster supper and bazaar for some time in February.

Our Christian Endeavor is doing fine work in many ways.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—January 17 we were delighted to have our room nearly full. We have 59 on roll, today we had 61 present.

We sang that good old song "Stepping In the Light." I wish that every one of you could have heard those young men sing. It seemed as though they meant the words of that song. As it begins, "Trying to walk in the steps of the Savior." I trust that we all may strive to walk in the steps of theSavior.

Our teacher, Mr. J. L. Evans, taught an uplifting lesson on, "Beginnings of the Christian Life." He said, "We all should find Jesus as Nicodemus found him. As Moses lifted the serpent in the wilderness, we should lift Christ since it is our duty as followers of Him. If we are followers of Christ we should hold him up and show to the world that there is a Christ and that we are holding Him up."

Our teacher urged that we should not get discouraged because we can't do like some one else but strive to do our best, with Christ as our leader. We should grow in grace if we serve Him.

We welcomed our new members and the visitors.

English Street Church.—Our Sunday school continues to grow. Several classes were almost 100 per cent on the past Sunday. Our pastor has promised 50 cents to the class that has all members present next Sunday. The boys and girls Intermediate classes seem to hold the banners along now. The boys call their class "The Scrap-Iron Class," and the girls, "The Searchlight." The girls' class has recently been taken over by Mrs. J. A. Lee and continues to add new members every Sunday.

We are having splendid preaching services every Sunday. Sunday before last six new members were added to the church. On the past Sunday night, two young people were converted. Among the many visitors at this service were Mr. and Mrs. Holton, of the Presbyterian church, and Mrs. George Stephens.

Our C. E. Society is planning a program to be given at Greensboro, St. Paul's church, next Sunday evening at 6:30 for young people. The society is also planning for C. E. week, but no definite plans have yet been made.

South Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—Our pastor, Rev. C. G. Isley, brought a very able and inspiring message Sunday afternoon, using Romans 6:23: "For the wages of sin is death: but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Attendance at Sunday school is holding up well. We had 100 present this afternoon, only two less than double the attendance of one year ago. Seven members had a perfect attendance record last year. Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Swicegood and daughter, Margie; Mr. H. L. Swicegood, and Lloyd, Fay, Ruth, the little adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Swicegood, has been present also every Sunday since she was adopted in June at the age of two weeks.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met yesterday after preaching service for the purpose of re-organizing and electing new officers.

Mr. J. T. Swicegood, one of our faithful members who has been critically ill with appendicitis, is showing some improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Rowe announce the birth of a daughter, January 15.

North Davidson Charge.—This being the writer's first report since Conference, he wishes to say that he found the work in splendid condition from both spiritual and working standpoint. There is much evidence that the former pastor led his people into rich and full spiritual lives. He also found the work well organized for a rural charge and all organizations working well under present conditions. He does not feel that the last Conference could have sent him to any work where he would have found a better and more lovable people.

The Christmas season this year was one mixed with both joy and sadness for pastor and people. On Wednesday evening before Christmas the pastor and family attended a Christmas service at Spring Hill church. At this they received many nice and valuable presents off the Christmas tree from individual friends. After the tree was undressed the pastor and wife were approached by Santa Claus and invited into a Sunday school room in the rear of the church. There they found the room full of articles of food, just such as a pastor needs. Santa informed them that it was for them. This made them happy and caused them to have even a more loving attitude toward the good people of Spring Hill church than ever because of the spirit manifested by such generous and useful gifts.

On Christmas eve they went to Bethesda to a Christmas program which was well rendered and enjoyed by all. Here they also received several nice and useful gifts, for which they feel very grateful to the people of that church. Some individuals from this church have also shown kindness by bringing their pastor two loads of good wood. Them the pastor also thanks.

On Saturday evening after Christmas the pastor and family attended a Christmas tree at Union Grove. The program was very good and the church and tree were beautifully decorated. Everyone seemed to enjoy the service and many were made glad because of receiving nice gifts.

Sunday following Christmas our appointments were at Mount Pleasant for the morning and Canaan for the afternoon. At the close of our service at Mount Pleasant church the pastor went to his car and found his wife standing there smiling and his car so full of good things to eat that he hardly had room to ride. For this and much other kindness the pastor and family will always love and remember these good people.

At the close of the sermon at Canaan Brother George Berrier asked for a few words. His words were kind and made all feel good, but none so well as the pastor and his wife, for he presented to them a very beautiful Yo Yo quilt which was a gift from the ladies of that church. The writer and wife value this gift highly and they hope to live before these splendid people in such a way that they may never regret making this generous gift to them.

The writer regrets to say that all was not joy on North Davidson Charge during Christmas. On Christmas day Brother Roy Wagoner was buried at Bethesda at 11 a. m., and Mrs. Hinkle, from near Midway, at 3 p. m. On Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mrs. Mary J. Sisk Clodfelter, aged 91 years, was laid to rest in Bethesda cemetery. She was a member of Canaan M. P. church of this charge. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved of all these. O. C. LOY, Pastor.

Thomasville, West End.—Our first quarterly conference met January 16 with Rev. H. W. Bell presiding. Many important features were discussed at this meeting. Mr. Bell gave a good report and said that he had set some goals for this year. We all want to do our best to help him reach these goals. We have just carpeted our church and made some changes which have seemed to help very much.

Our Senior and Junior C. E. Societies are still growing and both are of vital importance to our church. Our Senior Society had its first social of the year on Saturday night, January 16, at the home of Vida McCrary. It was enjoyed very much by everyone who attended.

Our Sunday school seems to be increasing rapidly, also the attendance at church services, and we hope this will be the best year of many. NOVELLA BRINKLEY,
Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—Last Sunday morning after reading the first chapter of I Peter, Rev. Mr. Farmer chose as the topic of his message, "How to Meet a Crisis," the 13th verse: "Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ," or as Moffatt expresses it, "Brace up your minds and keep cool." In the beginning of his discourse he bespoke the earnest loyalty and cooperation of the members to the church in its hour of distress. Beginning with next Sunday a box will be placed in the lobby in which to deposit groceries for the needy; last week the Woman's Auxiliary collected $70.00 worth of food for the Welfare Board. He said that there are many changes in the atmosphere of spiritual life, when storms often arise, but a crisis is an experience that we have never met before. It is a disorganizing influence, a critical juncture when decision to go upward or downward must be met. Tacitus said that adversity has no friends, but Lord Byron countered with the statement, "Adversity is the path that leads to truth." As a kite rises against the wind and not with it, opposition and disappointment may become a help to us. A crisis is not met by stubbornly failing to see it as it affects us, and like an ostrich, we often bury only our heads in the sand, thinking we are hidden from the effects of the wreck of our hopes, but that is too late. In the present crisis it is not a money panic, but a loss of confidence. We have lost trust in God, in our fellowmen and the sense of direction. Crises are met by being sensitive to changing conditions. When the bough breaks beneath her, the bird sings because she knows that she has wings. Arnold Bennett said that anyone can write a good first chapter of a book, but what about the last? Do not worry about things that cannot be helped, and waste no time over those that can be helped. When we come to meet the crisis, we must withdraw to the presence of God. Laying aside and forgetting old habits and manners of living, we must find new habits that will win and lead us on to victory. In these coming days "which will try men's souls," we must learn to sacrifice, and trust God as we move forward to the new order. We achieve the meaning of a crisis by bravely facing life's disappointments, waiting for Him to show us the way "out of darkness and of dust." Morley said, "The great business of life is to be, to do, and to do without,and Henry James said "Religion is the sovereign balm for worry." To build a new structure out of the old ashes requires new builders, "New creatures in Christ Jesus." It is not what you have left in a material sense after passing through a crisis, but your faith in God. "Trust in the Lord and do good, so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed."

At the Sunday evening service the fifth and last in the popular series of "One-two-three-four five" sermons was delivered in an effective and helpful manner by the minister on "Five Deep Wells." After reading the account of Jesus' talk with the woman of Samaria at Jacob's well and her miraculous conversion, when she left her water-pot and went into the city and spread the news abroad, "Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?" The minister drew the picture of a well-rounded life, which must be "well bred, well fed, well read, well wed, and well led."

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the new Junior Christian Endeavor Society met downstairs with Miss Daisy Lee York in charge. At the same time Mrs. R. R. Russell began the story hour for the small children. Mrs. L. R. Johnston has been doing splendid volunteer work along this line since last Conference.

At 6:30 Sunday evening new officers for the Intermediate C. E. Society were installed as follows: President, Robert Russell; vice-president, Vera York, and secretary-treasurer, Alene Vance. The topic of discussion was "Keeping Fit."

On Friday evening the Woman's Auxiliary will hold an old-fashioned candy-pulling at the home of Mrs. C. C. Robbins on Archdale road in honor of 26 students of High Point College who are associate members of First church. All chairmen of the different circles are especially invited to be present.

The name of Robert D. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davis, appeared on the honor roll of the State University last week. Robert is a member of the Junior class.

John York, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. York, came home from Oak Ridge Institute, where he is a student, and underwent an operation at High Point Hospital on Saturday afternoon, last. We are glad to announce that he is resting comfortably.

Miss Louise Jennings, graduate student in State University, spent the past week-end at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jennings.

Charlotte.—Last Tuesday afternoon Circles Nos. 1 and 2 met at the home of Mrs. Fesperman with 16 members present. Devotional was conducted by Mrs. R. M. Andrews in a most interesting and helpful manner, which is characteristic of her. The subject was "Why Missions?"

The question box was conducted by Mrs. Little. She had previously asked each member to look up and study all the questions she would ask them promiscuously. Of course Mrs. Little knew them all. Ways and Means Chairman, Mrs. Stegall, has something new every meeting; this month it is a shoe cut cut of a piece of cloth and stitched on a small square with a verse in rhyme for a penny for each number of your shoe. Mrs. R. S. Garmon is a close second; her scheme was a "Yo-Yo" spread. The square she brought as a pattern was beautiful. Mrs. Parrish is giving the goods for the spread and each one present promised to make a number of Yo-Yo's. It requires around 1,500, but we will have them; then we will sell the spread. We are somewhat behind with our Auxiliary budget, but you will not find us behind at Branch Meeting. Our traveling basket is netting the treasury a nice sum each meeting; peanut sales are off somewhat, it has been so warm. Mrs. Fesperman served most delicious sandwiches, cookies and tea after the meeting.

Glad to know Calvary Sunday school in Greensboro is entering the contest with us. Watch us lead them a chase. I admit we will have to hustle.

We extend to Rev. C. W. Bates our sincere sympathy in the loss of his father.

At the morning service Sunday we had a very impressive and inspirational presentation and dedication to the Lord's work—our sacrifice offering. Big, little, old and young brought their offering. I am sure we are all better, stronger in the Lord than before. Most of us lose sight of so much of the finer and better things in this day of rush and bustle. We fail so often to get the blessing our Father has for us when we do not make an effort and attend prayer meeting. I am sure your pastor and mine need the encouragement of our presence and we need the spiritual food. Let us be more in attendance at these meetings.

It would have done you all good to have heard our young folks in C. E. discuss in debate the subject "My Share in the Home." The debate, "Is the American Home Failing?" It was decided by the judges that it is not failing. It was an interesting debate; really hard to decide; good points on both sides.

The oyster supper promises to be a genuine success. The boys are working hard for it. The boys have played seven games in the league, lost only one. They play Tuesday evening at Matthews, 11 miles below Charlotte. The cheer-leader and the gang will be there to yell.

Dr. Andrews, our pastor, is indeed giving us much good food for our souls. May we all give much thought to his sermons, so ably presented. Sunday morning his text was Numbers 13:33, the last half of the verse: "And we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight." The subject, "Men versus Grasshoppers." Moses sent 12 men to search the land of Canaan. The report of the men that the land was inhabited by giants and to leave it alone. Not so as Joshua and Caleb saw it: giants, yes, but the land could be taken. The ten were afraid to try; so, like most of us, afraid to undertake anything for the Lord, rather be accounted as grasshoppers. Let us be Joshuas and Calebs and Nehemiahs and do things, trust in the Lord and do, for as we think so are we. Most of what we fear never happens. Let us pray for courage to do and do it; stand firm in the faith and loyal to God and His work.

The evening sermon was likewise helpful. The text, Job 19:25: "For I know that my Redeemer Liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth." You are all familiar with Job, his trials and tribulations, his sufferings and the odds seemingly against him—his friends and his wife urging him to forsake God. He stands firm, rebukes them all and endures. He said his Redeemer was a vindicator and he would not forsake Him. Dr. Andrews said you can't argue religion with anyone. We experience the joy of being a Christian and doing the works of our Father and may be faithful and true to our faith. Trust in the Lord and He shall bring it to pass. Would that you might have heard these able discourses. REPORTER.

ORIGIN OF COSMIC RAYS

Cosmic rays—what are they and where do they come from? According to Dr. Robert A. Millikan, California Institute of Technology scientist, they are beams or rays of energy that pour down on the earth in myriads. Experiments conducted last summer, he told the congress of physicists at Rome recently, showed that these rays come from points hundreds of millions of miles beyond the sun and visible stars—from distant regions unknown even to astronomers. Not only did he emphasize the fact that cosmic rays have nothing to do with either the sun or stars, but he said the energy of such rays was equal to if not greater than all other radiant energies combined. Cosmic rays, he claims, come from a vast field of hydrogen. Further, he reported that he had succeeded in dividing a ray into four substances, helium, oxygen, silicon and iron and that each ray carries 786,000,000 volts of energy.

COME TO THE CONVENTION!

The Sixteenth biennial convention of the N. C. Anti-Saloon League meets in Greensboro. at the West Market Street Methodist church, January 21-22, 1932. The first session begins at 2:30 Thursday afternoon, January 21.

FROM SOUTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

After reading the report from Cedar Falls written by Brother Geo. Laughlin I was impressed to write just a few lines. About twenty years ago this dear old man preached a sermon at a little church on the Why Not circuit called Macedonia and God got hold on me and says old man, you had better repent and his sermon was so strong I could not let go. God says old man, this is your last chance and I believe it until now. I went to the altar the whole meeting and Brother Laughlin still left me there. My faith was too small. I did not believe God would reach down and save a great big man who spent about 34 years as such a disgraceful wicked man as I had been—a blockader a bootlegger and most anything else that was mean. But I continued to pray and did not give up, and when I made the full surrender to give up everything and trust God with my whole heart the old blockader was dead and a new man made in his place, and the new man is still alive, and as Brother Laughlin returned the next year to assist the pastor in the special meeting he found the great big man he left at the altar superintendent of the Sunday school. I have often heard him say he would be afraid to have met him in the dark and sure I was a dangerous man at that time. I was happy, indeed, to hear from him. He helped at Macedonia in the meetings this makes 20 years, and will say to him I bid him God's speed in his last days may God make them the happiest. I am still happy and God has kept me faithful. I could not have done this without the Heavenly Master.

A Little Report from Willow Creek Methodist Protestant Church

The South Carolina conference is very weak but we have a little church called Willow Creek and an average Sunday school attendance of 70, of which we are very proud. We have preaching every other Sunday and a real lively crowd to work with. Brother Frye is our pastor.

With many good wishes to the Herald and all of its readers.

Yours in the Master's service,
W. D. MOORE.

PASTORS' WESTERN FEDERATION

All pastors in this area will please attend the meeting to be held Monday January 25th, 10:30, First church, Concord.

We are exceedingly anxious to have a good attendance and greatly desire that you let Brother Morgan know that you will be present so lunch can be prepared for you.

R. M. ANDREWS, Chairman.

NOTICE

The pastors of the Western Federation will meet in Concord January 25th. Lunch will be served in the basement of the church at 35c. We are looking for all the ministers in this Federation to be here, and bring some of your good laymen if you wish.

Clothing and Other Gifts

The Friendly class, Calvary S. S., 2 slips, 1 dress, 1 pair hose and 2 pair bloomers for Margaret Coble.

The Mississippi Branch by Mrs. E. G. Strange, 5 little dresses, 2 pieces of underwear, 4 pair hose, 6 little boys' suits.

Mr. J. G. Rogers, Burlington, 8 dozen pair hose for boys.

We deeply appreciate these gifts of money and substance. We dare not single out many gifts, but occasionally we feel that it will do good. Four quotations follow:

"Enclosed please find check for $5.00 in memory of Mrs. Wm. Wiley of Creswell, who passed away in December. She requested us to send it to the Children's Home instead of buying flowers."

"My class of boys and girls eight years old wanted to do something for the children in the Home. They collected the enclosed $2.00."

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Butler of Louisiana, recently wrote: "We are enclosing check for $5.00 for our children; for we feel that they are ours as well as yours."

"I am enclosing check in amount of $25.00 my Thanksgiving Offering. A little late, but I trust you can use it to advantage."

We trust there are many late comers yet to follow.

Many other letters have come with cheering and assuring messages, showing a spirit back of the gifts which insures the support of this Home through the years to come.

May the dear Lord bless in all the enterprises and institutions of our beloved church.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE!

"Have a good time,"
Said Doctor A,
"Enjoy yourself,
Live for today."

"You must not mix,"
Said Doctor B,
"Fresh fruit and starch,
They disagree."

"Go on a fast,"
Said Doctor L,
"Eat not at all,
And you'll be well."

"You've got to stuff,"
Said Doctor R,
"Or you'll become,
Quite angular."

"Eat only prunes,"
Said Doctor O,
"On food intake
You must go slow."

"Eschew all meat,"
Said Doctor K,
"And live the bi-Ologic way."

"Ignore pet fads,"
Said Doctor M,
"Or you will wear
A diadem."

Thus Doctors all
Quite disagree,
While men die of Perplexity!

DISTRICT RALLY

Pastors and churches of Mocksville, Shiloh, South Lexington, and Spencer charges will please note that on January 31st (Fifth Sunday) at 2:30 p. m. a rally for the entire district will be held at Shiloh church on Shiloh charge.

May every church bring its entire forces and make it a great rally.

A program is being prepared and will be published next week.

Plan now to attend.

G. H. HENDRY, Chairman.

THE WORLD'S BIBLE

Christ has no hands but our hands,
To do his work today;
He has no feet but our feet,
To lead men in His way;
He has no tongues but our tongues,
To tell men how He died;
He has no help but our help,
To bring them to his side.

We are the only Bible
The careless world will read;
We are the sinner's gospel,
We are the scoffer's creed;
We are the Lord's last message,
Given in deed and word;
What if the type is crooked?
What if the print is blurred?

What if our hands are busy
With other work than His?
What if our feet are walking
Where sin's allurement is?
What if our tongues are speaking
Of things His lips would spurn?
How can we hope to help Him
And hasten His return?

ENRICHMENT

Freely give, give still more.
Let love divine
Enrich your store.

THE MAN OF MANHATTAN

The old man of Manhattan,
I met him face to face,
A wan and weary pilgrim,
Disillusioned in the race.

He looked at me with wonder
That I should happy be,
While he with gold in millions
Trudged on in misery.

His days of strain and striving
No voice or pen could tell,
His life of money hoarding
Seemed now to him a hell.

I saw him in Manhattan,
And he, the dupe, saw me;
The lesson of that tragic face
Will last eternity.

SNAP OUT OF IT!

Are you feeling cross and blue?
Snap out of it!
Wonder how you'll struggle through?
Snap out of it!
Face your job and do it right,
Work away with faith and might,
Do not slump, put up a fight,
Snap out of it!

Grumble? Say the times are bad?
Snap out of it!
Lost every dollar that you had?
Snap out of it!
Start again with hopeful face,
Be a sprinter in the race,
If you've slackened in your pace—
Snap out of it!

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Isley

Jordan Alexander Isley was born in Alamance county, December 25, 1845. He died November 25, 1931. Surviving him are two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie Shoffner of Burlington, and Mrs. Cora Crouse of Snow Camp; three sons, Rufus, D. Rhodes, and Lacy A. Isley, all of Burlington, R. F. D. No. 1. He is also survived by a half sister, Mrs. Robert Shepherd and a brother, Jacob Isley.

Mr. Isley was twice married. His first marriage was to Miss Cornelia Ingle and his second to Miss Mary Lynn. He survived both of these.

He volunteered to aid in the cause of the South in the Civil war. In a number of the engagements he fought. During the latter part of the war he was captured and made prisoner of war by the Federal forces. At the conclusion of the war he volunteered to do scout service on the frontier. He later received an honorable discharge and returned home.

Shortly after his return he was converted at a great revival meeting at Lowe's Lutheran church. (If the writer's memory serves him corectly near two hunderd others were converted at this meeting.) After his conversion he united with the Friendship M. P. church. It can be truthfully said of him that he was faithful to God and to his church until death. He impressed one as being an unusually good man. His church has indeed sustained a great loss in his passing.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. D. I. Offman and the writer in accordance with the expressed wishes of the deceased.

W. M. LOY.

Nicholson

Murray F. Nicholson was born March 14, 1907. He was called to his heavenly reward December 27, 1931. He was converted when a boy and joined the Mebane M. P. church. To his church he remained true till death.

On March 22, 1927, he was married to Miss Callie Lea Hurst. To this union were born two children, Marie Carol, and Bettie Jean. These with their mother survive to mourn the passing of the dear father and husband.

He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholson; three sisters, Miss Pauline Nicholson, of Mebane; Miss Margaret Nicholson, of Greensboro, and Mrs. W. G. Isley of Burlington, R. F. D. No. 1; two brothers, Marion and Lewis, both of Mebane.

The deceased suffered a blood infection about twelve weeks before his death. While his suffering all this time was extreme he fought stubbornly but finally his great physique gave way, his suffering ended, and his real and eternal life began. Shortly before his death he told his wife that he was going "over the river," and asked that she go along. Prior to this he had expressed his readiness to go and we beleive that he was accompanied over by his Master and now rests under the shade of the tree of life.

Our hearts go out in sympathy to his young wife, his bright little girls, his dear father and mother, sisters and brothers. May the God of abundant grace sustain them in this great trial.

The funeral was in charge of the writer, assisted by Dr. T. M. Johnson, Dr. G. O. Langford, Rev. G. W. Holmes, and Dr. Fred W. Paschall.

W. M. LOY.

Routh

Martitia Lee Routh departed this life December 28, 1931, aged 70 years, one month, and 18 days. In early life she accepted Christ as her Savior and joined Gray's Chapel M. P. church. Through the years that followed she remained a faithful member of this church. And when God took her a large congregation gathered to pay respect to her.

On July 27, 1879, she was united in marriage to E. Lafayette Routh. To this union were born 12 children, eight sons and four daughters, all of which remain.

Several years ago her husband died and left her to rear this large family of children. Those who have had the responsibility of caring for children know her task was not an easy one. But she had an unwavering faith in her God. When he looked on her noble sons and daughters, and noted their loyalty to the church and to Christ, we felt sure the Master said to her, "Well done, good and faithful servant." The funeral services were conducted by the pastor in the presence of a large congregation of sorrowing friends and neighbors after which the body was laid to rest in the Gray's Chapel cemetery.

EDW. SUITS.

Groce

On January 2, 1932. Mrs. Queen Shaw Groce, widow of the late Arthur Groce who was buried here only about two months ago, passed peacefully at her home here after an illness of only one week.

The deceased was married about ten years ago to Mr. Groce and had been a kind-hearted and loving stepmother to his six cildren, all of whom showed their appreciation by their treatment of her.

Mrs. Groce leaves two sisters and one brother, all of Worthville. Miss Jennie Shaw who had always made her home with the deceased, Mrs. Fred Allred and Mr. F. W. Shaw. She had been a member of the Worthville Methodist Protestant church for many years and had always been active in the work of the church and the Sunday school. The funeral was conducted by her pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, on Sunday afternoon, January 3rd. The choir rendered several appropriate numbers, some of which were her chosen songs.

Interment was made in the local cemetery beside her husband. The beautiful floral tributes evidenced the esteem in which she was held by her relatives and friends. We will miss her kind personality and good works here, but expect to see her in that fairer and brighter land. MRS. LEONARD WARD.

A Tribute of Love

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to take from us a life of great usefulness in our beloved sister, Mrs. Edna McLean, we the members of the Missionary auxiliary of the Moriah M. P. church, desire to offer this tribute of love to her memory as an honorary member of our society.

Resolved, that we as individual members hold in loving remembrance her Christ-like spirit, and that we extend to the bereaved husband our heart-felt sympathy in this great sorrow that has come into his home, and that we commend him to our Heavenly Father who doeth all things well.

And be it further resolved, that this resolution be entered upon the minutes of our meeting, a copy sent the Herald for publication, and also one sent the Missionary Record for publication.

MRS. C. F. SCOTT, Secretary.

Hubbard

Augustus Allen Hubbard died at the home of his son, Robert Hubbard in Kernersville, after an illness of considerable duration.

He was the son of Freeman and Polly Hubbard, born in Caswell county, he moved to this community about 75 years ago.

Funeral services were held at Sandy Ridge church by the pastor, asisted by Rev. Mr. Hill, of Colfax Wesleyan Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Rogers of Kernersville Methodist Episcopal church, and Rev. Mr. Baker of Kernersville Baptist church. Interment was in the Sandy Ridge cemetery.

Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved.

D. D. BROOME.

York

John B. York, son of A. H. and Laura Mazye York, was born in Iredell county, N. C., November 23, 1876, and departed this life October 29, 1931. He was married in 1904 to Miss Hattie Raper, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. E. M. Raper. Brother Raper was an honored member of the N. C. conference of the M. P. church.

Brother York is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. R. D. Patterson, Charles Raper, and J. B. York, Jr., also by one brother, C. C. York of Greensboro, N. C. The deceased moved from Marion, Va., to Liberty, N. C., about three years ago. Soon after moving to Liberty he united with the M. P. church here and was an honored member till called to his eternal reward. He had served the church as steward and at the time of his death was teacher of the Baraca class in the Sunday school. Brother York loved his class and took great pleasure in teaching it. He will be missed in the Sunday school and church, for he was interested in the welfare of the church and was one of the most liberal contributors to every good cause. He was a faithful husband and a loving father and it is in his home that the influence of his life will be remembered longer and the loss of his departure will be felt more keenly than anywhere else.

The Liberty M. P. church and the town join with the family in mourning the loss of a prominent and highly respected citizen in the death of John B. York.

J. D. WILLIAMS.

Holt

Tabernacle church has been called on to give up another one of her faithful members, Brother Charles G. Holt, who passed from this life January 1, 1932, being 36 years one month and two days old. In young mannood he accepted Christ as his personal Savior and united with Tabernacle Methodist Protestant church remaining loyal to his Christ and his church until the end. During the present pastorate he has been one of the stewards of his church and served his church well in this capacity. It always seemed a joy to him to hear the Gospel preached.

On January 5, 1919, Brother Holt was united in marriage to Miss Ethel Ingle, who survives. He also leaves four daughters and one son: Vera, Harrie, Ella May, Thelma, and C. G., Jr.; a brother, Marvin, and two sisters, Mrs. O. M. May and Mrs. E. W. Stubblefield. His father and mother are also living. Both church and community will feel very much the loss, but neither of these so keenly as the home from which he has been taken—a wife and five young children left behind.

The funeral was held in Tabernacle church on Sunday, January 3, by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. F. Ashburn, and the burial took place in the church cemetery. It is thought that there were enough people present to have filled the large auditorium twice, showing the esteem in which he was held.

May grace be multiplied to those who feel the loss most keenly and may God keep for his own service those who still remain.

REPORT FROM BRO. MILLAWAY

Last Sunday I found him sitting in the wheel chair. Although he was in good spirits the previous week, he was then very nervous. Last Sunday he was in much better control of his nerves, which he realized and which added to his hopefulness. During the day he had taken a few steps with his crutches.

It is his anticipation to return to North Carolina the last of the month, which will be a short time, it seems to me, after so serious an operation.

His faithful son remains with him, and will, of course, accompany him home.

The Unfailing Christ

He did not fail! The ages passed
And men forgot the Promised One:
He held His purpose firm and strong
And in due time was born The Son.

He does not fail! Unseen He's here
To succor those who need His aid:
Men find in Him a present help—
The struggling, tempted and dismayed.

He will not fail! His task is great—
With righteousness to fill the world:
But He'll not stop till work is done
And Satan's hosts from earth are hurled.

A Remarkable Prayer

It is related that a dying soldier, wounded on the battlefield of Blenheim, prayed this prayer: "O God—if there be a God: have mercy on my soul—if I have a soul!"

He had imbibed the skepticism of his time and was paying the penalty. He was not an atheist. He did not deny the existence of God. He did not deny the existence of the human soul. He was an agnostic and a skeptic regarding these most important articles of faith. His aroused instinct moved him to words of prayer. It was a blind and almost hopeless prayer. It was perhaps the first real prayer of his life. He realized that he was passing out of life. The blackness of darkness was creeping over him. The sounds of earth would soon be hushed. He was passing on, but into what? The question arouses his apprehensions. He may be passing into a terrible state of realities. He may be falling into the hands of an angry God. In his doubts and fears he would commit his hypothetical soul to the mercy of hypothetical God. As the temporary was passing from him he sought to lay hold on the infinite and eternal. He has not learned the ways of the Infinite. He makes an awkward gesture. But he does utter a real cry for mercy, almost hopeless though it is. He seems to have no knowledge of the great ultimatum of Jesus: "No man cometh unto the Father but by Me." Throughout his life he has ignored the claims and pretensions of Jesus Christ. Now he has come to the last hour and still ignores them. They have always seemed to him as idle tales. He finds no ground of hope in them. Jesus was a man on the earth. God is the eternal in the heavens. Jesus may be ignored. God cannot be ignored in the world of eternal realities. There human life takes on an infinite seriousness. What will be the attitude of God? What will be the action of God? What can one expect who has always ignored the will of God? The plain record now lies out before the eye of God. That must form the ground of judgment. The hour of judgment has come. The man cannot justify himself. He has not accepted Jesus as mediator. His only hope is in the unconditional mercy of God. His way of salvation is of his own choosing. His creed is, "Sin on through life and then cry, Mercy, mercy."

How much is his creed worth?

A RARE OPPORTUNITY

It is a rare opportunity that knocks at one's door that by one and the same act a person can benefit himself so much and help a great cause so tremendously, as in the purchase of High Point college bonds now being offered.

Safe, say business men of Greensboro and High Point, nor taxable, the full legal rate of interest—this in a time of risk and uncertainty, high taxes, and low rate of interest on savings accounts.

The value of the help to the college cannot be estimated in dollars, but in life and character the institution already doing great things in the development of life and leadership among our young people and destined to do even more and greater things for future generations.

If we are wise, we will open wide the door and invite this rare opportunity in.

SECURITY

By Rev. J. Clyde Auman

We want security these days, especially when investing our money. High Point College Bonds not only gives us an opportunity to help secure the future of this great and worthy institution, but it makes secure our investment. Again it secures for you a rate of interest above that which any bank will pay you, and this interest paid promptly. And furthermore, aside from the thousands of dollars which the college offers as collateral we have the bond word in writing and honor of distinguished and honorable church leaders to further assure us of its security. And certainly, if there is anywhere, a group of men on whose word and honor we ought to be able to rely, these are they. You secure Bond: You secure College: the College secures you.

DECENT PEOPLE SHOULD CONFER ON PROHIBITION

By Rev. Luther K. Long

I attended the rally of the Woman's Organization for Prohibition Reform recently held in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple in Washington. The floor was about half filled and there were a scattered few in the galleries. Mrs. Marion Booth Kelley of New York, Representative Horr of Seattle, Washington, and Mathew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, were the speakers.

Having been a frequent attendant at temperance meetings I could not but be impressed with the similarities, as well as the differences, between the temperance group and this, so-called, reform group. Both groups are made up of earnest people who are possessed of a crusading spirit. Both are under the temptation to exaggerate, to over-emphasize and to make unwarranted claims. Both deal in irony, scarcasm and ridicule—sometimes going beyond the limits of good taste. Both often give the impression that they are out to win a case regardless of the finer truths and principles and relationships that almost always must have consideration before any great question finds a satisfactory solution.

A large section of the audience evidently agreed with the oft-repeated assertion that two-thirds of the registered voters of the country are in favor of modification of the prohibition law—whatever that may mean to different individuals. No speaker had a good word for the saloon, or looked for its return—though there was no intimation of a thought-out plan by which the contemplated enormous amount of liquor to be distributed could be dispensed without something much like the saloon. No one commended drinking, or in any way admitted indulgence in the drink habit. There were, in fact, two distinct disclaimers—the lady may have thought a disclaimer unnecessary.

"I do not blame the boys and girls," thrilled Representative Horr after vividly describing the outlandish doings of various young people out for a high old time. "I do not blame the bootlegger," again shouted Mr. Horr after sketching the activities of these heroes of the still and road. "Who, then, is to blame?" was the question that forced itself on my mind. According to these speakers Scott McBride, Raymond Robins, Bishop Cannon, Mrs. Ella Boole, the Eighteenth Amendment, and the enforcement officers are the guilty parties. We have been mistaken, then, in supposing that possibly parents had some responsibility for the delinquency of their children, that officers and courts and citizens generally have any obligations along the lines of law-observance and common decency?

Mr. Woll was quite sure that the voters of this country had never been permitted to express themselves on the question of adopting national prohibition because their representatives in the Congress and in the various state legislatures—when they voted almost unanimously in favor of the measure—were not competent to pass on the matter since they had not been elected to their representative positions with this issue specially in mind. Mr. Woll was rather more rational when he insisted that relief—as he viewed relief—could come at once through congressional action in reconsidering and redetermining the permissible alcoholic content of liquor. His statement that ninety per cent of pre-prohibition liquor was beer did not sound convincing, nor did his further implication that permission to sell beer and light wines would do away with the demand for hard liquor. His enthusiasm over the unemployment relief that would come from starting the breweries, the great sales of grains government—federal, state and municipal—because of the revenue collected, did not seem at all well founded.

Among people who are seriously concerned about prohibition—for and against—there are five sore spots, though not all the folks are tender in the same spots: 1. Many voters were across seas when the Eighteenth Amendment was passed. Some people claim that unfair advantage was taken of their absence in putting prohibition over. 2. Prohibition forbids the sale of liquor that is far from intoxicating in fact. 3. Many opposers of prohibition—in other respects quite decent people—conspire to discredit the law, and do not hesitate to lend moral aid and comfort to bootleggers and their like. 4. Some enforcement officers are themselves lawless and corrupt. 5. Notwithstanding the oft-repeated declaration of the wets that the saloon must not return, the great mass of the drys question either their intelligence or their sincerity in the matter.

Before any satisfactory referendum can be had, and before any worthwhile modification of the Volstead Act can be intelligently made, these sore spots must be sterilized and healed. In other words, wets and drys should stop thundering at each other. They should cut out unwarranted assertions and claims, and let up on the favorite indoor sport of stirring up and cultivating resentments. It ought to be possible for honest and decent folks on both sides to confer together, to iron out their differences and their difficulties—meanwhile lending loyal support to the law as it is, until they are able to present to Congress a joint reasonable plan of proceedure. In some such way as this it should be possible to create and solidify a body of public opinion that would be of intestimable value in condemning and punishing lawlessness and crime, in making fair laws, and in strengthening law-observance.

THE MASTERY OF MAMMON

By Rev. W. A. Ledford

The rich young ruler would, ordinarily, have been regarded exceedingly fortunate. He possessed such admirable qualities of character, and material resources in abundance. He was youthful, cultured, earnest, humble, rich and of irreproachable moral character. He possessed all these in spite of the temptations surrounding great riches, and had lofty aspirations for even eternal life. The manner of his coming to Jesus would classify him as a promising, if not a model seeker after eternal life. However, anxiety for eternal life is not always a guarantee that the seeker will meet the conditions for receiving it.

Doubtless, this amiable young ruler, didn't realize that he was mastered and led on by unrighteous mammon, as Milton writes in his Paradise Lost. The making known of his real condition seems to have startled him. The Saviour, Who knew what was in man, as well as on and around him, immediately placed His authoritative grasp upon his idol; yea, his sore and vulnerable spot. He would have made a brave stand of his observance of the first table of the Commandments. His sin of avarice and lack of hospitality were surprising news to him. He honestly thought he loved the God of Abraham more than unrighteous mammon. Unconsciously, the cares of the world, and the deceitfulness of riches had choked the word of God, and his life had become unfruitful. He went away empty because he was full of self.

This young man, like the scribe, was not far from the kingdom of God. Like Pilate and Felix, apparently, he threw away his golden opportunity. Some authorities think he returned, and became a pillar in the early church; while other authorities think he was Dives, and made his bed in hell. Both suppositions are unsupported by historical facts. The facts are, however, that his was the sin of covetousness and not that of unlawful possessions. His love for his money and not the money itself was his besetting sin. The one thing lacked ruined him. One leak will sink a ship, and one sin will destroy a life. He was unhappy, since he lacked those things that satisfied the deep yearning of his immortal soul.

The principle of the right eye, and right hand operations, advised by the Great Physician, should have been heeded in this instance. If he had had the faith, courage and consecration of St. Anthony and St. Francis of Assisi, he might have had a place along with them in history instead of an unsavory memory. His departure from the Christ, with his features darkened with grief, as the clouds darken the sky, proved that his trust, treasures and desires were centered in unrighteous mammon more than in God. Surely he illustrates poverty amidst plenty. Under the bright light of the Gospel Dives is the poor beggar rather than Lazarus. The rating of the rich fool stands unchallenged, and this was the poor young ruler.

ENEMIES SEARCHING INTO MY PAST LIFE

By Rev. O. R. Miller

About four years ago a man came into my office whom I supposed was my friend. Sitting down by my desk, he said: "Mr. Miller, your enemies have got something on you and if it comes out it will ruin you. They have it in writing. I have seen it. It is an affidavit, and if they publish it your future is ruined. If there is anything I can do to help you I will gladly do it. Possibly I may able to get hold of that affidavit for you and have it destroyed, if you would like me to do so."

Then he stopped and quietly looked at me, waiting for a reply, and evidently watching to see whether I wilted under such a searching, threatening statement. Looking him squarely in the eye and calling him by his first name, I said: "I do not know to what you refer, and I have no idea what it could be, but whatever it is, you go and tell the person who has that so-called affidavit that they have my permission to print it tomorrow morning on the front page of the Albany Knickerbocker Press, our leading daily paper. My past life is an open book. I have done nothing of which I am afraid."

That rather stumped my "friend," whom I afterwards found was really my enemy, and evidently was in the pay of the underworld. I thought little about it until some time later, when I began to wonder what could have been his motive for making such a statement to me. I concluded that he thought by making such a terrible statement as that, and watching my face to see whether I turned pale or wilted because of any secret crime in my past life, that I might confess it to him on the spot and ask him if that was what they had an affidavit concerning.

Then, in order to get hold of that paper or to destroy it he evidently hoped that I would agree to protect or let alone certain bootleggers that he was probably "milking" every week. Of course, if there had been anything wrong in my past, and I had confessed it to him, he would have had me in his clutches the rest of my life, and could have made me do almost anything he wanted me to do. If I should have a big bootlegger arrested, and he heard of it, he could go to the big bootlegger and say: "Give me $500 and I will silence Miller. Don't ask me how. Leave it to me. I can silence him." Then he would come to me and say: "Miller, Mr. so and so, whom you have had arrested, is a personal friend of mine and I want you to drop the case." If I should insist that I would not drop the case, then he would threaten to expose me as to the evil thing I had confessed to him.

Hence I repeat, I would have been in his clutches the rest of my life, or else I would have had to get out of reform work. I long ago saw that any man who is in aggressive moral reform work, especially in law enforcement work, must have a clean record behind him, or sooner or later his enemies would "get" him.

MARTYRS FOR CHRIST'S SAKE

Over in Belgium, in the little town of Vilvorde, there is a monument to William Tyndale, who was strangled there, and burned at the stake, because he had translated the Bible into the English of the common people. On the base of that monument are these words,—"Lord, open the eyes of the King of England!"—William Tyndale's last words. He, like many another martyr, saw straight through the awful experiences of his last moments, to the Lord whom he served.

So it was with Stephen, the first Christian martyr who spoke so boldly for Christ, and then laid down his life for Him. And while the stones were falling upon him, he looked up steadfastly into Heaven, and saw what his assailants could not possibly see.

Perhaps none of us will ever have the privilege of dying like that, but I am sure very many of us do have, and will have, plenty of times when we need to show the same spirit, and to stand up for the Lord Jesus in school, in the business office, on the athletic field, in the home. Yes, anywhere and everywhere. Shall we think about the sneers, and the laughter that we may meet, or shall we be looking far beyond anything of that sort, to Him whom we serve? I like to think that any of us would not hesitate a moment to stand up for the Lord Jesus, no matter how hard that might be. Well, let us be sure to do it during this next week when perhaps some very real tests will come to us. May God help us all to be faithful!—Philip E. Howard in Western Recorder.

HOW TO OVERCOME THE TOBACCO HABIT

By Dr. D. H. Kress

1. The first step is to GIVE IT UP.

2. Keep away from smokers and tobacco-smoke-laden atmosphere for about three weeks.

3. After each meal, for one week, rinse out the mouth with a quarter of one per cent solution of silver nitrate.

4. Purchase five cents worth of gentian root (or camomile blossoms) and chew it during the day when the desire to smoke appears, swallowing the fluid.

5. Take a dose composed of half a teaspoonful each of rochelle salts and cream of tartar each morning before breakfast for one week.

6. Take a Turkish bath, or good sweat bath of some kind, twice during the first two weeks, and each morning take a hot and cold spray.

7. Keep out in the open air as much as possible.

8. The greatest aid will be found in a change of dietetic habits. Highly seasoned food and stimulating drinks intensify the craving for smoke. Give up pepper, mustard and the frequent use of salt, coffee and tea.

9. The following diet will be found of the greatest aid in getting rid of craving: "For a period of three weeks make use of almost wholly of cereal foods. At the close of the meal use fresh sub-acids, as oranges, butter-milk, cottage cheese, nuts, figs, dates, raisins, apple, pineapples, etc.

A patient who had used tobacco for 42 years adopted this treatment for three months and reported that he had no craving for tobacco. Another patient wrote: "After four weeks I have no desire for smoking."

LUMINOUS LIVES

Luminous lives are the need of every age and the blessing of any age. The life of Moses was luminous. His very face glowed with God's presence and he blessed his age. David's life was luminous and his age was blessed. On one occasion his light went out, but it was soon kindled again. So it was with John the Baptist, with the Apostles, with Paul, with Luther and Savonarola and Calvin and Wycliff and Knox and Beecher and thousands of others who have shone steadily in the world.

The life of Christ was luminous and through Him all ages shall be blessed. In Him we see the possibilities of luminous lives. We are to be like Him. A luminous life, like the sunshine, bears no vile contagion. It shines to beautify and bless. Never did Christ lay greater responsibilities upon His followers than when He said: "Ye are the light of the world."

It costs to shine. Shining is sacrifice. Every flower is a sacrifice. In every blossom there is the blush of motherhood. Every flower not only blooms to die, but every flower dies to bloom—gives up something of its life to shine—to make the world brighter. Our lives are lenses through which the light of God shines upon the lives of men, through which the life of God divides itself into the world. Keep the lens clean and pure. Let us be pure in heart who not only shall see God, but through whom God may be seen.—The C. U. Herald.

WALKING WITH GOD

It is to be feared that many regard the Christian life as merely a code of ethics to be observed or an ideal to be realized by dint of human effort, and have failed to see it in its beauty and simplicity as fundamentally a personal relationship. To be converted is to be pardoned from all past transgressions and restored to spiritual fellowship with Christ; and to be sanctified wholly is to have the heart so purified that Christ becomes the Lord of every motion there. These "works of grace" are not merely ends to be attained; they are also means by which the personal relationship to Christ is spiritually restored.

The life of holiness consists in walking day by day and moment by moment in fellowship with Christ. He "careth for us" and we honor Him when we cast all our care upon Him. He is our Lord and we walk safely when He holds us by the hand or guides us with His eye. It is His grace that maketh us triumph in all the exigencies of life. We must never allow ourselves to depart from the simplicity which is in Christ Jesus. There are vast realms of truth to be explored; there are depths of love to be fathomed; there are mountain heights of vision to be gained, but these attainments are for those only who by faith walk in constant fellowship with their living Lord.

Who walks with God must take His way
Across far distances and gray
To goals that others do not see,
Where others do not care to be.

Who walks with God must have no fear
When danger and defeat appear,
Nor stop when every hope seems gone,
For God, our God, moves ever on.

Who walks with God must press ahead
When sun or cloud is overhead,
When all the waiting thousands cheer,
Or when they only stop to sneer;

And naught is left but jaded powers.
When all the challenge leaves the hours
But he will some day reach the dawn,
For God, our God, moves ever on.

BE SURE YOU PRAY!

You like to read books about prayer. You reverence and love the men of prayer. You may be sometimes in positive despair about prayer. And yet, you know on the testimony of thousands, and on the assurance of God's Word in endless places, that prayer is, of all things a mortal man can perform, by far the most blessed.

The greatest and the best of comfort is in your own house, is every day in your own heart; and perhaps you do not move a hand or foot to take it. There is no mystery about prayer; no mystery, but its nearness, and its easiness, and its sureness, and its fruitfulness, and its supreme, immediate, and everlasting blessedness. Only begin to pray.—Dr. Alexander Whyte, in Keswick Calendar.

OPTIMISM | EVANGELISM

The President's Letter

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Kernersville

January 24.—A visit to this charge was made on this date and services in two churches held—Sandy Ridge in the morning and Ai in the afternoon. The rain in the morning no doubt reduced the attendance at the former church. We arrived here in time to share with the school in the study of the lesson. We understand that the school at this place has made marked progress during the past few years. Under favorable weather conditions the attendance is good, we most respectful and attentive hearing was given to us as we were told. The congregation at Ai was not large, though a tried to preach. The pastor finds cause for the encouragement at the other two churches on the charge—Pine Grove and Kernersville. This is particularly true at Kernersville. The pastor is hopeful that the work at this place can be greatly built up. Brother Broome is new to the charge, this being his first year. He is giving himself earnestly and thoughtfully to the work, and winning his way to the hearts of his people. Mrs. Broome is not entirely new to the work, having taught in Kernersville some years ago. Friendships formed then are being pleasantly renewed now.

South Winston

On the night of the above date, we were at South Winston. Brother Broome accompanied us, and preached. We were glad to have Brother Troxler present, though this was not his regular appointment. This church has a well attended Sunday School, and the congregations at preaching services usually fill the house. Our chief handicap here is means with which to carry on the work. But we shall hope for a better day. Our little band here is faithful and deserving of encouragement and help.

Western Pastor's Federation

January 25.—The meeting was held in the Concord church, with the chairman of the Federation, Dr. R. M. Andrews, presiding. Other ministers present were, Bingham (E. A.), Ridge (C. E.), Morris, Shelton, Love (J. L.), Morgan, Trogdon, Cranford, Taylor. The seven absent ministers were missed, and they missed a good meeting. Discussions, dealing with matters vital to the church, were earnest and thoughtful, and participated in by a number of the brethren. Dinner, in generous measure, was served by the women of the church. The next meeting will be held in April, on Monday after the fourth Sunday, at Bess Chapel.

Seriously Ill

We have just been informed that Sister Garrett, widow of the late Rev. J. N. Garrett, and our intimate friend and neighbor for many years, is seriously ill, and that no hope is entertained for her recovery. For some time Sister Garrett has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. George Isley, in Alamance county. She and her family will have our sympathy and prayers.

Herald Campaign

Midway-Shady Grove, Thomasville First, and Whitakers, are the only charges so far that appear in capitals. But other charges will ultimately be in that list. We heard of two charges yesterday that expect to get their quotas. Other pastors indicated their purpose to make a house-to-house canvas. All of this indicates interest and effort. Brother E. L. Douglas, the chairman of the Directing Committee, is giving a great deal of thought and time to the matter. We trust that his efforts, and that of pastors and church committees, may be fully rewarded. Several dollars have been received as a free-will offering for printing deficit. We are grateful for this. But the deficit is still large. We urge every church to take an offering for this purpose, and send the amount direct to Dr. McCulloch.

This Is Good News

Brother J. D. Cranford reports a great meeting just held in his church at Lincolnton. This was not an appointed revival. It came unexpected in the regular preaching service two weeks ago. Several were converted at that time, and it was evident that a series of revival meetings should be held. At the expiration of two weeks there were 100 conversions and reclamations. Nothing more blessed could happen to the conference than that this should be a year of great revivals. Let us wait upon the Lord in prayer and expectation, that it may be even so.

Appointments

January 31.—In rally of sixth district, at Brown Summit.

February 7.—North Davidson charge, in services at Bethesda 11 A. M. and Canaan 2 P. M. West Thomasville at night.

Through the week we are devoting our time to the sale of College Bonds.

"As is our openness to God, so will be our power of service among men."—Dr. J. H. Jowett.

Fraternally yours,

S. W. Taylor.

A PERSONAL STATEMENT

By Rev. O. R. Miller

I have often in the past been cursed for helping get good laws enacted. I have had my life threatened many times for helping secure the enforcement of laws; but this is the first time I ever had the assassination of my character threatened, and that because I dared prefer charges against two derelict public officials, the District Attorney and Sheriff of Albany County, and ask their removal from office.

However, I have nothing to fear. I consecrated my life to God and His service when fiften years old, and through all these years of public service, of stress and strain, of threats and danger, I have gone right forward doing my duty as I saw it—and I shall continue to do so in the future, no matter what the consequences may be to me.

OUR STORY PAGE

MARY AND HER FATHER

"For there is none other name under Heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12).

In one of the Western States of America, a little girl * * * was sent to a * * * Sunday School. It happened soon after that the father of this family was awakened to feel his sinfulness and danger. He became very anxious about his soul, and one night, at the midnight hour, he arose from his bed in agony. He begged his wife to pray for him, as he said he did not know how to pray for himself. She said she could not pray any better than he could. "What will I do then?" "Perhaps," said she, "our little Mary can pray."

So the father went up to her room, where she was fast asleep, and took her up from her bed in his arms, and bore her downstairs and putting her gently down he said to her with great earnestness, "Mary, can you pray?"

"Oh, yes, father, I can pray!"

"Will you kneel down and pray for your poor father?"

"Yes, I will pray for you."

So she kneeled, put up her little hands, and prayed for her father in her own language, asking God to save him for Jesus Christ's sake. When she had finished, her father said to Mary, "Can you read in the Bible?" "Oh, yes, I can read! Shall I read to you in my Bible?" "Yes, read to me."

She began at the third chapter of the Gospel of John, until she came to the verse, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life."

"Oh, Mary, is that there?"

"Yes, father, it is here. Jesus Christ said so."

"Well, that is just what your poor father needs."

"Yes, father, and hear the rest of it—'God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life'."

"Oh! that is for me, just such as me." And from that day the father went on his way rejoicing in Christ Jesus with great joy.—The Christian Courier.

BONNIE'S SELFISH PARTY

Aunt Katie had given Bonnie twenty-five cents to spend for her birthday, and Bonnie walked slowly out of the gate, thinking how she could get the most for her money. You could get lovely chocolate drops at the ten-cent store, and big squares of peanut-brittle, and mint-drops—what a lot she could get for twenty-five cents! "And it'll be all mine. I won't give Billy any this time, 'cause it's my birthday, and I've got a right to eat it all myself," said Bonnie, trying to make her conscience keep quiet, because it would keep reminding her of how Billy had divided his five-cents-worth of candy with her, only yesterday.

She ran down to the store, and came out presently with a big package of candy in her hand. Then she ran home again in a great hurry, for fear she would meet Billy on the way. But nobody saw her and she carried it upstairs and hid it in her drawer.

After a while, when she had seen Billy go out of the front gate with Ted Brown, she sat her dolls down at a little table and put some of her candy in the little plates and tried to have a good time with Ethel and Katherine, the two big dolls. But somehow it wasn't much fun. Bonnie had to eat for the dolls as well as herself, and soon she had had enough sweet, and felt that she would rather not see any more candy that day. So she put the rest away and went downstairs, but it was horribly lonesome without Billy, and she wandered about rather forlornly until supper time, and then she wasn't hungry, though mother had a specially nice supper for her birthday. Billy came in breathless and happy. He had a package in his hand, which he brought to Bonnie.

"I 'membered it was your birthday, and I got this for you," he said, beaming. It was a pretty box of the nicest candy she ever saw.

Bonnie felt dreadfully ashamed. "Why—why, Billy! It's awfully good of you," she stammered, thinking of her hidden store upstairs. What was she to do about it? She would be so ashamed to let Billy know how greedy she had been.

"Good nothin'," said Billy laughing. "Aunt Katie gave me a quarter, and I just wanted to get you something with it."

"Well, we'll share it tomorrow. I don't feel very good tonight," said Bonnie, smiling to him.

The next day she felt better, and she spread out a lovely party, with the dolls' dishes filled with various-colored candies, and then called Billy to share it. She had put on some of the candy she had bought for herself, and he noticed it immediately.

"First-rate! Where'd you get it?" he asked helping himself.

"Aunt Katie gave me a quarter too, and I bought some candy, but it didn't taste good when I ate it by myself. It tastes all right today," said Bonnie, feeling better now that she had confessed her meanness. "I've found out something, Billy," she said. "Things are not half so much fun when you keep them to yourself."—Sunshine.

NO NEED FOR DISCOURAGEMENT

There is no need for discouragement if there seem to be no results following immediately the work one does. There must needs be deep humiliation if no results ever follow. If neither the man himself, nor those who follow him, ever reap a harvest for the Lord, there is need for serious questioning whether or not the sowing were well done. That there may be a crown of joy for both sower and reaper, let not the reaper despise the sower. The Lord of the harvest does not, but prepares a crown of joy alike for both. Men forget the toils of the sower, as under leaden skies and in loneliness he casts the seed abroad; while, amid the glories of summer time, the harvesters are welcomed home with shout and song. The Master never forgets, but to faithful sower as to successful reaper He says: "Well done, good and faithful servant, * * enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."—The C. U. Herald.

Woman's Missionary Department

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE AUXILIARY PRESIDENT

The woman who accepts a position of leadership in the auxiliary of the local church possesses a great opportunity for usefulness. She is asked to direct the Christian activities of all women of her church for twelve months, and their efficiency in serving the Master through that channel will depend largely upon her effective leadership of the organization.

The most successful officer in any organization is the one who through her efforts sets the most people to work. The woman who does the work of ten women is not nearly so useful as the woman who sets ten other women to work. This is especially true of the women serving in the local church. Her most earnest effort should be directed toward securing efficient service form those elected to serve with her. The success of the auxialiary depends upon the efficient co-operation of the president with all of her officers and with the Circle chairmen.

Desirable Qualifications

The president should possess consecration, information, administrative ability, enthusiasm and tact. Unless she is a consecrated Christian her service will not be as "unto the Lord" and God's blessing will not rest upon it. She should be informed concerning the program of the church in all of its departments, and the work and needs of all of our executive and promotional committees. She should thoroughly understand the plan of organization of the auxiliary, keeping abreast with all new developments in the organized work of the women.

The president should have administrative ability, managing the machinery of her organization as the manager of a great store keeps in touch with every department of his business. She should have an ever-enlarging sense of our responsibilities and of the ability of the auxiliary to measure up to them when properly developed, and she sould possess an enthusiasm for the work and be able to withstand discouragement and survive disappointment because of unwavering faith in the ultimate success of the work.

The president should cultivate tact. Unless she exercises this consideration for others in her leadership she will, to a great degree, nullify the other splendid traits she possesses. She must consider the viewpoint of the other person; she must lead, not drive. While never sacrificing principle, she should be willing to yield many other things, and above all things she should be patient, knowing that time often works wonders. When things seem discourging, she should not pass the clouds on to others but should go alone and "pray it through."

Duties

The first duty of the president mentioned in every constitution is that of presiding at the meeting of the auxiliary and of the executive committee. Many women who are efficient in other branches of service do not preside well, yet one who has the intelligence and leadership necessary to make a good president in other particulars can learn to preside. A study of simple parliamentary rules for the president will readily teach her how to conduct a meeting properly and, with experience, her timidity will disappear and poise be acquired. She should arrange carefully in advance the order of business for the meeting and not swerve from it.

The meeting should begin on time even if only a few are present. The members will learn that the meeting will not wait for them and will come more promptly. Close promptly. This is more difficult to do because we cannot always reckon the time to be consumed by the program. Teach those on the program to keep within the time assigned to them.

Executive Committee Meeting

Stress the importance of the executive committee meeting. This is really the meeting of the "President's Cabinet" as the president with her officers, circle chairmen and secretaries of causes meet together to outline the work of the coming months. Regular attendance of the officers upon this meeting should be urged, and it should be conducted with formality, so far as parliamentary law is concerned, in order that time may not be wasted.

The president should be as well informed in regard to the duties of the various officers and chairmen as they are themselves. She should know the budget of the church and the causes to which it is to be given. She should be in close conference with her pastor, and he should attend each executive meeting for at least a few moments, bringing them a message of cheer and putting before them any plans of work in which he may desire their co-operation.

The president should know her executive committee well, becoming thoroughly acquainted with the officers and circle chairmen, and by studying their weak and strong points, may know how to help them.

The opening prayer or circle of prayer at the executive meeting should never be omitted. While the object of the meeting is primarily to make the auxiliary an efficient machine, the members must never be permitted to forget that the machine is valuable only when the Holy Spirit works through it.

Adjusting the Circles

In no other duty, perhaps, will the committee need to exercise tact as in the task of assigning new members to circles and adjusting such dissatisfied members as may exist after shifting the circles. Do not yield too much to the whim of the dissatisfied member, yet try not to have any woman serving for the year where she is so unhappy that her usefulness is impaired. Often a quiet talk by the president with the dissatisfied member will result in a change of viewpoint for her and in her going cheerfully to work where she has been placed. Again, the exercise of consideration is very necessary in dealing with officers and chairmen. The president must be the leader and must not unduly emphasize her leadership. The wise president wakens in the heart of her co workers a sense of responsibility for the accomplishment of their task and of loyalty to the auxiliary and to its officers.

The Auxiliary Program

The president should appoint a committee to be responsible for the auxiliary programs. The secretary of missionary education is the logical chairman for this committee. While this committee is responsible for the program and for seeing that all members are present to carry it out, yet the wise pesident will not take anything for granted, but in the quiet way learn before the day of the meeting arrives that the committee has done its work and that the program will go forward smoothly.

The Social Side

The visiting of the church members is done through committees, and yet the president has a social side to her work as president. Newcomers in the congregation appreciate a call from the president; especial meetings of the circles will feel honored by the presence of the presiding officer; the social hour of the auxiliary expects the grace of her presence, while any unusual meeting held by the women during the year is presided over by the president of the auxiliary. Personal charm and social grace are God-given talents to any president.

Prayer Bands

The president of any auxiliary needs the support of an active prayer band. She may request two or three of the officers to join her in becoming a prayer band for the year, or she may organize the whole executive board into a prayer band. The realization that fellow workers are praying every day for each other by name, asking that all may have strength and wisdom, humility and consecration, wisdom and tact, will be a strengthening power in the life of all officers, and in answer to these prayers, results will come that challenge our lack of faith.

Devotional Life

The life of the conscientious president of the auxiliary is a busy one. Every hour will be filled and it will require a distinct effort not to neglect her own Bible reading and devotional life. Such a neglect would be fatal to the efficiency of the president and to the advancement of the auxiliary. We must live in our own lives the things we are urging upon others if we are to succeed in the Master's work. Therefore, let us urge that whatever else is neglected, the daily prayer and communion with the Master shall not be overlooked or slighted by the president.

Perhaps the new president reading this leaflet will become discouraged and cry out, "Who is equal to these things?"

Be not dismayed! We have set forth an ideal. Many successful presidents lack some of the qualfications named above. You may lack many and yet do wonderful work for the Master as president of your auxiliary. No one was ever a successful officer in her own strength or because of her own ability. It is only as God uses His servants that results accrue.

Do you feel you are not wise enough? "If any lack wisdom, let him ask of God."

Do you fear you have not the physical strength? "As thy day so shall thy strength be."

Do you feel you do not understand the plan and the work of the church sufficiently to become a good leader? "Study to show thyself approved, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed."

Remember that we "can do all things through Christ that strengtheneth us."

For the Branch

Read carefully the qualifications for an auxiliary president as given above, and you will

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Glen Raven.—Much interest is being taken in the Glen Raven church and all the activities of the church since Rev and Mrs. J. P. Pegg have come into our midst to work with us and for us. We feel very grateful and fortunate to be blessed with having another very alert, spiritual and well-trained preacher and wife who seem to scatter a ray of sunshine where every they go.

Many effective and interesting sermons have been brought to us by Rev. Mr. Pegg. One outstanding and very suitable sermon was preached from Luke 17 on January 3: "Lord, Increase Our Faith." Mr. Pegg tried to impress upon the people the text as applied to our own lives for a New Year's resolution.

We feel grateful for our splendid Sunday school superintendent, Mr. P. E. Troxler, who takes so much interest in the school in working with both young and old. We all feel that we can back Mr. Troxler up in saying that we have one of the best Sunday schools in the state.

The senior C. E. society is carrying on its work nicely and giving some interesting programs. Sunday p. m., Mrs. Pegg and some of the senior C. E. members organized a junior Christian Endeavor. Thirty-eight boys and girls enrolled at the beginning. We feel that we have a good start and are hoping to accomplish much good work with these little children.
REPORTER.

Macedonia, Fallston Charge.—Our Sunday school is growing. Every Sunday we add a new member. We have our same officers and teachers as last year. We were sorry to give Brother Morgan up. But we feel that we will love Brother Shelton just as much, we are glad to say. Brother Shelton was able to be with us again on last second Sunday, but was not able to preach.

We were glad to have Dr. Taylor of High Point preach for us, every one present enjoyed it. .

Sister Pearl Barnes is very sick and is in the Lincolnton hospital, we pray she will soon be better and back at church. Last Sunday our class leader held class meeting. It seems a few are still trying to work for our Master. May the Lord bless us all.

ROCKIE DAVIS, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—The service was fairly well attended at Harmony Grove church last Sunday morning. At the conclusion of the sermon the ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered, with a goodly number of people participating. After the service the pastor and family enjoyed a brief visit and a good dinner in the home of Mrs. Lula Ketner, one of the stewards of Harmony Grove church.

We were called upon last Thursday morning to conduct the funeral services for Brother W. T. Luper, official member of Harmony Grove church, who passed away peacefully on Tuesday afternoon. The funeral and burial services were held at Sharon M. E. church, South, on account of the burial place of the family. Rev. Jesse Robertson, of the Dunkard church, and Rev. G. W. Fink, of the M. E. church, South, assisted in the funeral services. Brother Luper was a good man, and had been a consistent member of Harmony Grove church for many years. He is survived by the wife, one son and six grandchildren. We extend sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Rev. N. M. Harrison, promotional secretary of High Point college, was a visitor on West Forsyth charge last Saturday, calling at the parsonage. The pastor regrets very much that he and family were away from home at the time Brother Harrison called.

We are glad to report that those who are sick among the members of Harmony Grove church are improving, and seem to be on the road to recovery.

Our next appointments will be at Baltimore church on the first Sunday morning in February, at 11 a. m., and at Stony Knoll church in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

West End Tidings.—If plans fully materialize the address of the West End pastor will soon be 1801 Spring Garden St. This is all because of the fact that a home is being built just across the street from the church which is to be occupied by the pastor. Because of the church not having a parsonage it has always been necessary for a home to be rented when there has been a pastor with a family. The owner of property above mentioned, finding the church was in need of a home offered to build to be rented at present with the understanding that it may be bought when the church desires. We will have a nice six room house with hardwood floors throughout, plenty of basement room for fuel, laundry and storage and lots of out-of-doors for garage, garden, flowers, chicken lot, etc. And what is more there is to be a reduction of rent.

A used Steinway grand piano which is in good condition has been presented to our Christian Endeavor society. This is a gift of the Greensboro Music Co. Our brother, L. M. Foust was instrumental in making the gift possible. Brother Foust being skilled in piano tuning and repair work has gone over the piano and made the instrument in such condition that it will be of great service for years to come. Thanks to Brother Foust and the Greensboro Music company.

The duplex envelope system recently introduced has made an improvement in our financial condition. This does not mean that all our financial ills are over but the envelopes are helping. The duplex envelope system, properly set up and used, always helps.

Plans are now being made which we believe will mean much in caring for our church debt. At a recent congregational conference Brother and Mrs. Bates were present and explained plans that have been used successfully at Calvary. The plans explained have appealed to our people and a part if not all will be used. But back of all plans is a building fund committee which has general supervision of the entire church debt and all needed plans by which it is to be paid. This relieves the stewards and all other officers of the church the responsibility of raising the debt. The stewards are to give their entire time to caring for other local interests. This committee is well organized with chairman, secretary and treasurer. The pastor's wife has been asked to head up the penny a day plan which we believe will mean much here as it has meant at Calvary and other places where it has been tried.

The thank offering service rendered by the good ladies of the church on last Sunday night was greatly appreciated and enjoyed. The attendance was good.

Connie Fox, Jr., of our primary department, was quite painfully burned a few days ago as his clothes caught fire from a fire made in an open lot by a number of children. Connie is now in the hospital and is doing well.

Much pastoral work is one of the great nesds of this church and the pastor and his wife have greatly appreciated this part of the work. The people have seemed to appreciate our visits and this has made this part of the work pleasant. The "Preacher Woman" has 50 visits to her credit.

Miss Bertha Mock of the North Davidson charge, Mr. Charlie Lowder and family of Albemarle and Mr. Johnson and family of Sandy Ridge church and Mr. Bowman of Midway church have recently worshipped with us. These and all of our neighbors and former parishioners we are glad to have with us. Some of this list have been among our best workers in other fields and others are nearby neighbors.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Dave Curlee and family, members of Alebamrle church, with us on last Sunday night. The Curlees are now living in Greensboro and we very greatly appreciate their looking us up.

A number of the Welch Memorial people visited the West End pastor and family on last Sunday afternoon. We feel we have many good friends in Welch Memorial church and we are always glad to see them.

On next Sunday we are to observe Young People's Day and we are hoping for a good day. A good program is being prepared. We have a fine group of young people at West End and we are anxious to properly care for them. There was an attendance of 40 at the Christian Endeavor service last Sunday evening. For Christ and the church,

GEO. L. CURRY.

Tabernacle Charge.—Pastor and members of Tabernacle church were delighted to have Dr. Humphreys, president of High Point college, with us on the third Sunday afternoon. His message on Christian Education was instructive and inspiring and he also explained the bond campaign for the college. Brothers C. H. Kirkman, E. T. Coble, and Mrs. R. R Horney have been appointed as a committee to assist the pastor in selling bonds.

The women of the Julian church met recently at the home of Mrs. W. T. Hanner and reorganized the auxiliary. Mrs. W. T. Hanner was elected president, Miss Annie Hardin, vice-president; Mrs. C. U. Stack, secretary, and Mrs. Hazel Harveston, treasurer. Plans are being made for a good year's work.

Young People's Day will be observed by both churches on this charge on the first Sunday in February, Tabernacle 11 a. m., and Julian 7:30 p. m. It is our hope that these services will be helpful.

Brother and Sister T. G. Coble, members of our Julian church, have the sympathy of the entire church and community in the passing of their only child and daughter, Mrs. Cleo Russell. Last October she transferred her membership from Julian to the Reformed church in Greensboro with her husband. The writer assisted the pastor in the funeral services.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Highfill, and Mr. W. M Smith have our thanks for donations for the pantry

Roberta Station.—Our church is moving along nicely. Our pastor is mostly paid up to date. We are glad to have Brother Trogdon and his wife living now in the parsonage.

We are planning to observe Young People's day the 31st of January.

Our pastor and wife were called away to High Point this week on account of the illness of their little granddaughter.

Mrs. Eva Annie Garmon, our beloved sister and mother who died January 18, was the daughter of W. M. and the late Frances Furr of Concord. She leaves to mourn her departure besides her father, a husband, Frank Garmon, and five children

Mrs. Garmon was a quiet, kind and generous woman. She was a devoted wife and a loving mother, always bearing her troubles and sorrows very patiently. She loved to attend church but much of the time her health was so bad she was unable to go.

We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family and commend them to look to the Heavenly Father.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—(This report was delayed.)—We were well pleased with the large congregation that had assembled at the church on the first Sunday; the first and only appointment since conference until the new year, to welcome our same pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, for another year.

The problem of Herald subscription was brought up at the close of the service. Rev. Spencer and Mr. J. T. Cozart made this proposition to the members of the church: If there were any families that wanted the Herald and felt that they were not financially able to subscribe, either of them would pay for the subscriptions. This was a very liberal offer, indeed considerate of these gentlemen. We sincerely thank them and hope that in this way we will be able to get the required number of subscriptions at Rehoboth.

The Missionary auxiliary will give a short Christmas program on the third Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. The Christmas offering will be taken at this time.

Mebane.—Business conditions are extremely bad here. Money is extremely scarce. This is hindering our financial progress. Under normal conditions we would easily meet all obligations. Regardless of hindering causes a fair report is expected to be made to conference.

Interest is good. All organizations are functioning well. Attendance at our Sunday services is the best since the first few months of our first year's work here. At morning services it is sometimes better than that of the S. S. After having been here for three years it can still be said that this church is constituted of a group of loyal, devoted and consecrated people. (They are tolerant, too.)

Recently the A Capella choir of our college gave a concert at the school auditorium. The program was inspiring. The bearings of these young people makes one proud of High Point college. The attendance was disgusting. (The right adjective is used.)

Not quite so recently Rev. C. A. Upchurch, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of N. C., spoke here in union services of all the churches. It is recommended that our churches use him as much as possible and give him better support. He represents a great cause.

First Church, High Point.—In the absence of the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, who has been released for two Sabbaths for special work for High Point college, the pulpit was most acceptably filled by Dean P. E. Lindley of the college, who delivered an inspiring and soul-stirring message on the subject, "Our God Is Marching On." This line taken from Julia Ward Howe's famous "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the text was from Ecclesiastes 7:10, Say not thou, what is the cause that the former days were better than these for thou dost not enquire wisely concerning this." Dean Lindley said that Ecclesiastes is the gloomiest book in the whole Bible. Distance has always lent enchantment and many people today love to boast of the "Golden Age of Auld Lang Syne," but if your grandfather is living ask him if they did not have hardships and trials in the past. We forget the bad times of long ago, and "Days that are gone seem the brightest, Dear are the hours that are fled." What we are concerned about this morning is the golden age of the future. If I could pick out the best time to live I would pick out the present. Our God is marching on in better health, hospitals, nurses, and means to relieve human suffering. President Hoover a few months ago callede together hundreds of experts in child health and welfare, that unprecednted conference in Washington, and today children are more sure to live out their allotted span than ever before. In olden days the insane were often killed, and the old people left in the desert to die. Today see our large hospitals for the insane and the vast sums expended in their maintenance and every church, every county, and almost all fraternal orders have their homes for the aged. Our God is marching on in education of our youth, and today every child can obtain a college education if interested. Our God is marching on in the spread of social sympathy. Floods in Mississipi or any storm or catastrophe immediately bring financial aid from far-reaching land. The spirit of the family is becoming the spirit of the nation. Last summer a World Conference was held in Geneva for negro children in Africa. Our God is marching on toward world peace. In a few days there will assemble the most notable conference in the world's history, which will call the attention and thought of people of all nations to the question of peace. Our God is marching on in religion; today ten millions of people listen to the same sermon over the radio, many more than John Wesley ever addressed in all his life. If one in a thousand is impressed think what a vast number would be reached. Then our God is march-on toward prohibition throug the world. In Corinth men at Holy communion forgot themselves and became drunk on the wine; now an intoxicated person does not get very far on the streets of High Point before being arrested. The thanks of the entire congregation are extended to Dean Lindley for this masterly discourse.

The Guilford County Sunday School Convention convened Sunday afternoon in the First Reformed church on S. Main St., and Superintendent J. H. Jennings was present, and presented a report of the different department of our Sabbath school.

The Sunshine Circle and Junior Mission band have been re-organized, and are meeting this (Monday) afternoon with the leaders, Mrs. S. W. Taylor and Miss Margaret Walton.

The High Point college choir under the able direction of Prof. Ernest B. Stimson gave a pleasing recital Sunday evening at Lebanon church, Mechanicsville, of which Rev. Clay Madison is pastor.

Examinations at High Point college began Monday morning, and will continue throughout the week. The spring semester will begin next Monday, February 1st.

The Fellowship Supper meeting will be held Wednesday evening as usual. Circle No. 8, Mrs. Richard H. Shaw, chairman, will have charge of the tables and coffee. The minister will lead the brief period for praise and worship.

Mr. M. J. Wrenn was awarded a beautiful silver loving cup for the most unselfish service rendered by a citizen to High Point during the year 1931. This cup was presented by the Publix-Soenger Theatre Co., and the presentation speech was made by Capus M. Waynick, legislator and newspaperman of this city, at a public meeting in the Paramount theatre Sunday afternoon. This signal honor was conferred upon Mr. Wrenn for his donations to High Point college, and to the Y. M. C. A., and the Y. W. C. A. Judge Lewis Teague of municipal court was chairman of the committee that selected the winner of this well-deserved trophy.

Much sympathy is extended by a wide circle of friends to C. C. Robbins, Sr., on account of the death of his brother, Albert A. Robbins, aged 74, who passed away Thursday afternoon, Funeral services were conducted on Saturday at Marlboro Friends' church in Randolph county by Miss Clara Cox, pastor of Springfield Friends' church, and Rev. Reuben Payne, pastor of Archdale Friends church.

President G. I. Humphreys of the college spoke three times last Sunday; in Henderson church at 11 o'clock, at Rehoboth on Granville charge at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and at Spring Valley church on Vance charge at 7 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mrs. Robert M. Noble, who came to High Point several days ago to help nurse her mother, Mrs. Martha E. Blair, left last week for her home in Chicago. Mrs. Blair is improving.

Mrs. John B. Ogburn is now making satisfactory improvement.

Young Men's Wide Awake Class, Shiloh.—January 24 we had 46 present, this shows that we have some young men who are not afraid of a little rain. Our teacher brought a wonderful message on the lesson, "Jesus and the Samaritan Woman." He said, "Jesus Christ can satisfy each of us if we get our hearts fixed, so that when Jesus comes we will be ready to receive Him as did the Samaritan woman.

We feel that our class is growing in spiritual interest as fell as in number. Jesus said, "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall become in him a well of water springing up into eternal life." We trust that Jesus shall give us that living water.

Do not forget that if you are not in Sunday school we will be glad to have you at Shiloh.

Spring Church Charge.—The attendance at Spring church on yesterday was fine regardless of the rainy weather.

Young People's day will be observed in all three of the churches. We are having no difficulty whatever in finding willing participants. The writer has just finished and attractive marker for Pleasant Hill church. A marker for each of the other two churches will be erected soon.

The good people of this charge are mindful of our daily needs. Nearly every day some one comes in and leaves a worthwhile contribution to balance our daily requirements. We appreciate all that is involved in this.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The C. E. society is progressing splendidly. We had 53 present Sunday night, January 17, who enjoyed the program on "My Share in My Home," lead by Miss Reva Sink. Much interest was shown in the discussion of this lesson.

Tonight, January 24, our lesson on "What Leadership Should We Follow?" was led by Miss Alma Koonts, and was well discussed by those who had parts.

We as a group of young people are striving to be as a light set on a hill that we may shine for Him who is our great leader—Jesus Christ. Young people, you are not taking part in some young people's work, you are missing an opportunity that you will regret some day, so, come out and join us, or some other young people's society.

Siler City.—The third Sunday was a good day for us. We had 126 present in Sunday school. Then Brother Wm. Pike came at 11 o'clock and started the year off right for us with another one of his interesting messages. He also promised to come back the third Sunday in February. We are so glad he can preach for us. Every one enjoys his sermons very much.

Last Wednesday the Woman's auxiliary met at the church in its regular monthly meeting. We had a good meeting and a good program. The treasurer's report showed we had $100.00 on interest and money on hand to pay all obligations. We plan to have a thank offering service some time in February if we can prevail on Rev. and Mrs. Clyde Auman to come to come to our rescue with one of their splendid talks.

Our mid-week prayer meetings are real interesting. We are studying different characters of the Bible and almost every one present takes an active part. Last Wednesday night Mr. L. L. Wrenn had charge and we studied the life of Abraham. Next Wednesday night Mrs. E. D. Woody will have charge and we will study Beltshazer and Caleb. These meetings are well-attended and each one feels that it is his service.

The Philathea class has purchased new song books for the church and Sunday school which are very much needed. Although our Sunday school is coming along fine we think new song books will keep up old and create new interest.

MRS. J. A. COOPER.

Seagrove.—Pastor Reynolds Sunday night delivered a splendid message. Special music was rendered by Misses Evelyn Pollard, Hazel Comer, Joseph Comer, and G. A. York.

We were glad to have as visitors Miss Euna Walker of Elon College, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wrenn of Franklinville, also Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hulin of High Point.

We are having a very good Sunday sdhool, but are hoping for better attendanue as spring opens up.

Mrs. H. D. Smith has been sirk for some time but is slowly improving.

Our Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. W. C. Auman Friday night, January 22.

A good program was rendered by the Juniors and one Senior member received, Mrs. Phillip Eames. Mrs. Eames lives in the parsonage and is a faithful attendant of our church and Sunday school.

Our pastor is planning to hold a two weeks' revival some time this spring, also we will have two appointments a month during the spring months.

MRS. NOAH WILLIAMS.

Gray's Chapel, Randolph Circuit.—Our Sunday school is progressing nicely, with Mr. G. D. Pugh as superintendent. Attendance better than usual, though off yesterday on account of the rain.

We were glad to have with us yesterday, Dr. Johnson, who gave us a splendid sermon.

Our pastor, Rev. Edward Suits, has filled all his appointments here since conference. We are glad to have him back.

Our Township Sunday school Institute was held at Providence Friends church, the third Sunday. All churches were represented. Prof. E. E. Farlow, of Gray's Chapel school, Dr. Newlin, of Guilford college, Mr. Richardson, our county president, and Mr. King all gave us good and helpful talks on Sunday school work, which I am sure was enjoyed by all present.

Bellmont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—We were very fortunate in having Rev. Mr. Farmer of First church, High Point with us Sunday morning. He delivered a splendid address on "Christian Education," appealing to us to help High Point college by sending our young people there and by buying bonds. The entire congregation seemed thrilled with Brother Farmer's address and we feel positive that some definite action will be taken for this worthy cause. We wish to extend a hearty welcome to Brother Farmer to visit us any time possible.

Our Sunday school attendance has been very good. Our superintendent and teachers are doing their best to make the school grow bigger and better.

We were very glad to have Mr. Miner of the Christian church, Burlington, and Mr. Donald of Alamance church in Guilford with us Sunday. Mr. Miner taught the Philathea class. His teaching was enjoyed by all. Hope these men will come again.

We regret very much that Mr. Wayne Curtis, the Philathea teacher, was absent Sunday and will be two Sundays in each month, on account of a position he has accepted as music director in a church at Greensboro. He will not only be missed by his class, but by the whole school as he was our choir director too. It can truly be said that he is the life of our Sunday school.

Glad to have a large number of our old members worship with us Sunday. Among these were: J. H. Rich and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hawk of Graham; Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Fogleman, and Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Smith of Burlington. We were also glad to have Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Garrett and son, and Miss Mae Patterson and mother of Friendship church with us.

Sorry to report that Mrs. W. H. Rice remains critically ill and has been taken to St. Leo's hospital. Let us pray that God may restore her to health if it be His will. Glad to say that Mrs. E. E. Thompson and Mrs. Floyd Stinson are improving now. Hope they will soon be well and back with us at church.

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant.—In Dr Johnson's absence in interest of the college, we had Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk fill the appointment Sunday.

Mr. Lowdermilk read a part of the fourth chapter of Jeremiah and took a text from Jeremiah 6:16—"Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, we will not walk therein." His subject was "Walking In the Old Paths." The Lord speaks to them but they will not hear him.

Four old paths were pointed out by Mr. Lowdermilk that have been almost forgotten by many. First there is the path of true repentance. This was preached by both Christ and his disciples. Second, the path of new birth, "Ye must be born again." Third, the altar. Many times not enough time is spent at the altar. Fourth, Praising God aloud. This is one of the greatest things that many have drifted away from. Now let us return to these old ways and live truer Christian lives.

We were very glad to have Mr. Lowdermilk and also Mrs. Lowdermilk. We hope that both of them will be with us more during this year.

On Sunday morning, January 31, a young people's program with the theme, "Christ In and Through Us," will be given. We hope to make this a very helpful program.

Asheboro.—The Philathea class held their January meeting with Mrs. L. F. Ross. Mrs. R. C. Stubbins conducted the devotions in an impressive manner, using as her subject, Friendship. Mrs. Ross, the newly-elected president, presided. The class reported having carried provisions to needy families during the Christmas season. Plans are being made by the class to furnish the breakfast room of the new parsonage, which will be completed before a great while. After the business, an interesting contest, "How many great books do you know?" was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Ross, assisted by Misses Annie Gilbert Ross and Esther Ross served tempting refreshments.

We were delighted to have Mrs. Jack Bulla unite with our church on Sunday January 17.

Mrs. Bulla moved her membership from the Guilford circuit.

Mr. W. F. Redding is home from the High Point hospital; we are pleased to have him worship with us Sunday morning, a week ago.

Next Sunday will be observed as Young People's Day is our morning and evening services, young people taking part in special songs and talks in the evening service.

The Executive Committee of the auxiliary met with the president, Miss Esther Ross, Tuesday evening of this week. Plans were made for finishing this year's work and for next year.

Fair Grove Church.—Due to weather conditions we did not have a very large attendance at church Sunday, although we had a very interesting sermon.

The young people of this church are anticipating the organization of a Christian Endeavor society at an early date.

In order for every one to be at Brown's Summit in time for the Rally Day exercise Sunday, we will hold our Sunday school at 9:45 o'clock. We trust our church will have a full attendance at the Sixth Rally Day exercise at Brown't Summit.

REPORTER.

Harmony, Yarborough Charge.—Pastor Henderson last Sunday delivered two very inspiring messages. Everyone is well pleased with Brother Henderson and we feel that much can be done the coming year.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. The senior class was reorganized recently, the officers elected being: president, Edna Hughes; vice-president, Willie Crawford; secretary and treasurer, Oree Page. Mis Ethel Balentine was re-elected for teacher with Mrs. Frances Balentine as assistant.

The first quarterly conference will be held at Cross Anchor the second Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets each fourth Sunday afternoon. Although the membership is not as large as it should be, there are some who are still striving to keep up the missionary spirit in the church.

REPORTER.

Welch Memorial.—We have been having a series of the most interesting prayer meetings it has been my privilege to attend. Our pastor, Rev. J. D. Williams, has been talking each week on different paragraphs of the Sermon on the Mount. Mr. Williams explains these paragraphs in such an interesting manner that the mid-week service seems to be one of the best of the church services.

Our elementary department in Sunday school which was started about two years ago is a good success and is steadily growing.

We have recently organized an intermediate department with Aubert Smith and Mrs. T. M. Morgan as teachers.

Our Christian Endeavor society is very active and is also growing. We have been having good crowds out for C. E. each Sunday evening.

We have been having good musical numbers for our C. E. and church services. Mrs. O. B. Eldridge, our pianist, has been faithfully working to get up special selections for the services. Last Sunday evening a quartette composed of W. W. Frye, Aubert Smith, Ralph Eldridge and Howard von Cannon sang "How Beautiful Heaven Must Be."

The monthly business meeting of the C. E. society will be held next Thursday evening at the home of Misses Kathleen and Emma McLean.

Mr. Luther Medlin and John Easter who are now members of the Belmont high school faculty were home for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. von Cannon, Howard and Walter von Cannon and Miss Emma McLean motored over to Greensboro last Sunday afternoon to see our former pastor and his family, Rev. Geo. L. Curry.

REPORTER.

Winston, First Church.—We were very glad to have High Point College choir Sunday afternoon at vespers. There were 327 present and everyone enjoyed the splendid music of both choir and orchestra. These talented young people seemed happy and cheerful, as they sang the beautiful and worshipful songs: we predict much success for this group.

The Christian Endeavor society was reorganized by the help of Mrs. J. E. Kirk. The society is getting along well after the reorganization. Last Sunday night Mrs. Oscar Hege, one of the state officers, brought something of interest to the society about statewide work. The convention to be held at Catawba college in the summer, will, no doubt, be very interesting from the remarks made in regard to it.

The Woman's Auxiliary has started a diminishing tea in their midst. Mrs. H. O. Sapp, president of the auxiliary, began it and it is developing very well. The idea came from the Business Women's Circle, so the proceeds will be credited to their budget.

The Baraca class is having as its guests at a dinner, Wednesday evening, at the church, the teachers and officers of the Sunday school. My—but aren't they extremely nice?

Young People's Day will be observed next Sunday and Mrs. J. E. Kirk is getting the program together. Several young people have a part to make this program a success, we feel sure they will. Last year the Young People's program was well carried out.

PAULINE BRANSON, Reporter.

First Church, Concord.—We had 304 in Sabbath school and our offering was $5.95. At the closing exercises of our Sunday school two of our junior girls sang. Everyone was delighted with the songs.

Oh, what a happy place this world would be if everyone would listen to the still small voice of Jesus Christ as he says: "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy-laden and I will give you rest," and if people could only realize how much Jesus really cares for them it would be much easier to come to him.

The attendance at all of the services is holding up well. Our pastor brought us a very helpful message. He used for his subject at the evening service: "Parents and their children." Many very interesting points were brought out and many helpful things were said, and I hope each parent will have a greater desire to lead their children in the Master's footsteps. The chair rendered special music at both services. The anthem used for the evening service was: "Sharon's Beautiful Rose."

We continue to have great interest in our Christian Endeavor. We seniors have only had two meetings, which have been well attended. Each member seems willing to do their part.

A number of the members from the Young People's class were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. C. H. Spears last Friday evening. Each one present had a splendid time and I feel that by attending this social we became better acquainted with each other.

REPORTER.

Kannapolis.—Two fine services today. Evening service Brother Smith spoke on a broken vow. He sure did render some helpful thoughts which we all enjoyed. After service a brotherhood was organized. Officers elected were: President, R. T. Sides; vice-president, J. G. Sisk; secretary-treasurer, M. W. Henderson. Entertainment committee, Eugene Grayson, Theodore Kiser, C. L. Hampton. Mrs. C. I. Smith spoke to the children for a few minutes. Sunday school is doing fine.

Christian Endeavor is growing. We are trying to double our attendance. We extend a cordial invitation to all young people to visit us.

New Hope, Why Not Charge.—Our new pastor, Rev. G. L. Reynolds, was with us the third Sunday in January, this being his third time to preach to us. On Sunday night he preached again and organized a Christian Endeavor society, electing Mrs. A. C. Cox as president, and Miss Vaden Dorsett secretary.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely with B. C. Presnell as superintendent. We have about 120 enrolled of which a good number are young people.

We have been conducting a Bible reading contest covering a period of 16 weeks. In this time about 18,000 chapters were read. We sincerely hope that each one of the members will continue to read the Bible and that they will read it for the good it will be to them spiritually and not merely for the name of Bible reading.

We shall try to report more often than has been for the past few years.

We wish the paper and all the helpers great success.

Bethel, Randolph Charge.—Brother Suits served us so faithfully last year; our hearts were made glad when he came back to us this year. He has filled each appointment since conference, and always brings a message that should help each one to live a better life.

The ladies of our church have bought an individual communion set which we all appreciate very much.

We trust that this may even be a better year for our church than last year, and that Bethel church may again reach the honor roll.

Enfield.—Our December meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held with Mrs. Surratt at parsonage. This was a splendid meeting, well attended and Mrs. Surratt proved a very gracious hostess. We are looking forward to having the branch meeting here in the spring.

The Sunday school, C. E. and church services have had a slight increase in attendance during January. Mrs. Ernest Bellamy, new superintendent of intermediates, is coming along nicely with the work; her assistant, Mrs. Ralph Rieves is an excellent helper also.

Our pastor is back with us again after being at bedside of his brother for ten days. We are glad his brother is improving.

The congregation was very good on Sunday morning and night, although the weather was exceedingly inclement; those present heard two splendid messages. We have heard many good things said about Brother Surratt and his wife and we do not hesitate to pass them on to him. Let's boost our pastor and our church, for when we do we are boosting Kingdom service!

Charlotte.—The oyster supper Monday night was a decided success socially and financially, Mr. J. C. Penny, teacher of the Baraca class, announced Sunday. He thanked everyone who helped to make it so. The treasury was replenished about $25. Our boys are walking over their opponents as usual. We are proud of you boys! Keep it up.

Congratulations, Calvary; you surely walked over us Sunday! Inclement weather cut our attendance down, but look out next Sunday—our folks are visiting this week.

Several of our members are sick, Mrs. Belk is in the Mercy hospital; Mrs. Aycock and Mrs. Parish are in the Presbyterian hospital, while they were more comfortable than usual yesterday, they suffer acutely. Pray for their recovery.

Our Sunday school superintendent and his family, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Atkins and son, Joe, were absent from worship Sunday, also Mr. and Mrs. Stegall and family who were out of the city for the week-end in Gastonia.

Branch meeting is nearing, and our circles are greatly concerned about finances. Come on good folks, all shoulders to the wheel. I find you have never gone up with a deficit and I am sure you will not break your good record.

It was indeed gratifying to hear the report Sunday on the amount turned in after a week of sacrifice—$34.25 and I have not heard a single person say they regretted it. We were all benefitted.

On April 3rd we are to have an Anniversary service. Our church was organized here March 21, 1913. The service will be a thank-offering. Dr. Andrews and Mr. Stegall have made a very attractive box to be kept in the vestibule of the church each Sunday to receive the thank-offering. Mr. Daughtry is custodian. If only our offering would equal our immediate needs.

Dr. Andrews' subject Sunday morning was Jonah's folly. He brought to us a vivid picture of Jonah—his narrowness and selfishness. God gave him a task—a disagreeable task—yes, to go to Ninevah to preach. He runs away from the call—brings trouble upon those in the ship who are innocent—he confesses, is thrown overboard and God gives him the second call. He is angry. Like us modern church members, trying to get away from God. Too busy with things of no account. We cannot get away from God. We cannot sin without affecting other people. God pitied Jonah, he was like a spoiled child in the home. The withered gourd vine we do well while there are so many suffering? God help us to see the great teaching of His word and be willing to serve in a high way and not be satisfied with little things. If ever there was a time when co-operation was needed it is now. May we resolve to be true disciples. Will we meet our Lord with the consciousness of a duty well done and receive His blessing. As Gideon with 300 men overcame the great army so can we do things if we are His.

The evening service—the Publican's prayer. God be merciful to me a sinner. The Pharisee a model of goodness to outside appearance—inwardly vile. The Publican, a gatherer of taxes and unpopular, odious in the sight of the Jews. The Pharisee sought praise. The Publican knew God knew the heart. A vain person in religion is hard to cure. Sectarianism is a mean thing not to be trusted to things of God. It is easy to cure a person about material things. Prayer unifies. Pray in earnest—pray through—be penitent—be humble. "I tell you this man went down to his house justified rather than the other for everyone that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

The Christian Endeavor was unusually instructive and inspiring. The subject What Leadership should we follow, conducted by Miss Dorothea Andrews who had given much time and thought to her subject, she brought out some of the characteristics which make a great leader: Be loyal; be earnest; be aggressive; be devoted; be energetic; and be ready to sacrifice. Mrs. Fred Love, Misses Mildred and Janeth Younginer brought out some fine points also.

The Junior Christian Endeavor is doing splendid work also under the leadership of Mrs. Bruton and Mrs. Andrews.

THE HERALD CAMPAIGN

Thomasville First joined the Honor Roll, of charges raising their quota last week. Congratulations and thanks to Mrs. W. G. Myers for the good work done there. There are other good workers being heard from and we are expecting other charges to soon show up in capitals. Let every Subscription Chairman who has not yet remitted, get busy and send in their first subscriptions. We expect Thomasville, Greensboro and High Point to have every church on the honor roll and their quotas in full this year, so let's get busy. "IT CAN BE DONE."

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY MATERIALS

Our supply of 52,000 pieces of Young People's Day materials is practically exhausted. Should you find it necessary in order to fill all late orders and supply those who wish to use the services on some date other than Sunday, January 31, we will have the printers run an extra supply of the same material undated.

If you have not ordered your material and wish to use some of the additional supply please order at once from the "Department of Religious Education, Seminary Building, Westminster, Maryland."

For those who are planning to use the services on Sunday, January 31, we wish to extend our prayers and best wishes for very successful services.

F. L. GIBBS,
Director of Young People's Work.

MRS. J. N. GARRETT VERY ILL

My mother, Mrs. J. N. Garrett, is very sick and at her age (79) and after having been sick so long we have no hope of recovery. In fact we are expecting the end any time.

Drs. W. R. and W. C. Goley have been her physicians since she has been in my home. They have been faithful to their trust.

MRS. GEO. M. ISLEY.

THE WESTERN PASTORS FEDERATION

The meeting was held in First church, Concord. The ladies of the church served a bountiful chicken dinner and did it for thirty-five cents. There was nothing left to be desired in that part of the conference.

Brother Cranford brought a most stimulating talk on Tithing as the best financial plan, after naming many other means which are now used. BrotherTrogdon thought that a revival of heartfelt religion would solve the financial plan, Brother Morris declared that he was not Jew and therefore not subject to Jewish laws, that the tithe was a Jewish requirement. Brother Bingham told of the application of the principle and explained its workings as is set forth in the Laymen's literature on that subject.

Brother Bingham spoke on the Better Pastoral work in a most impressive manner; getting his text from the Scriptures he made his talk most effective. Others took part in the discussions of both topics.

Brother Williams was absent, and Brother Shelton, who shows no indication of having recently undergone an operation for appendi--citis, conducted the devotionals in an acceptable manner and President Taylor called to our attention many of the most urgent needs of the church at this time; the enlarged subscriptions to the Herald, selling High Point college bonds, increased contributions to all the interests of the church and closed with a splendid appeal to the pastors for a deeper consecration, and a recognition of their duties as pastors.

The meeting was a very good one. Those pastors present, Bingham, Trogdon, Morgan, Shelton, Ridge, Morris, Love, Cranford, and Andrews. Those absent were Wiilliams, Anderson, Troxler, Hendry, Short, Reed, Henderson, Smith, Helms, Isley.

The next meeting will be held with Bess Chapel people, in April.

R. M. ANDREWS, Charman.

REPORT FROM BROTHER MILLAWAY

My dear Dr. McCulloch:

I trust that this shall be the last report that I shall have to give regarding Brother Millaway's condition; not that I mind doing it at all, but because it is probable that he will be at home by next Sunday.

As before, last Sunday I found him in his wheel chair with his attentive son beside him. He was in fine spirits and apparenty improving rapidly. He had been up on the roof of the hospital, where there is a sun porch, and from which vantage point he could view the interesting city of Boston.

The main topic of Brother Millaway's conversation was "Going Home," which was quite natural. Although the authorities have given him no definite information, he believes he will leave on Wednesday. Lest he might be disappointed, I tried to persuade him not to be too expectant, for I think it will be almost marvelous for him to leave this week.

He speaks highly of the attention he has received, and very appreciative of the many letters that have come from friends and loved ones in North Carolina.

Let us pray that sufficient strength may be accorded him to withstand the strain of the homeward journey.

Fraternally,
E. LESTER BALLARD.

C. E. WORLD REPRESENTATIVE

You who have been reading the Christian Endeavor World are aware of the fact that there is a campaign on to put this fine journal in as many American homes as possible. The states of our nation are divided into five divisions. Until March 15, there is a contest on within each state. The one who sells most subscriptions to the C. E. World is listed as the state representative in the division contest. The winner of the division gets a two-month trip to the Holy Land free. There are five trips to be given. Why shouldn't N. C. win one? You remember Rev. Mr. Farmer's success a year ago.

It seems to me that this is quite an opportunity for a person to do some work and splendid award for doing it. I, for one, am going to enter this contest, and I will appreciate any new or renewal subscriptions to the C. E. World that any one might send. Send your name and address with the subscription fee of two dollars, J. C. Madison, High Point College, High Point, N. C.

"DON'TS" FOR PUBLIC SPEAKERS

Grenville Kleiser has issued a list of "Don'ts for Public Speakers." These should be of suggestive value to every one having the occasion to speak before an audience. He says:

Don't declaim.
Don't apologize.
Don't exggerate.
Don't hesitate.
Don't fidget.
Don't attitudinize.
Don't use a high key.
Don't pace the platform.
Don't indulge in personalities.
Don't praise yourself.
Don't scold.
Don't tell a long story.
Don't twitch your body.
Don't be "funny."
Don't speak through closed teeth.
Don't fumble with your clothes.
Don't be sarcastic.
Don't "hem" and "haw."
Don't stand like a statue.
Don't clear your throat.
Don't speak rapidly.
Don't antagonize.
Don't use big words.
Don't gesticulate too much.
Don't wander from your subject.
Don't be awkward.
Don't address the ceiling.
Don't be monotonous.
Don't put your hands on your hips.
Don't be violent.
Don't rise on your toes.
Don't tire your audience.
Don't exceed your time limit.

SIXTH DISTRICT RALLY MEETING

The sixth district rally meeing will be held at Borwn's Summit church, Sunday, January 31. The meeting will begin at 10:30 with a twenty minute worship period.

Rev. J. L. Trollinger is chairman of the meeting and we will have with us some of North Carolina's distinguished Methodist Protestant workers, among these being Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of the conference, who will give an address on "Our Conference Outlook." Following this Mrs. George R. Brown of Reidsville will give an address on "Our Women Oragnized for Kingdom Service." The morning service will close with an address by Mr. E. L. Douglas, of High Point, on "Why Every Member of Our Church Should Subscribe for the M. P. Herald."

The evening service will open with a musical program by the High Point college orchestra and choir. Rev. D. D. Broom will lead in the afternoon devotionals which will be followed by an address by Rev. George R. Brown, Reidsville, on "The Advantage of a Christian College to the Kingdom." The closing address will be given by that companion of youth, Rev. N. M. Harrison of High Point, giving an address on "Our Conference Adventuring for Youth."

The district is composed of Reidsville, Draper, Kernersville, Flat Rock, and Haw River circuits. We believe this is a meeting that every one should attend, especially church officials, because it gives you an opportunity to associate with your co-workers and we urge that you be present.

GOVERNMENT BY HOWLING

In former times, when the emperor and nobody else ruled, the people of Korea had a reasonably effective way of getting what they wanted. The system was a sort of a calliope walking about on legs.

A great concourse of people would assemble in front of the emperor's palace carrying written petitions tied to the ends of long poles. The petitioners would bring food and supplies for a week or more—as long as necessary. There they would sit, day after day, night after night, and week after week, waving their petition poles, screeching and howling. The police would drive them away, but back they would come, renewing their hellish din, shouting, praying, blaspheming, screaming like the yelping jackals of Taoureg.

The unhappy emperor, deprived of his sleep, tormented into a high fever by the shrieking multitude, might eventually succumb. He might not know what the infernal racket was all about, and little did he care. What he coveted was a chance to sleep, surrounded by his food bearers, his musicians, his jesters, his prayer wheels and his concubines. The system was regarded as a very good substitute for responsible government by and for the people. God gave him this job, so why should the emporer change his ways?

The whisky battalions down in Washington are adopting the Korean system. They propose what they call "hearings" before committees of congress, admittedly with no hope of success, but because such hearings provide a sounding board with which to fill the air with shrieks and yells. Senator Tydings, from the oyster beds of the Chesapeake, lifts up his voice with a windlass, proclaiming the doleful epic-everything from the spots on the sun and the Asiatic war down to the seven-year itch is surely the dubious results of "prohibition." Tinkham, from Massachusetts, waves his whiskers defiantly in the breeze, proclaiming that Bishop Cannon is merely the reincarnation of the original devil himself. William Green, president of the so-called American Federation of Labor, makes periodical contributions to the racket. The fact that since his attempts to make that orgnization a sort of a tail to the kite of the brewery overlords has resulted in the loss of a million members of the Federation makes no difference to him. It is a lack of beer that has upset the universe and caused all of these bank failures, not only in America but in European countries where they have beer but no prohibition. His outcries are very painful. Orderly government without beer is as impossible as life without hope.

Then, added to the tumult, come unveiled priestesses of th alchoholic cult with cymbals, store teeth, brass rings, tomtoms and other instruments of noise, holding concatenations in the lobster palaces of Gotham, burning incense to Bacchus. They meet in mirrored halls choking with cigaret smoke, chanting the rhythm of the Ouled-Nail, screaming for the return of beer and the brass rail.

All in all, it is a weird performance, calculated to disturb and make the wooing of sleep a difficult procedure.

It is freely admitted that nothing can come of these congressional hearings save a disturbance. It is a hallucination, like herons sailing over a golden river where there is neither gold nor water. But if the nation can be tormented into some form of encouragement for the denizens of the brewery vat, their efforts will not have been in vain. If shouting outcries can be made to work in Korea, why not in America?

But, after all, what the noise mechanics really need is a dose of soothing syrup rather than beer.—American Issue.

THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS

The road to daily happiness
Is not so hard to find;
You walk ahead serenely
And leave you cares behind.

A word of cheer upon your lips,
A ready hand to give,
A smiling face, a snatch of song,
Will help you well to live.

Along the road to happiness
Are travelers on the way;
To aid a struggling pilgrim
You have your part to play.

The love you give to others,
The good that you may do,
The helping hand you proffer.
Will bring happiness to you.

There may be stony places,
And rugged hills to climb,
But there lies just beyond you
A vision all sublime.

The road to daily happiness
Is not so hard to find;
It's what you do to others
That brings true peace of mind.

A FRIEND OF GANDHI

Because of his sympathy for Mahatma Gandhi, G. B. Halstead, a lay missionary of the Methodist Episcopal church and director of social work at Lucknow Christian college, has been forced to resign his position, according to an Associated Press dispatch, dated Sunday from Lucknow. The British government, which has been exerting pressure on Mr. Halstead, has suggested that it would be better if he left India. He expects to sail soon with his wife and child for America. The dispatch says: "As soon as his resignation became known students at the college declared a 'hartal' or period of mourning, and refused to attend college."

Apparently the British govrnmnt is determined to tighten up on free speech and to resort increasingly to withstand the growing urge for freedom on the part of the Indian people. That way is full of danger for the British Empire. We are living in a new day when the methods of the old autocracy are proving more and more ineffective.—Zion's Herald.

—Records kept on 137 hogs in Currituck county showed that they paid $1.04 a bushel for all corn fed during a period of 66 days. The market price of the corn as grain was 73 cents a bushel.

WILLIAM MARTIN AND FATHER MATHEW

"Despite the bad times that previal throughout the country, the total abstinence movement began to spread often against great odds, but nevertheless to good purpose.

"William Martin was a Cork Quaker, and he induced Father Mathew to sign the pledge. Within two years this step led him out into a great work and he earned the title of 'Apostle of Temperance'. His campaigns in Great Britain and the United States were the means of millions of pledges being taken. in his own native land of Ireland, there was such a wave of enthusiasm favoring total abstinence that drunkenness and crime were reduced to a minimum. Prisons were emptied and there was a general upgrade of prosperity which was little short of miraculous. An old ditty of the time ran:

The judges travel through the land like newly-married ladies;
A snow-white glove on either hand, a sinecure their trade is;
Since Father Mathew's special orders
Expelled the liquors from our borders."

WHAT THE OLD RECTOR SAID

"My little child was ill with diphtheria," said the old rector, as he came to the office the other day. "My wife and I were alone in the house over in South Boston. Not a soul had come near us. I sat there with the child on my lap, not knowing whether she would live or die. My wife was crying. Then I looked up and there was Phillips Brooks, bishop at that time, coming up the steps of the three-decker house where I lived. He came in and picked up that sick girl in his arms and blessed her. When he went away, we felt better. We won our fight for that child's life. Yes, he was a great preacher. I admit that. But he was something much more."—Editorial in "The Christian Leader, Boston.

WARNING TO UNITED STATES

Overthrow of prohibition in our own country would not be such a simple matter, fortified as it is by the constitution; whereas in Finland it was a parliamentary act. However, Finland's experience may well serve as a warning to the United States that the wet's campaign of lawlessness and misrepresentation, designed to bring the prohibition policy into disrepute and to convince its friends that it is unenforceable, must be vigorously opposed.—American Issue.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Nalley

Our community was saddened January 13 when it learned that Tommy Nalley had passed to the great beyond.

Tommy had been in ill health for some time, but was seriously ill for only a few days.

He was an active member of the Sunday school and of the Christian Endeavor society, and for the past five years had missed only one Sunday from Sunday school.

Funeral services were conducted on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock from his home church with Rev. M. C. Henderson, pastor, in charge, assisted by Rev. Carey, an uncle of Tommy's, from Calhoun.

Sufficient proof of the high regard and esteem in which Tommy was held was expressed by the many beautiful and lovely floral offerings. Members of his Sunday school class served as pallbearers and flower girls.

BERTHA CONNELLY.

Warren

John W. Warren was born December 28, 1869, died December 11, 1931.

He was united in marriage to the late Emma J. Crews, October 17, 1900.

Brother Warren was survived by two children. He was apparently in good health Thursday and spent part of the day in Winston. Death came sometime during the night, his lifeless body being found when members of the family went to his room Friday morning.

Brother Warren spent his entire life in Forsyth county. He was primarily responsible for establishing the Pine Grove school, and was keenly interested in community and county affairs. He leaves a great host of friends who grieve very much of theirs and the county's loss. A place has certainly been left vacant that cannot be filled.

The funeral was conducted by the writer in Pine Grove church near Kernersville, assisted by Rev. R. A. Hunter, December 12. The body was laid to rest in the Pine Grove cemetery.

We extend our heart-felt sympathy to the bereaved family in the loss of their loved one, and pray that God will comfort them in their bereavement.

D. D. BROOME.

Luper

William Theophilus Luper was born October 20, 1859, near Lewisville, North Carolina, and departed this life January 19, 1932. His age was 72 years, two months, and 29 days. He was united in marriage to Miss Ellen Todd September 30, 1887, and to this union were born two children, one of whom is living, one having passed away in infancy.

Brother Luper united with Harmony Grove Methodist Protestant church in early life and lived a consistent member of the church during his life of more than threescore years. At the time of his departure he was a member of the board of trustees of Harmony Grove church, which official position he held for many years. He was always found in his place at the church as long as his health permitted, and was a good listener. He was devoted to his wife, his son, his grandchildren, and to his church.

Surviving him are the wife, one son, Avery D. Luper, six grandchildren, and two brothers, John Luper, of Lewisville, and Thomas Luper, of Pfafftown.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Jesse Robertson of the Dunkard church, and Rev. G. W. Fink, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, at Sharon M. E. church, South, where the body was tenderly laid away to await the resurrection morning.

'Now the laborer's task is o'er,
    Now the battle day is past,
  Now upon the farther shore,
    Lands the voyager at last,
  Father, in thy gracious keeping,
    Leave me now thy servant sleeping."

C. B. WAY.

Wiley

Mrs. William Wiley, one of the most beloved and honored ladies of the community died December 7, 1931. We realize that her passing has left untold bereavement in her commuity. Her Christian life was one that was beautiful in its simplicity and faithfulness one of devoted service to her home and community. She was thoughtful, kind and congenial with all she came in contact with. She suffered much in her illness but she bore her suffering patiently, always trusting that some day she would be well and able to attend church again. She appreciated the kindness of her friends during her illness and often spoke of their kindness and gladly did every thing she could to show her appreciation.

Funeral services were conducted from her church. As the casket was brought into the church by her nephews, Mrs. J. Walter Starr beautifully sang, "Jesus Savior, Pilot Me." The choir rendered two special selections "The Old Rugged Cross," and "Sometime We'll Understand." The body was laid to rest in the family burying ground at White Chapel. Pretty flowers which were so representative of the life of Mrs. Wiley formed a mound over the body that rests among those who have gone before. May our Heavenly Father comfort the bereaved ones and they not weep as those who have no hope.

MRS. O. D. HATFIELD,
MRS. HERBERT BATEMAN.

Brown

Mrs. H. D. Brown died January 18, 1932, aged 68 years, nine months, and ten days.

The funeral services were conducted at Efland M. P. church January 19, by the writer, assisted by Rev. O. B. Williams. The remains were then placed in the church cemetery by those of her husband, H. D. Brown, who preceded her to the home above May 22, 1928.

The large congregation present for the services showed the esteem in which her memory is held.

Mrs. Brown came to the Efland church when it was organized by certificate, thus becoming one of the charter members. She remained a consistent member of this church until death.

The following near relatives survive: one daughter, Mrs. C. A. Bivins, Hillsboro, N. C., three sons, C. C. Brown, Greensboro, N. C., and J. J. and C. W. Brown of Efland, N. C., and eight grandchildren

ELON CAMPAIGN TO CONTINUE

The Campaign committee, last Saturday, decided to continue the campaign until March 15th, and request every pastor in the conferences in North Carolina to be willing to exchange pulpits with other pastors under the direction of Dr. Smith, president of the Southern Christian Convention, and that all speakers present the needs of the college afresh to the churches of the North Carolina conferences in this manner. The speakers will follow up their plea for the college by taking subscriptions and co-operating with the local committees of the churches as they may think best. This campaign, by the speakers, will not begin until the first Sunday in February, and will continue until March 15th or until all the churches have been visited by the speakers. We crave the hearty co-operation of the pastors and people, both in arranging the appointments and in making contributions. It is hoped that many who could not contribute when the canvass was first begun can save by economy and self-denial so as to make a contribution or to increase their former contribution when this further canvass is made. As the French said when the Germans, during the World War, were about to pass a critical point at Verdun, "They shall not pass," so let us say now of Elon college, "It shall not close." As we practiced wartime saving and were glad to do it to win the war, so let's practice self-denial and Elon-saving economy to gain a glorious victory for Elon college.—Christian Sun.

HUMANITY

Keen men, mean men, merely money mad,
Cave men, slave men, slovenly and sad,
Strong men, wrong men, going to the bad,
All marching to the Day of Judgment.

Sleek men, weak men, slinking left and right,
Rough men, tough men, eager but to fight,
Queer men, fear men, creatures of the night,
All marching to the Day of Judgment.

Grim men, slim men, laggards in the race,
Tall men, small men, stern and fierce of face,
Proud men, loud men, seeking power and place,
All marching to the Day of Judgment.

Mild men, wild men, aimless and astray,
Crude men, rude men, jostling on their way,
Play men, clay men, living for the day,
All marching to the Day of Judgment.

Great men, straight men, stout of heart and soul,
Brave men, grave men, in a noble role,
Wise men, prize men, pressing toward the goal,
All marching to the Day of Judgment.

—Grenville Kleiser.

find that they apply equally well to a president of a branch. Her duties also run along parallel lines.

The branch president works through her executive committee with whom she shall have not only regular meetings, but called meetings as occasions may arise. She may divide the executive committee into sub-committees—program, finance, publicity, extension of work, etc.—and place upon these the responsibiity for the work, but she herself should be an ex-officio member of each committee. She shall keep in close touch with the district chairmen and co-operate with them in every way possible.

By virtue of her office she is a delegate to the Annual Missionary convention. She should be the link between her branch and that orgaization, also the Board of Missions.

She shall be a connecting link between her branch and Interdenominational Activities.

She shall co-operate with the other organizations of her conference, thus correlating the Women's work with the whole denominational program.

An Importnat Suggestion

Every officer of the auxiliary, including the secretaries of causes and circle chairmen, and every branch officer should have a loose-leaf notebook, in which is attached the duties of that officer, and on the pages of which book should be recorded a condensed statement of the activities of the year. This should be handed to her successor on retiring from office, thus giving a chart and compass by which the new officer may guide the work during her term.—Leaflet, Committee on Education.

Three Revelations

The mighty orbs that move in space
Reveal the power that gave them place:
They testify through all the night
And cry aloud, Our God is might!

The daytime world is wondrous fair,
The product of amazing care:
Admiring all a view so bright,
The creatures sing, Our God is light!

But day or night our human world
Has dearest message e'er unfurled:
To us it's given to look above
And shout aloud, Our God is love!

Chief Cause of the World's Troubles

Sometimes men speak of a harmful happening as "an act of God." When the cause is an earthquake or a flood of waters or a tornado or an epidemic of some new disease, the explanation may be true. But the world today is not suffering seriously from any of these causes. Neither is there a great famine in the world outside of one or two relatively small districts. Last year crops were unusually large. Man must admit that he himself is the chief cause of his present calamities. He has brought his troubles upon himself. It is not easy to make an accurate diagnosis, but we can see enough to assure ourselves that man is the cause of his undoing. When the world rushed to war in 1914 it turned loose a great swarm of plagues. It aroused a spirit that eventuated in an orgy of crimes still going on. The war lowered respect for the sacredness of human life. The war diverted the world from peace-time occupation to a dreadful career of carnage, running through more than four years. From making plough shares men turned to the manufacture of swords, guns, and battleships. What worse use of life and property could have been made? The war made the world poorer and wickeder. It also demoralized industry and locked the wheels of legitimate business. The recent bank failures are in many instances traceable to the World War.

The present lack of employment is due to the same causes. The war deranged the prices of labor and products of labor. Men became accustomed to much higher prices and are unwilling to return to lower prices. Many unemployed men today might be employed if they were willing to work for what could be legitimately paid. The demand for exorbitant wages on the part of many classes of laborers has stopped enterprise and resulted in wide-spread unemployment. The law of supply and demand has been ignored. Arbitrary demand has taken the place of reason. The untruth and unwisdom responsible for the disturbed conditions of today are not of God but of men. Men need to be delivered from their false selves. The divine purpose is for men to live harmoniously and happily.

Our Next President

Many people are asking, Who will he be? in a mood of curiosity. But all American citizens have in the matter an interest deeper than mere curiosity. It devolves upon us all to take part in determining who shall be our President. We ought to form well-defined views as to the kind of man needed for the office and we ought to investigate as thoroughly as we can the qualifications of those proposed for the office. Political leaders will select and propose: the people who vote will dispose. We should demand for the office a man of undoubted integrity, a man of broad and searching intelligence, a man interested in public affairs, a man who knows people and can lead them. The man we choose as our Chief Executive should believe in the laws he promises to enforce. He should be as free as possible from prejudice and partisanship that he may rule impartially. He should be a man of promptness and firmness of decision. He should be a likable man that people will easily trust and respect.

Presidential timber is not very abundant. That may be fortunate as we have as a nation but one office of president. But the term is four years and in that time a poor president may involve the country in much mischief. Let us keep our eyes open and try to secure the best president available.

—The printers of the Herald express in another column their appreciation of the kindness of those who have freely contributed money to be applied on the Herald printing deficit. The situation of the Herald is like that of many religious papers: It has to be subsidized to make ends meet.

—It is gratifying to hear of those who are getting ready to invest in High Point College bonds. We think better of the world when we hear of such people.

—The man that clings tenaciously to his money when he might use some of it to relieve those in dire need is likely to perish with his money.

—First Church, Lexington, not long ago added Sunday School rooms. Growth in attendance now makes more rooms necessary.

—Hickory Grove, Guilford charge, has made some pleasing history in the last year. See report.

CAN WE HAVE TRUE RELIGION WITHOUT THE ORGANIZED CHURCH

More and more I am asking myself this question. I am not prompted by a spirit of curiosity or by a desire to disband the church; other reasons move me to ask the question.

In a copy of the Recorder of sometime ago, the great Japanese religious leader, Kagawa, who set the "Million Souls Movement" going in that country said, "I am teaching religion, for unless I do, the social movement would be a failure. But my religion is not merely of the church. My religion is the religion of Christ in the hearts of men." That sounds well enough at first, but when it is remembered that the objective does not have the church as the place where this million souls shall be gathered and set to work, it looks different.

You and I know quite well that increasing Brotherhood of the highways, the forests and fields; those who tell us frankly that they worship the God of the greatoutdoors. The dome of their temple is the blue canopy, and its walls the horizon and their vested choirs, the birds of the swinging boughs. These are they who pass our churches on the Sabbath with a foot upon the accelerator and their eye upon the road. What though a S. S. class has no one to teach them that day, what though some pastor finds his official members so few that he feels deserted, and what though the choir loft is almost unused; what difference does it make to these worshipers in the great outdoors?

On every hand I hear pastors complain of the trend of the membership to absent themselves from the church services and to leave the burden of the work to be done there upon a few faithful ones. Get a percentage of the membership of your church who happen to be present next Sunday and see whether I am unduly alarmed. With a membership of 800 and only 200 of them present, etc., etc., the thoughtful pastor should ask himself, Whither the Church members and what will happen to the organized Church?

The fourth and fifth centuries of the Christian era gave the Christian mind a doctrinal impress which greatly influenced it and caused men to form groups for study and worship and work which have been called churches.

It has been believed that these were indispensable to the existence of the Christian religion. Without the organized church, those who believed in Christ were unable to render a very definite and impressive service upon the communities where they resided. The question then is, has the time come when we no longer need the organized church as an aid to our religious lives? Can the radio take the place of the hour of public worship? Can private devotions substitute for public devotions? If the great outdoors where one communes with nature at first hand enough to keep the soul in touch with God? Is the sermon no longer a means of grace or the pastor no longer needed to minister to the spiritual necessities of the saints? If we can live without the organized church, we will proceed at once to disband our organizations and dispose of our church properties and join the Brotherhood of the Bushes.

But, if peradventure the organized church is still a means of grace not to be dispensed with, then those of you who have pledged to Almighty God at her altars that you would attend the services and support his benevolences must park the car long enough to attend them, and must save enough from the superfluities of life to keep the church going as an appointed agent of the great Head of the Church in the redemption of the world.

R. M. ANDREWS.

THE PRINTERS OF THE HERALD SPEAK

The printers of the HERALD, McCulloch & Swain, wish to express their appreciation to those churches, circles, Sunday Schools, societies and individuals who have sent in money to be applied on the deficit incurred in printing the HERALD during the past two years. Realizing that this money has been raised by free-will offerings, thus assuring both Dr. McCulloch and us that there are those who are willing to make some sacrifice to share the load, we are moved to record our sincere thanks. While the money received to date takes care of only a very small part of the actual deficit, yet it has been a great help to us, and we are hopeful that the total deficit will eventually be raised.

The one thing, more than any other, which has prompted us to go our limit to give the Methodist Protestants of North Carolina a publication for the interchange of church news and views is simply this: It is our firm belief that as soon as the Methodist Protestants of North Carolina realize the actual needs of the HERALD and how vital the HERALD is to the life and growth of the church the deficit will be quickly overcome. It is a matter of record that those churches the majority of whose members are subscribers to the HERALD raise their quotas for all church purposes with a minimum effort, regardless of the financial standing of the membership.

In order that HERALD readers may understand just why a printing deficit exists we furnish the following information:

About two years ago we requested Dr. McCulloch to select a number of printing firms equipped to print the HERALD with the idea of obtaining competitive bids for the printing. The result of his investigation eloquently substantiated our assertion that we were doing the work at a great loss. The lowest bid he received was $90.00 per issue. We were receiving the equivalent of $37.50 per issue, $12.50 of this representing the rent due Dr. McCulloch for rental of his building and the use of certain printing machinery which he owns.

Just before this last session of the Annual Conference Mr. E. L. Douglas, chairman of the HERALD Campaign Committee for new subscribers, also asked for bids for printing the HERALD from a number of printing firms and the quotations he received were on a par with those secured by Dr. McCulloch.

The actual cost sustained by us in printing the HERALD is $67.50 per issue. We have been receiving for that work $37.50. This shows a clear loss to us of $30.00 per issue. And when we say "loss" we mean just that, for no profit is included in the $67.50 mentioned above.

Dr. McCulloch has always been very considerate of us, and shares with us whatever he has, even to great denial on his part. The revenue to meet the cost of editing and printing the HERALD was reduced by $100.00 per month when the publishing house owned by the church was sold to relieve a financial crisis at High Point College. Since that time the HERALD has struggled to keep alive.

It is not a matter of what we, McCulloch & Swain, are willing to do, but of what it is possible for us to do. In these days when printing of all kinds is scarce because of the depression which has enveloped the entire country it is not possible for us to get contracts for other printing in sufficient volume to offset the loss we sustain on the HERALD. That loss must be met by contributions from churches and individuals to clear the deficit and a larger list of subscribers in order that the HERALD may be assured permanency.

Again we wish to thank those who have come to our aid and to respectfully request that others do their bit to help remedy an admittedly bad situation.

PASTORS AND SUBSCRIPTION CHAIRMEN PLEASE NOTE

In this issue will be found list of HERALD Subscription Chairmen as now appointed, if there are any errors in these names or if it is necessary to make any changes in the personnel, please advise me with your recommendations. Where the campaign is not already under way, Pastors and Chairmen are asked to immediately consult together and plan this campaign. The campaign needs to be put on in every church beginning immediately. Don't say that the quota can not be raised until you have solicited every family or individual who is not a subscriber. Several churches are working on this campaign in the right way and are sending in the results of their work. But the large majority have not yet gotten down to work. The responsibility is ours to raise the quota this year, but the time is passing and we have not gotten up enough speed yet to accomplish what we have started to do. I shall look for returns from those Chairmen who have not previously started, and trust they will be reported in the very next issue. Get all possible renewals, but work hard for NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

E. L. DOUGLAS, Chairman Directing Committee.

GIRLS SMOKING

Nor does the greed of these tobacco companies stop there, as we see how some of our college authorities have been influenced in the name of satisfying "personal freedom," and have surrendered to the dictates of Mammon by permitting the young girlhood committed to their guardianship and instruction, to smoke cigarettes.

The idea of allowing "self-expression" and "personal freedom" to a lot of school girls still in their teens about a matter that is wholly and indefensibly wrong in itself, reaches the climax of an absurdity. If the young ladies after leaving college walls, or after reaching maturity wish to go to perdition or elsewhere, that is then a matter of their individual volition, but during the formative period of their lives, they should be shielded from all that is, or that may be harmful or corrupting. Any less view of our educational system is dangerously wrong.

However, the manufacturers will soon no doubt, add the following to their advertised slogans: "Give the baby a cigarette along with Mother's Soothing Syrup to quiet its nerves: they satisfy; not a cough in a carload; they'd crawl a mile for a cigarette."

If cigarettes are permissible for young ladies, why not cigars, pipe or chewing tobacco?

"If boys use tobacco, why not girls?" is answered by saying that as bad and injurious and indefensible as it is for boys, it is infinitely worse and more harmful to women. Hers is a more sensitive nervous organiation and the penalties she is storing up in restless excitement, organic distresses and the lowering of her morale is a very heavy price for an absolutely useless and injurious habit, which is nothing else but a nerve enslavement.

More than that, both Dame Nature and Society have laid upon woman the preservation of the purity of the home and the essential refinements of sweet womanhood, so that defying the conventions degrades her more than it does the boy or the man.

We must protect the "seed corn" of the race.

God save us from our follies, when our sensibilities to truth, to refinement and to culture have become so blunted that we cease to rebel at the obviously coarse, the vulgar and the deceitful.

"Sow a thought and reap an act
Sow an act and reap a habit
Sow a habit and reap a character."

One may well ask, what price our civilization?

Perilous times are upon us and we must arouse the manhood and the womanhood of our Nation to a sense of the eternal verities, the true, the beautiful and the good, or surely our doom shall be written in large letters; A Lost Manhood and a Lost Womanhood; A Country Without Hope.

CHARLES L. VAN NOPPEN.

THE GILA MONSTER

In the reptilian age the iguanodon was about thirty feet long. However, he is no longer the monster he used to be, having shrunk from thirty feet to one foot, and today is known as the Gila monster. He has the five-fingered class which resembles, very much, the human hand; a diamond shaped head, which is characteristic of poisonous reptiles.

The Gila monster is not always fatal to humans but is sure death to small animals and is not too kindly to the birds. The birds of the desert seek the most secluded places to hide their eggs, for there is nothing that Gila relishes more than bird eggs. They place them in the barrel cactus which is covered with a million needles. This, however, does not frustrate Gila. Short-sighted though he is, he measures distance and feels his way with his tongue. He walks over the needles as though he were walking on a Brussels carpet and finds his way to the bird's nest.

The Gila monster stores his food in his tail and hibernates during the winter, drawing upon the stored supply. When he fights an animal he turns upside down to bite, poison running down his teeth. This animal is very prettily colored in a design similar to many Navajo Indian blankets. In fact, it is said that from the Gila monster the Indians took their pattern.—Ruth Rivkin.

WHAT MAKES A GIRL POPULAR: SHE MAKES UP HER MIND

It was said of a certain President that some one had to come daily and make up his bed and his mind for him. He lacked decision.

You know how slovenly a room looks before the bed is made up. No one wants to visit there. A mind that isn't made up, that is in a constant state of flux, is just as slovenly as a bedroom at sixes and sevens. No one enjoys a person with such a mind. She is trying and unpopular.

''I wish you would tell me what to do. I just can't make up my mind,'' is one of the most wearying appeals to which we are called to listen. One thinks: ''You poor supine creature, with a wishbone instead of a will and a supine instead of a spine!'' Such an undecided girl may have many to pity her, but few who admire her. She is unpopular.

But the girl who has a self-reliant way of making up her bed and her mind makes a strong bid for popularity, because most of us are like the negro minstrel who sang: ''Go 'way off fum me; I'se troubles nuff of my own.'' We welcome any self-sufficient person who relieves our sympathies of a strain by not asking us often to help her make up her mind.

Indecision is a habit that grows on one until it makes her a mental invalid. Few of us like to be used as crutches for the weak will of another whom we suspect is perfectly capable of deciding for herself if she didn't indolently shrink from the mental effort.

We don't like to associate with hospital patients; we prefer the company of those who walk erect without leaning on us. So the decisive type of girl, who knows what she wants appeals strongly for popularity.—Pittsburgh Advocate.

ANIMALS IN THE BIBLE

We are told that two of each known species of animal were taken aboard Noah's Ark at the time of the deluge. Of all the animals of the earth, however, but few are described by name in the Bible.

There are at least 217 different references to animals in the Scriptures. Only 19 species are mentioned, despite that weird collection that must have been gathered aboard the Ark. Thirty-one such references are general, in the sense that they are simply called beasts. The rest refer directly to certain species.

The lion, in all ages the king of beasts, is mentioned 29 times. Calves are referred to 25 times, sheep 24 times, horses 18 times, dogs 13 times and oxen 11 times. Thus, aside from the lion, man's domestic animals preponderate in the Bible.

Wolves and bulls are named nine times each; foxes seven times, heifers, leopards, camels and hinds six times each; cattle, goats and asses four times each; kids three times; and cows and sows once each.

Among reptiles, in the lower class of the animal kingdom, serpents are mentioned as such 12 times; while specifically adders are named six times and asps five times. The lowly worm is remembered ten times.

In the insect class spiders are mentioned three times, ants twice, and the gnat once.—Jasper B. Sinclair.

GREEN SHEEP

You would be surprised if you saw a flock of bright green sheep in a field, yet last autumn, folks traveling along a road in Cumberland were astonished by such a sight. Quite a number of the sheep in a big flock, instead of being the usual cream color, were just as green as grass in the spring.

The explanation of this curios state of affairs was on the following lines. The sheep had been browsing over some rough country, where enormous numbers of grass plants were producing their seeds. In making their way through the vegetation, and also when they came to lie down, the sheep picked up the grass seeds which began to germinate. Then the grass started to grow, and so the sheep appeared to be green.

In America a similar state of affairs was noticed a few years ago. Attached to a farm near Sedalia, Ohio, it was possible to see a flock of green sheep grazing in the pasture. This unusual sight was explained by the fact that excessive rains had kept the wool of the sheep wet; then, when the animals rubbed against a stack of hay, much of the seed fell into the wool and lodged there. The moisture and bodily heat of the animals caused the grass to grow, and some of the sheep were walking about with green blades several inches in length.—Band of Mercy.

THE DIGNITY OF LABOR

There is a dignity about labor which every sincere citizen must respect. Any man engaged in honest toil, regardless of what his chosen field may be, is worthy of the respect of the citizenship of his country. It is Divinely appointed unto man to earn his bread, and the curse of God abides upon every individual who, by trickery or dishonest methods seeks to make a livelihood.

The dignity of labor demands that we consider the family of mankind as a brotherhood. No one is warranted in seeking the advantages of another. Regardless of the quantity of one's income, or the rank which he may hold in the affairs of men, he is dependent upon others. What we may have of material kind, whether much or little, is the product of somebody's honest toil. The honest laborer, whether he belongs to the ''ditch gang'' or to the office force, has a right to demand just consideration from those whose material blessings are the result of the expenditure of somebody's brawn or brain. There is no place in American civilization, and certainly no place in the life of the church, for anything of caste spirit in the field of honest toil, however humble or exalted that toil may be.—The Watchword.

SIMPLICITY IN PRAYER

Long prayers kill a prayer-meeting. See how short are the prayers recorded in the Bible. ''Lord, help me,'' is one. ''Lord, save, or I perish,'' is another. Why, a man said that if Peter had had as long a preamble as men put into prayers nowadays, he would have been forty feet under water before he would have got as far as the petition for rescue. Prayer is asking God for something, and you can ask it in a few words. I'd rather have a man pray three times, and only five minutes at a time, than to have him take fifteen minutes all at once.—D. L. Moody.

The President's Letter

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Deceased

Sister Garrett, widow of the late Rev. J. N. Garrett, an honored minister of our conference, passed into the great beyond, Tuesday, January 26, at the age of 79 years. Death occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Isley, where Sister Garrett had made her home in her later years. The funeral service was held at Mt. Hermon church on Wednesday at 2:30 p. m., and interment followed in the church burying ground. Rev. N. G. Bethea, the last pastor of the deceased, had charge of the service at her request. Other ministers assisting were the pastor of the church, Rev. L. E. Mabry, Rev. G. W. Holmes, Rev. T. M. Johnson, and the writer. Sister Garrett lived both well and long, and her end was in the triumphs of the Christian's faith. We sorrow not, therefore, as those who have no hope. A conference obituary committee will be promptly appointed, and an obituary in her honor will be prepared and read in the memorial service at our next annual conference. We extend assurances of sympathy and prayers to the bereaved loved ones.

Hoyle Ashburn

This son of Brother and Sister W. F. Ashburn is critically ill, and is being treated in the Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore. A letter just received from Brother Ashburn informs us that he does not yet know the cause of his son's illness. We understand that he was taken suddenly ill a few days ago, while at his work, and immediately became unconscious. However, he has improved in that respect, as he is conscious now. Brother Ashburn and his family are in much distress. The son and the family will have our deep sympathy and our earnest prayers.

Sister Moton Sick

For two weeks Sister Moton, widow of the late Rev. J. H. Moton, has been sick and under the care of a physician, though not confined to her bed all the time. Her condition seems favorable at this writing, and her physician thinks that in course of time she will be all right again. She too will be remembered in our prayers.

Brother Millaway

It will be gratifying to his many friends to know that he is back home, and doing well. We spent a few minutes with him, accompanied by Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. C. W. Vance, Sunday afternoon, on our return from Brown Summit. We found him comfortable in body and cheerful in spirit. ''I didn't dread it a bit, and I didn't have a fear,'' is the way he described his reaction when the doctors told him that his leg would have to be amputated. No one who knows Brother Millaway will doubt that an unseen presence sustained him during this ordeal. Brother Millaway is now living in his new home on the Reidsville road, just outside of Greensboro. We have no authority to extend invitations, but we are sure that he will be glad to see his friends.

Children's Home

The unusual economic conditions have considerably reduced the receipts at the home, both from individuals and from churches. But the expenses there go on, though Superintendent Dixon is reducing these wherever this is possible. The need just now for money is urgent. Salaries are unpaid, and bills for groceries and other supplies necessary to run the home are due, and creditors want their money. Besides, coal must be bought, and this requires the cash. If every church in the conference would take a monthly offering for the home, much of this necessary cash would be supplied. In 1930, Sunday Schools and churches paid to the home $6,875.78, as per report of the Superintendent. This is an average of $30 per church, per year, for our 233 churches. Some churches pay generously and regularly to the home; others pay regularly, but in small amounts; while still others make but little or no place in their giving for the home. If every church would designate one Sunday in each month as ''Children's Home Sunday,'' and give as generously as possible on that day, Superintendent Dixon would not be so hard pressed to support the 107 children committed to his care. IF YOUR CHURCH IS NOT MAKING A MONTHY CONTRIBUTION FOR THIS PURPOSE, WON'T YOU SEE THAT IT DOES?

Young People's Day

The HERALD of last week gave notice that the following churches were getting ready to hold Young People's Day: West End, Greensboro, G. L. Curry, pastor; Tabernacle and Julian, H. L. Isley, pastor; Roberta, J. B. Trogdon, pastor; Pleasant Union, T. M. Johnson, pastor; Asheboro, R. C. Stubbins, pastor; Winston First, J. E. Pritchard, pastor. We are sure that these are not all of the churches that are planning to observe this day. We shall look for reports from others through the HERALD this week. We urge the observance of this day for three reasons: first, it is one of the special days ordered by the General Conference; second, it has an important educational value; third, it is one of the means of raising funds for the operation of this department of the church. Tell us about this day, churches, in your next report. AND DON'T FORGET TO SEND THE OFFERING PROMPTLY TO DR. BROWN, and take credit for it on your N. C. S. budget.

Sixth District Rally

This district is composed of Haw River, Flat Rock, Reidsville, Kernersville, and Draper—five charges and 15 churches. The rally for the district was held at Brown Summit Sunday, beginning in the morning at 10:30, and closing with an afternoon program composed of music by the High Point College choir and orchestra, and an address by Dr. Humphreys, President of High Point College. In the morning program, Miss Mary Young spoke in the interest of the Women's Work, Mr. E. L. Douglas in the interest of the HERALD, and the writer on ''The Conference Outlook.'' Brother J. L. Trollinger, the Chairman of the district, had planned well for the meeting, and got most gratifying response in attendance. Every charge was represented, and every church on the Haw River charge. The Chairman secured a list of all church officers present, which he will no doubt give in his report of the rally. Three of the five pastors of the district were present. Dr. Brown was sick, and could not be present for that reason to take his place on the program, though we were glad to learn from Mrs. Brown that his condition was improving. Brother Hutton had an engagement elsewhere that kept him away, we understand. A most pleasing spirit prevailed throughout the day. The large congregations manifested deep interest in the programs, and evidenced full appreciation of all that was said and done. An appetizing and bountiful dinner was served picnic style on the church grounds. Despite the fanning of a stiff winter breeze, the dinner was greatly enjoyed. We congratulate Brother Trollinger and his district upon this Rally Day, one of the best that it has been our good fortune to attend.

Bonds

We go out tomorrow with Brother Harrison in an effort to place some more bonds. Brother H. A. Garrett was up yesterday attending the meeting of the trustees of the Children's Home. He brought along with him $100 to pay for a bond that he had just sold on the Alamance charge. Thanks to Brother Garrett, and thanks to this bond buyer. We wish also to express our appreciation to Dr. Johnson and Brother Auman for their appeals through the HERALD last week on behalf of the bonds. When enough Methodist Protestants become sufficiently interested, these bonds will be sold. Let's every one lend a hand and keep the good work going. We are pulling the hill now, and the load is a little heavy; but with a little help, we'll go over the top. And then the shouting! FIFTEEN YEARS FROM NOW the Methodist Protestant Church in North Carolina will be reaping a rich harvest from High Point College. Let every Methodist Protestant lend a hand in this bond sale, and thus have a share in bringing about that rich harvest. High Point College is ours. We began it, and we are responsible for its life. If we make it grow, the credit and the benefits are ours; if we fail to make it grow, the responsibility and the hurt are likewise ours. "BUY A BOND! BUY A BOND!"

Appointments

February 3.—State Street, in quarterly conference.

February 7.—North Davidson charge in two appointments, as follows: 11 A. M. Bethesda; Canaan 3 P. M.

February 7.—West Thomasville, 7:30 P. M.

Through the week our time is being devoted to the sale of college bonds.

"Grace be with you."

Fraternally yours,

S. W. TAYLOR.

TRUST HIM TO WORK THROUGH YOU

It is one thing to work for God; it is another to have God work through us. We are often eager for the former; God is always desirous of doing the latter. One of the important facts in the surrender of the life is that it is the attitude which gives God the chance to work His perfect will through us. For it is God that is working to evangelize the world; it is God who has laid the plans for it; it is God who has the power to successfully execute them. Now the God who is the Ruler of the universe does not want us to plan, and worry, and work for Him. For while He appreciates our purposes toward Him, yet they may be all athwart His purposes for, and through us. What He wants is not our plans, but our lives, that He may work His plans through us.

Now God will certainly do this through every life that is yielded to Him, if we simply trust Him so to do, and follow Him as He leads us on. His Word upon this is clear: "For we are * * created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them." God hath an ordained plan of good works in Christ Jesus, and as each member of the body of Christ yields himself or herself to Him absolutely to do His ordained works, He will give to, and reveal to, that individual member his or her particular works, so that they may walk in them.—James H. McConkey.

MAKING SUNBEAMS

Little Willie laughed and clapped his hands, and then stretched them out to catch the pretty sunlight that streamed in upon his bed in the crib. All the children laughed, and Charley said: "Silly baby."

"Not so silly, after all; it is a very pretty thought," said mamma. "It's what God wants all His children to do—catch the sunbeams. Look at baby's face and see." And, sure enough the little fellow had bent his head forward until the golden light was on his rosy cheeks and bright curls.

"I think I know what mamma means," said Louie, looking into the baby's laughing face. "She means catch the—the happy, and be glad instead of cross."

"That is it," said mamma. "There is happiness all around us. If we try to catch it for ourselves, and make others happy, too, will not that be like sunshine? Yes, and if things do not go just right, we can call it cloudy weather; but we can be cheery, and so make sunbeams."—Light and Life.

THE TEXT AND THE SERMON

Dr. James Denney once said: "I am very much dependent on my text as a rule. I don't know how a minister gets on who does not let the text preach." The relation between text and sermon is not always as evident as it might be. Many a minister having chosen his text, straightway leaves it and imitates Abraham, who "went out, not knowing whither he went." The old preacher's division of the sermon comes to mind: 'Brethren, I shall first go around my text; then I shall go at my text; then I shall go through my text; and finally I shall go away from my text; and I intend to dwell mainly on the last point'."—The Watchman-Examiner.

THE DEMON OF COVETOUSNESS

"But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints. (Eph. 5:3).

In one of Turner's pictures—a great, symbolic picture, he paints the demon of covetousness, and he puts him into the shape of a dragon. But Turner makes the back of the dragon wear the appearance of a glacier. It has all the suggestiveness of ice—the coldness of ice without its fragility. Wherever the demon of covetousness makes his abode he freezes the genial currents of the soul. The suggestion of that glacier back is, that whenever the demon of covetousness exercises his tyranny, the moral sense begins to be petrified; the moral sense which ought to be sensitive to the faintest approaches of evil becomes congealed into ice. The dragon congeals into hardness and benumbment, somehting that ought to be soft and responsive. And when a man's moral sense begins to be petrified, he begins to engage in all manner of casuistry, excuses, pleas, reasons, equivocations, ambiguities. Why, a man frames for himself a new vocabulary, and in the soft and cushioned significance of his own language he finds his ease. And then out of the casuistry and equivocation there comes the whole black, hellish brood of falsehood, unfairness, injustice and fraud.—Hastings.

KEPT

"Kept by the power of God" (I Peter 1:5).
Kept through each dire temptation,
Kept by God's grace in the way;
Kept when the dark shadows gather,
Kept, sweetly kept, every day.

Kept when the tempter is subtle,
Kept all secure from his snare;
Kept through the power of Jesus,
Kept, daily kept, everywhere.

Kept by the Shepherd each moment,
Kept safe from every alarm;
Kept when life's billows are seething,
Kept by my Captain from harm.

Kept day by day for His service,
Kept as in Him I abide;
Kept in sweet peace by my Saviour,
Kept, till He calls for His Bride.

—The Elim Evangel.

STICKING BY

It may be a difficult task which is before us, but we must not be discouraged. Difficulties are what make character; men who can go out into a hard field and succeed—they are the men we want. Any quantities of men are looking for easy places, but the world will never hear of them. We want men who are looking for hard places, who are willing to go into the darkest corners of the earth and make those dark places bloom like gardens. They can do it if the Lord is with them.—D. L. Moody.

THE WELCOME CALL

"Were you invited?" is a question we often ask one another about an important reception, or dinner, or wedding. There may be happiness or disappointment in the reply. We are likely to have accepted promptly if the invitation came. Are we as eager to accept the invitation to a certain great reception, or feast, before which all earthly affairs of a similar sort pale into insignificance? There will be an innumerable company of invited guests at this great reception, and the Lord Jesus Christ Himself is to be the Host. During His earthly lifetime He told a parable of "a certain man" who "made a great supper, and bade many; and sent his servant at supper time to say to them that were hidden, Come; for all things are now ready" (Luke 14:16, 17). A strange thing was that those to whom the great invitation was thus sent "began to make excuse." But others, from that day to this, have been accepting the invitation and are waiting for the call to come.

In a recent personal letter from the beloved minister of God and ambassador of the Lord Jesus Christ, Dr. I. M. Haldeman, that "grand old man" who for so many years has been preaching faithfully the only Gospel and "that Blessed Hope" of our Lord's sure and imminent Return, writes: "How comforting to know that — any time — the door in Heaven may open and He who is our Lord may say, 'Come up hither'," Are we ready for that welcome, thrilling call? We have been invited; have we accepted the invitation?—The S. S. Times.

YOUR CANDLE

Light your candle of knowledge
And, though its flame be small,
Set it up in your window
Where its faint rays may fall.

And brighten up the pathway
Of some one passing by,
Who just the light is needing,
Your candle can supply.

It may not be as brilliant
As other candles are,
And yet—who knows?—it may be
Somebody's guiding star.

WHAT NEXT!

In 1922 a tooth was found in an ancient river bed in Nebraska, which scientists advanced as proof that an ape-man, ancestor of the human species, lived millions of years ago. Now after six years' examination they tell us it is the tooth of an extinct pig. What they may decide about this tooth after six more years of study, it is impossible to foretell, but the reasonings of unbelief are simply ridiculous. How superior is the simple faith of the Christian who believes that "Jehovah God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Man's ancestor was neither a monkey nor a pig; he came a full grown being from the hand of God.—Armour of Light.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE LITTLE GIRL WHO WAS AFRAID

And How She Lost Her Fear—A True Story

She was not afraid of some things like most girls. She would catch a mouse by the tail, or carry little green frogs in her hands, and would not take a "dare" even if it led into danger. All the same this little six-year-old girl would sometimes hide away and cry because she was afraid. Hers was not a religious home; salvation was not known, but somewhere she had learned that God would hold her responsible for her actions. She knew that death came to all; and the judgment to be met afterward, was very real to her child consciousness. She had heard that a record was being kept of all she said and did, and that this record must be faced some day. She listened terror-stricken as some one read, "And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the Book of Life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works" (Rev. 20:12).

She knew she was often naughty: "Couldn't help it," she said; but she was often sore troubled, not only on her own account, but also on that of others. Near her home lived the village hotel-keeper. He had a little boy who could swear fluently. She spoke of it to no one, but fear for the little lad lay heavy on her heart. What could she do? She went into the garden and picked some green peas. She carried them in her "pinny" to the fence, and called the boy, "Sammy," she said, "don't you know God is writing down all those bad words you say, and He will punish you for it some day? I will give you these green peas if you will promsie not to swear any more."

Poor children, they knew no better way: and so Sammy ate the peas but kept on swearing, and the little would-be Missionary still had her naughty spells. She went to Sunday School, and her teacher taught her many things: but wistfully she said to herself, "If only teacher would tell us how a little girl could become a Christian." And then a wonderful thing happened: her father became a Christian! And now for the first time she knew some one who was not afraid of God. The Bible verses that made her feel so badly seemed to bring peace and comfort to him. He spoke of sins blotted out of those terrible books; of a Saviour who had suffered in his place. One who loved him and was preparing a beautiful home for him when this life was over, and would welcome him there.

He declared that something had taken place in his heart that made him want to please God, and that grace was given to enable him to do right; even when it was not easy. He said to have Christ as our Friend and Saviour would even give us "boldness in the day of judgment," as St. John writes in his Epistle. This boldness he learned did not come through anything he could do, but because of what Christ had already done for her. Then she understood what they meant when they sang:

All the goodness He requireth
Is to feel your need of Him.

And so she came just as she was to the Lord Jesus, and found "the love that casteth out fear," and she hopes Sammy did too.—Selected.

"CHEERFUL CARL"

Once there was a little boy who came to live with his father and mother in far-away Germany. They called him Carl. When he grew to be a strong little lad, his friends called him "Cheerful Carl," and this is how he got his name:

Carl's father read every day from the good Book which tells all about God. Carl listened to its wonderful stories, and his young heart soon learned to love God and all of God's people. Carl had a very loving heart, and he wanted nothing better than to make some one happy.

Carl lived by a tall mountain. He sat on a big rock at the foot of the mountain one day and wished that he could do something to make some one happy. But Carl was a poor boy. He had no money to give to God's poor children, and he could buy nothing for them. While he was wishing that he could help somebody, he saw some beautiful red and yellow and purple flowers growing a little way up the mountain side. He ran up the rough path and gathered all he could hold. He hurried through the village to the shop of the old lame shoemaker. He said, "Mr. Shoemaker, would you like some flowers to brighten your shop?"

"Yah, yah, Carl. Only yesterday I thought of the bright mountain flowers, and wished for some, but I am now so lame that I can never again climb the rough path to get them. Thank you, my boy. You are kind to try to cheer an old lame man like me."

The next day Carl sat on the big rock and wondered whom he could make happy. He thought of the old blind woman who sat all day long in her old armchair, with no one but the cat to cheer her. He said to himself, "She could not see the flowers if I should gather some. What could I do for her, anyway?" Then a happy thought seemed to come to him, for he jumped up and climbed higher and higher and higher over the rough path until he was out of sight. When he came back his hands were full of beautiful wild roses and sweet violets.

He ran with them to the old blind woman. As soon as he slipped up by her chair, she said, "Oh, what do I smell? It is just like the wild roses and violets that grow far up the mountain. How I wish I could see to climb the path once more. If I could only have one rose to hold in my hand and smell its perfume, I would be happy." Then Carl laughed a soft little laugh and put the whole bunch of sweet smelling flowers up to her nose. The old woman laughed and cried as she buried her face in her flowers. "I can't see you, but I know that laughs belongs to little Carl. He is a kind little boy to climb so far to get flowers just to cheer an old blind woman like me."

Carl was so glad that he could cheer these old people that he went up the mountain every day that summer to gather flowers or herbs for the people who were so old, or so sick, or so blind, or so lame that they could not climb the rough path. He brought cheer to so many people that ever after that happy summer they called him, "Cheerful Carl."—Little Beginner.

THE LITTLE BROWN LAMB

"Most stories begin with 'once upon a time,' and carry you back into the dim and hazy past, or transport you into fairyland," said Miss Bernice Steed, who told me about a little brown girl living away over in India. Would you like to hear about her?

The name of this little girl is Manu. You will be surprised when I tell you that although Manu is only a little girl, she is married! That may seem strange to you, but Manu was very happy to know that she need not worry about her future. She thinks it is very strange that boys and girls in America never get married until they are quite grown up. Her big black eyes opened wide with wonder when she heard that they do not know whom they will marry until they are grown up.

Manu was taken to the home of her husband when she was only a very little girl. She had to do all kinds of housework. Her mother told her before she left her home that she must always do all that her mother-in-law told her to do, and above all, she must always seek to please her husband.

Manu had to work hard in the home of her husband. She had to carry water on her head from the village well. She had to scour the brass cooking vessels, gather fuel, and learn to make bread. She did not mind the hard work, and tried very hard to please her husband and mother-in-law. Her life would not have been so unhappy had she had a little kindness shown her. But instead of kind words, there were cross words and curses, and stinging blows on her head. Sometimes she felt as though she could not endure her miserable life. Death would have been very welcome.

One day Manu could not stand it longer. She watched for an opportunity and stole quietly away. Just where to go she did not know, but she fled from the miserable home of her husband. On, on she went as fast as she could go. Her little heart fluttered and beat hard against her chest. Tears filled her eyes, but she dare not cry, nor even stop to brush the tears away. What a lonely big world it was for little Manu! But she was not alone, for the watchful eye of the tender Shepherd was following the wandering little brown lamb.

As she trudged alone, she met a lady who had a kind face, who smiled at the forlorn little girl. The lady's face was white, but that did not matter to Manu. The smile had won her little heart. Before she knew it she was telling the stranger all about her miserable life. Sobs shook her frail little body, and great tears rolled down her cheeks.

"Will you come with me?" asked the missionary kindly.

Manu somehow forgot to be afraid as she looked up at the kind missionary, and trustfully she walked along beside her.

Before long they stood before the door of a mission hospital. There again she saw another sweet-faced missionary. Manu's body was covered with sores which were very contagious, but the little arms went around the missionary regardless of the miserable sores. The little heart was aching for love.

The child was tenderly cared for, and one day she was told that she could leave the hospital. She was overjoyed to think that she could live in the children's compound, which was to be her new home. How happy she was there, surrounded with girls of her own age. These girls had learned to love Jesus, and their lives were bubbling over with joy and peace. There was no fear of being beaten or scolded here. Manu played so hard that first day at the school she could hardly walk to her bed, which was a mat on the floor. It was the first free and happy day she had ever experienced in all her little life. School had not yet opened, and the chidren were enjoying their vacation.

Manu looked forward to the time when school would begin. Each day she would run to the missionary and ask, "When does school begin?" She had never been to school, and she thought it must be something nice. She enjoyed the holiday, but was eager to have it over. Not long after she had been there, the missionary presented her with her school clothes. How her eyes sparkled then. "A dress to wear and a dress to put in the tin box!" she exclaimed, for one dress was to be worn only on Sunday. Manu had never been so rich before.

The following Sunday, Manu went with the rest of the girls to the large chapel to worship God. "What a strange temple," she thought. She looked around the entrance to find the bell that awakens the sleeping gods. She glanced all around the building, but not in any nook or corner could she find any idols. "Where were the offerings of cocoanut or flowers for the gods?" she wondered. "Surely the gods will be angry, and some evil will come upon us." But the reverent procession went into the temple without the ringing of the bell. Then they began to worship another God. He was the Living God of whom Manu had never heard.

After that she joined the others in attending the chapel services regularly. And it was there in the chapel of the Living God that little Manu heard about her black heart. She also heard that the God above would wash her heart as white as snow, or rather as white as new white cloth. Manu had never seen snow in all her little life.

Tears streamed down the little brown face. Muffled sobs were heard by those near by. They were sobs of repentance for sins committed against a God, so holy. But after a while, Manu began to realize that the great God in Heaven loved her, and had forgiven all her sins. Then tears of joy rolled down her cheeks, and smiles radiated her face for at last the little wandering lamb had found the great loving Shepherd.—Alliance Weekly.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE VICE-PRESIDENT

So often the woman who accepts the position as vice-president of the auxiliary does so with the feeling that the position is unimportant and that so long as the president is always present to fulfill her duties there is little actual work for her to do. Do not make the office of the vice-president a nominal one. Each office to which a woman is elected in the auxiliary is of prime importance and in just so far as she tries to make that office the best in the auxiliary, just so far will she succeed.

Qualifications

In selecting a vice-president remember that she should have all the qualifications of a president. She should thoroughly understand the plan of organization of the auxiliary and also be in touch with the program of the denomination and the progress of the work in the different fields.

Duties

The vice-president shall in the absence of the president perform all the duties of the president and upon the resignation or death of the president shall become president and hold office until the next annual election. She should therefore acquire a knowledge of parliamentary law that will enable her to preside over a meeting in a business-like way.

In addition to these general duties she should serve in some definite chairmanship. She sholud be the logical chairman of a Fellowship or Social committee to promote acquaintances and fellowship among the members. This would mean that she would assist the president in unofficial visiting and so come to know the personnel of the auxiliary in a way which will be of great value to her if she should become president. She should be a connecting link between new women in the church and the members of long standing.

In this day of many activities, the custom of social visiting among church people seems already to have ceased. To have it revived would be a great help to every church. To know a woman in her home is to acquire a sympathy and understanding not possible in any other way. Why should not the missionary organization, which includes every woman in the church, have a definite program of visiting and let the vice-president be its promoter?

As Social Director it will also be her duty to arrange all the dates for the entertainments that the circles plan to give during the year. Let each Circle Chairman report to her the form of entertainment and the date desired, and let her fit these into the general schedule of the church so that there may be no conflict of dates and no duplication of entertainment. She should also, with her Committee, co-operate in every way possible in making each Circle affair a success.

Vice-President of the Branch

As in the Auxiliary so in the Branch, the Vice-President should have all the quaifications of the President. The office of vice-president should never be considered a nominal one, and she should have definite duties.

In the absence of the President, the Vice-President shall perform all the duties of the President and upon resignation or death of the President shall become President and hold office until the next annual election.

Whatever duty the Vice-President performs it is done of course with the President's consent and co-operation. To sum up—she is in every way the President's "right-hand man."

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Anderson Charge.—We have been kindly received for our second year here and the people are doing some fine work. The Sunday school at Fair View, under the leadership of Mr. T. B. Nalley, is steadily growing and they are looking forward to the time when they will have two hunderd atttending regularly. The Ladies' Aid and Christian Endeavor are doing some splendid work under the leadership of Miss Montz. Henderson. They have bought and paid for a piano since conference and are planning to do other things for the church. We are proud of these good people and the work they are doing for the betterment of the community and for the Master and we are looking forward to their doing greater work. Liberty Hill church is doing fine work in the Sunday school, under the leadership of Mr. Legue Davis, they are not making so much gain but they are having around one hundred present each Sunday, but we are looking forward to the time when we will have a much larger attendance. Our Ladies' Aid is doing fine work under the leadership of Mrs. Willie Green. Since conference they have bought and paid for new light for the church. The Christian Endeavor is doing some splendid work under the leadership of Miss Emma Lee Pool, although they have only been organized for a short time. We are looking for them to do a great deal for the church in the way of attendance to the Sunday school. Last month but not least on the twenty-first we were out at this church and when we started to return home we had to pack up in order to get in our car, for it had been stormed and we could hardly get in. We thank each one that had a part in this great surprise. PASTOR.

Hickory Grove.—We are still moving along. Our people have a mind to work and have been working.

On the third day of March, 1930, our church was burned and everything in it, and we only had $1,500 insurance, so we thought we were completely ruined. One cannot realize what the loss of a church means to a community until they lose one. Some thought best for us not to try to build again, and some said we could not buid. Others said we must have a church, and we can build and we are going to, and I am glad to say I have never seen a church and community co-operate in a better spirit. So we now have a nice brick veneer building with some Sunday school rooms that cost $4,000, and we don't owne a penny. The pews are not painted and we haven't got a piano yet and the church is not lighted as it should be but outside this our church is complete in every way. While it was a great misfortune to lose our church we can't help but think it has proved to be a blessing for it has caused a spiritual awakening in our church.

We were very much pleased to have Mr. and Mrs. Peeler on our work another year and I think if the people will co-operate with them thero will be a decided improvement on Guilford charge.

The Woman's auxiliary is very active. They have figured a large part in building our church.

Our Sunday school is doing fine; the attendance has been fairly good for the winter. A very fine Christmas programme was given by the Sunday school.

NORA JONES.

Union Chapel, Granville Charge.—This being the writer's first report since conference, I wish to say that we are not asleep if we do appear to be. We were very glad to have our pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, returned to us. He has been giving us some very helpful sermons especially in these distressing times which we are now passing through.

On the second Sunday afternoon his text was: "Woe unto them that are at ease in Zion." He said there were three kinds of church members, non-goers, bench warmers, and the Spirit-filled member. This was indeed a good sermon. At this hour an offering was taken for our church paper printing deficits. On January 24, he gave another very inspiring sermon, "Consecration," being the subject.

Our Missionary auxiliary met on January 1, with Mrs. O. L. Stewart at her home on the Raleigh road, with a good attendance, but not as many as was hoped for. We haven't raised as much of our budget as we usually do at this time of the year, but are hoping to do so before branch meeting.

Our Christian Endeavor has been meeting in the homes for the last two Sundays at 7:30. It was held in the home of Mrs. L. E. Barnes on Sunday, January 17, with Miss Lucy Davis as leader. The subject was: "My Share In the Home." On January 24, it was held at the home of Miss Emily Floyd and she also had charge of the program. Between 25 and 35 were present at each of these meetings.

We are very sorry to have lost two of our members—Mrs. Lucille Fuller and Mrs. Tony Edwards.

We extend our sympathy to our former pastor, Rev. C. W. Bates, in the loss of his father.

Mrs. Rebecca Clyaton who has been confined to her bed for seven weeks is improving.

REPORTER.

Why Not.—At our regular appointment at Love Joy last second Sunday we had a large congregation of attentive listeners. We have a peculiar joy in preaching to this congregation, not so much because it is large and attentive, but because it was in this community we first saw the light of life, and it was here out in the woods during one of the great revivals for which the church has ever been noted, we were born in His kingdom. The old camp meetings are gone, but the influence of these meetings and those who made them possible still lives.

The church has a fine Sunday school under the leadership of Brother Hobart Reynolds. This young man is a grandson of one of the pioneer buliders of the church and community and we are glad that he is beginning to wear so well the mantle of his grandfather—Uncle James Reynolds. We remember very distinctly that the choir here for 30 or 40 years was led by Uncle Lindsay Moore, and no better song leader coud be found anywhere in that section at that time. His mantle seems to have fallen upon the shoulders of the father of our superintendent, and by the leadership of Brother A. H. Reynolds, Love Joy now has a fine choir composed largely of the young people of the community. Later, perhaps, we will be able to give a complete history of this church and some of the wonderful camp meetings held here years ago.

At our January appointment we had the pleasure of being in the home of one of our relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maness. We enjoyed not only the good dinner, but appreciated the fine lot of cabbage given us—perhaps 50 pounds or more. We also wish to thank Mrs. Russell Williams, of New Hope, Mrs. C. T. and Mrs. Wister Williams of Flag Springs, Brother Noah King of New Zion, and the Fair Grove congregation for the things they have given us.

Fair Grove church will observe Young People's day the first Sunday night and Love Joy the second Sunday.

GEO. L. REYNOLDS.

Roberta.—I approve of making reports short and I shall try to do so. I think the church here is about normal with the average. There is good interest in the Sunday school work under the leadership of Brother Zeb Cochran. People are very attentive to the preaching of the word but the biggest task is to get people to do the word. People have remembered us very kindly in a financial way. On the night of the 15th they stampeded the parsonage and pounded us with many things. Last Monday Brother J. B. Hill increased our stock. So you see we are advocating the live at home plan. It is not the value that makes our hearts swell u pin us but the spirit. May the dear Lord enrich the joy of each given and may pastor and family and people all be happier in the service of His kingdom and work harder for the salvation of the lost because of these things.

A very sad thing happened in sight of the church Tuesday night, when Jack Dees was shot to death in his home through his window from the darkness outside. His funeral was conducted today from Fair View church by the writer assisted by Brothers Stevens, pastor of Baptist church.

How sin can get such control of a man that he will take the life of a father and leave a poor mother to care for four little children I can't understand. May God in His loving way bind up all the broken hearts and may the dear Lord work out of this the salvation of many who are lost about us.

JOEL B. TROGDON.

First Church, Albemarle.—The Men's Bible class have on a campaign for new members. On January 16th Rev. J. R. Anderson entertained about 40 members in the dining hall of the church. Since that time the men have been working with great zeal and earnestness to increase their attendance.

The Kam Snotherly circle gave a very interesting and enjoyable program last Friday night. The program was known as "Stunt Night," and as every one enjoys stunts a large number attended the program. Mrs. J. R. Anderson who directed the training of the characters was highly praised for her efforts. Many went home with severe headaches and holding their sides from continous laughter. The proceeds will go toward the indebtedness of the church.

Rev. and Mrs. Anderson returned to their home last Thursday. Mr. Anderson was called to Atlanta, Ga., to conduct a funeral for a very old member of our conference. Mrs. Anderson and the children accompanied him to her mother's who lives near Atlanta.

Last Sunday being the fifth Sunday our regular union service was held in the Tabernacle M. E. church. Rev. J. R. Anderson delivered the sermon for the hour, with West Albemarle Baptist church furnishing the music. A large crowd attended the service.

Next Sunday being the first Sunday the doors of the church will be open at the morning and evening services for new members.

Mrs. Frank Harkey who has been confined to her home for several months on account of ill health was able to attend the morning service yesterday. We were all glad to have Mrs. Harkey back in her regular place.

Pinnacle, Mt. Zion Charge.—On the second Sunday Rev. A. L. Hunter brought us a wonderful message as usual.

Our Sunday school had a nice program and Christmas tree on the night of December 26th. Our school is holding up in attendance very well.

The Methodist and the Baptist Sunday schools and the people of the community, did a good and thoughtful act by giving Odell Moser, who is greatly afflicted with rheumatism, a wheel chair, to brighten up his Christmas and all through the year. He certainly appreciates it, and wishes to thank all his friends through the Herald.

Lexington.—Our Sunday school is still holding up well, we had 238 present today despite the cold weather.

Our preaching services are also being well-attended, in our morning service we had almost a church full and the pastor delivered a very inspiring message on being a witness for Jesus at all times. He held the close attention of the large congregation during the service and some very interesting and inspiring thoughts were brought out.

We are planning to build new Sunday school rooms at an early date; the committee was appointed in the evening service to start raising the money for this work which we hope to do in a short time. We have been in bad need of more room for sometime as we do not have room for the large crowds which we now have each Sunday. We are hoping that our friends in and around Lexington will help us to make room for our increasing attendance.

On next Saturday the Ladies' Aid society is having a barbecue dinner and supper at the church and the proceeds of this will go on the building and we are hoping that we may have a large crowd present to help the Ladies' Aid make a success out of this.

Lebanon, High Point.—We were very delighted to have with us on Sunday evening, January 24 the A Capella choir from High Point college under the direction of Prof. Ernest B. Stimson. The inspiring program presented was greatly enjoyed. We are proud of the work Prof. Stimson is doing with this group of young people from our college.

Last Sunday morning our pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison, preached on the subject, "The Evaluation of Time." This sermon especially challenged the young people to begin now and make much of time.

On Sunday evening a program was presented by the young people of the church. In this service a modern interpretation of "The Knight of the Holy Grail" was dramatized. After which the young people stood and pledged themselves anew to Christ and His service.

Christian Endeavor week was begun last Sunday afternoon by a joint meeting of the Junior, Intermediate and Senior societies. Members from each society took part in this program. Various programs, consisting of sunshine meetings, mission study classes, socials, etc., have been planned by the Christian Endeavorers for the coming week. The Senior society will conduct the evening service next Sunday.

Charlotte.—Circles 1 and 2 will meet Tuesday, the 9th, with Mrs. Thompson, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Kelly, on Central avenue. At a recent meeting of the Auxiliary Mrs. R. M. Andrews was elected key-woman and Mrs. C. H. Daughtry representative from our church to the Interdenominational Missionary Union meeting on the fifth Monday.

Jos. Atkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Atkins, is ill with pneumonia.

Sunday being Young People's Day in our denomination, our C. E. Society presented a splendid program. Lewis Garmon conducted the meeting. Next Sunday evening Miss Maud Little, president of the C. E. Union of Mecklenburg county, and Mr. Chester Morrison, vice-president, will meet with our society. Next Tuesday the C. E. County Union will meet here in Charlotte at the First Baptist church for an all-day conference. Sessions at 10 a. m., 2 p. m. and 8 p. m., with a banquet at Efird's dining room. Our quota is 15 tickets at 75 cents. Come on, young folks, teachers, superintendents and directors, let's help put this thing over. It will bring new ideas, higher ideals and renewed determination to go forward in our Master's work.

The Philathea class members are looking forward with much pleasure to a party Tuesday evening which their teacher, Mrs. McCall, is giving at her home on Parkwood avenue.

The Baraca basketball team is conquering everything it meets.

Mr. and Mrs. Haigler and children from Gastonia worshipped with us Sunday. They resided here until recently. We miss Mrs. Haigler especially from the choir.

Sunday morning Dr. R. M. Andrews used the subject, "The Futility of War," basing his remarks on "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God." He spoke of the heavy cost of war in money, manhood and health possibly outweighing any good that might come of war. He showed that wars are usually caused by hatred, greed, selfishness and misunderstanding between peoples or nations. Heavy armaments also tend to incite wars. War seldom, if ever, settles great questions aright, since might and not justice is the controlling factor. He spoke tellingly of the aftermath of war. Regardless of who wins the nations always reap a terrible toll of death, disease, crime wave and a lowered moral tone amongst the people; and last but not least, an enormous burden of increased taxation. The war is an economic non-producer, destroying most valuable resources of the nation, especially the flower of our manhood. But how can we avoid war? Someone will say Nations might largely use the economic boycott. instead of the sword. Individuals should learn to love and trust each other more—work for peace, pray more—be loyal and true to Christ and His kingdom work—follow more closely the precept and example of our Lord and Master, whose life was an exemplification of peace on earth, good will to men.

The evening sermon text was "For I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus."

He showed how the Apostles, especially Paul, suffered persecutions and stripes for the cause of Christ. He emphasized the fact that the modern Christian is not called upon to suffer stripes and persecutions, indignities and humiliation as did the Apostes, who were pioneers in the cause of Christianity. We of the present day may be called to endure sacrifice or self-denial for the cause of Christ and His church.

May we so live that we, too, may bear the marks of our Lord by greater loyalty, more zeal, enthusiasm and diligence in His cause and hear Him say unto us, "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

First Church, High Point.—While the minister was speaking at Burlington and Graham in the interest of High Point College bonds, Dr. Paul S. Kennett delivered an impressive discourse from the text, Ruth 1:16, "And Ruth said, Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest, I will go, and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God." He said that there is no more fascinating story in the Bible than the book of Ruth, though it contains only four chapters, and no more beautiful romance in all literature. In studying this story, we find that there are four outstanding characters: Naomi, the mother-in-law; Orpah and Ruth, the daughters-in-law, and Boaz, the rich bachelor. The old woman had experienced a large measure of sorrow, first in being obliged to leave her home, driven by famine, with her husband, Elimelech, and two sons, Mahlon and Chilion, and sojourn in the land of Moab. Elimelech died, and the sons married Moabitish women, Ruth and Orpah. After ten years both the sons died, and Naomi with the two daughters-in-law set out to return to her native land of Judah. She entreated Orpah and Ruth to return to their own people and gods; Orpah wept and kissed her mother-in-law goodbye, but Ruth, faithful and true to her convictions and sense of duty, clove unto her, and returned with her to Bethlehem. Ruth showed practical sympathy, for she decided to go with her mother-in-law and take care of her as long as she needed her. We see much terrible distress about us, but the one who goes down into his pocket and gives liberally of his substance shows real and practical sympathy. In the second place, Ruth showed loyalty to her mother-in-law, which is a fine trait and easy as long as things run smoothly. A father and son, who was undecided as to attending Yale or Princeton University, went to witness a football game between teams of the two schools. After Yale won, the boy said, "I am going to Princeton, for there are some things more important than victory, one of which is loyalty to the team." Then Ruth showed intelligent obedience. In those olden days the patriarch ruled the family. We must remember that democracy does not mean anarchy; although as a church we have boasted that we did not have a bishop in a land without a king, we need to learn the lesson of obedience to law and order. We thought we learned during the World War that it is not necessary to work, but we cannot produce real wealth except by real production; we can do different kinds of work, some are teachers, authors, musicians. In the fourth place Ruth's character and reputation were both good. Boaz said he had heard of her and her goodness to Naomi. It is highly important to have a good reputation; this present generation of young people is just as fine and splendid as that of any time, but sometimes I fear that they do not have enough regard for what other people think of their actions. Lastly, Ruth had the right relation to life and her God. She had accepted God as her Master, and stood firm by her convictions. If we have the right relation with God, Jesus is standing knocking and waiting to fill our lives with sweetness. At this service the choir rendered a beautiful anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord," the solo parts being sweetly sung by C. L. Gray, Jr.

There was no evening service, but the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society held its usual meeting at 6:30 o'clock.

Next Sunday morning Holy Communion will be observed by the congregation, and quarterly conference will convene the following Wednesday evening, February 10th.

Prof. Ernest B. Stimson and the orchestra and choir of High Point College motored to Brown Summit Sunday afternoon, and rendered a delightful program of music at 3 o'cock. The trip was made in Rev. N. M. Harrison's bus, there being about 40 members of the party. Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of the college, delivered an able address The Sixth District Rally was in session, and it was an all-day session for the Brown Summit people.

Prof. L. R. Johnston's address at Jamestown before the Parent-Teacher Association last Thursday evening has been highly complimented, his subject on this occasion having been "Character Building." He is the efficient and popular principal of High Point High School.

The honor roll of the high school and the junior high school, both for the semester and the third six-weeks term, as published yesterday in the local Enterprise contains the following names of children of our membership and church school: Helen Davis, Margaret Dixon, and Leonard Koonce, juniors; Also Gray and Vera York, sophomores; Ruth Lee, Virginia Dixon, and Dorothy Davis, freshmen; and in the junior high, Jeanne Rankin, Jack Lee, Joe Gray, Reginald Hinshaw, Raymond York, Mildred Free, Mary Elizabeth Farmer, and Virginia Horney.

Dr. G. I. Humphreys will address the general meeting of the Woman's Club on Wednesday afternoon at the Elwood Hotel on "George Washington."

We are very sorry to announce that Mrs. John B. Ogburn had a relapse, but is resting more comfortably today.

The new law firm of Dalton and Pickens has been formed, the partnerships to become effective February 1st. Dr. Dred Peacock has retired from the firm of Peacock and Dalton, and will practice alone. Carter Dalton, formerly of Greensboro, has been engaged in practice here since 1913, but Rupert T. Pickens, Jr., is one of the younger lawyers of the city, having been graduated from the University of North Carolina with the class of 1925, and studied law there in 1925-26. They have offices in the Commercial National Bank building.

Messrs. C. L. and J. A. Gray and the boys motored to Brown Summit to attend the concert Sunday.

Tyson T. Ferree, one of our active young church workers, passed the state examination for architects last week, and has been awarded the contract for drawing plans for a group of store buildings in Thomasville, which are to be erected by Congressman J. Walter Lambeth.

Mrs. Martha E. Blair is still improving.

Judge Oglesby, of Concord, who is presiding over Superior Court in Greensboro this week, came over yesterday afternoon and was dinner guest of Judge and Mrs. Lewis E. Teague at their home on Johnson street

Thomasville.—Our Christian Endeavor is a helpful service for the young people. The new officers took their positions last Sunday and are eager to have a successful year in Christian Endeavor. Our new president, Mrs. Myers, is an excellent C. E. worker, and with her leading, we are hoping to make much progress.

Last Sunday evening a union meeting was held at our church. All the other Methodist churches met with us at that hour to hear Rev. Mr. Cline. He preached a very interesting sermon, and the large crowd went away helped in many ways.

As next Sunday is Young People's Day, we are planning a pageant entitled, "The Quest of the Holy Grail."

Lincolnton Charge.—Yesterday was a red-letter day with our church. The Fifteenth District Rally was held. Rev. C. E. Ridge is chairman of this district, and had worked out a splendid program which was very much enjoyed by all. The writer has heard several fine comments from the members of our church, all of which indicates that the rally was a great success. We believe that our church is in better condition to render real service in the name of Him whose we are and whom we serve, Jesus Christ our Lord.

Lincolnton church is doing fine work, January 10th, at our regular morning worship, we had invited Rev. Earl Armstrong of Gastonia, N. C. to preach for us, and at that service a revival broke out and for the next two weeks we had a glorious old time revival that swept this community. Many souls were born into the Kingdom of God. Most of our converts were adults. On the last Sunday night of our meeting the writer noticed an elderly lady at the altar. On questioning her she said that she was 68 years old and had never been converted. A few moments later our hearts were made to rejoice when she arose and accepted Christ as her personal Savior. Indeed this was a great meeting, 100 conversions and 23 additions to the church. Several more have indicated their desire to unite with us. We believe we will get at least 35 members from the results of our meeting.

On Friday night, January 22 our heart was made glad by one of the finest poundings we have ever had, so many useful things for the kitchen. These folks surely know how to make a preacher's heart glad; for all these we are truly thankful.

Our Sunday school is doing good work; we can see very noticeable increase in both interest and attendance. The C. E. society has doubled its attendance since Christmas; these young folks have this work at heart and are doing a very constructive piece of work.

Bessemer City is very much alive. Preaching services are well attended. Our church building is small and one of the problems that is facing us now is how to accommodate the folks, but we trust that this will all be worked out in due time. Since our Annual Conference we have had six conversions and one addition to the church, others are to come in next Sunday. Sunday school is well attended with a good interest. Here we have a wide awake C E. society that is doing a splendid piece of work.

Fairfield folks are still active; not so many in numbers but some of the very salt of the earth is to be found here; they have had Sunday school regularly each Sunday this year, and are doing a very creditable piece of work.

May we ask the Herald and its many readers to remember us in your prayers.

J. D. CRANFORD.

Porter.—Since Rev. J. R. Anderson has been assigned to our church regular preaching services have been changed to the second and fourth Sunday aftrnoons at 2:30 o'clock. On these Sundays S. S. begins at 1:30; on other Sundays at 10:00 a. m.

Mr. Anderson has filled two appointments here, on the second Sunday in January and last Sunday. Splendid messages were delivered and the attendance was good. After service last Sunday a business meeting was held and new officers were elected for the year.

Our first quarterly conference will be held Friday night, February 5, at 7:30. All members, especially the official members, are urged to attend.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—The sermon for the fourth Sunday morning fit into the denominational Young People's Day as promoted by the Board of Christian Education. The subject was "Josiah; A Youth in Revolt." Josiah lived among a people who had forgotten God, neglected His worship, lost His Word, and polluted His land. Like Wesley, the revolt which Josiah led was not instantaneous but progressive; it began first in his own heart, resulting in a revolt against all evil, wickedness and sin. This the only revolt that is worthy of youth and to youth makes its first appeal. Such a revolt on its positive side is crusading for goodness and God. If properly understood it would capture the heart of all youth.

Young People's Day was observed Sunday night by the Christian Endeavor society with a special program.

On reporting the banquet in my last report I failed to mention the most important part which was the gift of $150. to High Point college by Mrs. W. R. Neville as announced on this occasion. The people of Halifax charge appreciate this more than words can tell.

Mr. and Mrs. Fogleman say that the pantry in the parsonage is loaded with good things to eat as they have been receiving poundings recently. The people of Hollister church pounded them on Thanksgiving night and the people of Eden church gave them a pounding last week and Bethesda church gave them one week before last. This added to wild turkey gives them a plenty to eat for a while. Mr. Fogleman killed a wild turkey on Thanksgiving and another one about two weeks ago. No matter how many go in the chase Mr. Fogleman always kills the turkey. Wonder if we have any other preacher in the conference that can beat Mr. Fogleman killing turkeys; if so, let's hear from them.

On Monday afternoon several people met at the church and planted shrubbery on the church lawn. Mrs. Wheeler, the Halifax county demonstration agent, assisted in the work. We hope to have a beautiful church lawn in the future.

Lexington, State St.—All departments of the church are active and enthusiastic and striving to reach a worthy goal.

The Sabbath school is growing in attendance and interest. Mrs. H. S. Lanier was recently elected superintendent and is a very efficient one.

The Ninth District rally was held at Shiloh last Sunday afternoon. State St. was well represented.

A joint meeting of the missionary societies met at the church Wednesday night of last week for a business session followed by a social period and a play given by the Young Ladies' circle under the direction of Mrs. F. J. Cox. There were four readings by Mrs. Hendry, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. W. G. Hall and Mrs. Ed Foster which were greatly enjoyed. Sandwiches and coffee were served. The evening was a success in every sense.

The first quarterly conference will be held at the church next Wednesday night, Dr. Taylor is expected to be with us at this time. We are always glad to have Dr. Taylor address us on any subject and are looking forward with peasure to his coming.

We were pleased to receive Miss Frances Lamb into church membership a few Sundays ago.

Our pastor, Rev. G. H. Hendry, was recently elected president of the Ministerial Association of the city.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Hartley is seriously ill with pneumonia. They have our sympathy and prayers in their time of fear and anxiety.

MEN OF AMERICA

Men of America,
Marching along,
Freeborn and happy,
Steadfast and strong.

Men of high purpose,
Leading and light,
Toiling together,
Championing right.

Men of endeavor,
Soldiers of peace,
Praying together,
Warfare to cease.

Sturdy in hardship,
Staunch in defeat,
Standing together,
Scorning retreat.

Men of America,
Marching along,
Freeborn and happy,
Steadfast and strong.

A POUNDING FOR EACH

You remember that some time ago I gave an account of how the preacher's wife was attacked while he was away? Well, last night Fountain Place reversed the order and came at me while my wife was away.

There was an unusual attendance at Christian Endeavor last night, but there has been a continual increase in attendance of late and I never paid any attention to that more than to be glad for the increase.

After C. E. meeting I noticed that those who were never so much interested in choir practice, kept staying on. But that is not unusual here, for our folks are very genial and often linger in the aisle, or on the outside and talk after services. So I was still dumb as to what was going on.

So after choir practice Brother Gilbert Amick came to me and said, "Let us see how you look with your glasses off." Then he proceeded to blindfold me and lead me down to the dining room—he said to ride the goat. I began to suspect that there was something up. It seemed a long way they were leading me, and I thought there was no danger. (If there had been my wife was not there to help me out having stayed at Gibsonville to help the young ladies with their pageant.)

Well, when they got me into the church kitchen they took off the blindfold and behold what a sight! Table full of great variety of groceries, sixty-three packages—and there must have been at least 50 present counting the juniors,—and that is just one package different in number from the pounding Mrs. Bethea received from the Gibsonville church when I was away. So if you can remember what that was you will know who got the biggest pounding. That was good evening-up all right.

Dr. T. M. Johnson was present to our delight, and he told the folks that if I preached better next time they could see it was because they treated me so well. If I did not do so well, it would be because I had eaten too much. Well, there is danger of the latter, though I shall try to do better in appreciation of what has been done.

Thank you, folks! And we are busy night and day trying to do all we can to push forward the interests of the Kingdom in these two churches, and to help the folks in every way we can. No one but him who is thus treated knows how it feels. God bless you every one. We do not know all the givers, for there were but few names on the packages.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Davis

Dore Davis, daughter of A. W. and Carrie Crews Davis of Winston-Salem, was born in Stokes county 25 years ago and departed this life January 28, 1932. From childhood she possessed a studious mind and gave herself wholeheartedly to every task committed to her. She graduated from the R. J. Reynolds high school in Winston-Salem and attended Salem college one year. She then entered the teaching profession and was principal of a school near Bellews Creek when her health completely gave way and for six years she was an invalid, gradually declining until the end came. Before her health failed she was active in Sunday school and Christian Endeavor work and gave every evidence of being a true Christian.

A brief funeral was held at the home on January 30 and the main service was held in the Methodist Protestant church at Pinnacle. The writer was assisted in the service by an uncle of the deceased, Rev. A. L. Hunter, and a cousin, Rev. R. A. Hunter.

She is survived by her parents and three brothers, Cecil of Coatsville, Pa., John of Baltimore, Md., and Jimmy of Winston-Salem, and by three sisters, Mrs. J. B. Winecoff of Greensboro, Miss Joem of Washington, D. C., and Miss Sibyl Davis of Winston-Salem.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Thompson

Thomas Lowe Thompson died January 29, 1932, aged 62 years, five months, and one day.

Brother Thompson was converted and joined Efland M. P. church July 7, 1929. He remained a faithful member until death.

A large congregation assembled at Efland M. P. church for the funeral services January 31. These services were conducted by the writer. The remains were then placed in the church cemetery.

He leaves of his close relatives, his wife, one son, one sister and several brothers, also a large circle of other relatives and friends. May God comfort them all.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Garrett

Mary Ellen Phillips was born November 23, 1852. She was married to Rev. J. N. Garrett, December 21, 1876. Passed from labor to reward January 26, 1932.

Surviving are the folowing six children: Mrs. Jewel Isley, Graham; Mrs. Ida D. Holder, Asheboro; Col. Ruby D. Garrett, Kansas City, Mo.; Brice P. Garrett, Mocksville; Miss Vera Garrett, Pocahontas, Va., and Vance S. Garrett, Graham. She also leaves fifteen grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, two brothers, Millard Phillips, Yadkin College, and Lee Phillips, Lexington, two sisters, Mrs. Mattie Smets, Hopedale, Ill., and Mrs. S. J. Worley, Charlotte.

Sister Garrett was one of the most cheerful women, always looking on the bright side of life. She became a Christian early in life and was a helpmeet indeed to her husband, and passed through many hardships doubtless as the wife of all intinerant preachers do, who are interested in the success of their husbands.

It was the privilege of the writer to know her only during his pastorate of Yadkin College church, and she was always interested in the welfare of her church and pastor. Many expressions, not only in words, but in deeds, as well, proved this. Many things could be said of her for these acts, but all who knew her as the writer did, can testify to that.

Surely her children can arise and call her blessed, for her interest in them which was abiding. She is now gone to share in the rewards that she helped her husband to gain and doubtless a crown of rejoicing is hers.

To the sorrowing ones she has left a rich heritage and one that shall be a comfort to them in the years to come.

Drs. Taylor and Johnson, and Revs. Mabry and Holmes spoke words of appreciation of her life. Other ministers were there, who did not take part, to show their interest and sympathy.

Many sorrowing friends were at Mt. Hermon that day to pay their tribute of respect as we laid her body away to await the Resurrection Morn.

THE SEASONS

I'd like to write something
About gentle Spring,
But seek the right word
To rhyme with the thing,—
Bring—cling—ding—fling—
There now I have it—
Gay birds on the wing.

The sweet summertime
Would be a good scheme,
If I could find words
To suit the fair theme,—
Boon—soon—moon—spoon—
I really can't do it,
My mind is a dream.

An ode to bright Autumn
I wish much to write,
But words are capricious
And keep out of sight,—
Weaves—grieves—leaves—sheaves—
Like birds in a panic
My thoughts are in flight.

And then there is Winter
Crisp, powerful and bold,—
Words must be sturdy
To fit well this mould,—
Knees—freeze—breeze—sneeze—
I'm done with the subject,
My pen is quite cold!

PRUDENCE

By GRENVILLE KLEISER

1. Build a reputation for prudence.
2. Cultivate prudence through deliberateness. Form this valuable habit today.
3. Be prudent in small matters, so that this valuable quality wil be a habit, not merely an impluse.
4. Be prudent in forming opinions and judgments. You will have occasion to use this suggestion in your daily business.
5. Be prudent in your private affairs. Keep personal matters to yourself. Avoid speaking of your future plans.
6. Be prudent in your money matters. This will demand great vigilance on your part. Remember it is easier to make money than to keep it.
7. Be prudent in making promises. Before obligating yourself, think out the possible contingencies.
8. Be prudent in forming alliances. This suggestion, intelligently applied, will save you from anxiety and possible loss.
9. Be prudent in making radical changes. Give special thought to this suggestion.
10. Be prudent in conversation. Your tongue should be your servant not your master.

Success, in the highest and best sense, means something more than mere accumulation of money. It means the possession of sound health, desirable friends, the capacity for wholesome pleasure, and the spirit of generous service.

We reap as we have sown. We improve by making an earnest and intelligent attempt, even though we fall short of perfection. It is character, not money, that ultimately commands the greatest respect and influence.

COLLEGE GAINS

Surveying 444 approved colleges and universities, the dean of Swarthmore College reports that there are, in this year of lean finances, 3,721 more students enrolled than last year and twenty per cent more than in the heydey of prosperity five years ago. It's pointed out, however, that when anybody is kept out of college it is generally the daughter, not the son—for women's enrollment, this year, decreased 2,044. Gains are largest in eastern colleges. In size, the University of California, including Berkley and Los Angeles branches, outranks all others with 18,342 enrolled, with Columbia second, at 15,109, and Minnesota third with 12,539. In Germany there has been an increase of nearly 71 per cent in the number of students attending college in the past eighteen years. In 1913 there were 77,000 college students in Germany, while today there are 132,000.—Christian Sun.

EASTERN FEDERATION

The Eastern Pastors Federation met in Littleton on Monday, January 25th. Dr. Humphreys, president of High Point college, addressed the Federation on the subject of Christian Education, and High Point college.

After the lecture by Dr. Humphreys, we held a business session. Reports were made by the pastors present, and other interests discussed. The officers were then elected, Rev. L. W. Gerringer was elected president, Rev. H. F. Surratt vice-president, and the writer re-elected secretary.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

Our Very Dear Friends:

We usually make out our reports for the Herald on Monday of each week, but on yesterday we held a trustee meeting and consequently were too busy all day to prepare the report. On this, Tuesday morning, I find myself sick and unable to prepare the report for this week. The report would be short anyway, so with your permission we will let it go over until next week.

In the meantime let me say the running expenses of this Home have been considerably behind now for over three years. Up to right recently our creditors were not specially pushing. Of course they wanted and needed their money. But now they are pressing for it because they actually need it. Their calls for funds are insistent.

We realize that many of you are hard pressed, too, but please remember your big family here at the Children's Home, and continue to share with us just as liberally as possible so that we may pay off bills just as fast as possible.

It is wonderful how our people have stood by us in the work here. We fully appreciate it, and love you with all our hearts. Let us keep pulling together steadily and the dear Lord will help us out. Our expectation is from the Lord. May His rich blessings be upon all His dear children. Pray for us.

Yours in the Master's service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

Fear you the place where adders sleep
But wake in time on you to leap?
Fear you the field where savage beast
Will rush and gore till life has ceased?

Fear you the wilds where beasts of prey
Lie waiting, watching all the day?
Fear you the raging flames that leap
And make all men their distance keep?

More dreadful thing that may befall
Is bite of Serpent Alcohol!
Beware! Beware! Be not deceived—
The lying speech do not believe!

The Malady of False Ambition

The newspapers now report that the late Emperor of Germany has come to be a raving maniac. This is regarded as a result of long brooding over his downfall through the World War. He reviews the mistakes of his subordinates, saying, "If only he had not done that!" He inherited a dominant position and hoped by conquest to make it more dominant. His ambition was made great by the circumstances of his birth and grew greater as his power enlarged. Unquestionably his malady is that of false ambition. His conduct in his retirement shows this as clearly as his conduct before his retirement. If when he was deposed he had gracefully and humbly retired to private life and by his personal labors made some useful contribution to the world, how differently would he be regarded today. But no, he must bear himself as a king, though without a kingdom. He plays emperor in the little sphere of his confinement. His false and foolish ambition is stimulated by his ungrounded hope of being recalled to the throne of imperial Germany. As time passes his hope is deferred, he becomes desperate, he is pronounced a raving maniac. A sad career!

But a man does not have to be born into a royal family to be afflicted with the dreadful malady of false ambition. No man is immune against it. It is no respecter of persons. It does not regard circumstances. The atmosphere of this world is charged with it. It turns the heads of people of all ranks, in church and state. Jesus saw it cropping out in the lives of his disciples and warned against it. It invariably leads to downfall if not destruction. Its achievements do not satisfy. It calls out for more worlds to conquer. It ever seeks to climb to higher heights. It makes one afflicted with it feverish and restless. It is a deep-seated disease and has its roots in selfishness. Get rid of selfishness and you will leave no soil in which false ambition can grow. But getting rid of selfishness is no easy problem. Jesus knew of no easy way to do it. He said that any one who would follow Him must deny himself and take up his cross daily. Self and its illegitimate demands must be starved out. Painful burdens that belong to us must be taken up and faithfully borne. He that would save his spiritual life must lose his carnal life. Sin in all its manifestations is destructive. The kaiser's case is not exceptional. A soul may move to its ruin on a small stage as quickly and as really as on a large one. The kaiser is pitiable now. But wreck of soul is always profoundly pitiable. What do men mean by concentrating all their energies in the pursuit of worldly good while they ignore and neglect their soul's deep and eternal needs?

Too Shocking to be Told

It may perhaps be told in whispers. It might happen again—and to you. Three good friends met to eat and drink and enjoy a social hour together. By mistake they chose a drink that had very disastrous effects. It blinded their minds, unsteadied their nerves, and inflamed their feelings. They went out in a car and drove it into a ditch. Two passing men took them in and carried them home. They rewarded them by drawing a pistol and shooting one of them down. The man that shot was himself killed by his own pistol. The two friends are charged with responsibility for the death of their friend. What a shocking affair! How could it have been avoided? Can you estimate the trouble it will cause to other people?

—The war in China is assuming serious proportions. One Chinese general is credited with saying that the war may last ten years. The Chinese hope by the force of superior numbers eventually to wear the Japanese out. But how much better to make peace and friendship.

—Reports from churches without pastors reveal the fact that services, interesting and effective, may be conducted by lay leaders. Laymen are given an honored rank in the Methodist Protestant Church, and these laymen-led services are just the thing to be expected under the circumstances. No Methodist Protestant church should be without its Sunday services simply because it has no pastor. Still it is much better to have a pastor who can give his whole time to the work of the church.

EVANGELIZING THE FILIPINOS

The Philippine Islands afford at present a wide and effectual door for the distribution of evangelical Christian literature in the English language. For many years, until 1930, Spanish was the official language in the Islands, but now the English language is taught in all the public schools, and is read or understood by nearly one-half of the population.

The younger generation, especially the student class, read and speak English and are anxious to secure suitable reading matter in that language. "In 1928 there were 1,111,509 pupils in the 7,311 public schools, with 293 American and 25,958 Filipino teachers. There were 655 private schools with 84,685 pupils and 2,823 teachers. The state-supported University of the Philippines in 1928-29 had 5,698 students."

A missionary of the Student Center in Iloilo tells of the difficulty in finding suitable books for the young people to read. She writes: "I have been more and more impressed as time goes on with the need of building up a library at the Student Center, and I am convinced that this is one definite way we can serve this great student community. I long to put worthwhile books into the hands of these thousands of students and teachers who are guiding their thoughts. The people who have been to school all use English. They learn to read, but they have no place to borrow or even buy books."

Another missionary writes: "English is being spoken by a rapidly increasing number of people in the Philippines. The majority of the younger generation speak it now, and it is the best means of communication in the Islands. I think that the printed page is one of the best ways at our disposal of spreading the Gospel message."

In view of this "Open Door" and "Golden Opportunity," the Bible Institute Colportage association of Chicago, founded by Dr. D. L. Moody in 1894 for the purpose of publishing and distributing evangelical Christian literature, is undertaking to supply the large demand for books, tracts and Scripture portions in the English language. One native worker writes from Manila to ask "if there is any fund for the supplying of books from the Moody Colportage Library free for English-speaking students in the foreign fields," and then he tells of the great need there. Another writes: "We do so want to scatter the Word in printed form where we cannot penetrate in person." Still another says: "Thank God for the books that you have furnished me. These and the tracts have opened the minds of the people about the truth of the saving grace of our Lord Jesus Christ." Such expressions come from native Christians who are anxious to distribute wholesome evangelical literature, and thus be a help to their own people. Shall we not give them the "Bread of Life" ere they perish?

While there is a growing demand for such Christian reading matter in the English language, such as is published by the association, there is also a growing tendency among the Filipinos toward materialism. These are perilous days for them. Many have revolted against the ecclesiastical domination and tyranny that has prevailed in the Islands for the past three centuries, but have not yet heard or believed the Gospel of Christ which alone is "the power of God unto salvation." Free thought, theosophy, spiritism, atheism and skepticism are winning many of the intelligentsia and supplanting the power of the church. One observer sees the present critical situation as a challenge to Christians. "There are those," he writes, "who are catching the vision, and all are open-minded and willing to see and listen, . . . I know of no place where people, particularly young people, are so eager to know, and so persistent and pertinent with their inquiries."

The Association is endeavoring to meet this challenge. It is in touch with missionaries and native Christian workers who can be depended upon to carefully distribute the literature sent them, but are not able to meet the necessary expenses involved. Shall we not help them at such a time as this? All who desire to co-operate with the association in sending its Colportage books, Evangel booklets, Pocket Treasurys, Scripture portions and Gospel tracts to the Philippine Islands for free distribution, may forward contributions to A. F. Gaylord, Treasurer of the D. L. Moody Missionary Book Funds, 843 North Wells Street, Chicago.

CHURCHES IN THE AIR

Houses of worship are not what they used to be. Church architecture has changed.

Six hundred years ago, inside a building which the centuries have not destroyed yet, the worshiper found himself surrounded by dark corners and lurking shadows. On every side was a dim uncertainty, suggesting the dangers and evil temptations of daily life. Nervously his eye glanced about and found no relief on any side. His soul was a fugitive in a world of darkness, eager for escape.

Yet the whole building was an invitation to look up! Columns pointed up. Ridges, angles, and grooves pointed up. The interior was full of architectural invitations to look up. Lines, beginning at the level of the eye on every side, led upward out of sight. In spite of himself, the downcast individual found his head tilting back and his eyes looking up. Perhaps a slender beam of light fell slanting to the floor at his feet. Then, letting his sight travel upward, he discovered, high above the lower darkness, a glorious window, bright with all the colors of heaven. There his eager eye found light, and he saw the Christ offering transcendent escape from all that is dark and low.

The symbolism is easy. The builder of the cathedral designed a house for worship. Nothing was allowed to break that line-of-sight to the Cross. Even the pulpit was tactfully placed a little to one side, where it remained as a guiding station on the road that leads to eternal life. Worship in such a church must have been real, vital, and inspiring.

Now let us visit another church. It is the Methodist Protestant Church to which the writer has belonged for fifteen years, and which he has attended since earliest recollection. Architecturally it is a pain.

The auditorium resembles a box with a heavy lid. The ceiling is dark, flat, low, and dangerous-looking. One feels a desire to escape from such a rat-trap. Yet be seated for the service.

Straight ahead the eye encounters a baffling barricade, dark-brown with forbidding horizontal lines, which denies entrance to the Sunday School rooms. No light comes from that side of the church! Yet there are some windows, to be sure. On the right and left some light comes through a smear of dark-green paint that covers the glass. If it has a purpose, it is to keep minds inside where they cannot soar. Hideous decoration and doubtful symbolism. It is good to soar.

Under the head of architecture we may refer only to the appearance of the clergyman and choir members, not to their earnest work and measure of success or defeat. The appearance is not so good. The appearance of the choir, in all the amazing and highly individual costumes of democracy, diverts the mind, but not toward sacred topics. The preacher works hard to hold attention which the rest of the interior is militating to steal from him. He uses his excellent voice to the limit. The congregation looks about at one thing or another and finally becomes sleepy from the bad ventilation.

What about the future? Forward-looking leadership has provided a new and desirable location for a modern church building. Though construction cannot proceed immediately, the present inactivity is not time wasted. Better churches must be planned first in the air.

THE NATIONAL ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE CONVENTION

This convention, held at Washington, D. C., January 15th to 19th, was the greatest convention that League has held since the adoption of the 18th Amendment. Representatives from many Churches all over the country, also officials of the League from most of the States in the Union, were presnt in large numbers. There was enthusiasm. There was determination. There was an aggressive, fighting spirit on the part of all present. There was no indication of cowardice or compromise with the wets.

Those who think the National Anti-Saloon League is dead have another guess coming. For an organization that is supposed by the wets to have been killed several times it is still going mighty strong. The Bulletin editor enjoyed it greatly.

The convention was under the general control of "Field Marshal" Dr. F. Scott McBride, General Superintendent of the League—a great strategist, a shrewd politician, able, efficient, resourceful and popular.

Some of the State organizations were reported to be seriously embarrassed financially, several of which have ceased to publish their State papers. Some of them have found it difficult to raise funds to keep their work going for lack of a real live State issue, as they have State enforcement laws and Prohibition is so well enforced that many people who formerly contributed have ceased to do so.

There were many great addresses during the four days' convention. It is hard to decide which of several might be considered the best. Probably the two which made the most profound impression on the convention were the addresses by Bishop William N. Ainsworth of Birmingham, Ala., and that of Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, Director, Department of Education, Publicity and Research. William H. Anderson, LL.D., was on the program to speak on "The Stop Alien Representation Amendment." He made a deep impression on the Convention and hearty expressions of approval of his address were heard on all sides, by the delegates from all over the Country.

Many persons who went to this Convention discouraged left full of hope and enthusiasm. While all recognized the seriousness of the National battle this year, yet they were inspired by the many great addresses to go forth to fight and to win.—The Civic Bulletin.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

1. Prohibition is not a partisan issue. 2. Resubmission is a necessary step toward repeal, of which friends of prohibition must take cognizance. 3. No national referendum is possible under the Constitution of the United States. 4. Home rule means saloons for all states that want them, and sectionalism as a national policy. 5. A law calling an intoxicating beverage—four per cent beer—non-intoxicating would be a legislative lie. 6. We decry the unpatriotic attitude of those who seek to reduce the taxes of the rich by liquor taxes from the poor. 7. We express our confidence in the President of the United States and assure him of our support. 8. We express our appreciation of the efficient work done by the Prohibition Bureau under Colonel Amos W. W. Woodcock, and the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol under Dr. James M. Doran. 8. We express satisfaction at the reports of our executive officers, who have given our forces a leadership characterized by wisdom, courage and success.

THE CROSS THE CENTER ATTRACTION

"I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me" (John 12:32).

"Jesus Christ was lifted up on the earth; and the Cross will be the center of attraction for sinners down to the end of time. From Calvary comes the voice of mercy; and the guilty sons of men are drawn by the charming sound. The Cross draws men away from sin and wickedness; and draws them to pardon, holiness, life and Heaven. At the Cross broken hearts find healing, mourners find consolation, and the weary find rest. Beneath the shadow of the cross the love of sin dies; the disheartened feel the impulse it gives they go forth to do, to dare, and to die.

"Here at Thy dear Cross, O wondrous Christ, we find a balm for every wound! Here, beneath life's healing tree, we find our bliss, our Heaven, our all. 'I sat down under His shadow with great delight.' Joy unspeakable fills my heart, and my cup runs over. Jesus was lifted up out of earth. A dead Christ would be powerless to draw. The Cross is a mighty power, for Jesus lives again. He was slain to receive the power to draw all His people to Himself. Jesus put the sin that was upon Him away by dying; His death destroyed death; and rising from the dead His perfect accepted atonement becomes the heart's true attraction. The redeemed will be saved; all those for whom Jesus died will be drawn to Him for life. His death will never lose its power, for He lives for evermore."—Anon.

PRESIDENT HOOVER RECEIVES A BOOK OF WORLD DISARMAMENT PETITIONS SIGNED BY METHODIST PROTESTANT YOUNG PEOPLE

On January 23, there was forwarded to President Hoover the Disarmament Petitions signed by Methodist Protestant Young People in our Summer Leadership Training schools and Christian Endeavor Societies. These petitions were neatly bound in a volume which contained 625 names and addresses, representing thirteen diffrent states. The letter which accompanied the book and Mr. Hoover's directed reply follow:

January 23, 1932

The President,
Washington, D. C.
My dear Mr. Hoover:

We are forwarding to you, herewith, a book containing the names and addresses of 625 young people of the Methodist Protestant Church who have signed the World Disarmament Petition, with the hope that the efforts of these young people united with the efforts of the other young people of the United States and other nations throughout the world will soon result in an immediate reduction of armament in order that World Peace may be further assured to mankind everywhere.

Respectfully submitted,
F. L. GIBBS,
Director of Young People's Work.

January 30, 1932

Mr. F. L. Gibbs, Director of Young People's Work,
The Board of Christian Education,
Westminster, Maryland.
Sir:

At the direction of the President, the receipt is acknowledged of your recent letter enclosing a book of disarmament petitions signed by 625 young people of the Methodist Protestant Church.

The President appreciates the interest shown and desires me to assure you that this Government is doing and will continue to do everything in its power to bring about a substantial reduction of armaments by international agreement.

Very truly yours,
For the Secretary of State:
PIERRE DE L. BOAL, Chief
Division of Western European Affairs.

HOW LUTHER READ HIS BIBLE

Luther said he studied his Bible as he gathered apples. First, he shook the whole tree, that the ripest might fall; then he climbed the tree and shook each limb; and when he had shaken each limb he shook each branch, and after each branch, every twig, and then looked under every leaf.

Let us search the Bible as a whole; shake the whole tree; read it as rapidly as you would any other book, then shake every limb, study Book after Book. Then shake every branch, give attention to chapters when they do not break the sense. Then shake each twig by a careful study of the paragraphs and sentences, and you will be rewarded if you will look under every leaf, by searching the meaning of the words.—Publisher Unknown.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

His wife and two children were sick; one of the children was in the hospital.

And yet this is not a "hard-luck story." But for the facts stated certain valuable lessons might never have been learned.

A married student at the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, was confessing that he had not known how to "rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for Him." He did not know the meaning of praying with assurance.

"We had been fortunate in our family for a number of years," he said, "in escaping sickness and other disabilities requiring the service of a physician. For this reason, and because of our limited income, we budgeted but a small sum to our health account.

Living as carefully as possible, there was barely enough to meet necessary expenses from month to month. How could a formidable medical and hospital bill be met?

"Satan made capital of our concern," he testifies, "and before long we were in the slough of despond. No extra work was available, and no source of added income appeared. Praying continued for several days, but these prayers were too sadly faltering and lacking in confidence. Nevertheless, victory was ahead.

"One morning God gave us a spirit of assurance that all our needs would be met. From that hour we had perfect rest and confidence."

Four days later a letter came to hand, bearing the date of the day of blessed assurance, written by a young man whom the student had some years before influenced in a Sunday School class of which he was a teacher. This distant friend indicated that he seemed led of the Lord to forward a check to his former teacher, though he knew nothing of the great need. The inclosed check was for a sum sufficient to cover all the expenses chargeable to sickness.

Philippians 4:19 glows with a new radiance for this family.—Herald of Light.

DELIVERED FROM A BURGLAR

A rich old lady, who lived a hundred years ago, one night when going to bed, dropped her watch-chain, which caught in the balance, and on stopping to pick it up she saw a man's leg under her bed. Her faith being very simple, she just looked upward, in earnest prayer, and got into bed. She took her Bible and read the fifteenth chapter of Luke's Gospel, then prayed aloud that the Lord would speak to the man who came in with evil designs. As she closed her prayer the man got out and stood before her, saying, "Madam, I am the head of a gang of robbers, but God has spoken to me through your prayers, for I had a Christian mother. I came in to rob you. Now I will go out and dismiss the men, who always obey my orders, and come back to you." He did so, and she read the chapter over again to him and prayed earnestly with him.

One day at a meeting for the Bible Society, a gentleman from abroad got up, very strongly advocating the Bible only, and told how it had been the means of his own conversion, relating the previous incident, holding up an old Bible as he spoke.—The Springing Well.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

We Extend Sympathy

Brother Ivy Crutchfield has been called upon to give up his mother by death. The memory of her good life will linger with him, we are sure, as a sweet benediction, and he and other loved ones will look forward with hope and confidence to another life where death and separation are unknown. We extend sympathy to Brother Ivy and to the bereaved family.

State Street

February 3. We were here in the quarterly conference, held on this date, at 7:30 p. m. Of the officiary, eleven were present, and a few other members of the church. The pastor reported that twelve members have been received during this conference year, and that the attendance upon the preaching services is good. This is one of the churches in the conference that has a woman as superintendent of the Sunday School. Mrs. H. S. Lanier is filling this office with much credit to herself and to the school. There is no office in the Methodist Protestant Church to which a woman is not eligible. The Sunday School has an enrollment of 266. The average attendance last quarter was 167, and the collections amounted to $64. The school contributes monthly to the Home. The Brotherhood is still active and is an effective organization in the church. The C. E. society, with Ralph Forcum as president, is functioning well. The enrollment is 22, with an average attendance at the meetings of 17. This society paid the allotment to the Conference Council last year. The Woman's Auxiliary has about 20 active members, and is "carrying on" well. The pastor expressed himself as being highly pleased with this department. The salary was fixed at $900, with an additional $100, conditioned on the ability of the church to raise it. This will be supplemented some by the amounts paid at Yadkin College and Spencer, where Brother Hendry serves as pastor. Heretofore the Board of Church Extension has been making an appropriation to this church, but the funds of the board are so meager that no appropriation has been made anywhere this year. Brother Hendry may be under the necessity, for this reason, of supplementing his salary. We wish very much that it could be more. The Treasurer reported that $184.95 had been paid on salary this year, and $5 on the A. C. B. Financial plans were made for February and March, designed to bring the local expenses up to date, and to provide interest on indebtedness. Brother Hendry has been at State Street 113 Sundays, and has received into the church 113 members. We bespeak for him and his people continued success in the good work that is being done at this charge.

Young People's Day

The Herald reports last week gave us information of six other churches that have observed this day, or are planning to do it. They are Fair Grove and Love Joy, on Why Not charge, Holister, on Halifax charge, First Church, Thomasville, Lebanon, and Charlotte. We know, too, that First Church, High Point, belongs in this list, having observed the day yesterday. "Hats off" to these churches, and to all others that belong in this group, and to all that are yet to join. Please send the offering at once to Dr. Brown so it may be made available without delay for the Board of Christian Education.

The Facts

The printers of the Herald have given us the facts; we must give them the cash. We would be conscious of a distinct loss if the Herald should be taken from us for any cause. But we must not forget that the printers are already conscious of a distinct loss—the loss of $30 a week in printing the paper. According to their own statement, that is the loss that they are carrying in order that we might have the paper. This is certainly the "second mile" in generosity; but it can't continue. And it should not. We can not expect these men to shoulder our burdens to the amount of $30 every week. They are very gracious in "carrying on" with us as they do, both in the matter of price which they charge for printing the paper, and in the loss that they are taking for the church. Their price is about $30 under the cheapest bid made by other printers. What is the remedy? 1. The freewill offering by every church for the payment of back deficits; 2. Raising the subscription list to 3,000. This will solve this problem, and take this load off of McCulloch and Swain, printers of the paper. And in addition, it will provide a meager salary for the Editor, Dr. McCulloch. The Herald Promoting Committee created by the last conference, and headed by Mr. E. Douglas, is working hard toward these goals. Let there be a push and a prayer for them on every charge until this thing is done. The conference is expecting every pastor and every church to rally wholeheartedly to this undertaking. Success is always in direct ratio to effort.

Beautify Them

We mean church grounds. The report from Hollister in the Herald of last week tells of the planting of shrubbery on the lawn of that church. The people were assisted in this by the demonstration agent of Halifax county, Mrs. Wheeler. Surely this is pleasing to Him who loves the church, and who has blessed the world with so much beauty. We urge that it be done at other churches. It is a good way by which many people can render an acceptable service to God. This is the time to put out trees and shrubbery; let us get busy now on our church grounds, and beautify them.

Appointments

February 13.—Kernersville charge, Sandy Ridge church, in business meeting.

February 14.—Attending prohibition meetings in High Point.

February 28.—Chatham charge.

March 6.—Pinnacle and Mt. Zion.

Most of this week will be given to the sale of High Point College Bonds.

"How excellent is thy loving-kindness, O, God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings."

S. W. Taylor.

CONFESS YOUR FAULTS

Let modesty and self-diffidence appear in all your words and actions. Let all you speak and do show that you are little, and base, and mean, and vile in your own eyes. As one instance of this, be always ready to own any fault you have been in; if you have at any time thought, spoken, or acted wrong, be not backward to acknowledge it; never dream that this will hurt the cause of God; no, it will further it. Be therefore open and frank when you are taxed with anything; let it appear just as it is; and you will thereby not hinder, but adorn the Gospel. Why should ye be more backward in acknowledging your failings, than in confessing that ye do not pretend to infallibility?

St. Paul was perfect in the love which casts out fear, and therefore he boldly reproved the high priest. But when he had reproved him more sharply than the fifth commandment allows, he directly confessed his mistake, and set his seal to the importance of the duty in which he had been inadvertently wanting; "Then said Paul, I wist not brethren that he was the high priest; for it is written, Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people."

St. John was perfect in the courteous, humble love which brings us down at the feet of all. His courtesy, his humility, and the dazzling glory which beamed forth from a Divine messenger, whom he apprehended to be more than a creature betrayed him into a fault contrary to that of St. Paul; but, far from concealing it, he openly confessed it, and published his confession for the edification of all the churches. "When I had heard and seen," he says, "I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel who showed me these things."

Christian perfection shines as much in the childlike simplicity with which the perfect readily acknowledge their faults, as it does in the manly steadiness with which they "resist unto blood, striving against sin."—Fletcher of Madeley.

DEPRESSIONS

We have been almost startled by expressions of the secular press in this time of financial depression. The Los Angeles 'Times" of July 18 says, "The smart ones who said that old-fashioned faiths and standards are silly should take a good look at the country now."

Jesus laid down the true test of doctrines when He said, "By their fruits ye shall know them." The generally confessed fact that the Church's let down on its faith standards (not officially, to be sure, but practically) is showing itself. It is a fact that spiritual depression has always been followed by a moral depression, and that has been followed by financial depression. It is generally asserted that we can never have good times again until men have restored their confidence with each other. It will take a real revival of spiritual religion to do this. The Old Testament teaches and shows that God punishes nations by famine, drought, pestilence and plague. Nations have their punishment in this world because in the future life they cease to be nations.

Just as God punished the foolish builders of the tower of Babel, by confounding their language, so He seems to have confounded the wisdom of man today. After two centuries of so-called civilization, men's hearts are failing them. Their human wisdom has brought them to the place where they are entangled so they do not know what to do. They are giving all sorts of reasons for the condition of the world as regards finances. At the same time human wisdom has not discovered why there is such increasing crime. This ungodly nation with a church that has failed to get hold of the masses is tottering under the weight of the divorce evil, broken Sundays and education that assails the very foundations of religion. The same forgetting of God got so bad in 1858 that panic seized the business of the nation, and then they went to their knees and God sent a gracious revival. Have we got yet to the place where we will come back to God?

Revivals have almost ceased. The majority of the nation never darken the church doors. Is it the result of the higher destructive criticism, speculation in preaching, lack of experimental religion, and even attack on revival efforts of many of the pulpits? It would seem so. "By their fruits ye shall know them" may be predicted of many of the pulpits of today. If men can show us any religion that can surpass the old-fashioned religion of the nation, we hope they will do it soon, for we certainly need it.—Christian Witness.

HUMILITY

Humility is an attribute of Deity. It is a willingness to use great powers in the service of others. Acts that may appear menial or unimportant are willingly performed. This is what Christ meant when He read: "I am among you as one that serveth." When He washed the disciples' feet He was conscious of His Divine origin and destiny. He did it we are told, "knowing that the Father had given all things into His hands, and that He was come from God, and went to God." While performing this humble act He was mindful of His real character and of His just claims. He did not think meanly of Himself when He performed menial service. To the disciples He said: "Ye call Me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am." He was conscious of inherent superiority to those whom He served. He taught that He was the Son of God, the Judge of mankind. He required men to believe in Him as they believed in God. He declared that at the last day His voice shall call the dead from their graves and summon them to judgment. While talking of His supreme dignity He used His great powers in the service of the poorest and the weakest. This is humility.

Humility is not a lowly estimate of self, nor even a modest estimate of one's worth. It is much less a sense of unworthiness because of imperfection and sin. What Christ commended when He pronounced the beatitude upon the poor in spirit and when He said: "Take My yoke upon you * * * for I am * * * lowly in heart," is not servility. It is not meanness of soul. It is a willingness to use great powers in the lowly service of others. This is humility and is Divine attribute. It belongs to the nature of God. God serves His creatures with sunshine and dew, with rain and snow, with electricity and gravitation, with the blessed influences of the Holy Spirit. The tasks of a teacher are cheerfully undertaken and persistently followed. God is humble. He uses His great powers in services that seem unimportant.

When Christ became man He illustrated this attribute of the Divine nature. Otherwise it could not be true that because of humility there has been given Him a Name that is above every name. He laid aside the prerogative of Deity that He might limit Himself to that part of the Divine nature which is called humanity. He humbled Himself to obey the supreme law of love. No one could say with such truth, "I am lowly in heart," and no man maintained a loftier idea of inherent worth. Even while serving men He claimed that they should honor the Son as the Father. Humility is an attribute of Deity. It is using great powers consciously possessed in the service of the needy.—The C. U. Herald.

"COME UNTO ME"

Matthew 11:28

Come to Me, oh, come, ye weary,
Whatsoe'er your load may be,
Sick or lonely, sad, disheartened,
Come, oh, come, My child, to Me.

I've been lonely, yea, forsaken,
I've been tempted, sorely tried;
Yes, I know your sin and burden,
Even so, for Thee I died.

Come to Me, so crushed by sorrow
That thy lips can form no prayer:
Child, I know thy heart's deep longing,
Spoken not, but I can hear.

Come to Me in doubt and trouble,
I can clear thy fears away;
Trust Me, I will fail thee never,
Come to Me, do not delay.

Lord I come, sin-sick and weary,
As I am, without one plea;
Thou wilt cleanse and then receive me
At the price of Calvary.

THE GREATEST OF ALL

My greatest loss. To lose my soul. My greatest gain. Christ as my Saviour.

My greatest object. To glorify God.
My greatest prize. A crown of glory.
My greatest work. To win souls for Christ.
My greatest joy. The joy of God's salvation.
My greatest inheritance. Heaven and its glories.
My greatest neglect. The neglect of so great a salvation.
My greatest crime. To reject Christ, the only Saviour.
My greatest privilege. Power to become a son of God.
My greatest bargain. The loss of all things to win Christ.
My greatest profit. Godliness in this life and that to come.
My greatest peace. The peace that passeth all understanding.
My greatest knowledge. To know God and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent.—Publisher Unknown.

"SOILED FOREVER"

"There are passages of the Bible that are soiled forever by the touches of hands of ministers who delight in the cheap jokes they have left behind them." What a scathing, searing indictment, in this, written by that well-beloved shepherd of Christ's flock, Phillips Brooks! Especially in a day like ours, when so many show little or no reverence for sacred things, and a generation of "fun-chasers" refuses to treat anything seriously, even life itself, it should be the care of ministers of the Gospel above all other men to safeguard the Book of Books. In it are "wonderful Words of Life," and it is a terrible thing so to stain or tarnish any of these "exceeding great and precious promises" that even for the noblest souls such majestic passages, designed to comfort, edify and bless, are "soiled forever," by reason of the thoughtless association with them of an unworthy joke or a ribald jest.—The P. H. Advocate.

THE TIME FOR YOU TO BEGIN

Sometimes a task seems so hard, so long,
That we fold our hands with a sigh
And say we know it can never be done,
No matter how hard we may try.
Then here is your chance, lad—roll up your sleeves,
With a mind made up to win,
For when everyone else gives up, just then
Is the time for you to begin.

There is always a task to be done somewhere
For the world cannot live without work,
So, why not make one of the hustlers, my lad,
Let who will be an idler and shirk?
For quitters there are wherever one goes
As quitters there always have been,
So, when they give up with "it can't be done,"
That is just your time to begin.

SHAM ROCK OR SOLID ROCK

A street preacher in London was preaching to a crowd that had gathered around him. It was at the time of the Shamrock Races, and everyone was talking of the event.

A ruffian on the edge of the crowd thought he would have a little fun, so he called in, "Mr. Preacher! What do you know about the Shamrock?" The preacher never paused, but went right on preaching. A second time the disturber called in, "I say, Mr. Preacher, What do you know about the Shamrock?" Still the preacher paid no heed, but went right on. Finally, the third time, not to be silenced, the ruffian called again, "Mr. Preacher! I'm asking you what you know about the Shamrock!"

This time the preacher paused. The crowd became very still. Pointing upward with one hand, he said, so clearly and distinctly, that everyone could hear him,

"On Christ, the Solid Rock, I stand—All other rocks—are sham rocks."—Publisher Unknown.

OUR STORY PAGE

"YOUR MOTHER STILL PRAYS FOR YOU"

Aline Sommerfeld

''Your mother still prays for you, Jack;
Your mother still prays for you.''

These words came to Kenneth Duane from a radio through an open door. The sun was slowly setting, and across his once handsome, fine-featured face, which was now darkened and tanned by the weather and knocks he had received from the ill-treatment of life, a warm summer breeze blew gently. He was tired and hungry; he must get something to eat soon. He slowly slackened his pace; this town seemed to be quieter, more friendly and peaceful than any he had visited for sometime.

As the sun was looking at the little village for the last time that day, it saw Kenneth sitting on a back doorstep with two egg sandwiches, a cup of hot coffee, and a piece of apple pie for his supper. When this was eaten, he brushed the crumbs off his shirt front, took up his worn coat, and moved on.

About two blocks away, as Kenneth was passing a small, white house, he noticed a little girl sitting in a large rocker busily engaged in needlework. From her lips came the words, ''Your mother still prays for you, Jack; your mother still prays for you.'' ''Why must I hear that everywhere I go?'' thought he; ''things are getting worse and worse; this life is nothing but trouble. Shall I—yes, I'll end it all tonight. No one will know; no one will care.'' At these last words there arose in his throat a lump which he couldn't quite swallow, and he moved slowly towards the outskirts of the town.

In front of the last house to which he came, he saw a beautiful picture and couldn't help stopping and gazing at at it. A house whose porch was covered with pink and red rambler roses nestled on a deep green carpet of grass. To the left of the path leading to the front door were red, white, and yellow rose bushes. In the midst of these bushes stood a little white-haired lady clipping a bouquet of the fragrant flowers. An expression of peace and happiness rested on her face, and from her lips came softly and clearly the words which had pained Kenneth twice before, ''Your mother still prays for you, Jack; your mother still prays for you.'' He stood motionless, stared, and thought. Why was he compelled to listen to that? Truly, his name wasn't Jack, but the song meant the same to him as though his name had taken the other's place. Was his mother still praying for him? He knew she used to, but had she grown tired of it and decided it did no good? Or was she even alive so she could pray for her boy? These thoughts struck him like a two-edged sword. But he must move on.

A mile west of town lay a large hill covered with green grass. Kenneth lay down, but sleep was far away. This was the night he was to end it all; but since he saw the old lady, he couldn't do it. He tried to think a way out of his deplorable situation, but the thoughts would not come. The stars came out one by one and looked down upon him. They couldn't even smile tonight. The breeze played with his dark-brown wavy hair. His gray eyes looked unseemingly into space, and his tall form lay motionless upon the grass. Only the heaving of his chest could have told one that he was alive. For an hour he lay there; then he arose, paced backwards and forwards, stopped suddenly, and with his hands crossed over his breast, lifting his boyish face to the stars, uttered with a painful moan, ''My God, help me!'' His head fell forward, and he was lost in thought. ''Yes, I will go to the old lady who was clipping roses,'' said he; ''somehow I believe she would understand.''

He walked slowly back to the village, found the old lady's house, rang the doorbell, and waited. Presently the door was opened, and he looked into a kind, loving, motherly face. Her understanding eyes seemed to look into his very soul. She didn't know what to say; Kenneth didn't either, but finally he managed to stammer out, ''D-don't be afraid. I'm all alone and far from anyone I know, and I thought you'd ununderstand.'' He hung his head, and a combination of shame, sadness, and longing stole over his face.

''Yes, my boy; come in; take a chair, and tell your story. I'll listen.''

When they were seated comfortably in the living room, Kenneth began by saying, ''I passed here this evening and saw you with your flowers. You were singing, 'Your Mother Still Prays For You.' That was the third time I'd heard that song in two hours, and it—somehow it hurt. You looked as though you would understand, so I came back. It might be foolish; you may think it absurd, but I can't endure this any longer.'' He covered his face with his hands, and his frame shook. The kind woman gently placed her hand on his arm and asked him to continue his story. Pitying glances were already coming from her motherly eyes. Kenneth began again.

''It was years ago. I had a good father and mother, two brothers, and one sister. They were all good to me. I had friends at home. But somehow I was different. You know; I-I-I wasn't as good as they. They pleaded and prayed with me often. My mother—oh, she was an angel—'' and here his voice broke again—''I loved her more than any other living being. I wanted to do right, but somehow I—I couldn't. There was a-a-a gi—''

''Yes, I understand,'' were the comforting words of the other.

''I knew my mother often prayed for me. Then I became dissatisfied. I thought if I would go away, I could soon forget, and could make myself go against the teaching of my mother; so I left home. I had quite good clothes then, a little money and a car. I told my mother good-bye, and with tears in her eyes the last words I heard her say were, ''Remember, Kenny, I'll be praying for you!''

Those words meant nothing to me then. I didn't care whether she prayed or not. In fact, such talk almost made me angry, but now—oh, I do care. I hope my mother is still praying for me. I've been away two years and never written to mother. She doesn't know anything about me, and I don't know anything about her. I've had work most of the time, but times have been hard. I soon had to sell my car; I had no more money. I did whatever I could get to do. The company I kept wasn't the best. I knew I was going at a terrific speed on the downward road, but I didn't care. I didn't think until this evening that anything could ever be any better for me. I smoked, gambled, played cards, drank, danced, and stole. Many nights I've gone supperless to a haystack for a bed, and my clothes have been almost rags."

He grew paler and paler as he spoke; his gray eyes grew larger and darker, and there was a far-away expression on his face. The little old lady was very sympathetic, and two teardrops fell on her hand unheeded.

"I don't know; maybe I'm too far gone to ever be good again. I wish I'd stayed home. I thought I could forget if I'd leave, but I couldn't. I learned that you can't run away from your thoughts—nor your convictions. Oh I want to go home, and yet, I'm ashamed to meet them there. I wonder—is my mother still praying for me? If she's alive, I know she is; but—" and he shook again; "what if she's dead? Then I can never see her again—my—my mother! If only I had yielded to her pleadings and prayers, I wouldn't be here now."

"Son," gently spoke the old lady laying her hand on his arm; "it isn't too late; you are not too bad. Go home to your mother; tell her all; she'll understand."

Both sat silent for a while. Kenneth slowly arose, asked the old lady for a drink of water, thanked her many times for listening to his story, and departed for his home a thousand miles away. He traveled all the time, stopping only for necessary food and rest.

After hitch-hiking for ten days, Kenneth Duane knocked at his mother's kitchen door on a bright, sunny afternoon. The door opened, and a startled cry came from the trembling lips of his mother, "My boy!" she gasped in a whisper; "my prayer is answered."

Not knowing of Kenneth's presence, his sister was engaged in a task outside. Through the open window the sweet strains fell on his ears from her throat, "Your mother still prays for you, Jack; your mother still prays for you."—The Youth's Christian Companion.

AN AGE DESTITUTE OF FAITH

Roger Babson in his last November letter says that England's courage and stability during the past centuries have been due to her religious faith. Although this faith has often exhibited an intolerance which is a blot on her history, yet even these acts were reactions from an abnormal and misled religious belief. This faith, however, crude as it was, provided the foundation for England's power, growth and prosperity. Furthermore, the lack of religious faith may be the real cause of England's present economic difficulties. Says a famous English correspondent, Albert Peel, in a recent article on England entitled, "An Age Destitute of Faith":

"The other day I listened to a group of public men discussing the religious outlook in Great Britain. They were all of them men with peculiar opportunity for observation, and all had some claim to speak with authority on the subject. Some of them held that Britain can still be called a Christian nation; some of them that we should be wise to recognize that Britain is now pagan. But all agreed that the masses of the people now have no place for organized religion in their lives, and have no real religious faith. Many personal experiences were offered to illustrate the view generally accepted.

"The churches still throw their doors wide open, but the people pass them by as they rush to their pleasures. Car and "char-a-banc," golf and other games, fill up the day of rest and meditation, and millions live through Sunday as they do through the rest of the week, and never think of God at all. Truly, we live in an age destitute of faith."

"Everywhere the same story is told, as every pastor could witness countless times over. One day it is a girl at college, who tells you that she is the only girl in her 'set' who ever thinks of going to church. The next it is a youth, who believes that prayer is but the projection of one's desires, and that life is controlled by instincts. The next two young married people, who ordered their married life without the slightest reference to considerations other than the physical and material.

"Twenty years ago Sunday Schools were filled with children, whose parents, while perhaps making no religious profession themselves, yet believed that it was well that their children should be taught the elements of the Christian faith. Now, in British cities, at any rate, we are surrounded by children and by young people in their 'teens who have never been near either church or Sunday School." And what is true of England is true also of America.—H. of H.

I SHALL TAKE ALL OF THE BIBLE OR NONE

A man dies, having made a will. The people who expect a part of the inheritance assemble to hear the will read. The attorney reads it until he comes to a certain passage of the will, when one of the heirs cries out, "I reject that passage." The attorney reads on, while some one else says, "I reject that passage, while I accept all the rest of the will."

The heirs go before the surrogate, and the judge decided: "You must take this will as a whole, or not at all. You cannot break a part of it, and leave the rest intact."

Now I say in regard to this Will of my Father, in respect to this last Will and Testament of our Lord Jesus Christ, that if we break any part of the Will we break it all, and we lose our inheritance and go beggared through eternity.—Scattered Seed.

THE CROSS IN THE DAILY LIFE

"The scars of Jesus Christ, the print of the nails, the mark of the spear, are they on our aims, our decisions, our ambitions, our daily habits? Is the shadow of the Cross on your bank account? Who is there that can write in the diary of his daily life, as Paul wrote, 'Henceforth let no man trouble me: for I bear branded on my body the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ?' The man who can do that, and wield the powers of sacrifice, is the man who has boldness to appeal to others."—S. M. Z., in The Prairie Pastor.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Liberty.—Rev. M. P. Chambliss the fourth Sunday morning delivered a forceful sermon on the subject, "Follow Me." Dr. T. M. Johnson brought the message for the evening service. A large congregation was present to hear him. We hope Dr. Johnson will come again.

We were very glad to have Mrs. Ethel Dorsett Sharpe and daughters worship with us Sunday morning.

Last Sunday was a good day for our Sunday school. A large number of young men were present. Our Sunday school is doing good work under the supervision of our faithful superintendent and his able corps of teachers. Mrs. Vance York has been added to our teachers' staff. Mrs. Mamie Smith is teacher of the Philathea class.

The fifth Sunday we had a union service of all the churches in town and Rev. Mr. Kale of Greensboro, spoke very interestingly.

Margaret King Shepard who is a junior at N. C. C. W., spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. F. A. Shepard.

At this time, it seems to me, should be a great season for prayer.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—We are still enjoying the wonderful sermons delivered by our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry.

We are sorry to lose one of our members, Mrs. J. A. Isley, who died November 25, 1931. Brother Isley was an active member up until sickness prevailed. He was a Civil war veteran.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Charlie Shoffner and Mrs. Otto Crouse. Three sons, L. A. Isley, D. R. Isley and Ruth Long.

J. P. Isley who has been in Rainey hospital for the past five weeks, is recovering nicely and hopes to return home shortly.

The Woman's Missionary society is doing nicely and is planning to open the thank offering box this month.

West Forsyth.—We were delighted to have Dr. T. M. Johnson, pastor of Mount Pleasant charge, with us at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches last Sunday. At each service Dr. Johnson brought to the people an edifying message. At the close of the sermon at each church Dr. Johnson made an appeal for the purchase of High Point college bonds. Our quota is $1,000, and we have sold $100 of the bonds, one-tenth of the amount assigned.

It was a genuine pleasure to the writer and family to have Dr. T. M. Johnson as our guest last Saturday night. He drove from his home in his car Saturday afternoon. A number of our Pleasant Hill people gathered at the parsonage Saturday night and enjoyed the fellowship of Dr. Johnson.

The pastor's wife is very thankful for a cake presented by Mrs. C. G. Hunter last week. Others have also remembered the pastor and family with suitable gifts since our last report, for which we are deeply thankful.

On Tuesday, January 26, the funeral service for Mrs. Louvenia Katherine Speas, member of Tabernacle church, was held at Tabernacle church, conducted by the writer. Mrs. Speas, who was 69 years of age, had been a member of Tabernacle church for many years. She died suddenly while on a visit at the home of a neighbor. An obituary will appear in the Herald. Wednesday morning of last week we assisted in the funeral service for W. F. Cornelius at Baltimore church.

Our appointments for next Sunday will be at Union Hill church at 11 a. m., and Tabernacle church at 7:30 p. m. We are expecting to observe the ordinance of the Lord's Supper at Tabernacle.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Elbavile, Mocksville Charge.—We are very, very glad to have Mr. Ferree and family with us for another year.

Our Sunday school is growing very rapidly, both in number and in interest. We are very fortunate to have Rev. J. Taft White as teacher for the Men's Bible class.

Yesterday morning our pastor brought us another good message, using for his subject, "Seeing the Best in Others." We are often slow in seeing the good in others, but see the bad instead. A large audience enjoyed this message very much. We were glad to have some visitors.

We are making a special effort to pay our pastor monthly, also trying to raise some on our budgets.

Best wishes to the editor and all the Herald readers.

Burlington, First.—The church and all its organizations have been doing unusually well. The attendance increases every Sunday. Dr. Roy I. Farmer was present at the 11 o'clock service Sunday, January 31. He delivered a most helpful and inspiring message. We were very much gratified in having the privilege of hearing Dr. Farmer speak.

All the circles of the Woman's auxiliary had their regular monthly meetings on Monday, February 1.

The Business Girls' circle held their meeting with Misses Betty and Dora Thompson at their apartment on Holt St. There were 20 members and seven visitors present. This meeting was one of the best of the missionary year. The meeting opened with song, after which came prayer. The Scripture was read. Mrs. Herbert Wade sang "In the Garden." The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved; roll call and collection of dues and special money. A special collection was then taken up to take care of the feeding of a child in West Burlington. Five new members were added to the roll whose names are as follows: Mrs. Walter Sykes, Misses Pauline Pickard, Minnie King and Dora Thompson and Mrs. Ben Wies who came as a transfer from cirlce no. five. These new members were welcomed warmheartedly. We were also glad to have as visitors, Mrs. C. C. Linley, Mrs. "Yank" Smith and Miss Sara Thompson. It was decided that a measuring party would be held at the next meeting.

Thirty-seven visits to the sick, flowers sent to eight, cards to 10, trays to one and eight members reading the Bible every day was reported for this month. The circle adjourned with an invitation to meet with Miss Arthula Cheek next month. After adjournment the members gave Miss Betty and Dora Thompson a kitchen shower. Much fun was had as their packages were opened. The hostesses served fruit for refreshments.

The pastor has been conducting very interesting mid-week prayer services. He has been selecting little words with big meanings and discussing them thoroughly. His word for discussion last Wednesday night was "HOPE" with this meaning:

H-abitual—make it a habit to hope.

O-ptimist—Be an optimist and look and hope for better things.

P-atience—Be patient in your hope.

E-arnest—And be earnest in all that you hope for.

I feel certain that if we would all make this meaning of hopes our slogan, that greater things would happen.

On January 29 at Pleasant Hill church on the Liberty-Snow Camp road the Alamance C. E. Union hed their quarterly Rally meeting. There were 282 people present. It was thrilling to know and to see this great number of young people eager to do great things for the Master. The president, Tula Paul, presided over the meeting.

All business was attended to promptly, after which followed the program. The Burlington Junior Girls' quartet was present and gave a number of selections which was greatly enjoyed. Miss Frances Browning delivered a splendid address challenging the young people to go out and do everything that was in their power to do for the good of their church, community and home. Two new societies were represented at this meeting. Pleasant Hill church C. E. society won the banner. South Fork society invited us down there for our next meeting which will be held some time in April. After adjournment the Pleasant Hill members served delightful refreshments. During the social hour Miss Frances Browning gave a number of humorous selections.

On January 31 at the evening service, the C. E. society of this church put on the special program for young people sent out by the Board of Education.

A great number was present at this service. The young people presented the pageant entitled "The Knight of the Holy Grail."

Last week the Endeavorers celebrated C. E. week. A social was held in the hut Tuesday evening, February 2, celebrating the fifty-first birthday of Christian Endeavor.

The monthly business meeting of the church will be held Wednesday night, February 10.

Winston-Salem, First.—At the morning service yesterday we asked the congregation for $150.00, the same being our quota for maintenance fund of High Point college, the congregation responded by pledging $152.00. Some one asked me later how we did it and it is possible that some body else would like to know. Well, we used a simple and inexpensive little device which I am sure helped wonderfully. A blackboard about two by three feet was brought into the auditorium and put up where everybody could see it. Brother L. P. Burns and Brother S. E. Hauser were placed in the aisles to call out the pledges as they were made. Brother B. K. Millaway had charge of the blackboard and as a pledge was made he added it to what we already had, erasing the former amount, keeping right up to the minute. As we got higher and higher with the pledges his figures grew in size. The people could see what they were doing as well as hear and I have observed that seeing is even more important than hearing when it comes to raising money. Everybody seemed happy when, the goal was reached.

Next Sunday is Every Member's day and we hope to have a goodly number of church members present as well as others.

Next Sunday evening the women of the church will have charge of the service, it being the annual thank offering service.

At the morning service yesterday, Miss Luna Bisher was received from Canaan M. P. church, Denton charge.

Henderson.—On Thursday evening, January 14, the members of the Baraca class enjoyed a turkey supper in the basement of the church, as the results of a contest which had been in progress for two months. The winning side was host to the losing. During the evening brief speeches were made by Rev. L. W. Gerringer, Messrs. Jasper B. Hicks and J. M. Baity.

At the morning hour of worship, January 17, a large congregation was present to hear Dr. G. I. Humphryes of High Point college. He delivered a most eloquent sermon and in closing made us realize not only our great responsibility in the carrying on of our college but the wonderful privilege and opportunity of investing in God's Kingdom here. We enjoyed Dr. Humphrey's visit here very much and hope he will come again.

The auxiliary's regular monthly meeting was held January 25, at the church, Mrs. L. R. Gooch presided. The devotionals were conducted by Mrs. L. W. Gerringer. Mrs. S. R. Watson was in charge of the program and presented the following: solo, "In the Secret of His Presence," was sung by Mrs. M. C. Miles.

A reading, "Behold All Things Are New," was given by Mrs. Clyde Finch. Miss Maxine Taylor in an instructive and interesting manner gave the concluding chapters of our study book.

During the business period, roll call by circles, minutes of last meeting, treasurer's reports and other committee reports were given. A special request for Octagon coupons was read by Mrs. F. R. Harris, from a letter of Mrs. A. G. Dixon's. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for "The World Day of Prayer," to be observed February 12.

It was voted to place a light for the pastor in the pulpit. The meeting was closed by prayer by Rev. L. W. Gerringer.

A contest of pictures on Bible subjects was held during the social hour, and delicious sandwiches and coffee served by Circle No. 3.

Sunday, January 31, was Young People's Day. During the morning hour, the pastor preached a splendid sermon on the subject of "Christ Working In and Through Us." There was a large attendance at this service and it was pleasing to note a larger number of young people than usual. During the evening service "The Knight of the Holy Grail" was presented in an impressive manner.

We regret to report that Mrs. C. F. Tankersley, Jr., who had been confined to her bed for several weeks, still continues quite ill. We are hoping and praying that she will soon be improved and able to be out again.

The Philathea class held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. T. R. Nichols January 28, with Mrs. Delia Hayes and Miss Mae Harris as joint hostesses.

Mrs. Silas Powell was in charge of the devotionals. Mrs. J. B. Burchette presided over the business period which followed.

At the conclusion of the general business routine, reports of various committees were heard. Officers for the year were presented by the nominating committee and elected as follows: President, Mrs. Silas Powell; vice-president, Mrs. T. R. Nichols; second vice-president, Mrs. J. B. Burchette; assistant secretary, Mrs. W. B. Hight.

A motion was made and carried that the class raise money and buy a hundred dollar bond from High Point college. It was also voted that a social be given the members of the M. E. Philathea class during the month of February.

Plans were discussed as means of raising money for the Children's Home and college. Mrs. W. B. Hight was made chairman of this committee.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer.

Littleton Charge, Corinth Church—Rev. P. E. Bingham brought us a very good message at the 11 o'clock service yesterday using as his subject "Christ Working In and Through Us." In response to the special call issued by the Board of Christian Education. The offering at this service will go, to the New Century Service. After the morning service communion was observed and a goodly number partook.

Our regular service on the third Sunday night has been discontinued until March.

We are glad to see Mrs. Bingham out again. She has been confined to her home several days with mumps.

We were glad to have Mrs Nannie Pepper attend services yesterday, she has just returned from a visit to her son in New York.

Siler City.—The Christian Endeavors observed Young People's week with several appropriate programs, on Sunday night, January 31, they rendered a program using the Young People's literature. The address was given by Mr. L. L. Wrenn which was enjoyed by every one present, and we feel sure every one, old and young, was made better for having heard this good talk. The mid-week prayer service was in charge of the young people. A good congregation was present and three splendid talks were made by Miss Effie Mae Stanly, David Brady, and Mrs. L. L. Woody. These talks were a credit to any society and we feel proud that we have young people who are able to rise before an audience and render such splendid messages. Thursday night was Fellowship meeting night. About 40 Endeavorers were present and had a real old-fashioned good time. Sunday night closed the week of activities.

Another good program with talks, songs, quartets and last, but not least, a talk by Rev. F R. Lane which was short but to the point. Several visitors were present and the young people feel grateful to the older people for their cooperation. We want to thank Miss Sallie Smith for her untiring efforts in making this week one that the young people will not forget.

Sunday night, Rev. F. R. Love of the Chatham circuit came to our rescue and preached for us. His subject was "The Departed Joy," and his text was Judges 16th chapter and latter part of the 20th verse, "And he wist not that the Lord had departed from him." This was a good sermon and a good service and we trust Bro. Love can be with us again. We had a good congregation and feel sure every one present enjoyed Brother Love's message. We were glad to have Mrs. Love and also several others from Bonlee worship with us.

We were glad to hear Mr. W. B. Cooper of Orange county in Sunday school yesterday, also Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Smith of Burlington. They helped to swell our choir and we were glad to hear their voices in song again. We used our new song books and you should have heard the singing. They have already helped in interest.

We are very sorry to learn of the illness of Mrs. T. L. Smith. She was to have had charge of our mid-week prayer service, but since she can't be present, Mrs. B. E. Fox will have charge. David is the character we study for this week. We trust Mrs. Smith will soon be out again as we miss her so much from our church services.

MRS. J. A. COOPER.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The C E. society continues to progress wonderfully under the leadership of our president, Mr. Ray Leatherman. The young people of our community are deeply interested, which has already been proved by their splendid attendance; over 50 young people have been present every Sunday night this year.

January 31, 62 young people were present to enjoy the program on "Our Churches' Service for Christ," led by Miss Mabel Berrier; each person on the program discussed the topic with ability which commanded the attention and interest of each listener.

We were glad to welcome Mr. W. G. Berrier in our society along with all the other visitors. We are always glad for our parents and the older people to visit us. We want to urge you, parents, to come out and see what we are doing for the advancement of His Kingdom.

February 7, 61 young people enjoyed the lesson on "How Our Society Meets Young People's Needs," led by Miss Beatrice Sink, and well discussed by each participant.

Several young people joined the society. We hope we can be of help to you, and we are sure you will be a great help to us; and to those who are visitors, we always welcome you.

Due to other services, unfortunately for us, our pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, can't be with us every Sunday night. But some day, in the near future, we hope to have him with us in every meeting; he always carries a ray of sunshine with him wherever he goes.

Young People, if you are not in some Christian service on Sunday evening, meet us at Shiloh each Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

Young Men's Wideawake Class, Shiloh.—February 7, today we had 53 present, all listened very attentively to the lesson. We sang that good song, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning." I hope that every young man at Shiloh will let his light shine for Christ.

Our teacher taught a lesson that was enjoyed by all. He said, "Be sure your sins will find you out. We may hide some of our sins from man but we cannot hide them from God, the one whose eye is always upon us. If we want to be happy we must not have sin in our lives but Christ is all it takes to bring real happiness. Let us live so that sin will not overthrow us." He also said, "I beg you all to not indulge in things that will ruin your health, family, and above all your character."

"I trust and pray that every young man who heard this lesson will live the kind of life that will be pleasing in the sight of theLord."

We were glad to have our visiting friends with us. We feel that our class is growing in spirit as well as in number.

We ask the prayers of all the Herald readers so that we may be as a light that is set on a hill that cannot be hid. We feel that we shall accomplish great things if Christ be with us. CLASS REPORTER.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—Due to the beautiful spring weather many people were present Sunday evening for Sunday school and preaching. Mr. N. M. Harrison of the High Point college was the speaker, using as his text "The Master Teacher." Jesus was more concerned in touching the lives of individuals than in subject matter. He taught his disciples to be wise and efficient pupils, then to do as He had taught them, and lastly he taught them how to do. We are some type of teacher. It is our duty to teach and do as Jesus did.

We were very glad to have Mr. Harrison with us and wish for him to come again.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. McLean Cecil at her home Saturday evening, February 6, at 2:30 o'clock. Several members were present for the meeting.

Our pastor, Mr. Loy, has moved to Wallburg in order that he may be nearer his work.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Albert Lineback and Mr. Billy Swaim are on the sick list for this month. Also learned that Miss Bessie Swaim is slowly recovering. We wish for them a speedy recovery.

The boys intermediate Sunday school class entertained the girls' Intermediate class at a party Saturday evening at the home of Misses Ruth and Alice Haynes. A good time was reported by all.

Mr. Loy informed us Sunday evening that the High Point College Choir will sing for us the first Sunday afternoon in March, which will be March 6. We will be glad to have them with us at any time.

Everybody is invited to come.

First Church, High Point.—After an absence of two weeks, the congregation was delighted to greet the paster on last Sunday morning, and an impressive communion service was held, in which almost the entire audience joined. Rev. Mr. Farmer was assisted in administering the holy sacrament by Rev. P. S. Kennett and V. W. Idol.

At the evening service, as the closing feature of Christian Endeavor Week, a playlet, "The Quest of the Holy Grail," was rendered by 12 members of the Senior C. E. Society in a most creditable manner. They were trained very capably by Mrs. Theodore Ballard, who gave painstaking care and thought to this work. There was a good audience, and the collection will be used for New Century Service.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its monthly meeting. Monday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitesell; the program was in charge of Mrs. L. R. Peacock. .Mrs. C. L. Whitaker read an interesting paper by Miss Hodges on "Progress in Our Work in Japan." Mrs. R. I. Farmer reported on the welfare work, and announced that almost enough food to supply seven needy families for ten days of January had been contributed, and asked that the same amount be donated again for February through the Circles. It was decided to observe the World Day of Prayer next Friday, February 12th, at 3:30 o'clock, P. M., in the C. E. room at the church. The nominating committee for the ensuing year announced their report as follows: President, Mrs. Paul S. Kennett; vice-presidents, Mrs. L. R. Peacock and Mrs. S. S. Coe; recording secretary, Mrs. R. W. Riggins; treasurer, Mrs. John S. Pickett; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. H. Walker, Jr. These are the same officers that served last year, and the slate was unanimously re-elected to the great gratification of all present. They have been faithful and efficient in the discharge of their duties, and have won the admiration of their coworkers. The Auxiliary will be divided by these officers into new circles, and the members of each will elect its own chairman. Mrs. H. A. Moffitt, chairman, and her committee will work out details of the Annual Thank-Offering service, the date to be announced later. Mrs. E. L. Douglas reported that five Circles have paid their allotment on the High Point College bond. On account of the stringency of the depression, the serving of freshments has been eliminated for the present.

The Fellowship Supper Meeting will be held Wednesday evening at 6:45 o'clock, after which the first quarterly conference wil convene.

An important meeting of the board of stewards is called for Tuesday evening, and every member is urged to be present, as matters of serious import must be considered.

The congregation was much pleased to receive a new member, Mr. Robert Loftin, on Sunday morning by transfer from the Denton church, and we are glad to extend the right hand of fellowship to this young man.

The Senior C. E. Society held its usual meeting Monday evening. Miss Almeda Russell had charge of the devotional period, and C Peace, a ministerial student in High Point College, spoke on the topic,. "How Our Society Meets Young People's Needs." A special program of music was rendered by Misses Vera Smith and Wilma Planzer, and a Valentine social was enjoyed by the young people.

An old-fashioned "candy pulling" was given Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robbins on Archdale Road by the Woman's Auxiliary in honor of 26 young men and women students of the college, who are associate members of First church. There was a good attendance, various games and stunts were engaged in, and refreshments were served.

High Point young people of all denominations are eagerly awaiting the appearance of Dr. D. A. Poling, International President of C. E., who will speak in the new Junior High School building next Monday evening, February 15th, in the interest of prohibition. The Allied Campaigners will conduct meetings on Sunday and Monday, and other speakers will be Dr. Ira T. Landreth, chairman of the National Temparance Council; Count C. Cruet, Robert C. Ropp, chairman of the Allied Youth; Miss Norma C. Brown, and others. A luncheon for men will be given at First church on Monday at noon, and another for women at Wesley Memorial church at the same hour. A banquet, to which all young people's societies of the city will be invited, will be held in Green Street Baptist church at 6:30 P. M. Monday, February 15. The officers of Allied Youth feel that the report about all young people drinking is a slander, and they will attempt to repudiate it. They think it is unfair to judge the great majority of splendid, upstanding young people by the few exceptions. Youth councils have been formed in many cities throughout the United States, and one will probably be organized here to give young people an opportunity to express their active interest in the Eighteenth Amendment, and give it their hearty support.

In the intensive campaign for subscriptions to the Methodist Protestant Herald waged so faithfully and persistently by Mr. E. L. Douglas, more than 125 papers now come to the homes of First church people, and if the various chairmen appointed in every church in N. C. will work "in and out of season" as he has done, we feel sure that thiscampaign will be eminently successful.

We are much pained to announce the critical illness of Miss Elizabeth Ferree. A large circle of friends and relatives are greatly concerned about her.

Lester B. Teague and sister, Gertrude, of Sumter, S. C., came up Saturday for a visit to relatives here for the week-end, and Miss Gertrude will remain during the week.

John York, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. York, who has been ill in High Point Hospital, shows an improved condition.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—The fifth Sunday was set for the Young People's Day. But instead we had ours Sunday night. Several took part in it. Mr. Bingham addressed the congregation on the purpose of Young People's Day. Collection was taken for New Century Service.

People need not say a little child does not pay attention to what you say. Our Superintendent, Mr. Leo Pittard, said Sunday morning in Sunday school, "Please don't forget your dimes tonight." I happend to be with Mrs. P. E. Hawkins coming to church. Her little four-year-old girl, Frances, said: "Mama, I have forgotten my dime and he told us to bring them."

Mr. Edward Hawkins held prayer service Sunday and he didn't miss bringing out some meaning why we should pray.

Preaching service next Sunday at 11 o'clock. Christian Endeavor Sunday P. M., as the president, Miss Bertha Woodruff, keeps it moving.

The Junior teacher, Miss Beatrice Hawkins, entertained her class at her home Saturday night. She had them to play games and sing. Later refreshments were served.

We fel very highly honored. Mrs. J. B. O'Briant joined our church by letter last second Sunday.

Glad to report Mrs. G. A. Hawkins is improving from throat trouble.

Mr. B. S. Hawkins is seriously ill.

MRS. C. H. HAWKINS, Reporter.

West End, Thomasville.—In the absence of our pastor, Rev. H. W. Bell, who is helping Mr. Reed in a revival at Pine Bluff, N. C., Dr. S. W. Tayor preached a very interesting sermon.

Our Sunday school is still growing in attendance. We feel that our superintendent and teachers are doing their best to make it grow bigger and better than ever before.

We were very glad to have a large representation from the First Reformed church, High Point, with us in Christian Endeavor, February 7. Calvin Brown took charge and rendered a very interesting program on the subject, "How Our Society Meets Young Peoples' Needs." Very interesting talks were made by members of our society, also by members from the First Reformed society of High Point.

Our Junior C. E. society is also doing splendid work under the leadership of Mr. Dave Long.

We were glad to have most of the members of the Ladies' Aid society present at the meeting held at the home of Mrs. R. L. Binkley on February 5. We are planning to have an oyster supper on Saturday night, February 27. And are expecting a large attendance. We feel that our Ladies' Aid society is doing a great work for our church and we hope to see it continue to grow.

We are praying that our pastor will have a great success in the revival in which he is now helping. We miss him very much but we feel that he is doing a great work in another field. And may God bless him.

NOVELLA BINKLEY, Reporter.

Moriah.—Rev. Mr. Chambliss has just returned from a two weeks' visit with his mother.

On Sunday, February 7, Dr. Humphreys, president of High Point College, spoke to us in the interest of the college.

The attendance at church and Sunday school has been very good this year.

The Missionary Society met with Mrs. B. H. Kimrey on Asheboro street on Thursday, February 4. The president, Mrs. E. P. Sharpe, had charge of the very interesting program. After a short business meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments. The attendance was very good.

The funeral service for Mr. Sam Ingold, a member of Moriah church, was conducted Monday at 3 o'clock. Mr. Ingold died at the Clinic Hospital Sunday afternoon. His death was ascribed to pneumonia.

REPORTER.

Giles Chapel.—Our church seems to be going on very nicely now. The Sunday school is doing a good work. The attendance is very good. The young ladies (Loyal Daughters) and young men's, (Loyal Sons), hold their regular monthly meeting in the homes of the members. The January meeting was hed at the home of Miss Juanita Pickett, and was largely attended by members of these classes. Our pastor, Rev. Q. L. Joyner, and family were present. The pastor made a very interesting and helpful talk. I'm sure all who were present enjoyed this very much and feel that it will be very helpful to all our lives.

The January appointment for our church was filled by the President. I am sure all present feel that the sermon helped them very much; gave each a more determined spirit to stand fast in the great work of helping to build up God's church at old Giles Chapel that it may be light in this world.

REPORTER.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Our reporter is in Virginia on a visit, so it falls to me to report if any reporting is done. And I am glad we can report progress.

Recently we have put on two pageants. The first one, presented on the second Sunday in January, was "The Procession of Life," the story of the months and seasons. It was well received. The second one was given on Young People's Day, and was very much enjoyed. The offering for the Department of Religious Education amounted to $13.00, considerably better than last year.

We have adopted the suggestion made at the last session of the Annual Conference by the Committee on Church Finance, to set aside the loose collection for the A. C. B. We have already paid $25.00 on it, which is just $25.00 more than we had paid to this date last year.

Attendance at all the services is increasing a little. A number of visitors are present at the services; some of whom like it so well that they come again. We are glad to see them.

We had 235 present at Sunday schoo last Sunday. Some of them may have come to help us beat Charlotte, but I do not suppose that had a great deal to do with it. Our folks are not much on contests. But we are perfectly willing to beat Charlotte if they want us to.

We are still short of our quota on the College bonds, but we are hoping to have the entire amount taken shortly. We are not so far short of the goal now. If one of the banks hadn't "busted," we probably would have been there by now.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

First Church, Concord.—The work continues to improve. Our Sunday school yesterday was much better than it was a week ago. We had 369 present and $21.60 collection.

The Lord's Supper was celebrated at the 11 o'clock service. This service is always an interesting one and to observe it helps a Christian to live better and makes his faith stronger in the Lord.

Our evening services for the past two Sundays have been wonderful. Our pastor has brought messages concerning the "Signs of the Times," which have proved to be a blessing, and the attendance at both of these services was much better than usual.

Several weeks ago the young people's class served supper in the basement of the church to help raise the money which they have pledged on the Sunday school building. The amount which they received was appreciated, I'm sure.

We ask each one to pray for the work here.

REPORTER.

Democrat Charge.—This being our first report from this work this new Conference year, we have no excuse to offer other than we have been real busy and have hardly taken the time. We have been wonderfully received by the people of the entire work. On our coming to the work in the first port of the Conference year, we were compelled to move in the parsonage at Pensacola, owing to the condition of the parsonage at Democrat. We only have one church here, or close to Pensacola; the other four are in and around Democrat. It being a distance of about 25 or 30 miles from Pensacola to the other churches makes it quite a handicap for us. Nevertheless, we are deeply interested in the work, and great interest is being taken by almost all the people. Conditions that faced us at Conference and on the entering upon the work were very much disheartening, but the people receivd us in a most Christian spirit, bringing to us many of the necessities of life. The different churches have loaded our car with good things to eat a good many times. We wish to thank all.

New interest has been taken in all the churches, both spiritual and financial. We have had several conversions and three additions to the church, with two adult baptisms.

We have organized a Sunday school at Pensacola, and great interest is being taken, though it has been quite discouraging, as there has not been a Sunday school in the Methodist Protestant church in Pensacola for quite a number of years.

We are looking forward to one of the best years in every way that we have witnessed in the past few years, though our people have been scattered to the four winds of the earth. We must find them and bring them into the fold. We trust you brothers and sisters will remember us in a prayerful way.

Anyone knowing the address of any relative of Rev. J. S. Dunn or G. H. Austin, will you please give it to me? Thank you.

EARL A. COOK.

Mt. Hermon Church, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Rev. L. E. Mabry filled his appointment February 7. Those who heard him were impressed by his message on "The Hope of the World."

During the past two weeks death has claimed two of our members, Mr. Seymour Coble and Mrs. Etta Crabtree Coble. The church mourns the loss of these faithful members and extends deepest sympathy to the bereaved families.

The Philathea class held its regular monthly business meeting Friday evening, February 5, at the home of the teacher, Mrs. Vance Garrett, with 14 members present. The president, Miss Lola Thompson, presided over the meeting. Devotion with the theme, "Prayer," was led by Mrs. Garrett. After a lengthy business session Miss Nina Crabtree, chairman of the entertainment committee, took charge and interesting games were played. Refreshments were servd by the class refreshment committee.

Asheville.—The work is most encouraging. The attendance at all services has been unusually good. Mr. A. J. Buckner and Mr. Francis Steadman continue faithful to the church and are rendering invaluable services. They have done much to encourage the members and create a greater spirit of co-operation among all. Mr. E. C. Fawcette also continues faithful in conducting the weekly prayer meeting. We greatly appreciate the services of these three and consider ourselves very fortunate to have such leaders among us at such a critical period of our growth.

Rev. Homer Casto, of Bethel Home, Weaverville, conducted the morning service Sunday. He congratulated the members on their loyalty and the fine spirit manifested. The junior choir rendered a number which added to the service. Two new members were received into church membership.

Decision Day will be observed Easter Sunday and at that time the doors of the church will again be opened. We have a number of prospective members who we hope will unite with us at that time.

The Young People's Class is doing nicely. A progressive dinner was given January 18th. The dinner was served in four courses, each at a different home. Mrs. Roby Wilson, teacher of the class, served the first course; Miss Ethel Burleson, the second; Misses McIntire, the third, and Mrs. E. H. Pratt, the fourth. There were 22 members present at the class last Sunday morning and Guy Allison, the new president, is proving himself quite capable. Mr. R. L. Luffman, former teacher of the Citizens' Bible Class of the First Baptist church in this city, will teach the class next Sunday in the absence of the regular teacher.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. J. S. Williams. Interest was good and the ladies are not only keeping up their monthly pledge to missions but are assisting in paying for the furnace which has added so much to the church this winter. Mrs. Ralph Beacham, president of the Auxiliary, poured tea during the social hour.

The Christian Endeavor business meeting was held February 5th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Pratt. Three new members were received, and three names presented. Plans were completed for Stunt Night, to be held Friday, February 19th. An interesting feature of this program will be the presentation of "The Family Album." A majority of the members of the church will participate in this. Miss Amy Mitchell is proving a splendid president. Mrs. Pratt served refreshments, assisted by Mr. Pratt' mother. The society voted to sponsor a Junior C. E. Society and appointed Mrs. E. A. Bolick and Miss Verda McIntire as counselors. The organization meeting was held last Sunday evening with an attendance of 18. Officers elected were: President, James Clouse; vice-president, Howard Charnock; secretary, Eva Moore; treasurer, Jack Bolick. The outlook for the society is very encouraging.

The children from the Sunday school have had an average attendance of 21 at the preaching service for the month of January.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Charnock have been in Steubenville, Ohio, for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hanner, Mrs. H. L. Hanner and Miss Louise Hanner visited relatives in Greensboro recently.

Hebron, Fallston Charge. — There was preaching at our church today and the sermon was enjoyed by all. The principal aim of the sermon was to show that there is to be no limit to our service in Christian living. There is going to be an important business meeting at the church on next Monday night, February 8.

The Christian Endeavor is still making a good showing in the field for young folks. There is unusual interest being taken in this work and we hope that there will be no limit to the good that will be accomplished.

Kannapolis.—Our pastor delivered two fine sermons today. He opened the doors of the church, receiving two new members, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Bassett, of this city. We are glad indeed to have them with us.

The M. P. church Brotherhood met with Mr. C. L. Hampton on North Main street Saturday night, February 6th, with 19 members present and one new member. Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. L. Hampton, Mrs. J. G. Lisk and Mrs. W. T. Kiser.

Bro. J. M. Morgan, pastor of the Concord church, spoke on Brotherhood, which was enjoyed by all. After the meeting the members of the church gathered at Mr. Faggart's and proceeded to the parsonage and pounded our pastor.

The above is our financial report for two weeks. We know it represents sacrifice somewhere, and every bit of sacrifice made by anyone for this Home is fully appreciated by all of us who live here. And we are trying our best to match your every sacrifice by the closest possible living and economy here.

During 1931 we kept your children and ours, in this home, on an average of 46 cents per day per child. That means that we fed and clothed them, sent them to school eight months in the year, paid salaries and all other bills for 46 cents per child per day for the entire year.

For 1928, the year we came here late in the fall, there were 72 children in the home and it cost the church $19,399.70 to support the home. For 1931 the last calendar year, there were 107 children in the home and it cost the church $17,290.80 to support the home, or $2,108.90 less to care for 107 children than it did to care for 72 children.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Coble

Our community was saddened to learn of the death of Seamore Coble on January 24 at his home. He was 89 years, two months and 28 days old, was a Confederate veteran. He had been a member of the church for about 45 years. He remained a faithful member till his death.

He leaves to mourn their loss four daughters: Mrs. Mary Unmessig, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Eliza Zachary, Graham, N. C.; Mrs. Ella Sharpe, Graham, N. C., and Mrs. Henry Wood, Graham, N. C., and one son, Will Coble, Graham, N. C., and one brother, D. H. Coble, Detchard, Tenn., 16 grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

Sufficient proof of the high esteem in which he was held was expressed by the many beautiful flowers and the large concourse of people that attended his funeral.

The funeral was conducted at Mt. Hermon church by the writer. L. E. MABRY.

Huss

Funeral services were held at Laurel Hill January 23 for Frances Elizabeth Huss, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dave Huss, conducted by our pastor, Rev. J. D. Morris of Fallston.

Miss Huss departed this life January 23, 1932, aged 48 years, two months and ten days.

Miss Huss leaves to mourn her departure two sisters, Mrs. Ruff Hauser of Lincolnton, and Mrs. Will Bazz of Statesville, one brother, John Huss. Miss Huss died from a cancer and realized that death was near and these were her last words:

"I am going home to meet my mother and all of my friends who have gone on before. I am going home to rest and want all to meet me in heaven." and she closed her eyes and crossed the dark shadow of death to the beautiful city beyond.

She saw a hand you could not see,
  Beckoning her away;
She heard a voice you could not hear,
  That would not let her stay.

Sister Huss had been a member of our church at Laurel Hill for 35 years. She will be greatly missed. MRS. A. B. WILLIS.

Crutchfield

Mrs. Geo. F. Crutchfield died February 2, 1932, aged 63 years, 11 months and nine days. In early life she was converted and joined Chestnut Ridge M. P. church; about seven years ago she transferred her membership to Efland M. P. church. She was a lifelong Methodist Protestant, always faithful to her church and all its interests.

She was the daughter of the late Edmond C. and Rachel E. Thompson, the granddaughter of Rev. Daniel Thompson, one of the founders of the M. P. churmh in this section.

She was twice married, first to Mr. Weldon Stroud who lived about one year after their marriage, second, to Mr. Geo. F. Crutchfield who survives.

Others of her near relatives who survive are as follows: one daughter of her first union, Mrs. R. C. Sharpe; two daughters, Mrs. Gaston Moore, and Miss Pattye; two sons, Rev. M. Ivey and Jas. E., of her second union, one brother, W. E. Thompson and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted in Efland M. P. church on February 3. The remains were pleased in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Crutchfield was a faithful wife and mother. She will be missed in her community and in her church but most of all in her home.

May God comfort her companion, her children and all her sorrowing relatives and friends. B. M. WILLIAMS.

Coble

Mrs. Etta L. Coble passed away at her home on January 29, aged 37 years, ten months and 27 days. We understand that she had suffered from an attack of pneumonia. She is survived by her husband, A. M. Coble,; three daughters, Mattie, Pauline, and Morene; two sons, Clyde and Raymond; one sister, Mrs. Mary Long, Morriston, Tenn., three brothers, Haywood Crabtree, Mebane, N. C.; Alfred Crabtree, Graham, N. C., and Preston Crabtree, Saxapahaw, N. C.

She had been a member of Mt. Hermon church since childhood. The funeral was conducted by Rev. H. L. Isley in the absence of her pastor, the writer.

L. E. MABRY.

Speas

Louvenia Katherine Speas departed this life January 25, 1932. Her age was 69 year, two months and 11 days. She was the daughter of Egbert and Katherine Edwards, and was married to Virgil Speas on November 8, 1888. This union was blessed with seven children, three of whom are living, two sons, Saunders and Eugene Speas, and one daughter, Mrs. Joe Jackson. Also five grandchildren and two brothers, Jeff and Sherman Edwards.

At the age of 17 years Mrs. Speas united with Trinity Methodist church. After her marriage she transferred her membership to Tabernacle Methodist Protestant church, where she remained a member until her death. She was of a quiet disposition, and never enjoyed many of the comforts of this life, but she did not let that deprive her of her interest in her children and other relatives and her neighbors. Her last act in this life was to make a visit to some of her neighbors, where death overtook her. She bore her trials of this life with a brave spirit, and was able to look on the bright side of life, even in the midst of the troubles and misfortunes of life.

Funeral services were held at the home and at Tabernacle Methodist Protestant church in the afternoon of January 26, conducted by the writer, and her body was tenderly placed in its final resting place in the church cemetery to await the Resurrection Morning.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

And besides that the Duke Endowment gave us over $1,000 more for 1930 than for 1928, because we were caring for more children.

Duke Report

We mailed last week our Duke report for 1931, and question number 161 reads: "Will an appropriation of funds by the trustees of the Duke Endowment tend to substitute, retard or diminish financial support by existing or local interests." We answered: "We do not think so. Our income fell off this year, but we think that was on account of the financial stress through which we are passing."

Question number 162 asked: "Will an apportionment of funds by the trustees of the Duke Endowment tend to stimulate, accelerate or increase financial support by existing or local interests." We answered: "We think our people will appreciate the gift, and if we can speak of our recognition along with other orphanages it will urge them on to better work."

Were our answers correct? We trust they were, but our report to them, next January, for 1932 will tell.

The gift of the Duke Endowment to Orphanages depends upon several things such as, the number of children cared for, condition of buildings and equipments, the amount of money contributed for the support of the children, the economical expenditure of those funds, the yield from the farm and dairy, etc. So you see we cannot decrease in our contributions to the home and expect them to increase in theirs.

For a week now I have been almost incapacitated for service, and to save expenses we are again living in the girls' dormitory. There are some clothing and other gifts which should be reported, but the records are over at the cottage, and it does not seem wise to go through the rain for them today. They will be reported. I hope to be well soon.

We are glad Brother Millaway is at home. God bless him. We deeply sympathize with Brother Ashburn and his family, and pray that Hoyle may soon be well. We also sympathize with all our sorrowing and suffering friends. God bless them everyone. Pray for us.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

THE JOURNALS ARE OUT

It looked like we weren't going to get them before Conference, but they really have come out. I regret the delay. But it isn't my fault. If you want to fuss about it, fuss with somebody else.

If you haven't gotten your allotment by the time you read this, please NOTIFY ME AT ONCE, and I'll send you a supply.

When you get your money SEND IT IN. The printer needs it.

Mother's Part

What higher human trust is there
Than God has given her to bear?
What king or priest has part so great
As God has laid at mother's gate?

'Tis hers to build a living man,
In God's own image, by His plan;
Pursue her task through all the years,
With smiling face or blinding tears.

To build his body, mind and soul,
In symmetry complete the whole,
With body strong and mind alert
And soul that will its power exert.

Not he that founds a splendid city,
Not he that frames a golden ditty,
Not he that forms a mighty nation,
Can rank with mother in her station.

Our Treasurer's Report

Dr. George R. Brown, Treasurer of our Annual Conference, publishes this week his first quarterly report for this conference year. Most readers will be impressed, perhaps painfully impressed, with the meagerness of the report. There are so many blanks and many contributions are so small. How are these facts to be explained? Why is so little money being conveyed to the coffers of the church? This is a question for church people to answer. It is a time of financial stringency, but there is in circulation money enough to keep other institutions in operation that cannot begin to compare with the church in value to the world. If poverty is the cause of the falling off of church contributions, it is bad, but not nearly so bad as it would be if men were losing love for the church and the Great Head of the Church. What is the matter, folks?

—Hindenburg, though 84 years old, will run again for the presidency of the German republic. He feels it his duty to do so to preserve the nation from breaking up into factions.

—Putting money into circulation is thought by some to be a sovereign remedy for the ills of the time. But we need some other kind of thrift than the spendthrift.

—Rev. G. F. Millaway gives an interesting account of his experiences while he was under the surgeon's knife in Boston. There is no telling how much support his Christian faith gave him in that trying hour. Had he been terrified at the thought of death he might not have survived the ordeal he had to pass through.

When Not to Decide

We are called on to make decisions every day. Most of them are decisions of minor questions, but some of them are decisions of major questions. All of them demand correct decision. Incorrect decision in some cases would be disastrous. Our destiny, temporal and eternal, is involved in our decisions, our choices. In many of the cases coming up for our decision we do not have complete knowledge and cannot decide with confidence. To decide rationally we must first inform ourselves of the pertinent facts. There will be those interested in giving us misinformation for information. We must be careful not to be misled by them. But perhaps the greatest danger comes from our own minds through prejudice or passion. Our judgments may be misled disastrously by our own feelings.

When prejudices prevail in our mind or when passion is aroused it is a time to defer decision. Our decisions, especially our moral decisions, should be most carefully made under the cold white light of pure reason and conscience. If we decide under the red light of passion we are almost certain to err disastrously if not fatally. "There is a way that seemeth right to a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." The importance of our moral choices cannot be overestimated. Our moral life is to be reviewed in eternity. "After death the judgment." That great thought should move us to an early, honest, persistent study of the greatest of all our questions until we see clearly how to make the great decision. When once the light appears we should not for one moment delay our decision. Our temporal interests may lure us to hasty decisions, our eternal interests which infinitely outweigh all others cannot move us too soon. "Now is the accepted time, today is the day of salvation." The time to decide any question of practical concern is when that question demands our action, if we have not previously decided it correctly.

—President Hoover has named as successor to Justice Holmes in the Supreme Court Benjamin N. Cardozo, a Democrat and a Jew, who has for 20 years served as judge in New York courts.

—The Allied Prohibition Promoters were in Greensboro last Saturday and Sunday and by their speeches pleased Greensboro people and we believe strengthened their faith in the Eighteenth Amendment. All are able speakers and some of them extraordinarily so. One of the ablest, Raymond Robbins, was in young manhood a Kentucky coal miner. Dr. Poling and Dr. Landrith are leaders in the Christian Endeavor movement. One of the best speakers was a lady.

REGULATIONS FOR THE SCIENCE ESSAY CONTEST

The High School Science Committee of the North Carolina Academy of Science announces the following detailed regulations governing the Science Essay Contest for the year 1932:

The prize, a silver loving cup, for the year 1932 is offered for the best essay submitted to the Academy by a bonafide high school student upon a subject selected by himself in the field of Chemistry or Physics.

It is not necessary that a student be registered in the subject in order to compete in this contest.

Essays shall be limited to a maximum of 2,500 words, and shall be submitted in typewriting on one side of bond paper 8½x11 inches.

A title page, carrying the subject, the writer's name, the name of the school, the class to which the writer belongs, and the courses taken in science, shall accompany the essay.

Students may receive aid from instructors only in securing materials. The composition shall be wholly that of the competitor, and shall be so certified by the principal of the school. Careful avoidance of similarity of diction to authors consulted, and minimal quotations will be advantageous.

In case more than three students from a given high school submit essays, the school authorities are asked to select the three that rank highest and to submit them.

Essays must be in the hands of the secretary of the Academy, H. R. Totten, Chapel Hill, N. C., by April 1, 1932. The judges will be selected by the High School Science Committee of the Academy. The winner of the prize will be announced at the Annual Meeting of the Academy which will be held about May 1. It is the expectation of the Academy to present the prize to the winner at the Commencement of the school to which he belongs.

H. R. Totten,
Secretary of the North Carolina
Academy of Science.

WHAT SOME OF THE CONFERENCES HAVE TO SAY ABOUT HIGH POINT COLLEGE BONDS

Pittsburgh—"One of the most notable achievements in the history of the Methodist Protestant Church is the building and development of High Point College. For seven years it has been struggling forward in the face of heavy obligations incurred when the buildings were erected. . . . At a meeting of the denominational Executive Committee, it was voted to ask the church to assist in placing first mortgage bonds, the income from which will liquidate notes held against the College and signed personally by various North Carolina laymen. Our Conference is asked to dispose of $8,000. This is not a gift nor in any way a donation, but an investment in a high grade security."—From Conference President's Report.

Ohio—"HIGH POINT COLLEGE, in North Carolina is situated in the midst of thriving Methodist Protestants, but is handicapped with heavy indebtedness, and an unsubstantial endowment of but $80,000. There is a movement under way through the sale of bonds bearing six per cent interest to ease the financial pressure on the college. We urge the people of Ohio Conference to purchase these bonds, not as an act of charity but as an investment."—From the report of the Committee on Christian Education.

Michigan—"The third thing to be done by way of securing better schools, relates to our youngest college, High Point College. It is not an appeal for gifts but an offer of an investment. We therefore call the attention to those interested in making a good investment to the bonds of High Point College, which bonds will bear six per cent interest . . . "—From the report of the Committee on Education.

To Whom It May Concern:

There are other statements which might be added to these, but these are fair samples of the attitudes of the various Conference toward the High Point College bonds, and of their evident interest in the College. The question that faces us, as I see it, is, WILL WE SHOW OUR APPRECIATION OF THAT INTEREST BY DOING OUR PART? And you will have to answer that.

Sincerely,
C. W. Bates, Secretary.

THOUGHTS AND VISIONS

Some thoughts which came into my mind while my leg was being amputated and after the amputation and these thoughts carried my mind back four or five months to the period when I suffered so much.

If these thoughts seem strange to you, let me say, they seem strange to me too. Here they are:

I walked and sat and slept along the banks of death's dark river. They do not give ether to diabetic patients but novocaine, so I was not asleep, nor dreaming—I talked with the nurse, who stood at my head with her finger on my temple. I said a few words to the surgeon—I heard the saw when he sawed off the bone, there was no pain. As I walked along the dark river I heard the raging of a furious storm. The waters were turbulent. The darkness was awful. All seemed hopeless. I lifted my eyes and looked for someone to pity me, and extend a hand of help—for I was helpless and seemed to be hopeless—yet I did believe that the God of love and pity would save me from the storm raging on the dark river of death. I asked Dr. Theodore Pratt "How long do you think I could have lived had my leg not been off." He said, "Probably not more than three months." So death was near. Suddenly light flashed into the raging storm and dispelled the darkness and there lay before me a placid silvery sea. There was the old ship of Zion brightly lighted, bound for the heavenly country. Then I thought of the song: "There will be no dark valley when Jesus Comes." These Scriptures came into my mind. There shall be no night there—God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes—I was delivered from death for the time being by the help of God through the agency of man.

G. F. MILLAWAY.

DIED IN LAODICEA

The following lamentation is sent to us by a brother living in the country who does not wish his name attached to it:

Died in Laodicea, the prayer meeting, aged one year. The health of the meeting was poor most of the year, and its life was despaired of. But a few anxious friends kept it alive, and sometimes it would so revive as to encourage them. Discouragement, however, at last prevailed, and the prayer meeting is dead. It died from neglect. Not a single Christian was present when it died, nor was there one to sing a requiem at the funeral.

Sad, sad wasn't it! and yet over forty professed Christians (?) were living within a mile of it, but not one was there. Had two only been there its life might have been spared, for where two of you are agreed "as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them" (Matt. 18:19). Two-thirds of the forty might have been there had they been so disposed. But they were not, and the poor weakly thing gave up the ghost. And alas! if actions speak louder than words, it has very few mourning friends.

Oh! what will become of Laodiceans? for God knows their works, they are "neither cold nor hot"! lukewarm (Rev. 3:15, 16). He threatens to cast them out of His mouth, but they regard it not. Alas! alas! that great profession, lacking energy, zeal, wisdom, and love! Oh! ye Laodiceans! You can spend your evenings at home, or gossiping with your neighbors; you have no interest in the prayer meeting, and no tears to shed over its death. When God visits you what will you answer Him. The prayer meeting through your neglect has died!

Mourn, mourn for the Laodicean
Who is neither cold nor hot,
Who is seeking earthly comfort,
And food from empty pot.

—Field and Work.

SERVICE VS. SPIRITUALITY

In this age of rush and hurry and busy activity everywhere, if we are not careful, we shall allow ourselves to become too much absorbed in the doing, even of things that are legitimate or that may seem to be absolutely necessary, to wait upon God. Let us take heed that we do not become so swallowed up in service that we fail to wait upon God for spiritual enduement and refreshing. Nothing can take the place in the Church of a Spirit-filled ministry and Spirit-filled leadership.—Publisher Unknown.

AS THYSELF

How much we love ourselves! We have failings, and we know it; but we love ourselves. We do things that shame us; but we still love ourselves. We do things that look mean to us after a time, but we keep on loving ourselves. We can't see many of our own faults. We know this well enough. But the fact that we are worse than we see ourselves does not abate our love for ourselves. It is a mercy to us all that we can not clearly see all our own faults.

But we have a clear vision of the faults of others. We have a quick reaction to them. The same fault in a neighbor looks worse to us than in ourselves. We can not love him when he is like "that." Let any other practice upon us but a fraction of the wrong that we practice upon ourselves, and it would place an impassable gulf between us.

We all want friends. We all need friends. Life is not worth a straw to the person who is so made up that everybody excludes him. But nobody who is always resenting the faults of others can ever keep a friend. We are all slow to see faults in ourselves, and swift to forgive ourselves for persistent and premeditated wrongs toward others. Why can't we forgive our friends? Little faults in them are no worse than in us.

One trouble is that we dwell too much upon the faults of others. Our own failings would make a bad impression upon us if we should dwell upon them. But we don't. We make ourselves the hero or heroine in every situation. We always assume the center of the stage. But the best actors on the stage of life are those who can forgive the little faults and dwell upon the best in their friends. If we can't do that, let this be a warning to us that we must have more grace.—Publisher Unknown.

HOW CAN THE CHRISTIAN HELP TO STOP THE CAUSE OF POVERTY?

There are several ways how Christians can help stop the cause of poverty, but the most important one is freely giving to the poor.

If you will read through your New Testament carefully, noting exactly what Jesus said, you will find that he talked more about giving than about heaven, or salvation, or nearly any other subject.

Dives went to hell because he would not share. The man who filled his barns and gave nothing was a fool.

The rich man seeking eternal life was admonished to give his wealth to the poor.

The deceitfulness of riches chokes the word. "Sell that which you have." "Lay not up treasures."

"Freely ye have received, freely give." "Give alms, and the Father will recompense you." Come, ye blessed of my Father—for ye gave! Depart from me—for ye gave not. The blessings of God are poured out upon men in the same degree that men share. "With what measure ye give, it shall be given to you again."

Whatsoever you do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus for it is more blessed to give than to receive.

LIVVIE BRADSHAW.

THE GREATEST ENEMY

It is Gibbon, the historian, who tells what the effect upon Clovis, the invincible King of the Franks, was, when first he heard the story of the sufferings and death of the Lord Jesus. He was deeply moved, and, fierce soldier though he was, he could not restrain his tears. Suddenly he grasped his sword hilt and exclaimed, "Ah, had I but been there with my Franks."

They were generous and ingenious words, the words of a soldier and a man of violent deeds, and he had not yet learned the spirit of the Lord, whose Name he afterwards confessed, yet they were beautiful words, in spite of their ignorance. They remind us of the way that Simon Peter acted in the garden. But both Clovis and Simon were wrong; the true and intelligent followers of the rejected Saviour do not smite His foes with the sword; they pray for them and pity them as He did, yet they may use the sword, but it must be upon an often unsuspected and more subtle enemy, and that enemy is self.

It is self that often stands between us and the glory of our God; it is self that often obtrudes when none but Christ should be seen. Self is the enemy, the great rival to Christ, and we may rightly use the sword upon self. — Scripture Truth.

THE TWO GIFTS

A rich man was down at the water front waiting the departure of an ocean liner. He was joined by an acquaintance, who said to him, "You seem to be much pleased about something." "Yes," said the rich man, "I do feel unusually good today. Do you see that vessel at anchor in the North River? Well, I have on that vessel ten thousand dollars worth of equipment for a hospital in China, and I just came down to see the vessel safely off."

"Well, that is interesting, and I am glad you made that gift," said the friend. "But you know I also have a gift on that ship. My only daughter is on that vessel, going to China to give her life as a missionary."

The wealthy man looked touchingly into the eyes of his friend and exclaimed, "My dear brother, I feel as though I have given nothing as I think of what this sacrifice means to you!"—J. R. Straton in the Gardens of Life.

BE MASTER OF YOUR OWN MIND

Every thought you think has an influence upon your life, great or small. All the thoughts you think are of two classes: Constructive thoughts which build your powers toward useful ends, or destructive thoughts which deplete your resources. The thinking of most men is indefinite, haphazard, and negative. They are frequently controlled by environment, accidental circumstances, aimless newspaper reading, and other influences which tempt their thought away from constructive lines. You can deliberately choose the kind of thought you intend should govern your daily life. You can close the door of your mind against every undesirable, negative, useless thought. You can be master of your own mind in the degree that you really want to be.

The President's Letter

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Sick

We understand that Miss Mabel Hutton, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Hutton, is seriously ill in Morganton, where she is teaching. We extend sympathy and assurance of earnest prayers. We trust that her condition is already improved.

Miss Ferree Passes

Miss Elizabeth Ferree passed to her eternal reward Thursday of last week. Funeral service was held in the First M. P. Church, High Point, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Roy I. Farmer, and a former pastor, Rev. George R. Brown, D. D. Interment was in the High Point cemetery. Miss Feree was a most estimable woman, and the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. T. Ferree. Dr. Ferree was an honored member of our conference, and served for a term of years as president. His decease was in 1904. Sister Ferree survives, and to her and the other members of the family, we extend sympathy and assurances of our prayers in this bereavement.

North Davidson

We were on this charge in two services Sunday, February 7, beginning at Bethesda in the morning and closing with an afternoon service at Canaan. All five of the churches on this charge had services on this day. Pastor Loy was at Union Grove in the morning at 11 o'clock, and Brother N. M. Harrison was at Mt. Pleasant at the same hour, and these two brethren were in Brother Loy's regular appointment at Spring Hill in the afternoon. It is rare that every church on a five point charge has service on the same Sunday. Our congregations were good at Bethesda and Canaan, and an attentive hearing was given to the messages. We had the pleasure of having Dr. Frank W. Stephenson with us on this itinerary. He preached at Canaan and spoke, also, in the Bethesda service. The people heard him gladly. Our particular objective in these services was High Point College. We were greatly pleased to receive at Bethesda church orders for four $100 bonds. They go to Mr. C. M. Yokley, Mrs. C. M. Yokley, Miss Willie Yokley, and Miss Elizabeth Yokley. Thanks to this Yokley family. Miss Elizabeth and her brother, Bruce Raymond, are graduates of the college. We missed the pastor on this visit to his charge, but we understood, of course, that he was keeping his regular appointments, a perfectly proper thing for him to do. This is Brother Loy's first year as pastor of this charge. He has been cordially received, and is winning his way to the confidence of the people. The charge appears to be in good condition, and the work is progressing. We are indebted to Brother and Sister Robert Leonard for entertainment at dinner. It was a pleasure, as it always is, to be with the people of this charge.

Thomasville—West End

Our night appointment on this date was with this church. We found the C. E. society in a meeting on our arrival at the church, and learned that they had as their guests the C. E.'s of the Reformed Church of High Point. Many were present, and there were signs of much interest. The Junior society of the church was present in a body, and filled one whole tier of seats. Under the direction of their leader, Mr. Dave Long, they sang for the preaching service. The congregation for this service was large, and our message was received with much helpful interest. The pastor, Brother Bell, was assisting Brother Reed in a meeting on Midland charge. There is much fellowship between pastor and people at this place, and signs of progress are in evidence. We enjoyed the worship with them. At the conclusion of the service, we had a brief but pleasant visit with our long-time friends, Mr. W. M. Thompson and family, our former parishioners in Burlington. They are now residents of Thomasville. We are indebted to other friends, Brother and Sister John Lloyd, for conveying us in their car to our home in High Point. It was a delight to be with these friends again and to renew the fellowships of other days.

Journals

They should be sold at once and the money sent in to Brother Bates. And they should be read from ''kiver to kiver,'' that we may be familiar with the doings of the last annual conference. It's a little interesting to speculate on who will be the first pastor to ''sell out and send in.'' It would at least be informing if the Secretary would give us a HERALD report from time to time of how the different charges stand. The Secretary thinks that this issue of the Journal is the most accurate yet produced. The cover is pleasing to the eye, and the paper and print are good. It is a commending advertisement of the Stockton Press.

Pastor's Reports

Instead of sending out the usual quarterly questionnaire, we are asking pastors to send us just a simple post card report, covering the essential facts of the first quarter of this conference year. Each pastor will be his own judge as to what should go into this report. We shall be grateful if all of these reports may be in by next week.

Joash Day

(Read 2nd Kings, Chapter 12, and 2nd Chronicles, Chapter 24).

By order of the Annual Conference, April is Stewardship and Pay-up Month. It is also ''Up-to-Date Month'' on New Century Service. April 30 ends the fiscal year of the General Church, and is also the end of the quadrennium. Everyone will agree that it is useless to appoint special days and special periods for definite achievements simply to set up a program and to make use for printer's ink. The value of these special periods, whether a day or a month, is in the use we make of them. They have merit, a great deal of it; but only when they are used. We are not proposing ''JOASH DAY'' just to have something a bit different. We are proposing it because we believe there is merit in it. It has the sanction of the Committee Advisory to the President, and also that of other brethren with whom we have discussed it. Will we try it, really try it—really put thought and effort behind it, and "sure nuff" work it? Yes, I believe we will; and if we do something is going to happen, and it will be so good that we will forget that there ever was a money panic. A JOASH BOX in every one of our 232 churches on one Sunday during the month of April will gather a surprisingly large amount of money. That is, if the plan is worked. If it isn't, we will get what we always do without effort—NOTHING. This is the plan: 1. A small box, with a slit in the top to receive the offering. Paint the box if you like, or cover it with white cloth. Put the box in the church where it is easy of access, and let the people deposit their offerings in it. Don't pass the box to them; let them go to the box. 2. Designate a day for each church as JOASH DAY, preferably the day of the regular preaching appointment. 3. Appoint a committee at each church to boost "JOASH DAY." 4. Urge the people to lay aside day by day in their homes something to be deposited in the Joash Box on JOASH DAY. 5. Tell the people that the Joash collection will be used for the following purposes: Pastor's salary 50 per cent.; A. C. B. 25 per cent.; N. C. S. 25 per cent. 6. Keep JOSH DAY constantly before the people by frequent announcements in every church. 7. Get the various organizations interested and working for it. 8. Plan the Joash offering so that every one contributing may receive credit on his regular church pledge or assessment.

But this is enough for this announcement. We shall have more to say about "JOASH" next week. But in the meantime, how we do hope that this effort may meet with an enthusiastic response, and that many of our congregations may hear about it next Sunday from the pulpit. Let's be 100 per cent. for JOASH DAY. If any body wants to say "amen" to that, sound it out in the Herald next week. Everybody together now for a great JOASH DAY.

Appointments

GOD IS FAITHFUL

Melancthon said, "If I had no care, I should have no prayer." Spurgeon said, "Sometimes God sends His love letters in black-edged envelopes." He allows us to taste the bitterness of want and the desolation of bereavement. If you have lived many years, you have passed through the narrows. We have all been there, and it is not always easy to see the Divine control. It looks as if things have got out of hand, and somehow or other we have been forgotten. When there is no one at hand to say it to you, say to yourself, "God is faithful, who will not suffer the pain to exceed the measurement of my endurance."—Rev. John MacDeath.

"WILL A MAN ROB GOD?"

The latest statistics show that the United States spends every year for luxuries the enormous sum of five and a half billion dollars. Of this, $1,847,000,000 is spent for tobacco; $820,000,000 for soft drinks and ice cream; $934,000,000 for theaters, movies, and similar amusements; $689,000,000 for candy; $87,000,000 for chewing gum; $453,000,000 for jewelry; $431,000,000 for sporting goods, toys, etc., and $261,000,000 for perfumes and cosmetics.

Note that these eight items are all either almost useless or positively harmful. We spend for these luxuries about $50 a person or $200 a family every year. From a tenth to a fifth of our average income is wasted, or worse than wasted.

Now how much do we spend for God, for the Church, for Missions and other great Christian enterprises? We are tithing them for the Bread of Life? We are certainly not robbing the corner cigar store; are we robbing the house of God? We are not robbing the movie producers, or the candy manufacturers; are we robbing God? How does the matter stand with each one of us? There is no more important practical and spiritual question for America to answer today than this: Is our nation robbing God?—Amos R. Wells in Church of Christ Advocate.

MY PRAYER FOR 1932

Give me the mantle of charity, Lord,
  Whose other sweet name is Love,
That I may more prayerfully tread the path
  That leads to Heaven above.

Give me the vision to sense the hurt
  That lies 'neath the frowning face,
That I may more perfectly understand
  And touch it with Heavenly grace.

Give me the tender word and the true,
  To bind up the broken heart—
With healing balm from Thy Storehouse, Lord,
  That leaves neither scar nor smart.

Blot out my many transgressions, Lord,
  The many mistakes of the past:
Gird up my loins with Thy strength, dear Lord,
  And help me this year to "Stand fast."

LEADERS OF TOMORROW

Said a woman to whom life has brought many a bitter lesson: "Fill your children as full of religion as you can, give them all of it they will hold, bathe them in it, surround them with every spiritual advantage, teach them holy things, let these become so much a part of their lives that they cannot shake them off—try as they may—in years to come. They will need it all, and if, out of the battle waged against the world, the flesh and the devil, (from which they will bear scars to their graves,) they keep the faith, they will have reasons to bless you. But in the world of doubt, cynicism and disenchantment, they will need every bit of religion with which you can furnish their soul's house. And to have it is their inalienable right!"—From Charity and Children.

INCONSISTENT SAINTS

In my unconverted days, I rejoiced when I heard of anyone who professed to be going to Heaven attending a concert or a theater. It was a kind of ease to my conscience, and I said to myself, "Surely there cannot be much good in being converted, if this is all it does for them."

This is how the people of the world argue, when they see believers mixing up with them in their amusements. No doubt, many of the ungodly are kept comfortable on the way to hell, by pointing to the failures of the people of God. But surely it is a very solemn thing for a child of God to give Satan material wherewith to ruin souls thus. If God's people were but half-alive to the fact that the devil uses their inconsistencies and backslidings to deceive souls, they would walk more wisely and watchfully than they do.

Dear young believer, your daily life and walk is watched by those around you, and little as you may think it, you are making impressions on the people that are around you, which can never be effaced. You do not live only for yourself; others read you, and when they see you make a faltering step, or hear you speak un-Christ-like words, these may be used by the devil to turn them away from Christ, and His blessed Gospel. On the other hand, what a power a Godly, consistent life and walk must have upon the ungodly. This is a kind of "preaching" they cannot refuse to hear: it must be received. And you have thus the honor of "preaching" Christ at home, at school, in the office, on the street; in fact, everywhere.—Publisher Unknown.

DIVES AND LAZARUS STILL WITH US

Today we meet with the two extremes, the very rich and the very poor, that remind us of Dives and Lazarus. Rolling in luxury, Dives cared nothing for the beggar lying at his gate, perishing for food. Just recently the daily press reported that a very extravagant social function was held in one of our large cities, where luxury and waste dazzled the eyes even of those who are used to such scenes; while just across the street there was a bread-line,—men out of work, standing in line for a piece of bread and a bowl of soup.

Statistics recently given out state that there were 511 persons in the United States who had an income of a million dollars in 1929. Income, mind you, not gross property-holdings. That means that these men were millionaires many times over. The 1930 statistics may show some change, but it looks as if the rich are growing richer and the poor are growing poorer. That is a bad situation; especially as so few men of great wealth feel any deep concern for their more unfortunate fellow-men, or have any just sense of responsibility for the proper use of wealth. Some men of wealth are to be commended for their benevolent spirit and their social service, but as a rule great wealth only leads to a greater love for wealth, and less concern for the welfare of the poor and needy.

But we need not go to the great cities of the North or the millionaires to find the Dives spirit; in greater or less degree it is found everywhere. Though far from being millionaires, there are men of means in every community who are wanting in a Christian conscience concerning the right use of money. With the churches falling behind with their finances, and the crying needs of the unemployed, they go on spending their money freely for their own pleasures, indulging in luxuries of various kinds. There is only one thing that can save us from our economic and social ills, that is the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The Christians of apostolic days filled with the Spirit of their Lord, were eager to divide their last crumb with their needy brethren.

Since writing the words above, we have come across this press notice: "The body of Nathan Straus, philanthropist, was carried to a grave today in a plain box of white pine boards. Instead of a huge fortune, he left behind him the love of the needy and suffering on whom he lavished most of the wealth he earned as a merchant." Wealth would always be a blessing, and never a curse, if used as Nathan Straus used it. May his tribe increase."—Texas Christian Advocate.

THE THINGS THAT HAVEN'T BEEN DONE BEFORE

The things that haven't been done before,
Those are the things to try.
Columbus dreamed of an unknown shore,
At the rim of the far-flung sky.
Are the things that were known before.
And all that they ever strive to know
And his heart was bold and his faith was strong,
As he ventured in dangers new,
And he paid no heed to the jeering throng,
Or the fear of the doubting crew.

The many will follow the beaten track
With guide-posts along the way.
They live and have for ages back
With a chart for every day.
Some one has told them it's safe to go
On the road he has traveled o'er,

The things that haven't been done before
Are the tasks worth while today.
Are you one of the flock that follows, or
Are you one that shall lead the way?
Are you one of the timid souls that quail
At the jeers of the doubting crew,
Or dare you, whether you win or fail,
Strike out for the goal that's new?

THE SECRET OF CHEERFULNESS

An old man who had met life serenely and tranquilly for more than eighty years was asked the secret of his cheerfulness. He answered in four words: "Thinking of other folks." "You will find," he explained, "that your path is all tangled up with other folk's path. Some people think that if they can only travel their path without getting hurt themselves, they're going to be happy.

"But there's more than that to it. To never cause grief to another soul is getting close to real happiness.

"In other words, when you get so far that it's a joy to you just make others happy, you're about there, yourself."—F. A. S., in Light and Life Evangel.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE STOLEN HORSE

For three weeks this summer a troop of gypsies had been camping in a field belonging to a farmer named Silas Warner. The country people called them traders, and traders they were of horses. They bought several and sold several more to the city people who owned country places nearby.

The gypsies, or traders, had a number of untidy tents pitched and little fires were lighted before them at meal times, but otherwise they did not look like gypsies. They wore store clothes instead of the bright red shawls and sashes of their ancestors. The children had blue overalls and the women wore calico dresses and the men dressed like farmers.

All the same they were gypsies and their neighbors looked on them with suspicion.

Near the Warner farm was the Betterman farm. Bob Warner and Phil Betterman were great pals. They both liked the same things—exploring the woods and streams, spying on the ways and habits of birds and beasts and insects, and playing wonderful make-up games such as boys delight in.

One day Bob heard his friend's shrill whistle coming over the field and he ran out of the yard to meet him.

''Are you through with your chores already?'' Bob inquired. ''I'm not quite through yet.''

''Neither am I,'' said Phil, ''but I had to come over and tell what's happened over at our farm. You know Jack and Jerry, Dad's team?''

Sure, Bob knew Jack and Jerry well. They were the finest draught horses in the county and had won prizes at the fairs.

''Well,'' said Phil, ''Jerry has been stolen. This morning when Dad went into the barn he noticed that Jack seemed restless, and he went right over to the stalls. Before he reached them he knew something was wrong. You know our barn is laid out inside. You can see the horses' tails before you reach the passage near the stalls. Dad saw Jack's tail, but no tail sticking out of Jerry's stall. Well sir, he ran over and found Jerry was gone all right, and he hadn't run away either because even a horse as smart as Jerry couldn't have opened the barn door and then closed it up after him.''

''Gee!'' exclaimed Bob. ''Wonder who could have taken him?''

''Of course,'' he said, ''it's it's natural to think it was the traders, but Dad says we got to go slow before accusing people.''

''Your Dad is always trying to excuse people,'' said Bob, remembering some things that had happened in the past. ''He might say that my Dad had no right to allow traders to camp here and be blaming him for Jerry's loss.''

The boys went quickly to the farmhouse to spread the news, and both Mr. and Mrs. Warner looked very grave when they heard it. Of course, they both thought about the gypsies camping in their field.

Dad Warner dropped everything and hurried with the boys to the Betterman farm. There were a group of other farmers there already gathered near the barn and a number of boys as well. Bob and Phil stood close in the group to hear the conversation.

''Well, Jo,'' said Dad Warner to his neighbor, ''Just this minute got word of your loss and I want to help you all I can. Stands to reason, Jo, your horse is being hidden not far away, because if he was taken away, the thief would be missing around here and his absence would attract attention. Besides Jerry is known all over the county and if he was shown in the day time the word would soon be spread around.''

''That's what we were saying,'' answered Jo Betterman. ''We reckon he's been taken away and hidden somewhere, and tonight the thief will probably come and get him and try to ride him far enough away during the night so he'd be safe.''

''Then,'' said Dad Warner, ''the thing to do is to try to get trace of the horse today.''

''That's just what we were saying,'' agreed Mr. Betterman.

Just then one of the boys spoke up, a little sandy-haired fellowed called Lyman Thatch.

''Gran'ma said this morning she heard hoofs going past our place in the night,'' he piped. ''She says she heard the clock strike just before and it was 3 o'clock, and she was studying why a horse should be galloping on our back road at that time of night.''

''Good!'' cried Mr. Betterman. ''That gives us a clue to work on. We'll hunt the woods out that way.''

Meanwhile there had been a great stamping and whinnying from Jack in the barn. Bob Warner spoke up.

''Maybe if we took Jack along, he'd call to Jerry and Jerry might answer and it'd be easier to find him,'' he said.

''Jerry sure would answer,'' agreed Phil.

''Good!'' exclaimed Mr. Betterman, hastening into the barn. ''You kids all come along. You've got good ideas.''

So it was that in a few minutes three autos raced from the farm laden with men and boys who had laid aside their own duties to help a neighbor in trouble. Behind them rode Phil Betterman on Jack's broad back.

After a couple of miles on the main road, they turned and went up a rough side road which led into wild country. In an hour they were in the forest and here they stopped, parked their cars and pushing in among the trees, leading Jack.

They had not walked far when Jack lifted his muzzle and whinnied. They all stood still listening. Then far off, down a deep gully, they heard an answering whinny. Jack whinnied again and again came the answer.

Following the whinny, the men ran down into the gully, through a deep tangle of bushes and vines, and found Jerry tied to a tree.

Jo Betterman halted the men who were untying the halter.

''Leave him here,'' he said. ''Tonight the thief will come for him and maybe we'll give him a surprise.''

So they all went away and waited for nightfall. Not a word was said about finding the horse. The boys were in great excitement and after much persuasion, Bob and Phil were allowed to go along that night to catch the thief.

When it was dark the band went out with shotguns and revolvers, intent on catching the horse thief either dead or alive. They hid their cars along the road and walked several miles to the ravine where they hid themselves and waited.

Shortly after midnight they heard a car stop on the road above the gully. Then they heard a cautious rustling of the bushes. Every one stiffened with expectation and every nerve was on edge. Suddenly from the little bush where the two boys crouched came a stifled "Kerchoo!" Some of the men swore softly. Nothing more happened, except a whirring of a motor and the sound of a car being hastily driven away. The sneeze had warned away the thief.

Well, Jerry was found any way and in a few days the gypsies went away of their own accord. But there has always been a mystery unsolved, or rather two of them. One is, who stole the horse? The other is, who sneezed? There was only one sneeze and yet both boys claimed it was he who sneezed. Each one insisted on taking the blame, and the boys' mothers wouldn't have them punished.

"Thank God," said Mrs. Betterman, who was a very pious woman. "You were saved from killing a fellowman perhaps."

And so folks are still wondering and guessing who stole the horse and who sneezed.—Selected.

A PRANK THAT PAID

It was a half-holiday, and John was out walking when his head-master came along the road.

"Out for a breath of air, John?" asked the head, who was called by the schoolboys, "the student's friend."

"Yes, sir," replied John. "I'm out to see if I can find some fun." For he was a lively boy, and fond of fun in all forms.

"Right, John," came the answer. "I'll come also, and we'll enjoy the fun together."

John readily agreed, for he looked upon the head as one of "the best," and had enjoyed many a walk with him out of school hours. As they strolled leisurely across the fields, the head talked to the boy of the things that tend to make life worth living, when suddenly they came upon a pair of old shoes lying in a field close by.

"Here's fun, sir!" said John. "Let's hide the old man's shoes behind the bushes, just to see how scared he will be when he finds them gone. I would love it!"

His eyes were sparkling, but there was quite a different look in the eyes of the head. He looked grave.

"John!" he said, "I thought better of you. Never have your fun at the expense of the poor and unfortunate. You have a good home, you have good shoes to wear, and plenty of pocket-money. If you want fun, wrap some coins up in paper, and put them in the shoes. Then we will hide and watch the fun."

This was not what John intended doing, but nevertheless, he did so, and, with the head, hid behind the bushes to await the old man's surprise on finding his shoes.

They had not long to wait, for the old man had finished his work, and, looking very tired and weary, he made his way to the spot where he had left his shoes. He sank down on the grass, and started to put them on. Then the onlookers saw him struggling, and then remove the shoe, for he had found the hard object. He took it out, and when he discovered it was money, and not a stone as he had imagined, he looked round in surprise.

He put on the second shoe, and found the other coin, and his face filled with mingled joy and surprise. Tears began to run down his strong brown face, and he fell on his knees, and thanked God for what he called, "This timely gift from an unknown friend, to provide food for a sick wife and hungry children."

The headmaster and John stood behind the hedge with bowed heads.

"What think you of your plan now, John?" asked the head.

"You have taught me a lesson I will never forget, sir. I will never have my fun at the expense of the less fortunate."

"Your prank was a prank that paid, John," said the head as they wended their way homeward.—Unknown.

DONALD'S SURPRISE

One day Donald ran in from school and there was no one home. But that was all the better, for when a boy is planning a surprise, he doesn't want people around.

After a while sister Helen came home and called, "Don!" But he didn't answer. When mother came in later, Helen said, "I don't see a sign of Donald."

"Look in his room and see if his school clothes are on the bed. He's probably changed to his overalls and gone to play," said mother.

So Helen peeked in the door of Donald's room, but there wasn't a thing lying around.

"I can't understand it," she said when she came downstairs. "There's usually a trail of books and mittens and clothes all over the house after he's been home."

Just then Donald appeared, smiling all over his face, and Helen said, "We thought you weren't home because we didn't see any of your school clothes or books."

"Is that so?" said Donald. "Well, you see my cap is on the hook in the cloak-closet; my books are under the study-table; I hung my coat on the hanger in my own closet, and I put my rubbers down on the basement landing when I changed to my heavy play-shoes."—Children at Work.

"I HAVE CHOSEN THEE"

"I have chosen thee in the furnace of affliction" (Is. 48:10). Does not the Word come like a soft shower, assuaging the fury of the flame? Yes, is it not an asbestos armor, against which the heat has no power? Let affliction come—God has chosen me. Poverty, thou mayest stride in at my door; but God is in the house already, and He has chosen me. Sickness, thou mayest intrude, but I have a balsam ready—God has chosen me. Whatever befall me in this vale of tears, I know that He has chosen me. Fear not, Christian, Jesus is with thee. In all thy fiery trials, His presence is both thy comfort and safety. He will never leave one whom He has chosen for His own. "Fear not, for I am with thee," is His sure word of promise to His chosen ones in "the furnace of affliction."—C. H. Spurgeon.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

First Church, Albemarle.—The first Sunday in this month the doors of the church were opened at the morning and evening services to those wishing to join the church. Rev. Mr. Anderson has been delivering some very effective sermons for the past two Sundays. Each message has connected itself very definitely with the other. The first Sunday morning he used as his subject, "Why Go to Church?" At the evening service he used as his subject "What the Church Is." The smallest child present at these two services could give a very accurate answer to these questions, so plainly were they defined by Mr. Anderson. Last Sunday morning he used as his subject, "Why the World Needs Preachers." At the evening service, "How You Can Make the Preacher's Message Effective." We have all heard of the warrior who bravely raised his bow and aimed very accurately at his prey, and upon investigation he found the arrow had pierced the heart and his enemy lay at his feet. Thus it is with our pastor: When he aims at the target he usually hits the mark.

The Lucy Hatley Circle met in the home of Mrs. J. E. Gantt for its February meeting. A large number attended and a good meeting reported.

The Cam Snotherly Circle met with Mrs. C. E. Lowder. On account of sickness in several homes only a few members attended this meeting.

The Lucy Hatley Circle will give a benefit party in the social room of the church Monday night, February 22. No admission will be charged, but everyone will be expected to pay one cent for each year old he is. Everyone is cordially invited.

First Church, High Point.—The World Day of Prayer was appropriately observed by the Woman's Auxiliary Friday, February 12th, at 3:30 p. m. Mrs. Paul S. Kennett presided, and announced the program, which had been carefully prepared by Mrs. S. S. Coe and her committee. Mrs. R. I. Farmer played the piano accompaniments for the hymns, "Sweet Hour of Prayer," and "From Every Stormy Wind That Blows." Misses Vera Smith and Vera Cranford sang very sweetly a duet, "Be Still and Know," and the vocal solo by Mrs. J. H. Allred, "Beautiful Garden of Prayer," was a most pleasing feature of the hour's program. The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, gave an impressive talk on "What is Prayer?" He said that he does not believe that God is changed by our importunities and appeals to him, but that prayer changes things for us, putting us into a right relationship with Him so that we understand better His plan for our lives. Mrs. C. L. Whitaker then led in a beautiful prayer, after which Mrs. J. C. Whitesell read an impressive and interesting paper explaining the significance of the World Day of Prayer. Then sentence prayers were made by several of those in attendance. With bowed heads and each preceded by silent prayer, a series of special prayers was made as follows: for mission work of Christian churches, by Mrs. E. L. Douglas; world peace, by Mrs. Lester Peacock; Christianity in America, by Mrs. L. J. Diffee; temperance, by Mrs. P. S. Kennett; our local church and college, by Mrs. J. A. Gray, and our own spiritual lives, by Miss Mary E. Young. There was a good attendance, and the hour spent together in this beautiful manner as prayer groups of our sister women, encircling the globe from New Zealand to Honolulu, bowed in reverent prayer, was exceedingly sweet and impressive.

The congregation on Sunday morning enjoyed a rare treat at the 11 o'clock service in the fine address made by Col. Raymond Robins, one of the Allied Campaigners, noted constitutional lawyer, and manager of the Red Cross in Russia during the World War, in the movement for prohibition throughout America. He gave a most somprehensive history of the struggle for the 18th amendment as finally written in our Constitution, beginning with the first meeting for temperance held in Boston in 1826. It was charged that while the majority of our boys were fighting in the trenches in France, this amendment was voted on us, but he refuted this argument. He said that the most interesting phase of this movement is the ignorance of the Wets; we tried government control of the liquor traffic, and in South Carolina they had dispensaries for 22 years, and in South Dakota also, but the citizens arose and voted it out in favor of state-wide prohibition; in Iowa for 26 years they had legalized beer; Georgia tried it for 11 years, but the citizens voted it out. When the Drys put over the 18th amendment in 1921 by a vote of more than two-thirds of Senate and House of Representatives there were 177,000 saloons being operated with an investment of $12,000,000. Forty-six states out of the 48 have ratified this amendment. It has been a long struggle and a test of trial and endurance, and today prohibition is the great American social issue. I may be severe, but it is true that the liquor traffic has been lawless ever since the beginning of time, and now that this amendment is a part of our fundamental law, let us American citizens, both men and women, arise in the strength of our might and see that the law is upheld and enforced. Colonel Robins declared that he and associates are part of no political organization, but they are making a ten-months campaign against intemperance, going to 261 cities in 271 days, speaking twice and often four times a day, planning to finish this great campaign, unlike any other ever carried on in the history of the world, at Atlantic City in June. These men and women are spending their private means, strength, and time in behalf of the youth of our nation, and we say God speed and "Hats off" to the Allied Campaigners.

The two C. E. Societies held a joint meeting Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock, and adjourned to the High School auditorium to hear Col. Raymond Robins. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, leader of International C. E., addressed an immense audience on Monday at 3:15 at the same place, and Dr. Ira Landrith spoke in the spoke in the evening, bringing to a close this intensely interesting and inspiring series of meetings for allied youth in the city. At 12:15 Monday a luncheon for men was held at First church when Dr. Stewart spoke, and Circles Nos. 4 and 7, Mesdames Cecil and Peacock, served. At the same hour luncheon for women was served at Wesley Memorial, and the message was brought by Dr. Landrith.

Monday afternoon Circles 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, held interesting and well attended meetings, and Tuesday evening at 7:30 Nos. 2 and 3 will meet. The work of the year is being rapidly brought to a close.

A large circle of relatives and friends were deeply grieved by the death of a splendid and well beloved young woman, Miss Elizabeth Ferree, on Thursday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock at the home of her mother on Steele street after a lingering illness of six months. Elizabeth was a lovely girl and unusually devoted to her widowed mother; a loyal member of First church and the A. M. Idol Philathea class, she was regular in attendance as long as her health permitted. Of a bright and genial personality, she drew a legion of friends to her. To the devoted family group our loving sympathy is extended in this severe loss. Funeral services were conducted at the home Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, assisted by a former pastor, Dr. Geo. R. Brown, and interment was made in Oakwood cemetery here.

The critical illness of S. C. Bristow is reported. He is at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Guy Grimes at Jamestown.

Mrs. B. H. Montgomery and daughters, Misses Jewel and Frances, are building a new residence on North Hamilton street.

We are quite sorry to announce the illness of several of our members: Mrs. W. M. Horney is in Guilford General Hospital following an operation; Mrs. L. R. Johnston is ill at her home on Montlieu avenue; Mrs. J. C. Welch and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, at home on North Main; Miss Lucille Pickens at home on West Broad street; and William Foister at home on North Hamilton street.

The Woman's Auxiliary is again collecting groceries and food supplies for needy families for the second month, and it is expected that they will be able to furnish seven families as they did in January for ten days.

Shiloh.—Because of whooping-cough in several families and other sickness among our people our Sunday school attendance has fallen somewhat below normal. But we are eagerly looking forward to the time, when all may be able to come back to the church they love and which loves them.

Mrs. R. S. Troxler has been sick for several weeks, but is slowly improving. We sincerely hope she may soon be strong and active in the fields of service which she loves.

Mrs. Herman Leonard has been confined to her bed for the past six weeks with rheumatism, and has suffered intensely a great part of the time, though at other times she seems to improve. We hope that she may soon be well and active and able to take her place again.

Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Evans were able to be at church Sunday after being kept at home three Sundays by sickness. Glad to have them back again.

Mr. and Mrs. Will James are kept at home by ill health most of the time, but we are always gled to see these faithful ones when they can come.

Special prayer was requested yesterday for Mrs. Lem Loung and also her daughter, Mrs. Ray Hill, both of whom we reported very ill. May our Father, who can do all things, raise up these and all of our beloved suffering ones, both known and unknown.

One more of our faithful ones, Mrs. Baxter Leonard has been sick for several months. Part of the time she is able to come to church and yet much of the time kept at home by suffering. It seems that none of the doctors have been able to locate her trouble. Let's all pray that God may direct the physician, both in the diagnosis and treatment of Dalie.

Mr. Olen Leatherman, one of our fine young men, had the misfortune to have his car stolen while at the home of Mr. Jeff Berrier Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Berrier had accompanied other guests to their car to bid them goodnight and Olen's car was still parked in the yard, but when Olen started to leave about 10 or 15 minutes later the car was nowhere to be seen. It had been removed while Mr. and Mrs. Berrier sat in their room a few steps away, and all the family and their friends wide awake in a well lighted home, with even the porch light burning. It was indeed a bold theft.

Our faithful pastor is conducting a choir practice every Friday night. It is more than just a choir practice, for he is really teaching the elements of music. That choir can sing, too. But that's not all. Some of our faithful brethren elevated the choir floor, which was a great improvement. Yet, that isn't all, for our class leader, Brs. W. J. Berrier, bought new chairs for the choir, so we have a good floor, good chairs, a fine bunch of folks in the choir, and good singing, and you will all be welcome.

Our C. E. Society is one of the liveliest of our organizations and constantly grows in number and interest. The result will be felt for years to come. We are expecting great things of them.

Would like to report more activities, but will do that at an early date, as we do not want to take up too much of your space.

Spring Church Charge.—Each church on the charge observed the Young People's Day. The pageant was not given in either of the churches. Ten-minute addresses were given by three young people in each church. Five young ladies and four young men discussed the subjects suggested by the board in their respective churches. Each speaker delivered his or her message with ease and grace and all are worthy of our highest commendation. All others who had a place on the program are likewise worthy of praise. Each service was well attended. The writer feels amply repaid for giving his regular hour, and for helping to make each service a success. An offering for the board of Y. P. W. was received from each congregation.

Our allotment of journals has been received, all sold, and money for same sent on to Secretary Bates.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—Mr. William E. Swaim passed away at his home last Thursday night at 11 o'clock. He had been sick for a long time but was not confined to his bed except the last week or so. Mr. Swaim leaves a wife, ten children, 43 grandchildren, and two brothers, J. B. and Willis Swaim. He was 73 years, three months and 23 days old. The funeral was Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at the Spring Hill M. P. church. A song, "Rock of Ages," was sung by a male quartet composed of C. J. Davis, D. S. Hayworth, J. Traynham and Charlie Hayworth. Scripture by Rev. O. C. Loy; prayer, Rev. J. M. Hilliard; song, "Never Grow Old," male quartet; remarks by Rev. Mr. McFadden, Rev. Mr. Hilliard and Mr. J. Sechrest; song while the undertaker took charge. Interment was at the church cemetery.

The Junior C. E. Society met Sunday morning at 11 o'clock with Edna Moore as leader. The program was enjoyed by the older folks. The Young People's Society met Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock with Colen Haynes as leader. An interesting program was given. We are planning on having a special program the fourth Sunday evening at 7:30. Everyone is cordially invited to come.

Remember the first Sunday afternoon in March when the High Point College choir will be with us.

Rev. O. C. Loy and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hilton last Sunday evening.

We are sorry to hear that little W. D. Payne, Jr., is seriously ill. We, as neighbors, wish for him a speedy recovery.

Enfield.—On the night of February 4th Mrs. Surratt, assisted by Mrs. Exum Bellamy, organized the young girls into an Auxiliary. The prospects seem very promising for good work to be done by this group.

Last Sunday at 7:30 o'clock the Young People's service was held, being sponsored by the C. E. Society. The pageant, "The Knight of the Holy Grail," was presented. The auditorium was filled and some seated in the Sunday school rooms. The pageant was beautifully rendered. Many stated that it was the most impressive service ever held in our church.

Our Sunday school is steadily growing in numbers and interest. Mrs. Egbert Barnhill has been added to the teaching force. Mr. Moss Atkinson, of the Baptist church, very ably taught the adult class Sunday.

Best wishes to all our readers.

English Street Church.—During the week, February 1-7, our Christian Endeavor observed C. E. Week. On the 2nd of February a banquet was held at the hut. A delicious supper was spread before a large crowd of young people. Many enjoyable readings were given, as well as the C. E. prophecy. On Wednesday evening the prayer meeting was in charge of the Christian Endeavor, led by J. A. Lee on the topic, "Forward, In His Name." To bring the week to a close, a city union mass meeting was held at Springfield Friends church, with approximately 200 young people present. A very enjoyable program had been prepared, including many talks and songs.

We have been having record crowds at our services lately. The church was packed last Sunday night. We had with us a "natural-born bass singer," Mr. Crouch, who with several others gave many good selections. The Sunday school is also improving under the able leadership of R. T. Holcomb.

We are very sorry to report that one of our members has been taken since our last report, Mr. A. N. Lineback. He died last Monday, February 8. Funeral services were conducted at the home by Rev. G. L. Reynolds and Rev. C. H. Hill. The services were concluded at Mount Tabor, near Winston-Salem. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. A. N. Lineback. To her we extend our deepest sympathy.

A few days ago Herbert Bowers, son of Mrs. Bertie Bowers, of this church, had an eye put out while playing with a friend with bows and arrows.

Miss Frances McSwain has been very ill at her home with pneumonia, but is recovering nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. McBride, of this church, announce the birth of a son, A. L., Jr.

Spring Church.—Young People's Day was observed yesterday at the regular preaching hour. The following young people took part: Scripture lessons were read by Misses Inez and Elizabeth Massey; talks were given by Messrs. Leon Tucker, J. W. Crew, Jr., and James Massey. Little Helen Massey favored us with a solo. All did their parts well. The offering will go toward New Century service.

We are very sorry to report Mrs. Neese being very ill at this writing, and wish to ask all readers to help us pray for a speedy recovery.

Friendship, Shiloh Charge.—Our Sunday school continues to grow in number and spirit. The Young Ladies' Class is doing some excellent work under their teacher, Mrs. W. M. Byerly. She is having each girl in the class teach a lesson; that is a great help to her and her girls, too.

Everybody was glad to see our preacher Sunday morning, February 14th. The Lord's Supper was observed at the 11 o'clock service, which helps all to live closer to the Lord.

Rev. R. S. Troxler preached a wonderful warning sermon. He said as Jacob led Esau to sell his birthright, so the devil is leading people today to sell their characters for pleasure. One cannot overcome evil without the help of God. He said that way the world is going the leaders are not to blame; sin is to blame for it all.

I sincerely hope that every one who heard his great message will heed his timely warning.

West End, Greensboro.—Young People's Day was observed January 31 and the service was fine. The pageant prepared by the Board of Religious Education proved to be most beautiful and instructive. On Wednesday night, February 3, the young people had charge of the mid-week prayer service; 40 were present and the service was most interesting. The subject discussed was "The Characteristics of Manhood." It was indeed uplifting to hear the young people suggest and discuss the many good qualities that should go into the make-up of an ideal man. On Friday night, February 5, Fellowship Night was observed. A good program was rendered and then the meeting resolved itself into a pie party. The ladies, both young and old, furnished the pies and the boys and men bought them. There was then a pie-eating. The lady who made the pie and the gentleman who bought the pie ate the pie together. It was a jolly good time and the young people realized a nice little amount of cash, which will go for bulding fund purposes.

Connie Cox, one of our Primary boys who received a very severe burn a few weeks ago, died last Thursday. The funeral was conducted by the pastor in West End church last Saturday. It was indeed sad that such should come into a home and take one of the little ones. The young parents have the sympathies of our people.

We were indeed glad to have Mrs. Marshall Hatley, of Albemarle, in our midst for a week visiting her daughter, Mrs. Curlee. Mrs. Hatley is one of the mothers of the Albemarle church. The writer has known her for a number of years and it was a great pleasure to have been her pastor for one year. We were indeed delighted to have her visit our home and to have her worship with us at West End. Her amens and responses in the service are always refreshing and helpful to the preacher. Her daughter, Mrs. Ira Smart, on bringing Mrs. Hatley to Greensboro, visited the parsonage and we were indeed glad to have her very pleasant visit.

In keeping with the custom of some years, our choir will give a musical on Easter Sunday night. Work is already being done to make this occasion a success. The choir has already begun work for the anniversary service which will take place in September.

We were very pleasantly surprised on last Sunday evening when Bro. N. M. Harrison, a former pastor, came into the church just in time to bring us a fine message at the evening worship. He, of course, did not fail to make some favorable and encouraging remarks about High Point College. Bro. Harrison was the second pastor of this church and he has always been greatly loved by the people. We are so glad to have had him with us again.

On the fourth Sunday night our good ladies will render their thank-offering service. We are expecting a good time and a good offering. The good West End ladies know how to do good things.

Miss Margaret Perryman, of High Point, and sister of the pastor's wife, will be with us on the second Sunday night in March and report of her recent visit to the Holy Land and other parts of the foreign world.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Laurel Hill.—Our Sunday school attendance has been excellent this winter. Both teachers and members seem to be taking a great interest in the school.

We are proud of our choir. We think we have good singing and hope that each one that sings, sings for the glory of God and not to be heard.

We are very thankful that our superintendent, Mr. A. A. Sain, is able to be back in Sunday school again. We are also proud of our assistant superintendent, Mr. Paul Blanton. He has made a wonderful record as a young man as an assistant superintendent.

Sunday morning our pastor preached to us. A large audience was present.

On the second Sunday in March at 11 o'clock we will partake of the Lord's Supper. This is a very important thing, that no church ought to neglect.

We are very sorry that two of our sisters, Mesdames Etta Sain and Ella Allran, are confined to their beds due to illness. It is hoped that they will soon be able to worship with us again.

We were very glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Ealie Sain, Mr. John Bivins, Mrs. Minnie Pendleton and all other visitors to visit us Sunday and worship with us. We extend a hearty welcome to visitors at all times.

We are now planning to raise some money to improve the inside appearance of our church.

Rev. A. D. Shelton was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sain Sunday.

With best wishes to the Herald and all its readers, and may we all be busy working for the advancement of God's kingom. The new year is going fast. Time waits on no one.

LOIS WILLIS, Repotrer.

Beulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Our new pastor, Rev. Mr. Love, preached a good sermon Sunday night. We don't want you Herald readers to think that Beulah has gone dead. We have Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, and preaching every fourth Sunday morning and every second Sunday night. We are proud to say that our attendance has been pretty large all winter at all of our services.

The young people of our church have organized a Christian Endeavor at Beulah and we have been having programs about every other Sunday night. We will have a program again on the fourth Sunday night in this month. We enjoyed the programs very much that Matthews M. E. church and Siler Presbyterion church rendered a few months ago at our church, and Beulah has also returned a program to these two churches. We will be glad to have other leagues from any other church to bring us a program at any time they will. We are proud to see the interest that is shown in these programs. We will be glad to have more of our young people to take part in our work.

We are sorry to report that our Ladies' Aid has not held a meeting since November, owing to the fact that some of our special members have been on the sick list this winter; but we wish to start our regular meetings as soon as we can. We don't want to let our Aid finally die down, for we are very proud to see what our Ladies' Aid has done, and we still wish to do more in the future. Best regards to the Herald and its readers.

MISS LULA DEESE, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—Our services at Union Hill and Tabernacle churches last Sunday were well attended, especially the service at Tabernacle. After the service at Union Hill church the pastor and family were invited to the splendid home of Bro. J. E. Donglass, where we enjoyed a good dinner and pleasant visit. We were sorry to learn of the illness of Miss Mattie Scott, one of the faithful members of Union Hill, who is teacher of the Union Hill school. The school was closed all last week, but re-opened Monday morning with a substitute teacher.

At Tabernacle church for the service at 7:30 o'clock we had a large congregation which almost filled the church, and they were attentive to the message of the pastor. This church has one of the best stewards this writer has ever known in the person of Mrs. W. W. Whitman. The salary for the first quarter of the new conference year is more than paid. This is not true of any other church on the charge.

The pastor and family are thankful for the gift of a nice supply of fresh meat, butter, etc., which came in a box by mail from Mrs. S. M. Speas, of Stony Knoll church, some time ago.

An exchange of appointment for the fourth Sunday in this month has been affected by the writer with Rev. G. W. Fink, of the M. E. church, South. Rev. Mr. Fink will preach at Harmony Grove at 11 a. m. and the writer will speak at Doub's Chapel at the same hour

Our appointment for next Sunday will be with Pleasant Hill church at 11 a. m.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, Sunday evening at 2:30 o'clock delivered a wonderful message. His subject was "Salvation With Fear and Trembling." We all enjoy Bro. Bingham and his family.

Our Sunday school is moving on very nicely. It seems to be growing better. We have some new members, and it is helping us out. Some don't attend regularly, but we think they will when winter breaks. We pray that we all will do our very best to move the Lord's work on, to make it a pleasure to help someone along life's rugged way. It is a critical time: it seems to be the most wicked time I ever witnessed. I pray that we all may see ourselves and turn our course to the Great Shepherd. MRS. F. L. SMITH, Reporter.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—We had a good number present today. We heard a most interesting lesson, which was wonderfully taught by our teacher, Mr. J. L. Evans. He said, "Let the light of Jesus shine through us, so that those with whom we come in contact may see Jesus in us. We must work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work. Today is the time, do not put anything off for tomorrow that you can do today. Christ makes special requirements for us. We must fulfill them if we want to have life. The main thought I want each one to get is, to have the light—that is, Jesus Christ. The blind man received his sight and then was eager to find the one that had done this miracle, for he wanted to worship Him.

I hope each of us will not be blind, but, be willing and ready to do the will of our Father in Heaven.

Our class is still making progress. Our average attendance for January was 53; we are hoping to have a much better average during February.

We hope that God will help us in our undertakings. We want to serve Him better this year. CLASS REPORTER.

Philadelphia, Greensville Circuit.—Our Sunday school elected the following officers and teachers for the year: Superintendent, Mr. Roy Chambliss; assistant superintendent, Mr. Walter Hethcox; secretary and treasurer, Miss Melvin Pearson; Bible class teacher, Mr. J. S. Brancomb; Senior class, Mr. Lee Chambliss; Intermediate class, Miss Mabel Pearson; Junior class, Miss Edna Hethcox.

While our Sunday school attendance is not as large as we would like, we are determined to build up our school and do some splendid work. We feel that we can and will have a worthwhile school. So let's have no slackers. This is our superintendent's first experience, but we believe with him as leader we will grow in number and accomplish a good year's work. Come every Sunday and let's co-operate with the superintendent, teachers and officers and have a fine school. We are counting on you, so don't fail to be here.

Our regular preaching services are held every first and third Sunday. First Sunday at 11 o'clock and third Sunday at 7:30. Rev. Mr. Hethcox delivers some splendid sermons. We are fortunate in having a man with such ability. If everybody would just come the first time they couldn't help but come again.

Let's all work together and pray for a good year in our Master's service.

MRS. R. A. SHELL, Reporter.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—Young People's Day was observed at this church Sunday afternoon. This program was scheduled for the 31st of January, but it was postponed on account of a funeral in which our pastor was engaged. Many helpful readings and talks were given at the afternoon service. We were fortunate in having Professor Swain, principal of Efland High School, to give us one of the talks on the importance of Young People's Work in the church; also our pastor delivered an influential message on the subject, "Christ Working in and Through Us." The congregation was fairly good. May we feel the responsibility we have in our church so that every member will be present to help carry on the work.

The Sunday school is very good for the winter months. The attendance and enrollment have decreased somewhat, but we hope when the spring months come it will increase. In spite of attendance much interest is manifested.

May we have the prayers of all the people that our church and Sunday school will grow and grow.

REPORTER.

Shiloh, Randolph Charge.—Rev. T. M. Johnson spoke to us on January 24, giving us a very interesting and helpful sermon, which everyone present greatly enjoyed. We considered ourselves indeed fortunate in having Bro. Johnson with us and his talk was very much appreciated.

Our pastor, Bro. Suits, continues to render us some very inspiring and interesting sermons. His interest in the well-being of his church members is manifested in his talks.

CLARICE WHITAKER, Reporter.

Tabernacle Charge.—A very attentive congregation was present for the preaching service at Tabernacle last Sunday morning. The pastor began a series of five-minute talks to the children just before the church service, to be concluded with a decision service March 20. Some of our number who have been kept away because of sickness were again occupying their pews. It was a pleasure to have Mr. C. E. McCulloch and wife, of Wilmington, worship with us. Although being many miles away, Mr. McCulloch still retains his membership at Tabernacle and supports the church liberally with his means.

Young People's services were held at both churches on the first Sunday in this month. Miss Elizabeth Hanner and Mr. C. M. Fields delivered splendid addresses at Tabernacle. The pastor and some of the local young people had charge of the program at Julian. Offerings were received for Christian Education.

Our Herald agents and pastor are doing our best to reach our goal. The last two years our goal was reached and we do not want to take a backward step. We have just learned that this paper has been coming into the home of Miss Lelia Kirkman ever since it began publication.

We extend our thanks to the following for donations: Mr. W. T. Hanner, a fine quantity of pecans; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Jones, sausage, and Mrs. G. A. Garrett, fruit.

Mrs. Lsley is grateful to Mrs. Dora Neese for a beautiful bunch of artificial flowers made by herself.

A number of our folks are sick at the present time. We trust that they will soon be better.

H. L. ISLEY.

Orange Charge.—We are still trying to carry on. All appointments have been filled since Conference.

The Young People's program has been put on at each church.

I thought I stated in last week's report of the death and burial of Mrs. Geo. F. Crutchfield that Rev. R. C. Stubbins assisted in the services; for some reason his name did not appear in the report.

Rev. T. J. Whitehead spoke to our Efland people the fifth Sunday at 7 p. m. in connection with the Young People's Day program. Our people always enjoy hearing Bro. Whitehead.

Each of our Sunday schools has paid assessment for Conference Council of Religious Education.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Fair Grove Church, Why Not Circuit.—Our pastor Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock gave us a splendid sermon. Bro. Reynolds is endearing himself to his people. We will have our services in the afternoon this year.

At night the young people gave the pageant, "The Holy Grail," to a large congregation. We were glad to have people from Seagrove Christian, Seagrove M. P. churches and from Asheboro to worship with us. After the pageant Pastor Reynolds made an address and an offering was taken for Young People's work. Mesdames L. E. Cagle and M. C. Auman and Miss Della Mae Graves have our thanks for their work.

Next Thursday afternoon is dated to work on cemetery. We are planning on inclosing it with cedars and hope many will be planted as a living memorial to loved ones.

Midway, Shady Grove.—Nothing much has been said about this charge in the Herald recently. But we are still living and still continuing to grow. The Sunday school at Shady Grove now numbers nearly 50. The people are very much interested in the Sunday school now and they are a good group of people to attend the preaching services. We are hoping to bring some of the young people into the church soon. We have a loyal band of Christians in the number here. We are planning to observe the Easter service.

At Midway we continue to see new faces in the congregation, for which we are very proud, and we extend our welcome to the people in the community to attend our services.

The Sunday school is about numbering 100 now; we are hoping to go on toward 200 this summer. Here we have a loyal flock with much prospect for the future. Here we have a large number of young people who promise much for the future.

The preaching services are well attended. We hope in the near future to be able to bring some of the young people into the church.

The Christian Endeavor is still progressing nicely with Miss Beulah Suits president. On February 5 the Christian Endeavor had a weinie roast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Frazier. A large number was present. Everyone enjoyed the roast. Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Frazier for their kindness.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held it regular meeting February 12 with Mrs. S. A. Thompson; a good number present.

Plans are now to have an Easter program for the children some time during the day.

C. L. GRANT.

Whitakers Chapel, Enfield Charge.—Sunday morning, February 7, was our regular preaching day at the Chapel. We had a very good crowd. Mr. Surratt delivered a splendid sermon, his subject being, "Sin Is a Fact," from which he proved it was a fact and made us understand it more and more as he continued through his sermon.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Barnhill and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Askew worshiped with us Sunday morning; glad to have them and hope they will come and help us all they can and bring others.

Sunday school was at 2:30 o'clock with just a small crowd present; hope we can report more next time. Mr. Surratt conducted the Sunday school as our superintendent, Mr. Harriss, was sick with a cold; hope he can be with us next Sunday. Let's try hard to have a bigger and better Sunday school. We can do this by all pulling together. Now, listen, all of you that have your names on the church book at Whitakers Chapel since 1900 or longer than that, come out to Sunday school next Sunday and show us by this act that you are in favor of a Sunday school and will help to carry it on. Please do this for our Lord's sake and humanity's also.

M. V. L.

Reidsville—The Methodist Protestant church of Reidsville can now boast of a brand new choir loft and we are very proud of it, as it adds much to the church.

The Sunday school attendance seems to be increasing because last Sunday we had the largest attendance we have had in six months or longer.

The Senior Christian Endeavor Society took its members to Fair Grove church Sunday afternoon, February 7, at which time Miss Lola McCollum presided over the meeting which was enjoyed by all. At the close of the meeting, the Fair Grove peope decided to organize a C. E. Society and elected their officers. We feel sure they are going to have a fine society and we wish them luck.

Our church also has a lovely group of young people which make up a Junior Christian Endeavor, and they are steadily increasing, and in time we hope to be on top of the list of Junior Christian Endeavorers.

The Woman's Missionary Society had its regular monthly meeting Monday night, February 8th, in the church, at which time the officers for the coming year were elected.

The women of the church gave their annual chicken pie dinner Thursday, February 4. Through the earnest effort of the ladies it was a success, as it has always been. Why shouldn't it be when Mrs. Mary Hopkins is the champion pie-maker.

The ladies of Rose Hill church, Pageland, S. C., 2 quilts, 2 coats, 16 dresses, 1 waist, 3 skirts, 4 strings of beads, 1 hat, 1 tam, 9 cans of fruit and preserves and 1 package of dried fruit.

We greatly appreciate these gifts of money and materials.

It is fine to be so nicely remembered by our good friend Crandall in Michigan. And also by our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Clark of Canada. They are formerly of Harris Chapel on Vance. Mrs. Clark was just growing up into young womanhood in Henderson when we served that church as pastor. One hundred Methodist Protestants like Mr. Crandall and Mr. and Mrs. Clark would lift us out of our difficulties here.

Please continue to pray for us that the dear Lord will lead us out. He can, and He will, if our trust is in Him.

May His richest blessings be upon all His dear children.

Our thanks to the kind contributors of this church.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

FROM SECRETARY OF BENEVOLENCES

Home for the Aged, Westminster, Md.

This home for the aged was incorporated April 27, 1895, by authority of the Maryland Annual Conference.

The building is handsome and commodious containing parlor, two sitting rooms, large dining room, kitchen and nineteen bed rooms, three bath rooms and ample closet space. The home was opened for inmates July 15, 1896. The buildings are furnished with modern hot water heating and electric lighting, very desirably located on Main and Church streets, Westminster, Maryland. Has large upper and lower porches and these add greatly to the pleasure of the inmates. Application for admission can be made to George K. Mather, Chairman of Executive Committee.

Stewardship

Would like to have from the secretaries of Benevolences and Christian Stewardship any information that would be of interest to me in making my report to the Branch.

Of course all Auxiliary presidents have this secretary in their Auxiliaries. Every Auxiliary must have secretaries to correspond with the Branch secretaries; I believe this is one of the Standard Auxiliary requirements.

"Giving is living,"
 The angels said.
"Go feed to the hungry
 Sweet Charity's bread."
 And must I keep giving, and giving again?
 My selfish and querulous answer ran.
"Oh, no," said the angel piercing me through,
"Just give till the Master stops giving to you."

—Hoyle Ashburn has returned to his home improved and improving. The physicians could find no serious trouble and expect him to regain health by rest.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McCulloch, of Wilmington, spent last week-end with Greensboro friends, attending church at Tabernacle Sunday morning.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Pegram of 308 N. Greenwood Avenue, Winston-Salem, N. C., will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Tuesday, February 23, 1932. No formal invitations will be issued, but they will be at home to their friends from three to five o'clock in the afternoon and from seven to nine o'clock in the evening.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

In Loving Remembrance of My Little Girl

A dark cloud of sorrow entered my home December 14, 1931, when Jesus called my baby away. She was only 19 months and eight days old.

How I tried to save her but it was all in vain. Her darling eyes could tell me that she'd never regain. I could hear her whisper "Mama do not take my doll away; I am going to heaven where I can play."

Oh, Jeorline Frances, how sad mother, daddy and Margie are when we look on your bed. But we think of the sweet words you spoke "Mama, daddy, if you'll be sweet you can come to heaven too, for I am going to heaven where I'll never want no more."

When the preacher preached the funeral he preached it with a smile, saying "I don't want to go to heaven if there isn't a little child." What a day that will be when we meet.

You kind folks who read this will never know how and why she suffered so, now I'm going to close and bear in mind that my baby is sleeping in yonder world so bright.

We, the undersigned, members of Efland M. P. Sunday school class feel deeply grieved at the passing of one of our sister members, Mrs. Geo. F. Crutchfield. She was always faithful and true. She was not only interested in the class, but in all the activities of the church.

We shall miss her genial smile and pleasant expression. She was a friend to all. May God's blessings be upon all the bereaved ones.

"I give this as my personal testimony. I have lived under many liquor laws; I have visited many states and foreign lands over which different liquor laws were in operation; I have never observed a liquor law that was enforced; I have never known a liquor law that was liked by the people. Personally I believe in prohibition because it is a better law and is better enforced than any other liquor law I have observed. I shall continue to think it is the best law for this land until a better law appears. No such law has come as yet."

THE OLD OFFICE TOWEL

How dear to my mind
  Is the old office towel,
When fond recollection
  Presents it to view.
The much-handled towel,
  The oft-abused towel,
With intimate spots
  Of red, black and blue.
The wide-spreading towel
  Of immaculate birth,
The Editor used it,
  Printers' devil and all;
Though old and seedy,
  A friend to the needy,
That slippery-elm towel,
  That hung on the wall.

The grime-covered towel,
  We hailed as a treasure,
For often at night,
  Our dirty work done,
We wiped off our hands
  With exquisite pleasure,
And left hieroglyphics
  With ink spots to run.
One day the old towel
  We noticed was missing,
And thought that perchance
  It was taken to drape.
The office cat died,
  And at its sad funeral,
That ebony towel
  Was then used for crape.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman formally received the decoration recently conferred upon him by the King of Sweden, making him a Commander of the Royal Order of Vasa, at a luncheon tendered him in New York last week by the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches, of which he is vice-president. Dr. Cadman, in accepting the decoration, said it was not for anything that he himself had done, but was a recognition of the part of the King and Government of Sweden of what the American branch of the Alliance had tried to do for the permanent peace of the world. The speakers at the luncheon—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, and Michael Williams, editor of "The Commonweal," Roman Catholic weekly—all praised Dr. Cadman as an American apostle of a warless world.—Zion's Herad.

Your total quota for the Herald amounts to 140 subscriptions, and in looking over the campaign record we find that not a single subscription has been sent in by any of these, although more than one-fourth of the conference year is gone.

This raises a serious question. With the Herald carrying a deficit of $2,400.00 from previous years, and the need to more than double the present subscription list, in order to make ends meet, WHAT WILL YOU DO FOR THE HERALD? YOUR HELP IS NEEDED NOW. Don't wait until the Herald is gone and then send flowers, it is better to send something now that will buy bread and butter, and the flowers wont be needed.

Subscription Chairmen and Pastors of the above charges wont you get together at once and plan that Herald campaign in your churches, and keep up the campaign until EVERY Methodist Protestant home has been visited and solicited for their subscription to the Herald. It is every Methodist Protestant's duty to take our church paper and keep informed of what is going on in our conference. The president's weekly letters alone are worth the price of the paper for the information they contain.

Let us have a remittance next week from every charge or church listed above. Dont forget that the conference directed this campaign to be put on. All together lets send in that subscription remittance, before the next issue of the Herald. Thank you every one, I feel sure you can do it.

DON'T GIVE UP

If the road is rough
And the journey steep,
If you find it hard
The pace to keep—
Don't give up!

If you seem to lose
When you ought to win,
If the feeling comes
That you must give in,—
Don't give up!

If reverses smite
And lay you low,
If the prompting comes
That you must let go,—
Don't give up!

If all the world
Seems hard—unjust—
Keep close to God
And in Him trust—
DON'T GIVE UP!

What Is War?

War is a mammoth spider's web
To draw the simple nations in:
They hope for triumph and for gain;
They march to death mid horror din.

War is a black and stormy sea
With billows rising mountain high;
The ships of men that venture in
Will find themselves on bottom lie.

War is a doubly losing game—
Both sides are losers in the end:
They prove themselves a witless set
Who would by war their fortunes mend.

War is a pit of boundless depth
In which whole nations madly fall;
Their eyes are closed, their minds deceived,
They rush headlong and lose their all.

War is a great composite crime
In which the nations join at will;
They rob, they burn, they carry off,
They violate, they wound, they kill.

Imprudent Strikes

There may be occasions when strikes are justifiable. When the greed of employers prevents their paying their helpers a fair wage; when they will not be moved by reason and protest, it may be proper for employees to decline in a peaceful way to continue in the service. In fact, we do not see how they can do otherwise. But when wages are reduced simply because the proceeds of the business will not enable the employer to pay present wages, the case is very different. In that case employees should think twice before they vote to strike. In this time of business depression those who have work remunerative in any degree should be slow to join the ranks of the unemployed. A bad situation may be made very much worse by imprudent procedure. Those who labor for others should consider that many employers—possibly their own employers—are continuing to conduct their business at a loss in order to give employment to their help. Unfortunate it is for both parties when friendship is misinterpreted.

Employers sometimes provoke imprudent strikes by want of tact in dealing with their employees.

Many difficult problems in business would find a solvent in right human feeling. Let the employer think of his employee as his younger brother. Let the employee think of his employer as his older brother.

The Future Life

How we would like to know what it is like! The older we grow the more intense becomes our interest in the future state—unless we are so filled with fear that we shrink from all thoughts of it. In vain we try to form any satisfactory picture of conditions in the celestial world except the ineffable glory we are accustomed to invest all scenes with. We expect Heaven to be a place or condition of beauty and joy to all the inhabitants. But how shall we depict human life in Heaven? "It does not yet appear what we shall be." On another page we print an interesting article by Rev. J. L. Elderdice on human life in the future state of the redeemed. He follows out hints given in the Bible and reaches some conceptions that seem reasonable. It may be the future life is not so essentially different from this life as we are accustomed to think. Sin will be eliminated, but physical conditions may be similar to those of the present.

Be Not Quitters or Sticklers

Both the Quitters and Sticklers are large families, but not very respectable people. When you come to a place of difficulty the Quitters are out and gone. They did not enlist for a difficult part. As long as all goes easy and well, they will sit with you on the band wagon. But when there is walking and pushing to be done, they are not there. They have lost faith and always did lack devotion to the undertaking. They joined with the mental reservation that they would not be real supporters but prospective beneficiaries of the enterprise. The enterprise is as worthy and hopeful as ever, but not in their view; they are disappointed and they disappoint all who have trusted in them. They may become bitter toward those who did anything to induce them to co-operate. Be kindly considerate of the members of the Quitter family, but be not one of them.

The same advice is good with reference to the Sticklers. They are interested to the extent of wishing to dictate how things shall go on, but unfortunately they insist strenuously on non-essentials and ignore the weightier matter of essentials. Let them have their way and things will go and go rapidly—toward perdition.

ALL THE BIBLE OR NONE?

In the issue of The Herald for February 11th there appeared a little clipping entitled "I shall take all the Bible or none." Here is the clipping:

"A man dies, having made a will. The people who expect a part of the inheritance assemble to hear the will read. The attorney reads it until he comes to a certain passage of the will, when one of the heirs cries out, 'I reject that passage.' The attorney reads on, while some one else says, 'I reject that passage, while I accept all the rest of the will.' The heirs go before the surrogate, and the judge decided: 'You must take this will as a whole, or not at all. You cannot break a part of it, and leave the rest intact.' Now I say in regard to this Will of my Father, in respect to this Will and Testament of our Lord Jesus Christ, that if we break any part of the Will we break it all, and we lose our inheritance and go beggared through eternity."

Two things should be remembered:

1. Jesus did not accept the Old Testament as either His will or the will of God. Repeatedly He said: "Ye have heard that it hath been said by them of olden time, Thou shalt . . . but I say unto you." And then He proceeds to set aside some statement of the Old Testament and put in its place a larger and a finer statement of His own.

2. Jesus did not write the New Testament; neither did He ever represent it to be a complete and exclusive expression of His will or the will of His Father.

As a matter of fact—whatever may be the custom concerning wills in court—every sensible Christian does take part of the Bible and leave part.

In Psalms 51:16, 17, we read:

"For thou delightest not in sacrifice; else would I give it;
Thou hast no pleasure in burnt-offering.
The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit;
A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise."

I accept that gratefully, and without qualification.

The writer of the 109th Psalm seems to have been very badly treated by one whom he has come to regard as his enemy. So this supposedly godly man is led to make a prayer concerning his adversary. Here is the prayer:

"Let his children be fatherless,
And his wife a widow.
Let his children be vagabonds and beg;
And let them seek their bread out of their desolate places.
Let the extortioner catch all that he hath;
And let strangers make spoil of his labor.
Let there be none to extend kindness unto him;
Neither let there be any to have pity on his fatherless children."

I reject that utterly and without qualification. To represent that as a part of the will of God—the will of Christ—is to blaspheme.

As to the New Testament. Without doubt it contains and sets forth much of the will of God and of the will of Christ; though it is in no sense a legal document to be brought into court for enforcement.

In answer to the lawyer's question: "Teacher, which is the great commandment in the law?" Jesus said: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the great and first commandment. And the second like unto it is this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments the whole law hangeth, and the prophets." "This is my commandment," said Jesus to his disciples at another time, "that ye love one another as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend."

These commandments of Jesus I humbly accept, and wish that I might be more faithful in observing this desire of the Master for me and for all his disciples.

Here is a paragraph from the Rev. Ernest F. Tittle, pastor of the First Methodist church of Evanston, Illinois, and I agree with it:

"Notwithstanding the fact that he is reported to have said it, we know that the Jesus of history did not say, 'All that came before me are thieves and robbers.' He who so reverently quoted the prophets who had come before him and allowed himself to be baptized by John was incapable of saying that. Nothwithstanding the fact that he is reported to have recommended it, we know that the Jesus of history did not advise that a recalcitrant brother should be treated as an alien. "If he refuse to listen to the church, treat him as a pagan or a tax-gatherer": so he is reported to have said. But that, we are compelled to believe, represents the thought of the evangelist as to what should be done under the circumstances, not the thought of Jesus. Compelled by what? By that lofty and heroic figure who in the same gospel recommends that the recalcitrant brother should be forgiven until seventy times seven."

A charitable explanation of the presence of that clipping in The Herald is that the office "devil" slipped one over on the Editor when that worthy was not looking. Let us hope that no other Devil will ever get away with anything of that sort again.

Luther K. Long.

(A few misspelled words or ungrammatical expressions would not invalidate a will. Nor do the slight errors in the Bible, all of which are of human origin, invalidate the Book as an instrument of religion. There is a real analogy between a will and the Bible. The essentials of both must be taken in their entirety. We may say of that clipping, "The Lord sent it if the devil brought it." As to the Rev. Ernest Tittle, we believe he is a misinterpreter of the Scriptures in the passages quoted. When Jesus said all that came before Him were thieves and robbers He did not say all prophets or mean all prophets; he did not say or mean all men. It is evident from the context that he had reference to pretenders to the Messiahship. Mr. Tittle's other point cannot be well taken. The two cases are radically different. In one case the offender repents and should therefore be forgiven. In the other case the offender is obdurate.—Editor.)

—How old would George Washington be if he were living now? What would he probably say of that class of our citizens to whom the greatest question is the liquor question?

OCCUPATIONS OF THE RESURRECTION BODY

Since we are assured that resurrection means literally the preservation of bodily identity and consciousness with the unimpaired faculties, that constitute our present personalities, all rational inferences and implications, corroborated by numerous statements, indicate that apart from all that is imperfect and unholy, our employments, enjoyments and social relationships will not be wholly unlike those of the present life.

One exception explicitly mentioned is that of the marriage relation, established to fulfil the divine injunction, “Multiply and replenish the earth.” The need for this relationship no longer exists in the future state, since Heaven is to be populated, not by reproduction of the race, but by the assemblage of the hosts of the redeemed from every “nation and kindred and tongue and people.” But the dissolution of the earthly, temporal tie of marriage is not the dissolution of the divine eternal bonds of love and friendship.

There will be the continuance of spiritual employments of service and worship. Those who have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb “Serve Him day and night in His temple.” (Rev. 7:15). “His servants shall serve Him” (Rev. 22:3). There are the responsibilities and activities of administrative offices for these exalted to be “kings and priests” (Rev. 5:10, “Judges,” (Matt 6:23), and “rulers over many things” (Matt. 25:21).

As we worshipped God here with song and instrumental music, so shall the hosts of the redeemed with the voices of their resurrection bodies sing “the song of Moses and the Lamb,” (Rev. 15:3) to the accompaniment, perhaps, of “harpers harping on their harps” (Rev. 14:2). If the redeemed sing “a new song” in the heavenly Temple, need that exclude the old songs in “the little brown church in the vale?” If they are shot “with rapture through and through” as they listen to the music of angelic choirs, may we not believe that angels, in their turn, will be charmed as they hear the saints singing the melodies that were born on earth?

> “I do not think the songs will be all new,
> Or we should hunger for the sweet old days,
> Whose echoes oft have bade our souls be true,
> Amid the loftier praise.
>
> “I think the choirs will hush their anthems, when
> They fear for souls from earth the homesick pang;
> And we shall sing to listening angels then,
> The songs our mothers sang.”

Handel, who went blind, but died “in hopes,” said, “of meeting his good God and his sweet Lord and Saviour on the day of his resurrection,” may lead some vast assemblage of saints in the Hallelujah chorus of his own “Messiah.” David, the sweet psalmist of Israel, whose music quelled the evil spirit of Saul, may join his harp with those of angels, and we shall sing, perchance, his own very spirit-inspired hymns which the priests chanted in the Temple of Jerusalem, and which have been the precious heritage of the church in all succeeding ages.

The sweet affections of kinship and friendship will not be obliterated. Martin Luther, in his “Table Talks,” makes much of this intercourse with father and mother, and kindred in the heavenly home. “I shall go to him,” said David, when his child preceded him into the other world. When Paul speaks of his Thessalonian converts as his “glory and joy in the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ,” he assuredly expected to meet the same persons in Heaven that had labored with him in Thessalonica. If they were not the same persons, and if he could not meet them there, how can they be to him a “crown of rejoicing?”

We shall become acquainted with Jesus, and with the saints of all ages. The Saviour prayed that the disciples might behold His glory, and we have the assurance that “we shall see Him as He is.” (1 John 3:2), and “so shall we ever be with the Lord.” God’s children “shall come from the east and from the west, from the north and the south and shall sit down in the kingdom of God,” where they shall see “Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets.” (Luke 13:28, 29). Moses and Elijah became acquainted with each other over two thousand years ago, and, on the Mount of Transfiguration remembered and talked and sympathized just as they did of old before they left the scenes of earth.

That there are enjoyments of the resurrection body who can doubt? This conviction is confirmed if we carefully consider the first condition of man’s life in the Garden of Eden before the fall, as related in Genesis, and his final state as revealed in Revelation, when restored to the Paradise of God.

God made man originally as He intended him to be forever, and as he will be again after his resurrection—an immortal being, a spirit in a body. The “first Adam,” before he became mortal as the penalty for his sin, ate and drank. Jesus, the “second Adam,” after his resurrection with his immortalized body, the type of our resurrection bodies, continued to eat and drink with his disciples. After the curse of death was pronounced upon our first parents, “Cherubim and a flaming sword” turned every way to prevent their return to the “tree of life,” lest they should “eat and live forever.” From which it is evident that the tree was intended, in some mysterious manner, to minister to man’s immortality.

God alone is self-existent. All other life must be sustained, and, so far as we know, every created order of life eats. It would seem that the question as to how the life of the resurrection body is to be sustained is answered by such passages as Rev. 2:7: “To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in the midst of the Paradise of God.” If the saints “hunger no more, neither thirst any more,” there is no intimation that this is so because they are so constituted that food is not needed, but rather because ample provision has been made to supply that need—“The Lamb that is in the midst of the throne shall feed them.” “Blessed are they that do His commandments that they may have right to the tree of life.” (Rev. 22:7).

When the sun's forgot his business,
  An' the world seems dull an' flat,
Make some artificial sunshine
  For the place "where you are at."

When the skies are most forebodin'
  When they're black instead o' blue,
When your heart with gloom's corrodin',
  Let me tell you what to do:
Lose your hold on all your troubles,
  Stamp your foot an' holler "Scat!"
Chase your woes away with brightness
  For the place where you are at.

Tho' 'twill be most satisfactory
  On a dark an' gloomy street,
You can have your sunshine factory
  Any place where you may meet
Gloomy folks who need some brightness
  That will make their souls grow fat;
Go to work an' make some sunshine
  In the place where you are at.

If you'd like to try the business,
  I will tell you how to start:
The ingredients an' formulas
  You will find within your heart.
Bathe yourself in home-made sunshine,
  (Very necessary, that!)
Then just radiate with brightness
  In the place where you are at.

THE COMING GENERAL CONFERENCE

It now appears that the time has arrived for the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant church to reduce expenses to the minimum. Why hand down to the several Annual Conferences such large budgets when the members, or many of them, never do accept or put forth any effort to raise them? Is it possible to reduce expenses by merging some of the offices? In the HERALD of October 15, 1931, one of the leading ministers of our Conference had this to say: "The Secretary of the Board of Young People's Work and the Board of Christian Education should be merged into one office and thereby save the church a large item in salary and traveling expenses. Could the office of Promotional Secretary be abolished?"

In our North Carolina Conference the Board of Church Extension is in debt more than $4,000, so the writer is informed. A number of our churches are deeply in debt for new church buildings. And then, too, we have a college that must be kept going. Is it not time for relief?

ALL FOR YOU

There are heights and depths of mercy,
  There are lengths and breadths of love;
There are promises and treasures,
  Christ's prepared for you above.

There are wondrous, matchless treasures,
  Far surpassing human thought;
All for those who meekly suffer,
  Those who with Christ's Blood are bought.

There is peace which passeth knowledge,
  There is rest without alloy;
There is grace beyond all measure,
  There is everlasting joy.

There is hope which daily brightens
  Up the pathway which you tread;
For daily in rich pastures green,
  He doth lead us, as He said.

OPTIMISM EVANGELISM

The President's Letter

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Joash Day

Right at the beginning of our JOASH DAY effort it seems most fitting that we should have a word regarding it from the President of our General Conference, Rev. J. C. Broomfield, and I am much pleased to give here what he says.

> "During recent visit in the home of Rev. S. W. Taylor, D.D., President of the North Carolina Annual Conference, I learned from him of his plan of invitation to all the churches in the Conference to join in observing a Joash Day.
>
> "This is not something new. Many churches have observed Joash Day, and the results have been most gratifying.
>
> "The Joash Box, embodying the idea of the Box of Joash in the temple in Old Testament times, when explained to the people, appeals to their imagination, stirs their emotions, and enlarges their liberality. I have known a number of churches in the Pittsburgh Conference, of what I am a member, where a Joash Box was placed—in front of the pulpit to receive the voluntary gifts of the people, and in every instance the service was a great joy to all concerned.
>
> "In my officicial capacity, as well as in my personal interest in all that pertains to the well-being of the North Carolina Conference, I am happy to add my word of exhortation to all our people to co-operate with President Taylor in making Joash Day a great success in all our churches."
>
> Rev. J. C. Broomfield, D.D.

This word of Dr. Broomfield is encouraging, and should add to our interest and confidence in this undertaking. We thank him.

Our slogan is "A JOASH DAY IN EVERY CHURCH." The purpose of this day seems to be so worthy that we are venturing to hope for 100 per cent co-operation. April is the month. This is Pay-up-month for both the annual conference and for New Century service. The fiscal year of the general church, and also the quadrennium, ends with April. These facts would seem to thoroughly justify the Joash idea for this month, and encourage the fullest, measure of co-operation. The JOASH DAY contribution is to be divided as follows: Pastor's salary 50 per cent; A. C. B. 25 per cent; N. C. S. 25 per cent. We urge that pastors get their official boards back of this undertaking; also Sunday School superintendents and the various organizations of the church. And above all, let us not forget that JOASH DAY is worthy of our prayers. It's God's business; it's undertaken in the interest of his Kingdom. Surely, then, we can ask his blessings upon it. All at it now, and all together for a great JOASH DAY.

Easter

Do you have the program? Not too late yet. Send your order at once to Rev. G. W. Haddaway, D.D., 516 North Charles St., Baltimore, and he will supply you. The Easter program is spiritually helpful; it is educationally helpful; and it is financially helpful. Please, pastors and superintendents, plan to give this program. Easter day this year is March 27.

Assigned

By request of the quarterly conference of Yarborough charge, and by the consent of Brother Henderson, he has been assigned to the pastorate of that field. I should say, also, that the Anderson charge gave consent to this arrangement. The assignment was made February 17. Brother Henderson now has two charges, but only four churches. These charges are some distance apart, but connected by means of good roads. We believe that he will not find the distance a serious hindrance. In fact, he has been meeting the appointments at Harmony since early in December. It is not altogether improbable that these two charges will have to be served by the same pastor until economic conditions improve. We trust that Brother Henderson and the Yarborough charge may be happy and successful in their work together this year. We trust also that the Anderson charge may realize no loss to their work because of the sharing of their pastor with the Yarborough charge. On the other hand, we trust that their generosity may prove to them a blessing.

Apology to Greensville

By oversight, Greensville charge is not listed in the report of the Stationing Committee, as it appears in the Journal. And I hasten to absolve the Secretary of blame. The original report of the Stationing Committee exonerates him. In transcribing the charges, Greensville was omitted on the Stationing Committee's report sheet. We regret that errors occur in our conference business. Our only defense is that "To err is human." We beg Brother Hethcox and the Greensville churches to forgive us.

The Lord's Acre

Brother R. G. Williams has just called our attention to the Lord's Acre Plan, as a means of supporting the rural church. This is not altogether new, of course, but he supplies us with a folder that is new, and that presents the plan in a way that makes it both interesting and appealing. The folder may be had from Rev. Dumont Clark, director of the Religious Department of the Farmer's Federation, Asheville, N. C. Our pastors will do well to get this folder, and the Covenant Card that goes with it, and see what is said about the workableness and the effectiveness of this plan. Our conference is largely rural, and this plan is designed particularly for rural churches.

Treasurer's Report

This report is for the first quarter, and includes all receipts for November, December, and January. The amount received for all purposes totals $755.67. This was paid on the following causes: A. C. B. $514.61; N. C. S. $60.75; College Maintenance $159; Special for Superannuates, $21.31. The average per month is $251.89. The largest amount received for A. C. B. is $73, paid by Spring Church charge. The largest amount on College Maintenance is $152, paid by Halifax charge. It is significant that both of these charges are in the section of our conference that is supposed to be most affected by the prevailing money panic. These further facts are gleaned from the report: 37 charges have no credits on the A. C. B.; 80 have none on N. C. S.; 85 have none on College Maintenance; and 84 none on Special for Superannuates. We shall not list the charges that have no credits, but it is noticeable that among them are some of the strongest in the conference. This would logically follow, since so few charges have paid to any cause except the A. C. B. But it remains true, also, that some of the strongest charges have no credits on this budget.

The first full report of 1931 carried four months of the conference year—November, December, January, and February. The average per month during that time, for causes having credits in the report for the first quarter of this year, was $284.49, or $32.60 more per month than was paid this year. The N. C. S. credits due from Auxiliaries is not taken into account in this summary. If the monthly receipts of this year average with the first four months of last year, February will have to come up with $382.31. Here's hoping.

The comments of Editor McCulloch last week were timely and to the point. Is it poverty or other causes that is reducing the money that is necessary to carry on God's work through his Church? There is much money for many other purposes: why not for the church? Are we all giving in the measure of our ability, or are we robbing God?

We believe that the people are interested in the "Treasurer's Corner" kept weekly in the HERALD. We trust that he will not discontinue it. The quarterly report was not meant to take the place of that.

Appointments

February 28.—Chatham charge, in two services—Piney Grove 11 A. M., and Flint Ridge in the afternoon at 2:30.

March 6.—Pinnacle and Mt. Zion.

April 9-10—Saxapahaw charge as follows: Saturday, 2:30 P. M., second quarterly conference, at Saxapahaw church. Sunday, Salem, 11 A. M.; Concord, 2:30 P. M.; Saxapahaw, 7 P. M.

"Let no man's heart fail because of him; thy servant will go up and fight with this Philistine."

Fraternally yours,

S. W. TAYLOR.

WHAT THE HERALD MEANS TO ME

What does a love-letter mean to a lover? What does a letter from a boy away from home mean to his mother? Well, all that to some degree at least, the HERALD means to me. It is a letter from those whom having not seen I love. It is a letter, a lot of letters, from the folks. And so, it's full of interesting news of what the folks are doing, of their struggles and successes—mostly the latter. In it I learn what the churches are doing, what the folks are thinking about, what they are planning to do. And I am comforted and cheered and helped as I read it. It will do the same for you, IF YOU'LL READ IT.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE "I DID" BOY

Ivan David Jones had reached the proud age of five years. He was an active little chap who was interested in everything and whatever he undertook, he was likely to stick to.

Ivan David wasn't a quitter. When he started to learn to print his name, it was quite an undertaking—fourteen letters to learn by name, and just how to arrange them, and how to make each one. But the lad kept right at it, and before long he could not only print but write his name. His father was surprised and pleased.

"That's great," he said. "I think we'll have to shorten that name—part of it at least, and instead of calling you Ivan David, we'll call you the 'I Did' boy.

"I Did" wasn't quite sure what his father meant, but he knew he was being commended by his dad and that made him happy.

Elsie, his sister, who was between seven and eight years of age, was quite different. She didn't like to attempt to do new things. "I can't do that," she was always saying, "so what's the use of bothering?"

Her mother tried to teach her to sew and make doll clothes, but they usually came to pieces while she was putting them on her doll. Her teacher in school was often annoyed with her, because Elsie wouldn't try to learn her spelling lesson or to do her arithmetic. Her usual excuse was, "I don't know how!"

Yet Elsie was bright enough to master all these tasks when she found she really had to. And her teacher often told her that she worked harded getting out of things, than she would have to work to do them.

One day her daddy talked to her about how much nicer it would be to take real pleasure in learning to do things—to learn to sing and play—to read stories—and perhaps to embroider pretty things to wear.

"Of course," he said, "you could start with something very easy at first."

"But I can't embroider," wailed Elsie.

"Listen," he said, "the person who can say, 'I did a thing,' is away up at the top of the ladder. The one who says 'I will' is near the top. The one who says 'I wish I could' is a third of the way down and near the ground. The one who says 'I can't,' as you've just done, is only one rung up. And the one who says 'I won't' is not on the ladder at all. Don't be an 'I can't' and 'I won't girl!"

One day a funny little old man came to live in the low, rambling, green house across the street. The house had been closed for a long time, and it interested the children to see the shutters thrown back, the windows put up, and the doors opened wide.

"I think," said the children's mother, "that it would be a neighborly act to take this little, flat, brown-handled basket full of luscious ripe peaches from our trees, over to our neighbor. See what perfect, downy pink ones I've picked out! Elsie, you can carry the basket."

"I don't know him," replied Elsie. "I wouldn't know what to say!"

Just then the telephone rang and Mrs. Jones went to answer it. Then the grocery man came and she had to attend to him. Next thing she knew, Ivan David came running in.

"O, Muvver!" he exclaimed, "I took the basket over—I did! An' the man is just as nice as he can be, an' he thanked me, an' told me his name is Nicholas Wasser. He said to come again soon."

"That's fine," nodded Mrs. Jones. "Elsie, you could have gone just as well as your brother did. I'm sure I can't see any sense in trying to get out of everything as you do!"

Elsie looked as though she were ready to cry, and in order to change an unpleasant subject, she burst out:

"Oh, Mother, do you suppose Daddy will buy me one of those new lawn swings with a red fringed cover over it? Sally Stone's daddy bought her one and I want one, too!"

Ivan David looked around eagerly. He had greatly enjoyed Sally's lawn swing, and he thought how nice it would be to have one right at home. Well, he'd be a big man some day and earn money and buy nice things for everybody in the family—the things they wanted most.

The next day Ivan David went across the street again, and took their new neighbor a plate of his mother's fresh spice cookies.

"Well, well," twinkled the little old man, "I guess I came to the right place to live! It's wonderful to have people so good to you. What did I hear your father call you last night —I Did?

Ivan David laughed. "That's his nickname for me," he grinned, "coz I like to do things."

"Come with me," he said, "and I'll show you what I have been doing most of my life. I collect rare butterflies and I have some beauties."

David was greatly astonished at the cases and cases of beautiful butterflies wonderfully mounted and shining in the sunlight like rare jewels, or poised like lovely blossoms.

"Oh, oh!" he kept crying, "may I help you catch them some day?"

"You surely can," promised Mr. Wasser. "One has to be very careful and not injure their delicate wings, you know. You may come out in the garden with me now. I'm after a very rare specimen that I've seen around here once or twice, but I haven't been able to catch it. It's worth quite a lot of money, and if you should have the good luck to catch it for me, I'll prepare it, mount and sell it, and give you half."

Ivan David thought it was great fun to hunt butterflies, and his friend gave him a little net for his very own. Ivan David tried to show Elsie how to use the net but she said it wasn't worthwhile.

"Let me draw your elephant," she begged. "He's a good elephant and nods his own head."

Ivan David handed the cord to Elsie, and the two of them went along the street to the Little Park where they often played .

The boy thought he would see if he could catch a butterfly.

In a short time he was successful, but it was a common white one, and he let it go.

Just as he freed his little captive, a flash of something lovely caught his attention and he was off like a streak to get it if he could. He ran quickly here and there, being careful not to frighten the beautiful insect, at the same time remembering what Mr. Wasser had told him.

It was hot in the sun but he didn't think of giving up. His legs got tired but he kept on, and soon the butterfly began to go more slowly and lighted on a bush. And Ivan David was right there to put the net over him!

He hurried with his treasure to his friend, Mr. Wasser.

''Well, well, well!'' cried the little old man. ''This is wonderful! You've caught the very butterfly I've been after—but he was too quick for me! I know what he's worth, and I'll give you your share right now, little 'I Did' boy!''

And Ivan David's share of the butterfly money was more than enough to buy the pretty lawn swing with the red cover which he and Elsie had wanted.—Selected.

A MIGHTY FORTRESS

''A story, Grandma Rause, please, a story,'' begged John and Nancy, one late Sunday evening.

''Well, just one before church time,'' said grandma.

''Tell us one about the old country,'' requested John.

''Oh, no, tell us one about your pioneering days,'' pleaded Nancy.

''Well, well, I guess I'll have to tell you one about both,'' said grandma. ''Which of you remember the last hymn we sang in Sunday School this morning?''

'' 'A mighty fortress is our God,' '' sang Nancy.

''Ja, das ist es,'' said grandma, breaking into her mother tongue, as she usually did when agitated.

Nancy and John sat wide-eyed. They knew a good story was coming when grandmother began to talk in German.

''When I was a child,'' continued grandma, ''I used to walk every Sunday with my mother and father and my brother John—.''

''Was I named for him?'' asked John.

''Yes,'' said grandma. ''And so was your father. Well, one of the songs we sang most was the one we sang this morning.''

''But you didn't say it that way, did you?'' asked Nancy.

''No, no, we sang 'Ein feste burg is unser Gott','' sang Grandma. ''How it all comes back. The little church with pointed spire, mother and I in our starched white caps, and father and John in their dark suits brushed so clean and neat. It seems to me I can see Brother John yet with his great blue eyes, and his golden hair brushed back from his fair face,'' and grandma wiped a tear from her cheek.

''But to go on with our story. We used to sing our hymn with all our hearts, but it took a time of great trial to make me realize the deep meaning of its words.

''I grew up in the old country, and when I was eighteen I met a fine young man—.''

''And his name was Jacob Rause,'' said John.

''And he was our grandfather,'' said Nancy.

''Yes,'' smiled grandma. ''Now there was little in the old country for us. We had a little money and hearing of this wonderful United States where land could be bought cheaply, we left the old home, our friends and dear ones, and came over here. Ah, that was a sad parting.'' Again grandmother wiped away a tear. ''Grandpa and I stood at the railing of the great ship, and the tears blinded our eyes so that we could scarcely see our fathers and mothers and John—John who had grown so tall and straight.''

''And did you never see them again?'' asked Nancy.

''I never saw father and mother again, but it will not be long now until I shall meet them in the better land. John came out here after they passed on.''

''I remember him,'' said John. ''He used to hold me on his knee and give me peppermint candy.''

''Well, we came to New York,'' continued grandma, ''and there we took a train right here to South Bend. Grandfather found a man who could speak German and he helped us locate out here on this very farm. We were eight miles from South Bend and five miles from our nearest neighbor. Our first home was a sod house, not very beautiful, and hard to keep clean, but warm and comfortable in winter and cool in summer. We had to carry water from Muddy Springs. You see we had no windmills in those days. Your Uncle Jacob was born the first year we were there. Uncle Peter the third year, and then two years after that your own dear father.

''By that time we were doing pretty well. We had built a barn, and kept nearly one hundred head of beef cattle. Your grandfather had plowed nearly all of our prairie land. We had decided to sell half of our beef cattle, and buy some land adjoining us—that which we call the 'south eighty' now.

''One morning early in December, your grandfather said, 'Mary, that cattle buyer from Chicago is in South Bend. Do you suppose you could get along with the feeding tonight if I were to go into town to see him? I might be able to get a good price now, and I wouldn't have to feed them the rest of the winter. I might be able to get back this evening, but it looks like snow, and if it storms I couldn't make it.'

''So I packed a lunch and about 9 o'clock grandfather kissed the babies and me good-bye, and started out on Molly, our bay horse.

''About noon it began to snow, and I knew then that Jacob would not be back that night and possibly not the next day, for in those days the roads were not kept clear in winter as they are now, and when the drifts were six and seven feet deep it was impossible to travel.

''Just before dark I heard a knock at the door, and upon opening it I saw our neighbor, Mr. Karen.

'' 'Is Jacob at home?' he asked.

'' 'No, he isn't,' I replied.

'' 'When will he return?' he questioned.

''I told him and I noticed the look of concern on his face.

'' 'Why, what is wrong?' I asked.

'' 'Mrs. Rause,' said he, 'I don't want to frighten you unduly, but a trapper passed our place this morning and brought word that Chief White Feather has broken away from the reservation, and is headed this way. He is bent on mischief, you may be very sure of that. I wish Jacob were here. I would stay with you, but my own family need me, too. You had better bundle up the babies and come over to our place.'

"'I can't do that, Mr. Karen,' I replied. 'The stock must be fed, and cared for. This may be just a false alarm, as some other reports have been. I believe I'll just stay here, and trust the Lord for protection.'"

"'Well, I must hurry on then,' he said, and with a word of good cheer, he went on his way.

"I was frightened, but I went to the barn and did the chores.

"When I had finished I went in and gave the boys their supper, heard their prayers, and put them to bed. I washed the dishes and was sitting, reading my evening Psalm, when hearing a slight noise I looked up and beheld the horrible painted face of an Indian at the window. Almost immediately the door was shoved open, and in stalked five Indians. My heart seemed to stop beating as I saw that they were in full war dress. One whom I knew to be White Feather, by his war bonnet, grunted 'Bread.'

"Well, my hands trembled so that I could scarcely cut the bread, but somehow I did and filled five bowls of milk. They gulped the food down in quantities, and when their hunger was satisfied, they began to go from one thing to another around the room. They picked up the trinkets that they wanted—a bright pin-cushion, a pair of scissors, a red tassel cap, and what not. I stood silently against the wall afraid to show a sign of fear, praying all the while. Then suddenly, the chief stopped beside your father's cradle. He said something to the others, and fingered his knife significantly. I closed my eyes, and scarcely conscious of what I was doing I began to sing, 'Almighty fortress is our God.'

"I sang it clear through, and when I had finished I opened my eyes to find the Indians gone. I breathed a prayer of fervent thanksgiving.

"A few weeks later, two troopers stopped at our house for dinner. They were just coming from the reservation to which they had take back White Feather and his braves.

"'Do you know,' said one, 'White Feather told us a strange tale. He talked of a woman with a spirit voice who frightened them away from some farm down around here.'

"And that is why that hymn is so very precious to me," said grandmother.—Ruby Schwerdfield Dubois in Light and Life Evangel.

THE LADDER OF SUCCESS

Begin at the bottom and read up—climb the ladder.

100 per cent.—I DID!
90 per cent.—I will.
80 per cent.—I can.
70 per cent.—I think I can.
60 per cent.—I might try.
50 per cent.—I suppose I could.
40 per cent.—What is it?
30 per cent.—I wish I could.
20 per cent.—I don't know.
10 per cent.—I cant.
0 per cent.—I wont.

TOO LITTLE

Said a precious little laddie,
To his father one bright day,
"May I give myself to Jesus,
Let Him wash my sins away?"

"Oh, my son, but you're too little,
Wait until you older grow,
Bigger folk, 'tis true, do need Him, but Little folk are safe you know."

Said the father to his laddie
As a storm was coming on,
"As the sheep all safely sheltered,
Safe within the fold, my son?"

"All the big ones are, my father,
But the lambs, I let them go,
For I didn't think it mattered,
Little ones are safe, you know."

Oh, my brother! oh, my sister!
Have you too made that mistake?
Little hearts that now are yielding
May be hardened then—too late.

E'er the evil days come nigh them,
"Let the children come to Me,
And forbid them not," said Jesus,
"For such shall My Kingdom be."

THOUGHTS

Let us walk softly, friend;
For strange paths lie before us, all untrod;
The new year, spotless from the hand of God,
Is thine and mine, O friend!

Let us walk straightly, friend;
Forget the crooked paths behind us now,
Press on with steadier purpose on our brow,
To better deeds, O friend!

Let us walk gladly, friend;
Perchance some greater good than we have known
Is waiting for us, or some fair hope flown
Shall yet return, O friend!

Let us walk humbly, friend;
Slight not the heartsease blooming round our feet;
The laurel blossoms are not half so sweet,
Or lightly gathered, friend.

Let us walk kindly, friend;
We cannot tell how long this life will last.
How soon these precious years be overpast;
Let love walk with us, friend!

Let us walk quickly, friend;
Work with our might while lasts our little stay,
And help some halting comrade on the way:
And may God guide us, friend!

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

DUTIES OF SECRETARY OF BENEVOLENCE

There are general interests of the Methodith Protestant church, not represented by Denominational Board, concerning which our church women should be kept well informed and with which they should cooperate. The office of the Secretary of Benevolences was created to promote such interests. There is also included in her office the important matter of encouraging stewardship.

Her Qualifications

The Secretary of Benevolences should be a woman of intelligence and judgment who shall be able to see the importance of all the interests of the Methodist Protestant church and the proper relation to each other.

As part of her duty is to encourage Stewardship, especially as it relates to tithing, she herself should know from personal experience the joy and satisfaction of being a tither.

Her Duties

The Secretary of Benevolences shall plan one Auxiliary meeting each year presenting information concerning Benevolences. Under this head are included the Superannuate Retirement Funds, Old People's Home, Business Girls' Home, Bethel Tubercular Home and the American Bible Society.

She shall in every possible way promote stewardship. Not only shall she encourage it among the women of the Auxiliary, but through the Missionary Council of her church, she shall plan ways of having the subject adequately presented in the different departments of the Sunday school and in the C. E. Societies.

She shall keep a list of tithers and in tactful ways try to win others to the practice. She shall encourage stewardship studies and distribute stewardship literature.

The qualifications for Secretary of Benevolences in the Branch are the same as those of the Secretary for the Auxiliary. She should secure the appointment of a Secretary of Benevolences in each Auxiliary and co-operate with her in securing from the proper sources the information necessary for presenting the causes for which she is responsible. She should assist her in obtaining interesting and convincing stewardship literature and have it on display at Branch meetings. At one of the meetings of the Branch during the year, she should arrange for the discussion of ways and means for presenting to the Auxiliaries, the Benevolences she sponsors, and also methods for educating the church women in stewardship.

She shall make an annual report in writing to the Branch of her activities during the year.—Leaflet, Committee on Education of the Women's Missionary Work.

◆

We have featured this month the work of the Secretary of Benevolence. In March we hope to hear from the Secretary of Life, Memorial and Perpetual Memberships, and the leaflet concerning duties of this office, from the Committee on Education of the Women's Missionary Work, will also appear during March.

APPRECIATION

We greatly appreciate the prayers and sympathy offered for me in the Federation of the Methodist Protestant Ministers which met in Concord, N. C., not long ago. Brother E. A. Bingham, the secretary, reported this to me. I report a beautiful card of sympathy received from Miss Bronna Apple, of Reidsville, N. C.; also one from Misses Pearl and Flossie Jones. Greensboro, N. C.

As you read this turn to the label on your Herald and if either of the above expiration dates appear there, then this article is intended for you. I take it you will know who you are from the above and it will not be necessary to address you personally.

As you know, the Herald, for the last several years has been operating at a deficit, and your failure to keep your subscription paid up has increased that deficit just that much. Unpaid subscriptions to the Editor represent bread and butter which he needs and has not received.

I am not unmindful of the condition of the times and that you yourselves may be working under financial pressure; if so you can the more appreciate the need of our Editor. If you don't have the money to pay for these arrears, why not tell your congregation frankly of your need and what it is needed for, and ask them to help you pay this debt. Let's all get square with the Herald Editor.

PRAYERS ASKED

My husband, R. P. Petree, has been sick with flu and complications for five weeks; and, although he is somewhat improved is still quite feeble. I earnestly desire the prayers of all Christians for his recovery to normal health. I, too, desire prayers that I may hold out faithfully in this trying time of nursing him.

God grant richest blessings upon all who chance to read this. MRS. R. P. PETREE.

A CORRECTION

In last week's Herald, Lincolnton charge should have been included with the others which had not previously made any subscription remittances. Two of those so listed last week now show as having remitted; namely, Friendship and Thomasville West End. This cuts down the list of "Non-Remitting" to 12. Let's see how soon all these can get off this list. E. L. DOUGLAS.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

First Church, High Point.—The usual program of church services was observed last Sunday, beginning with the Sabbath school and its various classes and departments which met at 9:45 o'clock under the leadership of Mr. J. H. Jennings, superintendent. At the 11 o'clock worship hour the adult congregation assembled in the auditorium to listen to a timely and practical sermon by the minister, Rev. Roy I. Farmer, who chose as his text, Daniel 3,29: "There is no other God that can deliver after this sort." The book of Daniel was written as a solution of problems for the age in which the author lived. Nebuchadnezzar, the king of the Babylonians, had caused a golden image to be set up, and when the music of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut and psaltery was heard, all the people were ordered to fall down and worship the image; but because the three Jewish young men, Shadrack, Meshack, and Abednego, who had been set over the affairs of the province, refused to bow the knee before the golden image, Nebuchadnezzar ordered them to be cast into a fiery furnace heated seven times hotter than usual. They were not harmed, "nor was an hair of their head singed," but God walked with them in the midst of the fire and delivered them. It is God's compliment to us when He allows us to be tried in the school of adversity, for "whom he loveth, he chasteneth." By discipline we learn obedience in the school, home, and army. Jewish children are rigidly trained; Shadrack, Meshack, and Abednego were representative of their race, reared frugally as vegetarians and temperate in all things. At the age 12 Jewish children were expected to take their places in the church. "Seest thou a man diligent in business? He shall stand before Kings." I have been thrilled by this story of three boys, who after discipline met the test. It pays for a young man to shun the evil and follow the good as a test of his character, these young men said, "Idolatry will bring shame to us." The victory and triumph in the school of adversity is a clean-cut trust in God. Discipline brings us power in meeting difficulties and later deliverance. As Latimer said to Ridley: "Will you not light a candle by your life in this community?"

At the same hour the children met in the assembly room downstairs with Mrs. R. S. Russell and Miss Daisy Lee York as leaders in their services. In the evening service at 7:30 the minister spoke on "Life Lived in the Afterglow," beginning the series of Lenten services leading up to the Holy Week.

At 6:30 Sunday evening the Young People's C. E. society met, and discussed the topic, "What Qualities Made Washington Great?"

On Monday afternoon after closing of school the Mission Band and Sunshine circle held their monthly meeting under the direction of Mrs. S. W. Taylor and Mrs. Geo. T. Penny.

Next Sunday morning, February 28th, the annual thank offering service of the Woman's auxiliary will be observed, and the minister will speak on "Light out of Darkness."

The names of 29 students of High Point college appear on the Honor Roll for the first semester. Only two students, Miss Helen Betts and Dwight Davidson, made all A's on their reports. Others who won the coveted honor were the following: Misses Eloise Best, Diana Chandler, Gladys Culler, Elizabeth Gurley, Grace Koontz, Thelma Moss, and Frances McCrary of High Point, Misses Juanita Andrews, Reuche Chadwick, Edith Guthrie, Gladys Guthrie, Martha Holmes, Doris Keener, Sue Morgan, Verdie Marshbanks, Ila Lindley, Eleanor Young, Olive Thomas, and Anzelette Prevost. The boys' names appearing are as follows: William Jarrell, Fielding Kearns, Walter Lanier, Lewis Mabry, James Patch, Clifford Peace, Harvey, Radcliffe, and Larry Yount.

Miss Blanch Burgess will be hostess to the Art-Literature department of the local Woman's club on Wednesday afternoon at 3:45 o'clcok at her home on Lindsay street. Dr. Lucy Eshelman will be in charge of the program.

The High Point branch of Salem Alumnae association will hold its annual meeting Thursday afternoon at 3:30 with Mrs. J. E. Millis (Helen Brooks) in Emerywood.

The A Capella Choir of High Point college under the direction of Professor Ernest B. Stimson will furnish music for the meeting of the American Association of University Women at Central Friends church on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. James E. Perryman, Jr., upon the arrival of a baby daughter on Thursday, February 18, at Guilford General hospital. Before her marriage Mrs. Perryman was Miss Willie Kate Wall of Greensboro.

The family of Walter P. Welch has moved to Montlieu Ave.

We are sorry to note that condition of Mrs. J. A. Tussey, who has been an invalid for four years at her home on W. Ray St., does not improve.

Fairfield Church, Guilford Circuit.—Disagreeable weather affects peoples' religion; however, it does not affect Christianity. Attendance at church Sunday was not as good as it might have been. Some new faces were in the congregation, however. Dr. S. W. Taylor was the distinguished visitor. Rev. E. O. Peeler made the announcements, some of which were that the quarterly conference will convene at the local church for its regular meeting in April, and that the first Sunday in April would be observed as "Joash Box Day" as a part of the project put on by the whole conference to help raise the budget. He also announced that the High Point College choir would have charge of the services on the third Sunday in March. Dr. Taylor further explained the project and drive known as "Joash Box" and its purpose throughout the conference, asserting that there would be 232 "Joash Boxes" in the 232 Methodist Protestant churches in North Carolina during the month of April. He also called their attention to the fact that the conference was floating bonds for the maintenance of High Point College. He assured them that their money would be safe and pay 6 per cent interest and not result in a frozen asset so popularly known today. The message of the evening was taken from the text, "I will build my church," and the topic "Church Building." He gave the historical background leading up to the words of the Master, after which he emphasized the security of the foundation of the church. The next point in discussion was God's helpers in building the church—paying tribute to those who had toiled at this place for the past century. After the process of church building had been outlined, Dr. Taylor pictured the church built after God's plans, asserting that it would be characterized by the spirit of the liberality of giving displayed by the widow in the day of Christ who gave her mite. Dr. Taylor pictured this church compoed of all churches which knew Christ as their Savior. From the appearance of the congregation every one enjoyed Dr. Taylor's discourse.

Lincolnton Church.—We are just getting along fine with our church work when we think of the depression that's on us. For the past few weeks our Sunday school has had a splendid offering and attendance; offering $10.26, $11.20 and $12.00. Attendance 140, 166, 174. About 20, I believe, have been taken into the church and more to join.

Our pastor, Brother Cranford, is a wide-awake man and his good wife seems to have the work at heart.

We have adopted a motto for our Sunday school and this is it: "Onward and Uupward," don't you think it's good?

I have been thinking of our N. C. conference and different churches; how they have helped us after losing our church by fire and in our struggle to rebuild. The Graham people made us a nice donation, and outside of this I don't remember of a single donation being made by preacher or people in our conference, they have not been approached in the proper manner, other people of other denominations have made nice gifts, the largest from a good Baptist deacon.

We still need some cash to pay some pressing accounts, some that must be paid. Send any amount which will be greatly appreciated. We have a splendid brick building, basement with ten rooms or more almost finished with a hot air furnace that makes it comfortable in the coldest weather.

Our attendance at all services is good, and we have one of the best C. E. societies in the state; if you don't believe it, come and see.

Come on, folks, and let's go. If you can pay then pay, and if you can't pay—pray and if you can't pray—work and if you can't work, you will have to do something because a great wave of religion is going to be seen and felt in tis beloved land of ours.

Yours,

D. B. J.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—We had a fine time at Shiloh today. We had 45 young men present. We sang "Revive Us Again." These young men sang it as though each heart was filled with the Holy Spirit.

Our teacher taught an inspiring lesson on, "Jesus, the Good Shepherd." He said, "We hope to get something from the lesson that will cause us to walk closer to Christ. Let us live such lives that it may lead others to the Master. There is no way but Jesus to enter into eternal life. Christ is leading the way, for us, as a good Shepherd, we must follow Him as a good flock."

Our teacher is trying to lead us on to a higher plane of Christian living. I hope each one will strive to walk that narrow way that leads to life. May we uphold our teacher with our prayers.

He also said, 'Christ will give us all things if we follow Him. Jesus gave his life that we may have life and that we may have it more abundantly.

There are more people who claim to be doing something for Christ but they do not have Christ in their lives and cannot lead others to Christ.

We want to be followers of Jesus Christ, so when the devil comes we may stand for Christ and His cause. Christ is our shepherd He leads us to higher planes of Christian living."

We should do right because the word teaches us that we will get our reward for so doing.

He stated that, "We should obey our parents because we love them. I want you to love Christ because He first loved us and gave His life that we might live. We always know when we are following Him. If we are followers of Christ we must hate what we once loved. That is we must put sin aside and takeChrist as our leader."

CLASS REPORTER.

Whitaker's Church.—The first Sunday night the C. E. groups, under the leadership of Mrs. J. M. Cutchin, Jr., observed Young People's Day. It was a good service; the parts were well rendered. On Friday, February 12, a party of us attended the World Day Prayer Service in Enfield. The following Sunday night some of us went back to see the pageant, "The Holy Grail." It was a pretty service and so impressive. Our S. S. is keeping up very well, with a good attendance almost every Sunday.

Last Monday, February 15, we attended the burial of one of our oldest members . Early in life she and her husband, who preceded her in the Spirit World two and a half years ago, joined old Temple church in the country; afterward the church was moved to Whitaker's and they held their membership there till death. She will be missed in her family but especially by her granddaughter who lived with her till her school duties and college and then as teacher took her from home. God bless and comfort her loved ones in their loss and sorrow.

Two of the churches on our work, Enfield and Whitaker's, will have a point quarterly conference at Whitaker's Monday night, March 14th. REPORTER.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—Many things of interest have happened since our last report. Among them one of the things we are happiest to see is the organization of a Junior C. E. society. This society was organized through the efforts of Mrs. H. G. Hargrove and already has thirty interested members who are doing good work under the leadership of Mrs. Hargrove. She has also organized a junior choir. The Senior Christian Endeavor society is doing a splendid work among our young people.

A work day was held at our church recently. A goodly number of our people met and spent the forenoon cleaning the church, the yard, and cemetery. Some shrubbery, which was purchased by the Philathea class, was set out. After a morning of work we all enjoyed a picnic dinner. In the afternoon a business meeting was held. It was at this meeting that we made the initial step to realize one of our fondest hopes—that of erecting a new church building. A finance committee composed of our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, L. E. Guthrie and Mrs. R. S. Woody, was appointed. The building committee is made up of J. C. Guthrie, M. W. Curl, and Mrs. H. G. Hargrove. While we realize that we cannot build a new church in the near future, we believe that it can be done within the next few years.

Rev. J. Clyde Auman, a former pastor, gave us a very interesting and instructive missionary talk the fifth Sunday night. We always hear Bro. Auman with delight. The Woman's auxiliary is planning a thank offering program for the first Sunday night in March.

Rev. Mr. Whitehead continues to bring us wonderful messages. We are proud of our pastor and feel sure that the future holds great things in store for him.

Our community was saddened during the last week by the deaths of two of our oldest people. Miss Ellen Cheek, aged 92, died the 11th, and was buried the following day. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. H. L. Isley. The large crowd of relatives and friends attending the funeral gave evidence of the high esteem in which she was held.

On February 12, Mr. J. B. Rogers died at Duke hospital. Mr. Rogers was, the oldest member of our church and with his passing we have lost a loyal member. He is survived by his wife, ten children, 36 grandchildren. We extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones.

MRS. L. E. GUTHRIE, Reporter.

Spring Church Charge.—The service at Lebanon yesterday morning was well-attended. Rain at night cut the attendance short at Pleasant Hill. Mrs. Ciderella Hart Glover, our organist at the latter place, who recently married and moved away, was present with us last night with Mr. Glover.

The women of this section are greatly inthused concerning the meeting of the Branch in our district. They are planning for a generous representatiton.

In the matter of disposing of conference journals, I find that it is a good plan to buy them and then sell them. When I advance the money upon receipt of journals I generally do this—I am not satisfied until I get my money back. This year the journals were first sold then final settlement made.

Wm. H. NEESE.

St. Paul.—We are glad to report that fairly good progress is being made by our church and Sunday school work. We are having good attendance at Sunday school and the preaching services. The pastor is performing a two-fold task in that he is teaching a class of fine young men in the Sunday school. It is pleasant work because of the splendid interest and attention shown him by the young men of the class. Our aim is to lead them into an understanding of the eternal truths of righteousness.

We are also glad to report that we have received four new members recently, which we hope will prove helpful to our work here. We are hopeful of receiving others into our church in the near future.

At the first quarterly conference as a result of a resolution presented by the pastor, a financial system was adopted by which all of the finances of the church are hoped to be raised by weekly payments.

The Ladies' Aid society had their monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wade Saturday evening, February 13, at 7:30. An interesting program was carried out, and a good number of the members were present. The treasurer made her report, which showed that they had been active in raising money for the church. After the meeting adpourned, those present remained for a social hour, during which interesting games were enjoyed, and refreshments were served by Mrs. Wade and her daughters.

We wish to thank the ladies of the church who gave Mrs. Garner a shower some time ago. She received a number of useful articles which were greatly appreciated.

D. I. GARNER, Pastor.

Fair Grove.—Sunday, February 14th, was regular preaching day and we had quite a large crowd both for Sunday school and church. We had with us Rev. N. M. Harrison, of High Point College, who preached a very enjoyable sermon on "Full of Fullness."

The young people have been successful in organizing a Christian Endeavor society in our church, and had their first meeting Sunday night. There was only a small crowd but the program was very good, the topic being "Faithfulness." We have quite a lot of confidence that the membership will increase. The society will meet each Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock.

The Young People's Sunday school class was entertained at a very enjoyable social given at the home of Misses Naomi and Lena Oakley, Saturday night, February 13th. Numerous games were played and the Windsor quintet rendered several enjoyable songs, after which a sandwich and salad course was served.

REPORTER.

Asheboro.—Our people were saddened to learn of the sudden death of Miss Lure Surratt on January 30, at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. A. Hoover of Denton. Miss Surratt had recently resided in our city for several months and had made many friends. She united with our church soon after coming here and was a faithful and loyal member of the Woman's auxiliary.

Funeral services were conducted on Sunday afternoon, January 31, from the Denton M. P. church, by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Short and Rev. R. C. Stubbins, pastor of the Asheboro church. Several of the Asheboro people attended the funeral.

The World Day of Prayer was observed on Friday, February 12, in our church. The people of the town were priviliged to enter the church for prayer and meditation between 9:30 a. m. and 5:00 p. m. At 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon a union service was held. All the women's organizations of the church united in this service, representatives from each church having a part on the program. Much time was spent in prayer. Mrs. H. L. Stevens of the Baptist church made a very impressive talk on "Prayer." Our president, Miss Esther Ross, presided at this service.

We were very sorry that our pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, was unable to fill his appointments last Sunday, on account of laryngitis. But were very glad to have Miss Bertha Smith, a Randolph county lady, preach for us at the eleven o'clock service. Miss Smith of the Friends church has for a number of years had work in the New England States. We were very fortunate to have her bring to us a most hepful message. There was no evening service, so our people had the privilege of visiting the other churches at this time.

The Woman's auxiliary held its monthly meeting and thank offering service in the church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. With Miss Ross presiding, the business was disposed of first, Roll called by circles, with short reports. The nominating committee made the following report for next year: President, Miss Lollie Jones; first vice-president, Mrs. J. T. Pugh; second vice-president, Mrs. L. D. Burkhead; recording secretary, Mrs. N. M. Harrison; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. C. Stubbins, and treasurer, Miss Esther Ross. These were elected and will be installed at the March meeting.

The young people gave the program; Mrs. Clyde Hendricks, superintendent, in charge. Each group had songs, recitations, one giving the "Pageant of Boxes." A candle was lit as a member of each circle brought their thank offering and announced the amount. The total amount was $55.00, which will ge to Rev. and Mrs. Minnis in India. After singing the doxology the meeting closed.

Giles Chapel.—The Loyal Sons and Daughters classes of Giles Chapel Sunday school met for their regular monthy meeting, Saturday, February 20, at the home of Miss Annie Mae Henson. The devotional exercises were conducted by Miss Ruth Carter and Delmer Webster. After a short business session, a biblical contest was given with Miss Margaret Hinshaw winning a perfect score. Lovely refreshments were served in the dining room.

Mr. Arch Briles, president of the Franklinville Township Sunday School convention, visited our Sunday school February 21, and made a short talk on "Sunday School Work."

The Rev. Mr. Harrison of High Point College preached an interesting sermon to the people of our church February 21. We were very glad to have Mr. Harrison with us, and we hope that he will visit us again in the near future.

Our Sunday school at the present time has 38 on roll, with an average attendance of about 60. We expect a larger attendance as the weather grows warmer.

First Church, Lexington. — Our Sunday school is holding up well, there were 257 present today. Our preaching services are also being well attended. In our morning service the church was almost filled and the pastor preached a very forceful and interesting sermon. His subject was on "The Bible as the Greatest Book and How We Should Use It." He pointed out the necessity of Bible reading in the home as an important factor in bringing the children up in the right way also the value of the family altar which has become a thing of the past in most homes. We agree with him on this as the Master said, "Train up a child in the way it should go and when it is old it will not depart from it," and we know of no better way to train up our children than with home Bible teaching and prayer each day.

In the evening service the church was again well filled for the service and the pastor delivered another good message. We have a committee at work on raising the money to build our Sunday school rooms and we hope that we will soon be able to start to work on them. On Tuesday evening of this week the Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of the pastor and his mother and all the members have been asked to bring a chicken or the price of one to the meeting and these will be for a supper to raise some money for the society.

We are glad to note that Brother J. A. Easter, one of our most faithful members who has been quite ill at his home on South Main St., is improving some and we hope and pray that he may soon be restored to health and be back with us.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—"What Jesus teaches about faithfulness," was the topic February 14. Sixty-five young people heard this important lesson led by Mr. Fred Berrier and well discussed by each of those having parts.

Sunday night, February 21, 45 young people gathered, despite the rain, and heard the lesson on "Desirable Qualities in National Leaders," led by Mr. Japhia Leonard and interestingly discussed by each one. Immediately following the program at 7:30, Mr. H. A. Leonard addressed the society on "Character," Mr. Leonard held his audience spellbound for about 30 minutes; so strongly did he stress the importance and joy of having an unspotted character, that each present undoubtedly went away with more of a determination to live farther from the pleasures of the world, and nearer to the one who can give real pleasure; and guide our lives to build true character; that is Christ.

Our pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, has been with us the past two Sunday nights. We are always glad to have him with us. The writer understands that changes have been made so we can have Mr. Troxler with us each Sunday night, we want to thank those who have made this possible.

The average attendance for the Christian Endeavor society for January was 55: we want to heartily commend those young people who helped in making this possibe. The society is not only growing in number, but as the number grows so does the spirit. We hope to continue to grow both in spirit and in number.

Salem, Saxapahaw Charge. — We are still striving to go forward with our church work. On last second Sunday morning we had Dr. T. M. Johnson with us for our eleven o'clock service. He made a very interesting talk on the value of a solid foundation. He also spoke on the High Point College bond Campaign. We trust all who have money to invest will buy a bond and help the college. We as Methodist Protestants should feel near to our own High Point College. If you are interested in a bond please see Mr. H. G. Paris.

The young people are still pressing forward with the Christian Endeavor work. More active members have been added to the list.

Saturday night, February 13, the C. E. had a box party at Shady Grove school house. Proceeds amounted to $11.00 which will ge to the betterment of the church.

A few shrubs have been set out around the church. We trust others will be added soon. May I urge you again if you are not a subscriber of the M. P. Herald to subscribe at once! And let's make our number larger and larger.

Bethesda, Halfax Charge.—Our last preaching service, the first Sunday night, Mr. Fogleman gave us an interesting and helpful sermon. The second Sunday morning the Woman's auxiliary presented a very impressive thank offering service. Special music was given by several of the Aurelian Springs teachers and two very pretty quartets by high school boys. Maxine Taylor, one of our home girls, gave a very instructive talk on the subject of "Missions." This was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. We always enjoy having her with us. One of our Sunday school girls, Mildred Stallings, recited a beautiful recitation, "Thank Offering Box Opened at the Master's Feet." Our offering was $10.00.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's auxiliary met with Mrs. F. M. Taylor Wednesday afternoon. Re-election of officers and may phases of the society were discussed. A delightful social hour followed. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely.

South Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—A small but very attentive congregation was present for the preaching service at Mt. Carmel Sunday afternoon, February 21. Rev. Isley brought a very interesting and uplifting sermon on the "Bible." He said, "we need to get back to the old time religion and family altar."

Mrs. Hattie Isley was hostess to the Ladies' auxiliary Tuesday night, February 16. Owing to bad weather only five members, two honorary members and one visitor were present. The president had charge of the program after which tempting refreshments were served by Mrs. Isley.

Mr. J. T. Swicegood has returned home from the Davidson hospital where he underwent a very serious operation for ruptured appedicitis and is getting along fine.

Maxine, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morphies, is suffering from pneumonia.

Shiloh.—To date, the S. S. enrollment has gone to 275 for this year. The number presend today was 205.

Would you like to know something about some of our classes? Should you enter our S. S. classes, first you would see the Brotherhood class, about 25 or 30 of our older men. And just across the hall is Mothers' class No. 1 with about the same number of older mothers. What an inspiration these mothers and fathers in Israel are to all of us. Instead of sitting at home to rest their tired bodies they come to the house of the Lord and testify to the power of the Christ to give rest to the heavy laden. As you move up the hall you see to your right a class of young mothers. All mothers know that it's not so easy to get all the work done on Sunday morning, then dress the kiddies and get the whole family to Sunday school by 9:45. Yet these mothers do it gladly. They bring their babies in their arms and take an active part in the Master's work. From such homes will some day go out fine sons and daughters.

Then there are the young fathers and young men over sixteen who make one of the finest classes ever seen in any rural church. They can sing and pray and work in the work of the Master. Nowhere could you find a nobler spirit of co-operation. The coming years will reveal a great harvest from this great work. There are more interesting classes upstairs. Will tell of them next time.

Today we heard one of the greatest messages of the year. Bro. Troxler took as his text I Kings 19:12: "And after the fire, a still small voice." Elijah was that fearless, rugged, faithful prophet of God. He had destroyed the prophets of Baal. Yet the time came when he was frightened and ran away from the wicked Jezebel. God was mindful of his servant. As Elijah stood on the mount before the Lord a strong and mighty wind passed by and rent the mountains and brake the rocks; but the Lord was not in the wind. After the wind passed the earthquake and also the fire, but the Lord was in none of this. Then came the still small voice and Elijah wrapped his face in his mantle and went out, stood at the entrance of the cave and talked with the living God. Bro. Troxler told us of "The spiritual weakness in the things that seem mighty" and also of "the spiritual strength in the things that seem weak." He said our need today is to hear that still small voice, to have the power of God within. "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord." The power of God is wonderful, but the presence of God is sweet. A person controlled by the presence of God will go anywhere and say anything for they can say with Paul, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

There will be a Thank-Offering service at Shiloh Sunday night, February 28. Please come. MRS. W. L. SHOAF.

Sandy Ridge, Kernersville Charge. — Our Sunday school has not been doing so well for the last two or three months. We hope it will get under way again when spring opens up. Our superintendent has been sick and unable to be at the helm for some time until last Sunday, at which time she was back with us. The assistant superintendent, Mr. F. R. Johnson, has been carrying the work on splendidly.

Mrs. C. C. Sikes, one of our Sunday school teachers, is sick. We hope she will soon be back with us again.

Our faithful pastor, Rev. D. D. Broome, still continues to bring us real good messages.

MRS. T. A. HOLT, Reporter.

Roberta.—In spite of the inclement weather our Sunday school attendance was 201 and collection for Sunday school and pastor's salary amounted to over $26.00. The Brotherhood which was organized last Sunday is to take charge of the opening exercises of the Sunday school next Sunday morning. We think that this organization will mean quite a lot to our church and community. Each member of the Brotherhood is to pay 25 cents per month for the purpose of paying off our church debt through the Building and Loan. This well be a fine way of getting our debt paid, if all will cooperate and join the organization.

The Ladies' Aid Society is now getting pretty well on the way with Mrs. Joel B. Trogdon as president. We are now working on a name quilt and are planning to get up two plays for the purpose of raising funds also for our church debt.

Our pastor, Brother Trogdon, gave us a splendid message Sunday morning. We feel that Brother Trogdon is a man after God's own heart and the messages that he gives us are as coals of fire right off of God's altar. We pray that all who hear may take warning and heed. It is not God's will that any should perish but that all shall have life. If we will obey his still small voice and come what Him and say by that act, "Let come what may, but as for me and my house we wil serve the Lord." We believe if more fathers and mothers would take such a stand that this old world would be a better place to live in and there would not be the crimes committed today that are.

Mr. J. C. Cochran died February 17, 1932, aged 71 years and one month. The funeral services were conducted at Roberta February 18th by the pastor, Rev. J. B. Trogdon, assisted by Rev. Robert Short and J. T. Sisk, his former pastors. The large congregation showed the esteem in which he was held. Twelve years ago "Uncle Pitt," as he was known in the community, became a member of Roberta M. P. church and from that time remained a faithful and consistent member until death. May the bereaved family be comforted by our Heavenly Father and weep not as those who have no hope.

REPORTER.

Concord, First Church.—Our Sunday school was off some today, but considering the rainy weather, we were very glad to have 316 present. We feel that we are growing stronger in the Lord and hope our Sunday school will continue to increase.

Bro. Morgan brought a wonderful and inspiring message at the 11 o'clock service. His subject was "The Cross." He told us that some people wore a cross on a chain or as a necklace as an ornament and it attracted attention, and he said this was all right, but the Cross that attracted the most attenion was the Cross of Jesus Christ.

The evening service was also helpful; the subject was, "Judgment Bound."

The ladies of our church are to give a party February 22 in honor of George Washington. Everyone has been asked to bring a penny for each year old they are. A fine program has been planned and the money which they receive will go on the Sunday school building. We are sure God will reward His people for the way they are trying to build up the work. We need and desire your prayers. REPORTER.

Lexington, State Street.—At the 11 o'clock hour Sunday Mr. Hendry gave a fitting and interesting address on the life of Washington, choosing as a base for the address "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." Rev. Mr. Ridge preached a fine sermon for us at the evening hour.

The Junior and Senior C. E. Societies met Sunday evening at 7 o'clock just preceding the preaching service.

Two weeks ago Wednesday night Dr. Taylor was with us in the quarterly conference. His address just before the opening of the conference was one of interest and inspiration, as Dr. Taylor's addresses always are.

Circle No. 1 of the Missionary Society will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. M. L. Hoffman. The Men's Brotherhood held a meeting of much interest last Tuesday night.

An epidemic of whooping-cough among the children and sickness of various kinds among our people in general has kept our attendance below what we had hoped to reach the past few weeks, but we are hoping all may be well and back in their places soon.

We are sorry to note the continued illness of Mrs. J. M. Byerly, Mrs. J. W. Lindsay, and Mrs. Gardner. The other sick ones of number are reported much improved.

Miss Mabel Hutton has many friends here, gained while she taught in the city schools, all of whom are grieved to learn of her serious illness. Miss Hutton was most faithful to our church in every respect during the time she lived here. We are hoping and praying for her early recovery.

REPORTER.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—This month we have enjoyed two good sermons. On the first Sunday morning the pastor took his text from Exodus 12:13: "And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where ye are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you, when I smite the land of Egypt." In this text the blood is the token of faith, and if we are ever saved it will be by the blood of Jesus.

The pastor used for his text at the next appointment, Matt. 24:12-13, "Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. But he that endureth unto the end, the same shall be saved." Because of iniquity sin has separated man from God. Sin is man's greatest foe; Satan is man's greatest enemy. Sin is the only thing ever known to excite the wrath of God. It is the cause of our troubles, sorrow and afflictions.

There is a tendency among people to disregard laws: school, county, state and national. Some people may break these laws and "get by" with it but when God's laws are broken there is no escape.

We must hold fast our profession of faith. If it is worth making it is worth living. We should promote the love for Christ, not abandon it. Glorify His name and carry on His work He has left for us.

The Woman's Missionary auxiliary will meet this month at the home of Mrs. W. R. Kittrell. The theme for the program will be, "How shall they hear without a preacher?" On the fourth Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock the missionary auxiliary will hold a thank offering service. The program will consist of a short pageant, "Light and Thanks," and an address. The public is invited to come and hear of the need of the Gospel in foreign countries.

Mr. D. T. Wrenn is in a local hospital recovering from an operation. He is reported to be improving, and we hope he will soon be well again. REPORTER.

Charlotte.—The attendance at Sunday school was somewhat off Sunday on account of bad weather and several out of town, so I guess Calvary is winning out in the contest.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Bivins

Bethel Church on Alamance Charge has lost another of its most valuable members in the person of David Bivins. He was almost eighty-four years old. Twice he was united in marriage. Both his companions have preceded him to the Spirit World. He leaves behind one sister, Mrs. J. D. Payne; two daughters, Mrs. Sallie McPherson, Mrs. Maggie Foust; two sons, W. H. Bivins, and J. H. Bivins; twentythree grandchildren and thirteen great grandchildren. His funeral was conducted by his pastor, assisted by Revs. G. W. Holmes and F. M. Wilson. His body was laid to rest in Bethel cemetery.

J. A. BURGESS.

Ivey

Mrs. Mintia Cora Ivey was born April 14, 1865 and departed this life January 30, 1932. She was the daughter of C. C. and Mary Causey and spent her entire life in the Tabernacle community. On March 25, 1906, she was united in marriage with Mr. J. T. Ivey, who survives; also four brothers and one sister, H. C., B. H., A. B., and J. T. Causey and Mrs. Donnie Coble. In young girlhood Mrs. Ivey was converted and joined Tabernacle Methodist Protestant church. Although unable to attend church very much during the last few years, her interest in the church and spiritual things never waned. She found much comfort in the promises of the Bible, of which she was a constant reader, and expressed herself as being ready to meet her God in peace.

Rev. T. M. Johnson and the writer conducted the funeral at Tabernacle on Sunday, January 31, and the burial followed in the church cemetery.

H. L. ISLEY.

Nicholson

Barbara Carolina Albright, daughter of Colonel Mike and Mrs. Cornelia Clendenin Albright, was born in Alamance county, September 28, 1860, and passed from the scenes of this life on the same farm, December 9, 1931, being 71 years, two months, and 11 days old. On February 12, 1884, she was united in marriage to Theophilus P. Nicholson and for almost half a century they walked together, sharing with each other their joys and sorrows, their successes and failures. Their home was a home of harmony.

Her church affiliation was with Mt. Hermon Methodist Protestant church. She was always loyal. One who knew her well said, "She was glad when her church succeeded and she was pained when it made mistakes." She always listened with evident interest and profit to the sermons and was ready to help the church any way she could. It can be truly said that she was faithful to her community, to her church, and to her God. During her lonely hours when her son would be away at work, she found great comfort and consolation reading the Bible.

The end came peacefully. The final test of life is the end. It would be a great pity to reach a height of spiritual experience and lose it before we die. It is a great thing to come into a new experience. It is a greater thing to hold the new experience to the last day of our life. We believe that death for Mrs. Nicholson meant victory. "Thanks to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

H. L. ISLEY.

Cheek

Miss Nancy Ellen Cheek passed from this life at her home in the southern part of Alamance county, near Concord Methodist Prottestant church, February 11, 1932. She had reached the ripe old age of 92 years, three months, and two days, having been born November 9, 1839. She was the daughter of Robert Cheek and Elizabeth Roberson Cheek. A number of interesting and remarkable things can be said of her. She was born and died in the same house, she lived to be 86 years old before she ever had a physician, and she lived to see the 100th wedding anniversary of her parents. They were married December 18, 1831. It is the writer's impression that she has been reading the Methodist Protestant Herald ever since it began publication. Being left alone at the death of her parents and having no near relatives. Miss Cheek adopted Mr. Jimmie May when he was 12 years of age and he has lived in her home for 60 years, caring for her very tenderly.

Miss Cheek was a sincere Christian, having accepted Christ as her Savior in 1865. It was a joy to her to read her Bible and church paper. She retained her good memory until the end and often spoke of God's goodness to her. Mr. May will feel lonely since her passing. The Lord bless him.

By special request the writer conducted the funeral at Concord M. P. church, February 12, and burial was made in the church cemetery.

MY TYPEWRITER

For years I sought but found it not—
A way to quick-record my thought.
In vain I tried my pen and ink—
They fell behind my power to think.

But now I'm happy to relate
I've found a way quite up-to-date:
In passing by a city store
I saw "used writers" by the score.

In eagerness I asked the price
Of one that looked so very nice;
"The price to you is only ten—
Five times that much to other men."

A trade was made and home I went
To use machine as soon as sent.
It's now in place and you may see
What sort of hand its hand will be:—

Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
How I wonder what you are
Up above the world so high
Like a diamond in the sky.

A CORRECTION

In my quarterly report published in the last issue of the Herald our Charlotte church was not credited with all of its contributions. The following items were inadvertently omitted: $11.41 for A. C. B., and $8.48 for High Point College.

I am glad of the opportunity for making this correction, and shall endeavor to see that no such mistake occurs again.

Pritchard, mother of Mrs. Little returned with them for a visit.

Mrs. W. E. Teague, from Asheville, is spending sometime with her daughter, Mrs. L. S. Alexander, on Grandin Road.

Mr. J. C. Penny entertained his Sunday school class of young men last Tuesday evening with a dinner and program at the Selwyn hotel. Miss Doris Dasher furnished special music for the occasion. Guests especially invited were: Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Ledbetter, Mrs. J. C. Penny, Mrs. Herbert Garrison, Mrs. Steve Candor and Miss Mildred Younginer, superintendent in Mr. Penny's department.

The Woman's auxiliary will have a thank offering service Sunday evening in lieu of the regular service.

Last Sunday the subject of Rev. Andrews' sermon was "Sideline Saints." This was indeed a wonderful message, a challenge to us to render the best service possible; in so doing we would have no time to see or criticize the mistakes, if such there be, of others. This sermon was an inspiration, as indeed, are all the sermons we hear from our pastor.

THE HERALD CAMPAIGN

Again eight initial remittances for Herald subscriptions were reported this week. More and more are getting into the work. That IS encouraging. Already there are 12 charges that have sent in more subscriptions in the three and a half months of this Conference year than those same charges had sent in in the 12 months of last Conference year. Some charges are very near joining these 12 now. In the issue of May 5th, when the Conference year is just half gone, we are going to print in the Herald an HONOR LIST, which will contain the names of all charges which have sent in more subscriptions to that time than they had sent in all of the previous year. Begin now to get your charge on that list. By that time we shall expect every charge to have gotten itself off of the "Non-Remitting List."

The Work of God

Would you know the work of God,
Work assigned for you to do?
Such a work there doubtless is—
Work belonging just to you.

Otherwise it could not be!
Such as you not made for aught?
God in you high purpose has:
Need you be more clearly taught?

Would you have a world-wide field—
Have your name on every tongue?
Would you be both high and mighty,
Feared by all you live among?

Would the task that you would choose
Be a light and pleasant one?
Would you not concern yourself
As to when your work is done?

Would you do eye-service work,
Working when your master sees,
Idling when he turns his back,
Lying down to take your ease?

Ah, my friend, you do not see
How affairs in God's world go:
God Himself assigns our work,
What it is we should well know.

We must do as well as know,
We must do our very best:
When our work is fully done,
Then it is we take our rest.

Shall I tell precisely what God Himself assigns to you?
Unexpected task, may be—
Greatest thing that you can do.

Work of God appointed us
Will not seem like work to you:
More like rest indeed it is,
Easiest thing that you can do.

Greatest work God gives to you
Keeps your mind and heart intent:
This it is and nothing more:
Believe on Him that God hath sent!

(John 6:29.—Jesus answered and said unto them, This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.)

The Bible's Prayer List

Many persons have prayer lists including the names of those they feel inclined to pray for. The man of the story had a prayer list of four names only. He prayed daily: "God bless me and my wife, my son John and his wife,—us four and no more." Other lists indicate a wider range of interest. But we suspect that most of our prayer lists are rather arbitrarily made out. We exercise partiality in selecting the objects of our prayers. We have not yet risen to the Bible standard.

All men are to be made objects of earnest daily prayer. The heathen and barbarous races are to be on our prayer lists. We may not now feel much interest in them, but our interest will grow and develop as we think about them and pray for them. When we contrast their lot with ours we see how pitiable they are. When we realize how dark are their minds and how degraded are their souls and how noble they might become if they had a chance to know Christ as we know Him, surely we would put them on our prayer list.

Jesus taught that we should pray for our enemies. Jesus did that. What a long prayer list Jesus had! As far as human sympathy can go, so far should our prayer lists extend. We think we are living when we are performing the physical functions of life. Jesus would arouse our spiritual powers and set us to living indeed. When we are living our best, prayer will fill a large place in our daily programs.

Importance of Correct Spelling

Each of two ministers recently wrote asking for the correction of the spelling of a word. One of the words was already correct and the other, a proper name, would have misled nobody. These ministers valued their reputation for correctness. But there is more at stake in the matter of spelling than the reputation of the speller. A perversion in spelling may result in a perversion of thought and meaning. Words are sacred things and all should shrink from doing them violence. It is wrong to mutilate coins and for a like reason it is wrong to mutilate words. It is sometimes sneeringly asked, "What is in a name?" There is a treasure in every name— treasure of thought. What a world of wealth in the well defined and established words of human language, spoken and written! Mispronunciation is to be avoided as carefully as misspelling. Careless copying of important records may result in grave error. An accent mark in a Greek manuscript brought on a fierce and prolonged warfare. Beware of corrupting language. Purity is a paramount virtue here as everywhere. Heterodox spelling is a byway if not a highway

MAKE AMERICA CHRISTIAN

Make America Christian,
This the vital need;
Christ Himself Redeemer,
Love the only creed.

Fresh and mighty currents
Sweep away the dross;
Christian men and women
Bear aloft the Cross.

Join in common service,
Liberate good-will;
Truth and Love triumphant,
Christ is Master still.

Make America Christian,
This the vital need;
Christ Himself Redeemer,
Love the only creed.

A UNIQUE APPEAL

Have you ever before been asked for a contribution to help purchase a preacher an artificial leg? Not many, if any, of us have.

All Herald readers know that Brother G. F. Millaway has had the misfortune to lose a leg. With his consent I am undertaking to solicit enough money to purchase for him an artificial one. The kind that he will need and that we will want to secure for him will cost approximately $200. I have raised money for many people and causes but I am sure I have never helped a more worthy cause or more deserving person. Brother Millaway has given his life to the gospel ministry in our Methodist Protestant Church, having preached forty-one years. He has served as pastor of some of our good churches, but has never received salaries much more than sufficient to support his family. He tells me that his recent trip to the hospital cost him more money than he had. With the aid of an artificial leg Brother Millaway will be able to go about, and he hopes to be able to preach some more, if not in the regular pastorate, then wherever he can be of service.

Here are my suggestions for raising the necessary money:

First. Let every pastor who can possibly do so send a contribution. Since Brother Millaway's affliction I have tried to imagine myself in his place. Imagine your situation and his reversed, and then do unto him as you would appreciate his doing unto you.

Second. Every pastor is requested to make announcement concerning this to his congregations. Many of our people do not read the Herald and will know nothing of this appeal unless pastors present it. In most cases I think it will be better not to take an offering but let the people give as individuals.

Third. I appeal especially to those churches that have been blessed by Brother Millaway's ministry when their pastor. I know that you will want to express in this way your appreciation of the service he rendered your church years ago.

Fourth. Throughout our conference there are scores of men and women, active in our church life, who were converted under the preaching of this man of God. They, too, I know will want a part in this little service that we can now render to him whose life and ministry has been a blessing to them. I appeal especially to all such.

Fifth. After the pastor has made the announcement, let some layman interest himself in the matter to the extent of soliciting contributions and forwarding them to me.

Sixth. Send all contributions to me (L. W. Gerringer, 419 Charles Street, Henderson, N. C.), giving names of individuals or organizations with amount each contributes.

A report will be made through the Herald each week, and no receipts sent unless requested.

Brother Millaway will not be ready for the leg until May. He is now learning to walk on a temporary leg to toughen the stub preparatory to the permanent leg. Therefore we have two months in which to make our contribution. However, if we can make our contribution now or within the next few days, let us do it and be done with it. Then, too, Brother Millaway will not know whether to give the order until we see what the response has been. If you can not send check, or money order, or cash by registered mail now, let me have your pledge to pay later.

I am just hoping there will be such a hearty, spontaneous response to this appeal as will make Brother Millaway's heart rejoice, and enable us to secure the necessary amount within the next few days.

All right, who is first? I believe I will take advantage of all of you and take to myself the honor of being first, for I am not asking you to do something that I am not ready to do myself.

PLAYING GOD

George Arliss is one of the most finished and impressive actors both on the legitimate stage and in moving pictures. His last—and perhaps most suggestive picture is "The Man Who Played God."

This man is represented to be a person of great wealth, also an accomplished and popular musician. He plans to give a great organ to a New York church to the honor of God and in memory of his mother.

Suddenly he becomes deaf. After many consultations with experts there is given no hope that he can ever hear again. He studies the Bible and convinced himself that it cannot be true; that God is cruel and unjust, and he rebels against Him and hates Him.

By the aid of an expert teacher he learns lip-reading, so that his contacts with people are largely restored and his interest in life comes back. He buys toys and play-equipment and greatly enjoys distributing them to children and watching them play.

By the use of fine glasses he is able to watch people in the park from the top floor of his city residence. To his surprise he finds he can read their lips at that distance. Being interested in them, and desiring to be of service, he overcomes the feeling that he is improperly spying on them, and thus comes into a knowledge of their troubles and problems. His money, and the faithful co-operation of his man-servant, enable him to minister to their lives and characters in most helpful ways. Young people in great distress and danger are saved from threatened dire calamity. He is thus playing God—doing what he thought a good and wise God should do under such circumstances and conditions. He enjoys it and thinks God must have a great time! His faith returns, he decides to follow his original purpose and give the organ to the church, goes back to his interest in music, and finds life very much worth while.

All the players in the supporting cast are excellent, and people are showing their appreciation of such a picture by witnessing its presentation in large numbers.

It is within the range of each of us to play God. We can do for others the things that we think a just and loving God should do. We can be workers together with God. Our conceptions of the purposes and plans of God will enlarge through our practical efforts, and we shall be helping him to make the world and life what they should be.

THE HERALD CAMPAIGN

One-half of Conference year ends May first, only two more months, March and April, yet to go, then we should have half of our HERALD quotas raised. We need more than 1,000 subscribers yet to reach the half-way mark.

PASTORS AND SUBSCRIPTION CHAIRMEN, please read this call to arms, especially those of you who do not already have your campaign under way. The last Annual Conference set the HERALD quota for your charge and directed that this campaign be put on and further directed that it be continued "Until every church member or home has been solicited, who are not subscribers." Therefore every Pastor on every charge is now requested to arrange to carry out the above conference orders. There is only one way to get from under the responsibility put on you by the conference and that is to either raise the quota or solicit every home in an effort to raise it. Do this—Use your subscription Chairmen, start your campaign now and do not quit until EVERY home and prospect has been visited and solicited for a subscription. DON'T SAY YOU CAN'T RAISE YOUR QUOTA UNTIL THIS HAS BEEN DONE.

Some Pastors and some Chairmen have done good work and are moving right along towards their goal, others haven't even started. Awake, thou that sleepest, and let us every one do this thing together, and do it during March and April. Three charges have already raised their quotas, why? Just because they worked and worked hard. Won't every one of you do the same. Accept your responsibility and do your part, not because it's easy, but in spite of hard times and depression.

E. L. DOUGLAS, Chairman
Directing Committee.

STANDING IN THE CHURCH BREAD-LINE

A real estate man in Lexington, Ky., once sold me a house. He took me through it from cellar to attic, and then got into his automobile and drove around in the immediate vicinity. He showed me the nice school building located nearby; the great state university three blocks away; the fire station on Woodland Avenue; Woodland Park with its great auditorium building, but finally he pointed out the church in which I worshiped for many years thereafter.

These were his arguments why this section of the city was a good section to live in: it had pleasant surroundings, it had a good school, it had fire protection, it had good police protection, it had splendid churches, and there was one of my own faith and order in which I could worship.

These assets made the property look good to me, but even more valuable to anyone looking for an investment.

The deal was clinched and I moved in. As a citizen of the city I contributed my share to the maintenance of the school; I contributed my share to the maintenance of the park; I contributed my share to the maintenance of the fire department; but for several months I contributed nothing to the church.

I grew ashamed. I said to myself, "My property is a better investment because the church is near by. If death or trouble should come to my home I would not hesitate to call on the pastor, and he would never refuse to come. I accept all of these benefits which make my home desirable, and contribute to them all except the church, to which I am contributing nothing."

So I grew ashamed of taking so much and giving nothing at all, of standing in the church's bread-line. Many Christians would feel as I did if they should think the thing through. Every community has people who are getting something for nothing at the expense of the church.

JOBLESS MEN AND FAMILIES BUILD OWN TOWN IN OZARKS

Concord Springs, Ark., Feb. 17.—A hundred men are lined up before the cook shack of Arkansas' new unemployment colony, where jobless men and their families are fighting the business crisis by the most natural method—going back to the land.

Most of them are young men, clad in rough lumberjacks, sweaters and overalls, reaching for their huge tin plates of steaming potatoes and flaky hot biscuits with the zest of youth.

"Eat it while it's hot," advises a smiling, mother-looking woman in a clean apron, handing out plates busily.

Her husband, the chief chef, grins at the hungry men from a little window, where he assists at distributing the food.

"It isn't fancy, but it's good," he remarks.

And it is good.

This reporter, arriving at the unemployment colony just at noon, was invited to share the simple meal of the colonists, and was ushered into the cook shack by the cook andhis wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Gazbar, with all the proud hospitality of a lord and lady of the manor.

"The biscuits are made with water," says Mrs. Gazbar, "and we can't buy much meat. But the boys seem to like it."

Mr. and Mrs. Gazbar are just two of the hundreds who have flocked to this wooded valley in the Ozarks where a unique experiment in community life is under way. The unemployment colony, which at present numbers 400 jobless and their families, is already self-supporting, and expects by spring to be making good profits from cultivation of 500 of the 8,000 acres of uncleared land which they have bought at $5 an acre, with ten years to pay.

"I'm happier than I have been in months," says Mrs. Gazbar, busily peeling potatoes, making ready for the next meal. "You see, conditions have been so bad that George couldn't find work. We were down to our last cent. We never had been in such a fix before. But now we both have a chance to work, to earn something of our very own."

And that is the secret of the happiness of these men and women who labor from daylight to dark clearing the land, repairing the road, building the little shacks of native timber which now form the community proper. They are making enough money from the sale of cordwood in nearby towns to supply the commissary, and feed them all. And that is the principal problem.

Each member of the Oklahoma-Arkansas Industrial Development association, which is the official name of the unemployment colony owns ten acres of the community plot of land. He receives a deed to it when he joins the colony, as well as the title to a site for his house. But according to the terms of the agreement, he can never seell his part of the community acreage.

Whatever profit comes from the tilling of the land is paid into the community treasury, and dispersed as dividends. And no man may buy more than one share in the corporation.

The price of membership in the unemployment colony has gone up since it was organized in Tulsa a few months ago. At first each man had to pay only $1 to join. Then the price went to $2, $5 and finally to $25.—Selected.

REAL NEWS

Following a sermon on the theme "If War Comes" by Dr. Albert Edward Day, minister of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh, on Sunday evening, February 7, the members of the congregation, much to the surprise of the preacher, spontaneously took a most significant action declaring their determination "never to participate in or support another war of any kind." The resolution was adopted only after Dr. Day had pointed out the peril of voting by assemblies and had cautioned his hearers not to support it unless their vote actually represented their deliberate convictions. Information as to the action of the Christ Church congregation was telegraphed by its minister to President Herbert Hoover on Sunday night following the service. The message read:

"The congregation assembled at Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Sunday evening, February 7, by an almost unanimous vote, have requested me respectfully to communicate to you their determination never to participate in or support another war of any kind. This action is taken in loyalty to what they believe to be the spirit of Christ. They do not propose a defenseless nation but a Christian method of defense—the sturdy spirit which guns cannot intimidate, which will suffer rather than inflict wrong, will die rather than kill, will if necessary meet charging infantry with changeless ideals.

"We urge you to employ every influence at your command to secure a peaceful settlement in the conflict between Japan and China, and to refuse to lead this nation into war upon this or any other occasion of international misunderstanding."

The stand taken by Christ Church is of the greatest significance. Its action on war is real news. If any considerable number of churches in this and other countries should follow the example of the Pittsburgh congregation, there would be an early end of all war.—Zion's Herald.

A PRAYER

For Light amid the darkness and the gloom,
For Strength to meet the ever-threatening doom,
For Wisdom pure to make the perfect choice,
For Willingness to hear Thy gentle voice,
To Thee, O Lord, I pray!

If darkness shrouds, be it without, not in;
If weakness comes, may it not be by sin;
If I know not which way my thought to turn;
Still may Thy sovereign Will be my concern;
This prayer I make to-day!

—Unknown.

STICK TO THE FINISH

Did you ever stop to think that no matter how well you may have done for a while, unless you continue to the end all will have been lost. One of those nervous, noisy, nosey terriers was crossing the field with his young master, when suddenly a rabbit jumped up before them. The terrier was after him with all his speed—so much so that he had neither time nor strength to bark. He was gradually gaining on the rabbit, and would doubtless have caught him in a very little distance, but for the fact that a meadow lark flushed right in their path, and the dog followed the lark.

The dog soon lost the lark as it flew away, and the rabbit too, because he did not stick to the finish with the rabbit. So there are many folks who run well for a season, but are easily attracted to something else which may be presented, and they take it up. This will probably be dropped also whenever anything else is presented which attracts the attention. Not only is the effort lost which was expended on the first object, but the next is likely to be dropped also before it is finished. Such lives begin many things well, but complete nothing.

It will be a rude awakening later in life when such begin to reckon what they have accomplished to discover that they began many things—all of them worth while, it may be—but completed nothing. Their lives were influenced by what pleased their fancy rather than by a purpose to accomplish something definite and useful. They finished nothing. Only those who continue to the end receive the reward. "So run, that ye may obtain."—The Friend.

OPTIMISM | EVANGELISM

The President's Letter

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

In High Point Hospital

Dr. R. M. Andrews has been a patient in this hospital since the first of last week. He has been under observation by his physicians with a view to determine whether or not his ailments necessitate operations. Their findings are that only surgical treatment will give him relief. We presume that his operations will follow in a few days. He appears in good condition and is looking forward hopefully to an early recovery of his health. We most earnestly hope this for him. He and his family will have our sympathy and prayers.

Mrs. R. E. Andrews, wife of Brother R. E. Andrews, is also in the High Point hospital, where she has undergone a serious operation. Reports this morning of her condition are encouraging. She too will have our sympathy and prayers, and we hope for her an early and complete recovery. Mrs. Andrews is a half sister of Rev. G. F. Millaway. Brother Andrews has been sick for many months. We regret that his condition does not seem to improve.

Please Note

"We recommend that the President appoint a special committee to report to the next annual conference on Superannuates, and that this committee be appointed early in the year, and that this committee, before formulating its report, confer with the Chairman and Secretary of the Board of Managers of the Superannuate Fund Society."

This is paragraph 2 of the report that the Board of Managers of the Superannuate Fund Society made to our last annual conference.

In pursuance to this order, I am hereby appointing the following persons to constitute this committee: J. E. Pritchard, N. G. Bethea, A. L. Hunter, Mrs. Henry Nicholson, W. T. Hanner, and L. F. Ross.

Please Note Again

The allotment to Sunday Schools and C. E. Societies for the Conference Council of Religious Education should have gone in the Journal. It was omitted by oversight, no doubt. We are, therefore, publishing it here. We trust that Pastors, Superintendents, and C. E. leaders will preserve this for future reference. The allotment follows:

Schools with 100 enrollment, or less	$2.00
Schools with 101 to 200 enrollment	3.00
Schools with 201 to 300 enrollment	4.00
Schools with 301 to 400 enrollment	5.00
Schools with 401 and over	6.00
C. E. Societies with 10 members, or less	1.00
C. E. Societies with 11 to 20 members	2.00
C. E. Societies with 21 to 30 members	3.00
C. E. Societies with 31 members and over	4.00

Guilford Charge

February 21.—Two of the churches on this charge were visited on this date—Vickery in the morning and Fairfield in the afternoon. At both appointments we arrived in time to share in the Sunday School. The attendance was good, and an earnest interest in this department of the work was in evidence. These schools should be of increasing service to their respective churches. The attendance at the preaching services was gratifying. An earnest attitude on the part of the people helps us in our effort to preach. Each of these churches is located on a hard surface road, and each of them only about seven miles from High Point. Their locations seems to us to be where a church is needed, and where growth is possible. These churches draw their membership from the substantial people of the communities where they are located. The building at each place is good, though more room for Sunday School work is needed. This is especially true at Vickery. There is sentiment now at that place for making provision for this need. We see no reason why each of these churches should not go on with increasing usefulness. We are indebted to Brother Edwin Holton and his family for dinner, which was shared with us by the pastor, Brother Peeler. We are grateful to Brother Peeler, also, for conveying us to these appointments, and back to our home in High Point. After the Fairfield service we had a brief but pleasant visit in the home of Brother D. C. Marsh, who represented the Guilford charge in our last annual conference. Sister Marsh fell last December and sustained a broken shoulder. The break occurred just where the arm and shoulder unite. Her suffering has been long and intense. Her arm now is out of the cast, and we hope that "Mother Nature" will in due time fully restore its use.

This charge will observe JOASH DAY.

Joash Day

"I am interested in JOASH DAY. It will be observed in all the churches on Randolph charge."—Rev. Edw. Suits.

"Welch can be counted on for JOASH DAY. The idea is good, and I am sure that my people will be earnest and generous in their co-operation."—Rev. J. D. Williams, D. D.

"Yes, JOASH DAY for Why Not. It will have our best effort, and we hope for good returns."—Rev. G. L. Reynolds.

We thank these brethren for this brief assurance of co-operation. That is what it takes to make JOASH DAY a success. Enough of it will make it a BIG SUCCESS. And that is what we all want, isn't it. Here's hoping a 100 per cent for JOASH! What about it, brethren?

College Bonds

One prominent layman sends in an order this week for bonds in the amount of $400. He says that he is thoroughly satisfied with the security, and expects to buy more. Enough Methodist Protestants of this type will mean the ultimate adequate financing of the College. BUY A BOND! High Point College can be made a GREAT INSTITUTION. And there is enough strength in North Carolina Methodist Protestants to make it such. BUY A BOND! BUY A BOND!

Only a Few In

Two weeks ago we asked, through the HERALD, for post card reports from pastors, covering the first quarter of this conference year. Only a very few have been received. Pastors are busy with many things. we know, and this has no doubt slipped their minds. "Lest we forget" some more, we are sending this gentle reminder. Thank you, pastors.

A Time for Courage

It is the stormy sea that makes a real sailor. Anybody can manage the riggings and steer the ship when the sea is placid. It is the cold winter blasts that toughen the fiber of the oak, and send its roots deep into the clay. So it is with men. The hard experiences of life mould their characters and test their purposes. Jesus commended John Baptist because he was not a "reed shaken by the wind." His character was as rugged as the wilderness in which he had lived, and dependable to the very core. "They that wear soft raiment are in king's houses." Real men are out in the currents of life, and their faces are to the winds. If the sun shines, and their ways are smooth, they go on gladly to their tasks. But if the clouds lower and the storms break, they still go on, with courage unbroken and purpose unchanged. These are times for real men in the church, as well as in the affairs of the world. Men of courage, men of faith, men of purpose, men of faith, understanding. "God give us men," and out of the very stress and strain of these days may there come better and stronger men for the work of His church.

Appointments

March 1.—Meeting with Conference Council.

March 3.—Meeting with Board of Education.

March 5.—Kannapolis, in Brotherhood meeting, 7:30 p. m.

March 6.—Charlotte, 11 a. m.

March 13-20.—With Dr. Straughn, as per schedule published elsewhere in HERALD of this week.

March 27.—EASTER, at home.

April 3.—Lebanon, Randleman charge, 11 a. m.

April 9-10.—Saxapahaw charge, as per announcements of last week.

"I am the Lord thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt: open thy mouth wide and I will fill it."

to heterodox theology. Language was primarily a matter of conventional usage. But custom wins authority and its ancient landmarks should not be removed.

Malformed words make a sorry sight in public view. No wonder the two ministers made haste to stop the printer from exposing their errors to public inspection. They did not wish to offend.

An illiterate brother lost by death his good neighbor James Hardison and wrote of him: "At the eend ov his bizzy liaf Jeems weant hoam to gloary and we kivered his graive with roazes."

Is a rose as sweet by any other name?

MY EXPERIENCE

I'm just a single creature
Alive upon the earth:
Why am I here I wondered,
And what could I be worth.

I sought for many pleasures
To satisfy my crave;
Each day that passed meant nothing
I felt just like a slave.

O well, I'll just forget it,
To worry does no good;
I'll do some one a favor—
Perhaps that's what I should.

But nothing made me happy
Until one day I heard
The Good Old Gospel Message
From God's own Holy Word.

It then aroused my interest,
And I began to feel
That I was missing something
That others said was real.

I knew I was a sinner,
And then had heard that day,
That Jesus died to save me—
To wash my sins away.

I know what I am saying,
Although I am a youth;
I sure did listen closely,
The preacher spoke the truth.

O what a blessed comfort
Had come within my soul;
For I said Yes to Jesus,
And He has made me whole.

But I have often failed Him,
Yes, His great Love He shares;
For when I ask forgiveness
I find He always cares.

I praise Him for salvation,
I thank Him that it's true;
He gives me satisfaction,
He'll do the same for you.

ALONE WITH GOD

Mark Guy Pearse, in his excellent "Life of Elijah," insists that silence and solitude are as needful to the soul as sleep is to the body. If we would do much for God, we must be much with God. In the lives of all the mighty men of God you will notice that they spent much time in secret communion with God, they waited upon God and renewed their strength.

Moses must go away to the desert for forty years that God may train and discipline him for the great work of leading Israel. David, the anointed, must fly as an outlaw in daily peril, that he may develop the hard courage and brave trust that would fit him to be Judah's king. The Baptist must be in the solitude of the wilderness until the day of his showing to Israel. Paul must tarry three years in Arabia, in silence, before he goes forth to proclaim the unsearchable riches of Christ. John must go away to rocky Patmos to behold the glory of the Lamb and the vision of a new heaven and a new earth. Luther is hidden in the fortress of Wartburg, but was able while there to forge a mightier weapon and strike a deadlier blow for the truth than all else he ever said or did—for there he prepared his German New Testament. Bunyan lies in Bedford prison, with no sound but the lapping of the sluggish river against the stone walls, that his splendid dream be all unbroken, and that he may give the world the book which next to the Bible has done most to help men Heavenward. For us, too, each of us, in our smaller sphere and commoner toil, the same solitude is needful.

An old Lancashire woman was listening to the reasons that the neighbors were giving for their minister's success. They spoke of his gifts, of his style, of his manner. "Nay," said she, "I tell you what it is. Yon man is very thick with the Almighty."—Elim Evangel.

CHRIST'S MATCHLESS LOVE

"Where are you reading, my dear?" said a lady to an apprentice dress-maker, who was busily perusing the New Testament.

"I am reading, ma'm, in the fifth chapter of the Epistle to the Romans," she respectfully replied.

"Why do you choose that chapter?" said her friend.

The girl remarked, "Oh, I delight in it much."

"On what account?" was the immediate inquiry.

"Because," answered the girl, "it just meets my case. See, ma'am, is not that delightful?—pointing to the sixth verse—'For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly'.

I am indeed a sinner, and without strength," continued the girl; "but here is the remedy, 'Christ died for the ungodly'."

It was once asked of another young believer, "How do you know that Christ is a King?" She replied without hesitation, "Because He has subdued me to Himself."

In these simple illustrative cases we are supplied with special marks which distinguish all the true children of God. Needy sinners they know themselves to be, but they are ever delighting in their glorious and all-sufficient Surety and Substitute. His matchless love has constrained them to abandon every competitor. His infinite beauty has so powerfully attracted them that they count all but loss and dung that they may win Him for themselves. They have yielded to Him the throne of their affections. They have surrendered to Him their will. Can we honestly, as in the sight of God, claim such characteristics as our own?—H. K. W., in Scattered Seed.

"WHOMSOEVER A FELLOW"

A messenger came to a Sunday School superintendent and said, "Hasten as quickly as you can, there is a boy wanting to see you. He is dying." The superintendent hurried to the place, and found a bright-looking lad who had been crushed by a cart. As he entered, the lad quickly said, "Didn't I hear you say the other Sunday that whomsoever a fellow comes to Jesus he would be saved?"

"Yes," replie the visitor, "I said something like that." "Well," said the boy, "then I'm saved. I have been a bad boy, but I've been thinking about that and I have taken God at His Word, so I'm saved." After he had uttered these words his strength seemed to fail, and not long after he passed away, his last words being, "Whomsoever a fellow comes to Jesus, He will in no wise cast out."

He did not quote the words exactly, but he had grasped the meaning of them, and believed them too (John 3:16; 6:37).—I. F., in Sunlight for the Young.

UPWARD, EVER UPWARD

"If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God" (Col. 3:1).

The primary joy of the believer is the fact that Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who was slain and buried, broke the chains of death and rose in triumphant victory. But, coupled with his joy is the blessed thought that we have risen with Him in newness of life. We have been crucified and buried with Him and raised in the likeness of His resurrection.

Paul gives the reason for striving for heavenly attainments when he says, "Where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God." He who is our best Friend has been advanced to the highest dignity in Heaven and is there securing for us eternal happiness.—The Pilot.

FAITH

There is no one point in all the Bible concerning which I have said more or written more for almost these fifty years than faith. I can say no more than I have said. To believe the being attributes of God, is the faith of a heathen. To believe the Old Testament, and trust in Him that was to come, was the faith of a Jew.

To believe Christ gave Himself for me, is the faith of a Christian. This faith He did give to you, and I hope does still; hold fast without any philosophical refinement. When we urge any to believe, we mean, "Accept that faith which God is ready to give." Indeed, believing is the act of man, but it is the gift of God. For no man ever did believe unless God gave him the power. Take it simply without reasoning and hold it fast.—John Wesley.

LOVE'S MASTERY

"But my boy did not strike his schoolmate, did he?"

Robert winced. "No, but I wanted to awfully bad, Mother. Maybe you think that is just as bad as if I had hit him?"

There was a question in the boy's words, and he looked very questioningly into the face of his mother. Did he see the shadow of a smile there? Mother quietly went on.

"Tell me what you said, Robert."

"I just told him that if my name wasn't Landreth, I would give him a licking he would remember. I would, too."

"Then aren't you glad your name is Landreth, Laddie? It makes me so happy to think my boy had the mastery of himself so that he did not strike back when he was provoked!"

The two boys had always been the best of friends until that day. They had walked home from school together, each with an arm around the shoulder of the other. Robert had said after one of the school examinations, "If Theodore did not pass, I don't care whether I pass, either."

And then some little thing came between them. Theodore's fierce temper got the best of him, and quick as a wink he lifted one hand and struck his friend a cruel blow right in the face. After he had told his mother all about it, Robert said seriously, "I don't see how I can walk home with him after this and be friends to him."

"Oh, yes, Robert. My boy never will let a little thing like that rob him of a good friend. Some day or other you will heap coals of fire on Theodore's head."

Robert thought a good deal about that. What did heaping coals of fire on Theodore's head mean? "I should think that would only make things worse. They would burn so." Well, maybe Mother did not really mean anything that would hurt like that. What did she mean?"

For a number of days after that Robert did not wait to walk home with Theodore. As soon as school was out at night, he hurried to get his cap and dinner pail and ran up the road till Theodore was quite out of sight; but neither of the boys was very happy.

There came a day when Robert was going down the road which ran by the home of Theodore and his father and mother. He thought he heard a boy singing in a grove which grew a little way back from the road. Stopping and looking that way, he caught sight of Theodore swinging high up in the top of a little tree. He was having a very good time there all by himself.

Something about the sight of his oldtime friend swinging up there in the treetop caused a bad spirit to come over him. Back home he ran at the top of his speed, found his father's axe in the woodshed and a few minutes later he was down in the grove working as fast as he could to chop the sapling down. Not a single word did either of the boys say, but Theodore stopped swinging back and forth and watched Robert while he chopped with all his might. The tree was more than halfway cut off when Robert dropped his axe and wiped the big drops of sweat from his forehead. While he had been swinging the axe, he had been thinking very seriously.

"Is this what Mother meant when she spoke about heaping coals of fire on Theodore's head?" It might hurt his friend terribly if he came hurtling down out of that treetop. He could not keep back this thought.

Then, too, was he not losing the mastery he had gained when he had been tempted the other day to strike Theodore and did not?

Robert did not lift the axe to strike another blow. He flung the axe far away from him, and looking up where Theodore was sitting with his face all white with fear and anger, he called up:

"Come down, Theodore! I want to tell you something!"

It did not take Theodore long to clamber down to the ground. For a moment the two boys stood there looking each other in the face. Then each opened his arms wide and they clasped one another about the neck. No word was spoken, but Robert picked up his father's axe and the boys walked home arm in arm as they used to in the old days.—Selected.

LIFE'S MIRROR

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
  There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
  And the best will come back to you.
Give love, and love to your life will flow,
  A strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
  Their faith in your word and deed.
Give truth, and your gift will be paid in kind,
  And honor will honor meet;
And a smile that is sweet will surely find
  A smile that is just as sweet.
Give sorrow and pity to those who mourn,
  You will gather in flowers again,
The scattered seeds of your thought outborne,
  Though the sowing seemed but vain.
For life is the mirror of king and slave;
  'Tis just what we are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have,
  And the best will come back to you.

CHRIST IN US

"That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith." (Eph. 3:17).

The Lord Jesus does indeed come to dwell with His people. This is not a beautiful figure of speech, but it is a real visitation of God. I wonder if we know what this means. Christ is not to be an outside influence which moves on our emotions and feelings and elevates us into a sublime idea of God; but the real presence of Christ has come within us to remain, and He brings with Him all His resources of help and love and mighty power. If you have God within you, how it should make you walk in holy reverence always, for you carry within your breast a jewel of infinite value.—Dr. A. B. Simpson.

Woman's Missionary Department

LAST EXECUTIVE SESSION

The Executive Board of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work recently met with the president, Mrs. W. C. Hammer, in her new, beautiful home in Asheboro, N. C. The meeting opened with a lovely vocal solo by Mrs. Harriet Hammer Walker, after which Mrs. R. C. Stubbins led the devotionals, in which she emphasized the value and real necessity of love and friendship in one's life. There was a large attendance; about 25 responded to the roll call, and several ministers were present. Reports from the officers were next heard. The Corresponding Secretary's report showed one new Auxiliary and 21 new members since last meeting, making a total membership of 1,001 in the N. C. Branch. The Treasurer, Mrs. S. W. Taylor, gave an encouraging report and urged all Auxiliaries to do their best to raise the budget and send her the money before the last of March. Miss Mary Young, the treasurer for High Point College Student Loan Fund, gave an interesting report of money loaned worthy students, and stressed the needs for the present spring term. Miss Young told of the work of these students and their appreciation. Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, secretary of this loan fund, reported eight applications for loans in the fall and three more requests for the spring. Mrs. Whitaker made a strong appeal that the ladies not only lend financial aid to the students of High Point College, but to pray earnestly for them. She spoke of their splendid observance of Dr. Broomfield's call to a Day of Prayer and Fasting, by having no dinner that day at the College, the amount saved to be their sacrificial offering.

The Chairman of Districts, Mrs. C. W. Bates, gave a splendid report. She referred to the old districts and the new one recently made by the Conference. Out of this discussion a motion prevailed that said districts conform to the Conference districts, and Mrs. Bates help secure all chairmen for same. The report of the editor was read by Mrs. Bates and accepted. The Secretary was asked to write a note of thanks to the editor, Miss Mary C. McCulloch, for her efficient service and also to express our appreciation to Dr. McCulloch for the help he has been to the North Carolina Branch through all these years. Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, Secretary of Missionary Education, in her report referred especially to the splendid work in Burlington, Mebane, and Calvary Sunday schools and Christian Endeavor Societies in Missionary education. Mrs. Paschall told of the Burlington work, how they were trying to carry out the entire program of the church. Mrs. J. M. Stone, Secretary of Spiritual Life, reported having written each local secretary of her department about observing the World Day of Prayer on February 12th. The report of Mrs. H. G. Paschall, Secretary of Scholarships and Native Workers, was next heard. At this time the meeting closed for lunch. As guests of Mrs. Hammer the ladies and gentlemen partook of a delightful, refreshing buffet luncheon. This, added to Mrs. Hammer's gracious hospitality, made a social hour long to be remembered by all present.

The meeting re-convened at 2 o'clock with a solo, Joyce Kilmer's "Trees," by Mrs. Walker.

Mrs. H. W. Maier, Secretary of Christian Education, reported the material for February, March and April had been prepared, the general theme being the sale at High Point College Bonds. Mrs. J. W. Boyles gave an interesting report as Secretary of the Thank-Offering, and urged a good offering for February. The Secretary of Literatue, Mrs. D. S. Coletrane, reported the amount of literature distributed. Dr. Harris Glascock reported on Benevolences.

The Young People's Work, under the able guidance of Mrs. F. G. Paschall, had an encouraging report. Mrs. J. E. Pritchard, Secretary of Temperance, gave her report. She was asked to write our Congressmen, telling the stand of the Methodist Protestant women on Temperance. Mrs. R. M. Andrews made an earnest plea for all our women to be alert and interested in temperance. She asked for prayer at 12 o'clock every day for the cause of temperance. A committee composed of Mrs. S. S. Coe, Miss Mary Young, Mrs. J. M. Millikan and Mrs. W. C. Hammer was appointed to recommend any necessary changes in the constitution, and to make a more satisfactory arrangement for Life, Memorial and Perpetual Members.

Mrs. J. S. Williams, Secretary of Bethel Home, sent her report. The secretary was asked to write Mrs. Williams, expressing regret at her absence, and also to send our regards and good wishes to those at Bethel Home.

Reference was made to the improvements and of new floors at the Children's Home. The Auxiliaries were urged to send Octagon coupons to the Home. These are so helpful in getting needed articles. Words of praise were heard about the splendid system of control that prevails at the Children's Home.

Dr. G. I. Humpheys, president of High Point College, spoke to the group. He urged us to increase our faith; to lay a new emphasis on our denominational life. There is a real need for our church, he said, and until we use the power and resources of every individual church we can not feel the power of our Annual Conference. Dr. R. M. Andrews, Rev. C. W. Bates, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, and Rev. F. G. Paschal were next asked for remarks.

The president announced the next Branch Meeting to be at Enfield, with Whitaker's and the surrounding churches as associate hostesses. The time of meeting was left in the hands of the committee. The meeting was closed with prayer by Dr. R. M. Andrews. S.

DELIGHTED

A beautiful card of sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Coble, of Tabernacle church. We are pleased to express our appreciation to them, and to the one hundred and more that have called to see us the past month. Among these pleasant callers let me mention the editor of the Herald, Rev. J. F. McCulloch, and Warren, his son. We are not worthy of such attention as the people have extended to us.

May the blessings of the Lord continue upon them. G. F. and MRS. MILLAWAY.

SCHEDULE OF APPOINTMENTS FOR DR. STRAUGHN

Sunday, March 13

Henderson, 11 a. m.

Burlington, First, 7:30 p. m.

Monday, March 14

High Point, First, 1:30 p. m. This is a meeting of the Central Pastors' Federation, Rev. H. W. Maier, chairman. The meeting is timed to fit in with Dr. Straughn's schedule. The chairmen of the nine conference districts included in this Federation are asked to attend this meeting; also the chairmen of the women's work in these districts.

Tuesday, March 15

Flat Rock, Flat Rock charge, 1:30 p. m.

Tabernacle, Tabernacle charge, 7:30 p. m.

Wednesday, March 16

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant charge, 1:30 p. m.

Liberty, Liberty-Moriah charge, 7:30 p. m.

Thursday, March 17

Peasant Hill, West Forsyth charge, 1:30 p. m.

Thomasville, union of our three churches there; place of meeting, Community church, 7:30 p. m.

Friday, March 18

Bess Chapel, Bess Chapel-Caroleen charge, 1:30 p. m.

Oak Grove, Cleveland charge, 7:30 p. m.

Sunday, March 20

Shiloh, Shiloh charge, 11 a. m.

Mt. Carmel, Forsyth charge, 7:30 p. m.

It is hoped and expected that pastor and people on near-by charges will attend these week-day meetings. We can not expect this, of course, of the Sunday services. Pastors will please give publicity to these meetings, and urge their people to attend them. No collections are to be taken in these meetings. Dr. Straughn is not coming for that. His mission is to give information and to create interest in the programs of the general church. He comes among us as a promoter of all that the general church is trying to do. This is his work, committed to him by the last General Conference. He comes in obedience to that purpose, and in an effort to discharge the obligations of his office. We pledge to him every possible co-operation on the part of our pastors and our people. Let me urge again that pastors, who are in reach of these several appointments, make announcements to their people and urge them to attend. S. W. TAYLOR.

CENTRAL MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION MEETING

The next meeting of the Central Ministers' Association will be March 14th, 1:30 p. m., in First Church, High Point. Dr. Jas. H. Straughn, of Baltimore, will be present to give an important message that every pastor will want to hear. Besides Dr. Straughn there will be other important features on the program. Plan now to be there. Every pastor is asked to bring a layman with him.

Remember the time and place: February 14, 1:30 p. m., High Point.

H. W. MAIER,
President of Association.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Reidsville.—Had Young People's program several weeks ago; it was one of the best events of the year. Theme: "Christ in Us and Through Us." Mr. J. E. McLean, superintendent of schools, delivered a very interesting talk on "We Would Serve Our Church." Miss Sallie Dobbs gave a fine talk on "We Would Serve Others;" and Rev. Mr. Trollinger talked on "We Would Serve Our Master." These talks were all just fine and I am sure each contained a lesson in itself. Miss Harriet Worley was kind enough to bring her Junior Choir from the Christian church over and rendered two special numbers for us, which made the service complete.

The Philathea class had its regular monthly class meeting in the church Tuesday evening, February 4th, with Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Huffines as hostesses. Very good attendance and the meeting was enjoyed by all.

Miss Lucille Dobbs has been very ill in St. Leo's Hospital since last Wednesday, February 17th. She is improving nicely and is now receiving visitors.

The women of the church are working earnestly on a pageant to be given in the church March 8th, "The Women of the Bible." This pageant is being directed by Mrs. M. T. Smith; all who know her know what to expect, and we are expecting it to be about the best thing the Woman's Auxiliary has ever put on in Reidsville.

Mr. M. T. Smith has been sick at his home on Maple Avenue, but is now able to be back at work again. REPORTER.

Forsyth.—On last Friday evening the Maple Springs congregation gave a chicken supper and church social in the basement of the church in honor of the pastor and family. A large number of members and friends of the church were present. Rev. J. E. Pritchard, pastor of First Church, Winston, was the speaker for the occasion and in a very interesting way brought greetings to the pastor and family. In his talk, Brother Pritchard also spoke of the happy relationship that should exist between a pastor and his people, and complimented the Maple Springs people on their loyalty to church and pastor. After a brief response by the writer a social hour was enjoyed, during which the pastor and wife were directed to one of the classrooms, where a generous "pounding" was administered, one that would be a credit to a church many times the size of Maple Springs. The church was running true to form, however, as the members always do things in a big way. We sincerely thank all who had a part in this generous act.

And the other churches of the charge have by no means been forgetful of our comfort and happiness, many of the members bringing gifts to the parsonage from time to time; others placing good things in the car as we have visited among them. All this is appreciated and has contributed to our happiness and comfort.

There are many features of the work here that are encouraging. The Sunday schools at all the churches are in good condition. At Mt. Carmel and Union Ridge the average attendance is over one hundred. At Hickory Ridge, Maple Springs and Oak Grove the attendance is not so large, but the schools are well organized and the leaders are capable and very much interested. There are three Christian Endeavor societies at Mt. Carmel and the attendance at the young people's meeting a few Sunday nights ago reached the high mark of forty. It is an inspiration to be associated with such a fine group of young workers. A Workers' Council is to be organized at that church tonight.

There are three Woman's Auxiliaries on the charge, as follows: Maple Springs, Mount Carmel and Hickory Ridge, and I feel sure that the good women of Union Ridge will organize in the near future, probably before the Branch meeting in Enfield.

The financial condition of the charge is, of course, not as good as it has been, but the people are saying little about the depression and are going ahead trying to meet their obligations and are meeting them in a gratifying way considering the condition of the times.

We are looking forward with pleasure to the Gipsy Smith meeting which will begin in Winston-Salem on Easter Sunday night. All our churches should enter into this great meeting and should be greatly benefited by it.

R. A. HUNTER, Pastor.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—We were very glad to have with us last Sunday afternoon Rev. Herman Fisher, of Alamance, who delivered a wonderful sermon.

The Woman's Missionary Society met with Mrs. H. A. Garrett last Saturday afternoon.

The Woman's Home Demonstration Club, with the aid of Miss Arant, has planted shrubbery around the church.

Mr. J. P. Iseley is improving nicely.

The quilts that are being made by the Sunday school and Woman's Missionary Society will be for sale within a few weeks.

REPORTER.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—Our pastor, Brother E. A. Bingham, preached a wonderful sermon yesterday on studying the Bible. I think that everybody ought to take time to read and to study the Bible every day and then to practice it. If everybody would do as Brother Bingham told them to I am sure that we would have better times.

Mr. General Surratt is sick; pray for him that if it is the Lord's will he may soon be well again.

Preaching again the second Sunday at 11 o'clock. All come out to hear Brother Bingham, for he always has something good to say. ABIGAIL COGGIN.

* * *

Mount Pleasant, Mount Pleasant Circuit.—Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk conducted the services on the first Sunday in February in the absence of our pastor. About 30 years ago Mr. Lowdermilk was pastor of this charge.

Dr. Johnson was with us for services on the third Sunday of the month, after having been away working in the interest of High Point College bonds. Dr. Johnson used "Work" as his subject, taking his text from Nehemiah 4:6. Our pastor reminded us that we would accomplish something when "we had a mind to work." Everybody should help in extending the work of the kingdom; the church member has acknowledged his responsibility and the non-church member has not.

Mrs. Bates spoke to a group of ladies interested in Missionary work Monday afternoon, February 21. The meeting was held at the parsonage with representatives from Pleasant Union as well as Mount Pleasant, there being about 20 ladies present. The women received enthusiasm as well as instruction from Mrs. Bates. The Auxiliary met Sunday for the purpose of electing new officers: Mrs. E. H. Thompson was elected president.

MARGARET CAUSEY, Reporter.

Mt. Moriah, Cleveland Charge.—We were all glad to see so many out yesterday at the church for service. Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, brought to us another interesting sermon on the subject, "Faith in Jesus." He pointed out many helpful thoughts in our faith in our Lord and Savior.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely. We have had very good attendance all the winter months. We are hoping to have better attendance as spring approaches. We are hoping it will grow more than ever before.

We were glad to have with us Sunday the Hull Brothers to sing some quartets. The singing was just fine; all enjoyed it very much.

We are getting along fine with our Sunday Egg Club. I think most all of the members have joined. What eggs our hens lay on Sunday we are selling for cash and giving it to the church. I think this is a good plan for all country churches.

Our class meeting will be held next Sunday at 9:30 a. m. MRS. ETHEL HUNT, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—We were pleased to have Prof. H. G. Easley, of Burlington, with us at Pleasant Hill service the third Sunday morning. Mr. Easley is a musician, and totally blind. He is an expert pianist, and played for the service and rendered a vocal solo. The attendance was larger than usual, and we had a number of visitors in the service.

Last Sunday morning we had the privilege of worshiping with and speaking to the congregation of Doub's Chapel Methodist Episcopal church, South, located three miles from our home. An exchange of services with the pastor, Rev. G. W. Fink, had been previously arranged, Bro. Fink preaching at Harmony Grove church at the same hour. The occasion proved a very enjoyable one. Accompanied by Mrs. Way and the children, we were invited to the home of Bro. W. L. Wall, superintendent of the Sunday school at Doub's Chapel, and enjoyed a good dinner and pleasant visit for a part of the afternoon. We thank Mr. and Mrs. Wall and their daughter, Miss Ruth Wall, for the splendid hospitality accorded us.

The Woman's Auxiliary of Pleasant Hill church held their regular semi-annual thank-offering service at the church last Sunday night. The service consisted of devotional exercises, a reading by Mrs. W. B. Speas, a brief talk by the pastor and a short pageant by the primary and intermediate girls of the Sunday school. The offering was one of the important features of the program. The mite boxes provided by the Auxiliary were placed in the offering during the exercises.

We are pleased to report a gradual improvement in the condition of Bro. R. P. Petree, member of Pleasant Hill church. Bro. Petree has been confined to his home with illness for six weeks or more, being under the care of a physician. We sincerely hope that the improvement will continue until he is fully restored to his usual health.

Our appointments for next Sunday will be at Baltimore at 11 a. m., and at Stony Knoll at 2:30 P. M. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

* * *

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—On Sunday, February 7th, we were delighted to have Mrs. C. W. Bates speak. We were also glad to have Mrs. Coble worship with us.

Before Dr. Johnson's sermon on the fourth Sunday he read from Matthew 25:31-46, a very beautiful chapter, and one that we all know. In beginning Dr. Johnson stated that there are two classes of people: those who do something, and those who do not. He asked us to think of Nehemiah 4:6 as the text. "So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof: for the people had a mind to work. When people have a mind to work, great things may be accomplished but if they are divided or indifferent we find this one of the greatest handicaps to anything that is trying to be done. Let us all work together toward the advancement of God's kingdom.

We were pleased with a large crowd for both Sunday school and preaching.

Dr. Johnson announced that Dr. Straughn will speak at Mount Pleasant on Wednesday, March 15tth, at 1:30 o'clock. He urged that everyone attend this if possible.

The women of our church will meet with Mrs. Blanche Bowman at two o'clock Wednesday, March 2nd.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Stafford were welcome worshippers with us February 7th.

* * *

Siler City.—On the third Sunday at 11 o'clock Rev. W. M. Pike delivered a most interesting sermon from the text, "And he said unto them, render therefore unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's and unto God the things which be God's." Luke 20:25.

Tuesday evening, the 23rd, Mrs. E. D. Woody and Mrs. B. E. Fox entertained the Woman's Auxiliary at the home of Mrs. Woody. New officers were elected for the coming year as follows: Mrs. J. E. Fox, president; Mrs. Emma B. Siler, vice-president; Mrs. Duncan Welch, secretary; Miss Sallie Smith, assistant secretary; Miss Minnie Cooper, treasurer; Mrs. L. L. Woody, assistant treasurer; Mr. J. N. Johnon, reporter. We were glad to have almost all the members present and also glad to have Miss Elizabeth Woody, a local teacher, and little Miss Gladys Smith as visitors. At the close of the meeting the hostesses, assisted by little Gladys Smith, served delicious refreshments.

The mid-week prayer service was well attended last week. Festus was the character we studied, Mrs. J. N. Johnson having charge. Next week we study Gideon with Mrs. T. L. Smith in charge. These meetings are very interesting and we feel sure they will prove a great help to our church and community.

Last Sunday we had 105 in Sunday school. Immediately afterwards a great treat was in store for us. Mrs. J. Clyde Auman, a returned missionary from Japan, gave us a most interesting talk on the foreign work, and showed some very unique things she had brought home with her, giving a description of each article. Everyone was thrilled with Mrs. Auman's wonderful message and we are hoping she may come this way again in the near future. Mrs. Auman, you will always have a warm welcome in our church, home and town. We were indeed glad to have Mrs. Auman's sister, Mrs. Johnson, of Graham, with us Sunday in this service.

We are very sorry that some of our members are sick and could not be with us Sunday. Mrs. B. E. Fox, Mr. L. L. Woody and Charles Stone are on the sick list. We wish them a speedy recovery.

MRS. J. A. COOPER.

First Church, High Point.—On Sunday morning the Woman's Auxiliary observed the annual thank-offering service, and the minister delivered an eloquent sermon on "Light Out of Darkness." He said that God's operation of the world depends upon human service, therefore he was delighted to co-operate with the request of the women to present a missionary message. If we want the church of Christ to function at home or abroad, we must help it to make a start. As those of us who arose early enough this morning, saw with awe and wonder the ten thousand witcheries that leaped into view at the rising of the sun, so Christ brought light into the darkness of the world. This is a challenge to us, and in the midst of stress and storm, suffering and sorrow, there is no niche in your heart so burdened but it can receive light from the Lord. One result of the light of the world is the new conscience which it has brought, and our obligations are still due those who have not yet received the light. The light that Isaiah saw is the only hope of the world. Immanuel Kant said that conscience means MUST as well as OUGHT. What we call right must be done. I was thrilled in Charlotte a few weeks ago to hear an address of Brockman of N. C., who told of his work among young Chinese men 25 years ago, and how he touched their lives. Then the light brings a new sense of the worth of humanity to establish the brotherhood of man and value of comradeship. For one broken home in High Point there are thousands of unbroken ones. Material resources are incomparable to the soul. O, friends, have you heard the message from Heaven? Let us move out of the shadows.

In the Sunday evening service Rev. Mr. Farmer spoke on "Looking Four Ways," which was the first of a series of Lenten messages leading up to the Easter season.

The Wedneday Fellowship supper will be omitted, but the prayer and praise service will be held with the minister leading. Forty-two were present last week.

The handsome new Junior High School building will be formally dedicated Tuesday evening with appropriate exercises, and will be thrown open for inspection by the public. It has been occupied by the junior high children and their teachers since January 4th. The building is modern in every detail, and is probably the largest and best equipped Junior High in the state, having been erected at a cost of $350,000. It stands opposite the High School building, and presents a commanding and magnificent appearance. High Point is well equipped with schools for many years to come; there are eight elementary schools, the Junior High and High School, and High Point College. Dr. T. Wingate Andrews is superintendent of the system, and will preside at the exercises this evening. Prof. L. R. Johnston, principal of the High School, will bring greetings, as will also Mrs. S. S. Coe, president of the Parent-Teacher Council of the city. Mayor C. S. Grayson and the Board of School Commissions, including A. Coke Cecil of our congregation, will occupy seats on the rostrum. Our church is represented on the City Councitl by John S. Pickett.

The Christian Endeavor Union of High Point will hold its quarterly meeting at the First Presbyterian church on North Main street Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The shield will be awarded at this time to the society in the city which has done the best work during the past quarter. Junior Christian Endeavorers under the direction of Miss Myrtle Davis, will have charge of the devotional exercises, and Clay Madison will preside over the business period.

We are much pleased to learn that Mrs. A. A. York, who has been suffering from an infected hand, is much improved.

Miss Maud Miller, of Chestertown, Maryland, is a guest in the home of Dr. and Mrs. G. I. Humphreys.

Miss Louise Jennings, who is studying Library Science at the University of North Carolina, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jennings.

Mrs. John S. Pickett and Mrs. John H. Walker have gone to Tampa, Florida, to bring home their mother, Mrs. W. P. Pickett, who has been spending the winter months with another daughter, Mrs. H. S. Meredith.

Mrs. Jane Workman is visiting Mr. and Mrs. O. D. McPherson on Woodrow Avenue. Mrs. Workman is a sister of Mr. McPherson, and lives in southern Alamance.

Mr. Henry Yow, of Gibsonville, is quite ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Jennings.

Miss Elizabeth Wall, of Richmond, Va., was here Sunday to visit her sister, Mrs. J. E. Perryman, Jr., and her new little niece, Nancy Anne Perryman.

Bellmont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Sunday at the 11 o'clock hour our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, gave us a very interesting and inspiring sermon. His subject was "Spiritual Blindness." Bro. Mabry contrasted very vividly a person in physical blindness and one in spiritual blindness. Had you heard the sermon you would have felt as the Psalmist when he said, "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law." The sermon was made more impressive by using the hymns written by one physically blind, Fanny J. Crosby.

The Sunday school attendance is holding up well, there being 127 present Sunday. The preaching service was also well attended Immediately after the church service the pastor and a large number of the congregation gathered at the home of Mr. John Rich and conducted a prayer and song service for him. "Uncle John" has been sick and confined to his home for a number of years. He enjoyed the service, and told his pastor that he was ready and waiting for God to call him home. So often we neglect the sick and old, and leave them sad and lonely when just a kind word, a friendly visit or a cheerful smile would make them happy. Oh, may God open our eyes that we may see and do the little things that count!

Our hearts were saddened Sunday, February 21, when we heard of the death of Mrs. Carrie Rich, one of our faithful members. She had been critically ill for four weeks in St. Leo's Hospital. All was done that faithful physicians and loving friends could do, and many prayers were offered in her behalf, yet God knew best and called her home. Funeral services were conducted the following Monday by Rev. O. C. Loy, assisted by her pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, and Rev. A. O. Lindley. She was never too busy or tired to help her neighbors or do something for her church. Yes, "Miss Carrie" will be missed, for there is a vacancy in our hearts, in our community, and in our church that never can be filled. Yet we believe that our loss is her gain. The large congregation and the beautiful floral offering showed the esteem in which she was held. To the bereaved husband, son, and relatives, we extend our sympathy and may they be comforted by our Heavenly Father.

Glad to have Miss Margaret Pickett and Miss Ola Stafford, of High Point College, worship with us Sunday. REPORTER.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—On February 28 we had 43 present, all of whom took a very active part in the service. Mr. Evans taught an uplifting lesson. The main thought he wanted to leave with the class was "Jesus has a work for each of us to do, he will not do what we can do ourselves." The stone had to be rolled away in order for Jesus to get to Lazarus who was physically dead. So must we roll the stones of sin from our hearts' door in order that Jesus may give us life. Let us live the true Christian life so when we go to our friends or loved ones who are in sin they may see Jesus in our lives and turn from sin unto righteousness.

The Young Men's Class had charge of the prayer meeting today. Our teacher read the sixth chapter of Matthew. He made a fine talk on this part of the scripture. He said: "If there is any happy man I believe that it is the man who has Jesus in his heart. Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, for where your treasure is there your heart will be also. We cannot serve God and mammon, so let us serve God with all our heart.

Tabernacle Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley, delivered a very impressive sermon Sunday morning, using as his theme, "Secrets of a Great Life."

We all enjoy Mr. Isley's five-minute talks to the children every Sunday just before the church service.

Last Sunday afternoon we had a visiting preacher from the First Nazarene church in Greensboro. Mr. Bower used as his text James 5:8. His theme was "The Second Coming of Christ."

The Woman's Auxiliary met Sunday; new officers for the ensuing year were elected. The ladies of the Auxiliary will give a thank-offering service next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the church auditorium.

Next Sunday afternoon we will have our regular first Sunday afternoon prayer service. Some of the ladies from Tabernacle joined the Julian ladies in a prayer service a few days ago.

We were all very much disappointed on the third Sunday afternoon that the High Point choir was delayed and didn't get down to the church to render their program. We hope that they can come some time in the near future.

We wish for the sick folk of our community a speedy recovery. REPORTER.

Harmony, Yarborough's Charge.—Mr. Henderson preached two splendid sermons for us Sunday. Attendance was good at both services.

Our Sunday school is progressing very nicely. Due to the beautiful weather we are having, the attendance shows an increase each Sunday.

We were very fortunate in having Rev. and Mrs. N. G. Bethea spend the night in our community last week. He is a former pastor of our charge. They had returned from a trip to Florida and stopped over at the home of Mrs. G. B. Taylor.

Our church yards have been improved considerably. Quite a number of people met two afternoons last week and planted shrubbery and flowers.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met with Mrs. Taylor Saturday afternoon. A thank-offering amounting to about $6.00 was received. After the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess.

First Church, Winston.—Spring is just around the corner, so is Easter. What a glorious season to really enjoy the beauties of Nature. Perhaps spring will usher in more pleasant days for those who are cold and hungry about us. May it inspire us to help and sacrifice more than ever before for those who are less fortunate than we. The story of the supreme sacrifice of the Easter season will soon be ringing in our ears. He gave all—what shall we give?

The Workers' Council had a very successful meeting recently. Many things were discussed to make our Sunday school better and bigger. There is a contest on among ourselves; it is to have more present this year in each class than attended on the corresponding Sunday of last year. Quite a bit of enthusiasm has been shown all along and Class No. 14, a group of girls about 14 years of age, has been on the honor roll every Sunday yet. This is a splendid group and they have a fine teacher, Mrs. J. Howard Barnes.

The Christian Endeavor Society, under the capable leadership of Mrs. J. E. Kirk, is getting started well. The young people enjoy the meetings and especially the get-together affairs that Mrs. Kirk sponsors so frequently. A contest is starting March 6th, and is to continue for two months, at the end of which the losing team gives a social of some nature to the winners. It's going to be fun for both sides and we hope to arouse some real interest in leadership and spirit.

The Woman's Auxiliary had an executive meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. H. O. Sapp, on Thursday evening. The work for next year was discussed and officers were elected, also the circle chairmen and secretaries of the different branches of work. Mrs. H. O. Sapp, the retiring president, has been very good and has carried on the work, with the fine co-operation of those with whom she worked, splendidly and is to be complimented. Mrs. J. E. Pritchard was elected president for the ensuing year and the heartiest co-operation must be pledged to her also. Mrs. Pritchard, we feel sure, is going to be splendid and we bespeak for her much success.

A very goodly number attended both Sunday school and church worship last Sabbath day. Our pastor gave us a very good sermon, of course; every one who has heard him, knows that he always gives out valuable information, helpful hints, and good advice on right living and helping others to do the very same thing.

Lebanon, High Point.—Our morning service was conducted by our pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison, who brought us a good message on Temperance.

Our evening service was taken care of by the Women's Auxiliary, which presented an inspiring program. During the first part of the program, reports of thank-offering boxes were given, and during the second part, a pageant was given, which was very inspiring. We appreciate the help the Women's Auxiliary is giving us.

We have received the following members in the past few weeks: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. King, Mrs. Oscar Lee, Miss Adaline Owens, Mrs. Orest Hedgecock, and James and Ray Lee.

The Junior Christian Endeavorers of our church who took part in the program given by the Juniors of the city at the city mass meeting were: Ruth King, Doris King, Eunice Briggs, and Eleanor Welch, who sang a quartet, and Lee Prince, who gave a talk.

Kannapolis.—Bro. Smith preached two fine sermons today. We had several visitors.

The Sunday school is doing fine with Bro. R. T. Sides, superintendent; 123 members and 17 visitors present.

Both the Christian Endeavor societies are well attended.

The Ladies' Aid will meet at Mrs. J. V. Dwiggins Monday night, March 7th, at 7:30. All members are urged to be present.

The Brotherhood will meet at Mr. J. G. Sisk's Saturday night, March 5th, at 7:30. All members are urged to be present. We will have a good speaker for the hour with good singing and music; also oysters. Visitors are welcome. Come, let's have a good time.

Liberty—Our pastor, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, on the fourth Sunday morning brought to us a very helpful and inspiring message from the text John 3:16.

At the evening service his subject was "Opportunities;" text, Joshua 1:8. He said we should study and meditate on the teachings of the Bible, that we may observe to do according to its teachings. He divided his discourse into four topics, referring to them as the four photographs of the uses of opportunities. We should be strong and of good courage, taking the Bible for our guide.

The second quarterly conference will convene the second Sunday night in March. It is hoped that a good number will be present. We must rally to the support of our church, and by that I mean all the good causes connected with the church. More people should take our Methodist Protestant Herald and read it; then they would be more interested in our High Point College, and our Children's Home, and many other phases of church work.

The Woman's Auxiliary is planning to do some good work this spring. New officers have been elected as follows: Mrs. F. A. Shepard, president; Mrs. J. B. York, vice-president; Mrs. B. J. Gregerson, secretary, and Mrs. A. D. Gregg, treasurer. We are planning to observe Joash Day, as our good president, Dr. S. W. Taylor, has suggested. The Easter program is so very beautiful and well arranged we must use it effectively.

English Street Church.—We had splendid attendance at all of our services the past Sunday. Many Sunday school classes broke their records for the year. The church was packed for the Sunday school as well as for the preaching services. Rev. C. H. Hill spoke on "The Little Things" on Sunday night. He explained how the little things could have as much effect or even more than the larger things upon our lives. He took the example of a man taking his first drink. This first drink is the one that makes him an habitual drinker. He warned us to be on the lookout for these little things that were always ready to ruin us.

The prayer meetings are also being well attended. Many people are interested and are taking an active part.

Our report would not be complete without a word about the Christian Endeavor and the Ladies' Aid Society. The C. E. Society is planning to give a program next Sunday night at Hickory Chapel. The Ladies' Aid Society plans to give a play in the near future.

Charlotte.—We missed our pastor, Rev. R. M. Andrews, Sunday. He is in the hospital in High Point and we trust he will soon be restored to health and return to us.

Joe Atkins, son of our Sunday school superintendent, is able to be home from the hospital and is steadily regaining his health.

Sunday evening at 7:30 the thank-offering service was held. Mrs. B. W. Little, president of the Auxiliary, presided. The pageant, "Mother Budget," was beautifully and effectively given. Mrs. J. C. Penny was "Mother Budget" of the M. P. church. Her children were the various organizations of the church, represented by Joseph Little, Robert Andrews, Fred Love, Jr., Neal and Ralph Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Garrison, Mrs. F. R. Fesperan, Mrs. Charles Daughtry. Those in costume were Miss Mary Shaw, as Japan; Miss Helen McCall, China, and Miss Mildred Younginer, India. Mr. J. C. Penny was "Mr. Crooked Man," who was converted to missions, and Mrs. R. S. Garmon, as "Mr. Crooked Man's Wife." The "actors" are to be congratulated on their work acting. New Century Service was represented by Loma Stegall, as Jack. She was a wonderful actor. Mrs. Bruton made a very concise and impressive talk explaining that the money given at this offering would be used to help pay the salary of Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Minnis, who are our missionaries in Dhulia, India. Mrs. R. M. Andrews lighted the candles. The largest one lighted was a five-dollar candle, the donation of Mrs. McCall's class of S. S. girls and women. A number of dollar and fifty-cent candles were lighted, then the plates were passed. The total offering was $40.02. The closing prayer was given by Mrs. Andrews. This was a beautiful and inspiring service.

Our boys' basketball team will play a return game with the Carolina Transfer team at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening at 7:30.

We had with us Sunday morning Rev. A. G. Dixon from High Point, who preached for us. His subject was "Deeper Spiritual Life." Dr. Dixon said that no man or woman has a moral right to sin. We talk about personal liberties; we should remember "Where my nose ends your freedom ends." We belong to God, our body as well as our soul. Save a life, thereby a soul. Live with folks, we can't live without them. Certainly we cannot live without God; in this life we may, but not in the life to come. We may not get all the things we want in this world but we can get all of God we want. Our character will reveal our life, our walk with God. We get out of life what we put into it. Let us be of use in the Lord's work. What does it mean for me to live in the spot God has put me in. Paul said for me to live is Christ. What is my personal responsibility to God? None of self. All of Christ. Let us build character fit for heaven.

This message was most earnestly presented. I wish you all might have heard it.

Let us all pray for the recovery of our sick.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Ever so often I get a letter, or hear an expression, from the brethren in which they seem to think that we have no problems here at Calvary; that everybody works and nobody shirks; that all you have to do when you want to raise money for this and that is to say so and it is instantly forthcoming, full measure, pressed down and running over. Well, I don't want to disappoint the brethren, nor am I anxious to disabuse them. But the fact is we do have our struggles, financial and otherwise. Which means that those who are helping to carry on the work are deserving of just that much more praise for their willingness to do. And they do do, many of them, to the limit of their ability, and beyond. I could enlarge on that, but I mustn't take the space.

Our carpenter-members turned painters last week, and painted the Sunday school rooms in the balcony. They did a good job, as good as experts could do, and they are not experts. The job has cost us about $110, and is paid for, thank you, without calling on the members for it. Strange, but true. Figure it out if you can. These rooms are filling a real need, and the benefit is already apparent in increased attendance and spirit in the classes that occupy them. And they do not detract from the appearance of the auditorium; rather help it, if anything.

The folks are practicing for the thank-offering service, which will be held on Sunday night, March 13. They are getting up the pageant-play, "The Challenge," and indications are it is going to be the best thing yet.

This Friday night, from 6 to 9, the Home Circle is giving a Cafeteria Supper in the Hut. If you see this in time, come up, over, or by, and help these good women to give you a good supper.

The Calendar Plan for the Floating Debt had its best month this Plan-year last month. Already something over $37.00 in hand, with a little more to come in. Just a penny a day from a lot of folks, that's all.

We had 238 in Sunday school last Sunday; 121 at the morning service. About half that many at night. Somebody has said: "The attendance at the morning service indicates the popularity of the church; the attendance at the evening service, the popularity of the preacher; and the attendance at the mid-week service, the popularity of God." You draw your own conclusions. Maybe it's too many radios.

Randolph Charge.—After having served this charge for one and a half years we have come to see that there are great possibilities here. We doubt if there is a charge in the Conference located in a better farming section. Located as this charge is, with over 800 members, no task should seem burdensome. Gray's Chapel, Shiloh, and Bethany, need Sunday school rooms very much. We are hoping this need will be supplied. Two of the churches named will have to make some repairs in the near future; we trust they will go a step further and add the much-needed Sunday school rooms.

Since our last report all of the appointments have been met and the attendance has been encouraging. We think the attendance is some better than last year. We are planning to carry out the suggestion made by the president in regard to Joash Day. We hope to have the co-operation of every member at all of the churches.

Some of the good people have been remembering us in a substantial way since our last report. One good brother and his family, of Gray's Chapel, gave us a nice ham, 17 cans of fruit and pickles, and about two bushels of potatoes. Last Sunday at the close of the service at this church we found a 24-pound bag of flour in our car. Then another good sister gave us a pound of nice butter. The members of other chrurches have remembered us with things needed for the table. We greatly appreciate these tokens of kindness, and trust that we may prove ourselves worthy of such treatment.

EDW. SUITS.

* * *

Why Not.—Since our last report we have received substantial gifts for the table from Mrs. Yowe, of Pleasant Hill, Bro. Noah Williams and family, of Seagrove, Mrs. Russell Williams and Mrs. John Presnell, of New Hope.. We most heartily appreciate these gifts as well as the many acts of kindness shown us in other ways.

Our newly-organized Christian Endeavor Society at New Hope is starting off unusually well and promises to be of great value in developing this fine crowd of young people. Mrs. Cox is their leader and is handling the sitution in a way that promises success. The society has a membership of 37. The pastor had the privilege of being with them in their prayer meeting last Saturday evening and was highly pleased with the attendance and also the splendid way they carried out their program. At Love Joy, we have another newly organized C. E. Society with Bro. E. H. Reynolds as leader. Judging from the way this young man is handling the Sunday school, we feel sure success will come to his efforts in this special line of work. We also have a fine crowd of young people in this church, and the opportunities here are great. At our last appointment there, we had with us our

A Letter

We do not usually send out a letter at this season of the year, but conditions at present are such that it seems necessary this time. We are asking that it be published with this report because many of you will see it here that would not have a chance any other way. The following letter goes to pastors and S. S. superintendents this week:

Our Very Dear Friends:

This letter is intended to carry to all our people, through our pastors, and S. S. Superintendents, a very frank statement concerning our Children's Home.

Right now the credit of the Home is very greatly strained. We are no deeper in debt than we have been for over three years. We have never been able to catch up with the running expenses since we came here. There has been no campaign to lift that indebtedness, and we are not asking for one now. We have only asked and are asking for the regular offerings for the Home. Until within the last 60 to 90 days no one has urgently pushed us for pay. But now every one we owe is insistently asking for his money. They are kind about it, but since nearly every one of them has been caught in bank, or other business failures, they need their money.

We long to pay, but we have no way to pay except as those who love this Home and its children send us the money. Our people are exceedingly kind to us. The money offerings for 1931 were necessarily short; but the offerings of canned goods, fruits, grain, flour, potatoes and other produce together with what we were able to raise on the farm here has enabled us to go through the winter, thus far, without buying any large quantities of foodstuffs. For all this we are profoundly grateful.

In addition to that we have cut just as closely as we have known how in other supplies. Some of us have gone without our salaries for over six months that we may pay every dollar possible to our creditors. And we are willing to go on putting our lives over against your dollars, if in that way we can meet our pressing obligations. Our people have pressed upon us in these stressing times to take children, out of impossible conditions. We have taken until our capacity is filled. We have 107 children, and during 1931 we ran the Home and paid all expenses on 46 cents per day per child, or a little more than $2,000 less for the year than in 1928 when there were 72 children.

Last fall the Annual Conference asked that our churches and Sunday schools in this Conference become 100 per cent in making monthly offerings to the Home. JUST ONE GOOD FRIEND IN EACH SUNDAY SCHOOL, who will press the matter just a bit each month by making the proper announcements, taking the offering and sending it to us, we believe will solve our financial difficulties. We have over 30,000 people in this Conference, and surely with a reasonable monthly effort we can support 107 orphan children and give them the bare necessities. That is all we ask. Pastors and superintendents, please talk this over and lay plans by which each Sunday chool in the Conference will send the monthly offering. With our creditors pressing us, if there is to be the same let-down in offerings this spring and summer as is usual, we do not see how we are to make it.

We believe you will pray for us and stand by us, and may God richly bless you every one.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

A HINT TO THE WISE

Under present conditions more subscribers are compelled to pay for the Herald six months at a time. Any new six months subscription which starts prior to Apri 30th will expire and be ready for renewal before next Conference. Therefore, get your new subscriptions started during March and April, it will help you raise your quota when you get them renewed in September and October. Don't miss the opportunity of getting them started before May 1st. This is an important matter.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Rogers

John Baker Rogers passed away from this life February 12, 1932, aged 81 years, one day, He is survived by his wife and the following children: Mrs. Lina Mann, Mrs. Bessie Harris, Mrs. Callie Sprinkle, R. H. Rogers, K. E. Rogers, J. A. Rogers, C. A. Rogers, Bon O. Rogers, and O. T. Rogers. He also leaves 36 grandchildren, ten great-grandchildren, a number of other relatives and a host of friends to mourn his death.

Brother Rogers was a member of Concord church, Saxapahaw charge. He was faithful as a member of the church, helpful as a neighbor, and kind as a father and friend.

Funeral services were conducted at Concord February 13, at 2 p. m., by H. L. Isley and the writer.

Dodson

Mrs. Martha Dodson died February 24, 1932, aged 76 years, eight months, 15 days. Funeral services conducted by the writer February 25. Burial in the Efland church cemetery. A large congregation was present to pay respect to her memory. Sister Dodson was converted and joined Efland M. P. church October 17, 1909. She remained a consistent member until death. Her husband, T. F. Dodson, preceded her to the grave about six years ago. Since then she has made her home with her son at Efland.

She was kindly spoken of by those who knew her best. The following of her near relatives remain: two sons, W. W. Smith, of Efland; H. D. Smith, of Greensboro; three sisters, Mrs. J. B. Baity, of Efland, Mrs. Dora Roach, of Hillsboro, and Mrs. Jack Price, of Durham.

May God comfort them all.

Bivins

David Andrew Bivins, son of Steven and Sallie Bivins, died February 16, 1932, aged 83 years, four months and 29 days.

He was converted many years ago, united with Bethel M. P. church and lived a consistent Christian, taking an active part in all church interests.

He was twice married; first to Margaret Roberson, who lived only a short time. He afterward married Elizabeth Payne. To this union were born two sons, William of Burlington, and John of Graham and two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Foust, of Graham, R. F. D. 1, and Mrs. Sallie McPherson, Snow Camp, R. F. D. 1. All of whom survive him, also 23 grandchildren, and 13 great-grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. J. D. Payne, and many other relatives.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Burgess, assisted by Rev. G. W. Holmes and Rev. Floyd Wilson. His grandsons acted as pallbearers and the granddaughters as flower girls. Interment was in Bethel cemetery. Many beautiful flowers, given by those who loved him covered the mounds of both him and his companions, who preceded him him a few years.

Mr. Bivins was a good man and a kind neighbor. He had many friends. He met every one with a pleasant smile and a cheerful word, and was cheerful to the last. A very large congregation attended his funeral. He will be sadly missed both in our church and neighborhood. He was devoted to his family, doing all he could for their comfort and happiness. It was touching to see how both children and grandchildren clung to him. They are heart-broken over their loss. We extend to them our deepest sympathy and commend them to the care of a loving Father who alone can heal their broken hearts. We sorrow down here, but there was rejoicing in the home land. He has many loved ones there and we know they rejoiced when he entered the portals of heaven, never to be parted from them again. With nothing ever to mar his perfect bliss, he dwells in the beautiful paradise of God's love, surrounded by all the blessings of a loving, tender Father. He is not dead. He is alive forevermore.

"Some day, we say, and turn our eyes
Toward the fair hills of Paradise;
Some day, some time, a sweet new rest
Shall blossom, flower-like, in each breast;
Some day, some time, our eyes shall see
The faces kept in memory,
Some day their hands shall clasp our hands
Just over in the morning land."

MRS. J. M. FOUST.

Suit

R. D. Suit died February 24, 1932, having reached the age of about 72 years.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer at Union Grove church February 25, after which the remains were placed in the chuch cemetery.

Bro. Suit was converted several years ago and joined the church. He transferred his membership to Union Grove church November 1, 1931. He was never able to attend the services at the church of his final choice after he became a member. It was my pleasure to visit him a number of times during his sickness. He often expressed the hope that he would soon be able to attend the church services.

◆

Thompson

On January 29, 1932, death entered the home of Mrs. T. L. Tompson, and took from her side her most faithful and loving companion, Thomas Lowe Thompson, aged 62 years, five months and one day.

We are grieved over his death. He always had a word for his friends, speaking plainly and without any deception to all. We fully realize that he had fought a winning battle, run a good race and the victory was his, though it wrings our hearts to feel that we never again will see his face or hear his footsteps. He cannot come back to his loved ones, but they can trust in Jesus and go to him.

Death was not unexpected to him, for he had been in declining health for nearly three years and death was only a relief. He professed faith in Christ and joined Efland M. P. church July 7, 1929, and remained a faithful member until God called him home.

He is survived by the widow, one son, one sister, and five brothers, and a large circle of relatives and friends. The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, the following day, and his body was placed in the church cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

Moore

David B. Moore was born in Alamance County on August 15, 1871. He passed away at his home just south of Burlington on February 10, 1932. He had been in ill health for two or three years. However, his death was quite sudden. For two weeks prior to his death he seemed in better health than usual. Death came while he was out supervising some work. He fell face forward and died before anything could be done for him.

Mr. Moore was a friendly man and enjoyed being with people. He was also an honest and upright man. His home and community will miss him.

May the bereaved be comforted with God's unfailing comfort in their bereavement.

In Memoriam

It is with deep sorrow that we, the Woman's Auxiliary of the Methodist Protestant church, Asheboro, N. C., record the death of Miss Lura Surratt, one of our members. We offer a tribute of love to the memory of her beautiful Christian life and we feel that she is now in the presence of her Lord and has heard His words, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Therefore, Be it Resolved:

That we extend our sincere sympathy to the family;

That these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of our Auxiliary and a copy be sent to the local papers and the Methodist Protestant Herald for publication.

MISS ESTHER ROSS, President.
MRS. J. T. PUGH, Sec'y.

Four little words,
If put into use,
Save much time and trouble,
And patience induce.

Four little words,
Kept clearly in mind,
When one is sore tempted,
A solution will find.

Four little words
True happiness give,
And help many neighbors
To peacefully live.

Four little words,
To you I will tell:
Mind your own business,
Then all will be well.

RED PROPAGANDA

If the latest dispatch from Moscow is Red propaganda, let the Bolshevists make the most of it. Prices of food, clothing and other articles have been raised from 20 to 100 per cent by government decree. Butter is $1.14 a pound and shoes $50 a pair.

Just whisper that to the Communists and pinks in the United States. Americans are justly shouting themselves hoarse over increases in taxes and proposed assessments of a few pennies on certain commodities. But if the government came along and arbitrarily boosted the cost of living 50 per cent in this country there would be a revolution. Free Americans would submit to no such interference. They would revolt or else bootleg the stuff and ignore the law.

Russians will tamely bow to the will of Moscow. They dare not revolt. They are afraid. They have no liberty. In the depths of depression, Americans are biding in the laps of luxury compared to the lot of the masses under the Soviet regime.

If any try to talk Communism in the United States, just cite the figure of $50 for shoes and send the Red to hiking.—Selected.

WHAT IS CHRISTIANITY?

"In the home, it is kindness;
In business, it is honesty;
In society, it is courtesy;
In work, it is fairness;
Toward the unfortunate, it is pity;
Toward the weak, it is help;
Toward the wicked, it is resistance;
Toward the strong, it is trust;
Toward the penitent, it is forgiveness;
Toward the fortunate, it is congratulations;
And toward God, it is reverence and love."

FROM PASTORS AND PEOPLE

old friend and schoolmate, Rev. A. S. Beaman, of the M. E. church, who is now located at Winston-Salem. He preached for us twice and assisted in the organization of the young people. Bro. Beaman is a native of this section and spent part of his early school days in this community. The people and pastor greatly enjoyed his visit and the help he rendered. If the union of our church with the M. E. church is consummated, as we believe it will be, the M. E. churches in Montgomery county will give us much greater strength in this section.

At this time Seagrove is leading all the other churches in finances. They have paid to date nearly one-half pastor's salary for the year and about one-third Conference claims. This is a fine record.

THE HERALD

When I read Brother Bates' article, in which he expresses his appreciation of the Herald, in last week's issue, the thought came to me, Well, I can just say, I endorse every word of that and that will be sufficient. However, I have decided to say a few words of my own. I have been a great lover of the Herald ever since it was started. The very first copy came to our home and I have never been without it many issues since. And I can truthfully say it is appreciated just as much, or even more, now than at any other time. Along toward the middle of each week I begin to think, It will only be a couple more days until Friday when we will get the Herald. How could I get along without it? It is the medium through which I hear from all the charges and all the preachers. Our home would not be the same without it. No one has ever had to beg me to take the Herald. It had a wholesome effect on me when I was a boy on the farm and I still pledge my best to it. Long may it live!

Missions' Day

Missions' Day has come again!
Greater day has not the year:
Facing hosts of sad-souled men,
We can send them great good cheer.

Jesus gave to us the truth
We now owe to every nation:
Rich and poor, old men and youth—
Truth about a great salvation.

With His message comes His power,
We can do the thing He said;
It will be a sacred hour
If we're by His Spirit led.

True to Christ and to our task
Let us keep this holy day:
On our gifts God's blessing ask
And for men most humbly pray.

Holy Days and Holidays

What is the difference between a holy day and a holiday? A boy answered the question by saying: "We must keep quiet on holy days, but holidays are 'holler days.'." That is an approach to a real distinction.

We Protestant Americans—many of us—regard the Sabbath as a holy day, but in most countries of Continental Europe the Sabbath is a holiday. Some of us were shocked this week to read that Germany held its primary presidential election last Sunday and will hold its final election on the second Sunday in April. That is treating Sunday as a holiday, not a holy day. In war times the world has seen a number of fierce battles between large armes fought on Sunday, which seems a great desecration of this holy day.

Holidays are often days of diversion if not dissipation, whereas true holy days are days of concentrated attention and devotion to high ideals. Sunday rest is a necessary condition of true Sunday observance. It is not in itself the whole of true Sunday observance. The Chrstian Sabbath is meant to promote the teachings and ideals of Christianity. Many ways of observing the Sabbath are really desecrations of the Sabbath. The command is to remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Mere bodily inactivity is not enough. The soul must be involved in appropriate attitude and action. The beasts that perish cannot either keep or desecrate the Sabbath day. Man will observe the Sabbath or desecrate it. If we treat the Sabbath as a mere holiday we desecrate it. Holidays of the right kind and at the proper time are good, but they cannot fill the place of holy days. God honors man in giving him a special day of rest and worship. He does not thus treat the lower orders of animals. God thus recognizes man's spiritual needs and capabilities. Through the Sabbath God is seeking to exalt man. Shall we resent God's efforts and refuse to carry out His program in our behalf? We may do so, but if we do we are great losers. The Sabbath law is not a prohibition but a promotion of man's happiness. Man was not made for holy days or holidays, but holy days and holidays are made for man.

A Surprising Death

The world is surprised to read of the death of George Eastman, the "Kodak King." Surprised not at the mere fact of his death, but at the manner of his death: he died by his own hand! A very wealthy man with a prosperous business deliberately chooses to end his course in this world. As an explanation he leaves a brief note saying: "My work is done: why should I wait?"

He had done much in the course of his busy life. He had given away millions of dollars and had many millions more. We see no reason why he might not have gone on with his successful life—except that given by his physician: he was a sick man. Don't judge him harshly. What seemed to him sufficient reason for going does not satisfy you, but you have a different standard of judgment. His mind was probably unbalanced by his bodily illness. We must not sit in judgment of him. We regret when any man takes it on himself to determine the length of his own life. That is a matter for divine judgment and action. In our days of health and strength we should fortify ourselves against the danger of rash action. Grievous afflictions may come to us, filling our lives with keen distress, but it is our constant privilege to pray for grace and strength to endure until God shall say, It is enough!

—The Kingdom of God is not so much advanced by our efforts to build it up as by our yielding ourselves to be built up into it. Here lies the secret power of Christianity. PROTESTANTS, CATHOLICS, AND JEWS CONFER IN WASHINGTON

There has just closed here in Washington a most significant conference.

For three days some five hundred representative members of the Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Jewish faiths have been in intimate fellowship and consultation in the Willard hotel.

The Seminar method has been used. That is, addresses have been made to the entire membership of the conference; the conference has broken up into fifteen small groups presided over by leaders who have aided in analyzing and considering special topics; then these smaller groups have come together in what is called a U conference at which a leader and some twelve or fifteen men and women seated on a raised platform continued the discussion among themselves in the presence of the entire conference.

The purpose was not to convert anyone to another faith, nor to bring about the union of these great religious groups, nor was anyone asked to relinquish his faith at any vital point. Everybody was not only willing, but desirous, that every Protestant might be the best possible Protestant, that every Catholic might be the best possible Catholic, and that every Jew might be the best possible Jew.

The great purpose was to bring to the light, examine, and to find the origin of the various prejudices that injure and irritate members of these three religious groups in their relations to each other—and to suggest ways of removing these prejudices. The method used was that of statement of complaint, explanations of the situation, and information as to the views of those most concerned.

It is interesting, and perhaps surprising to many, that most all of the complaints registered were from Jews and Catholics against Protestants. This condition arises from the fact that the Protestant group in this country has always been in the majority. Jews are irritated because of the insistence that this is called a Christian country. Catholics are irritated because of the insistence that this is called a Protestant country.

The point of greatest sensitiveness, in the case of both Catholics and Jews, is in connection with the public schools. Protestants insist on reading the Bible in the schools and conducting special exercises at Christmas and Easter with the singing by the pupils of Christian hymns. No reading of the Bible and no use of the great Christian anniversaries can, in their opinion, fail to be sectarian and misleading to other children than Protestants.

While it was admitted by Protestants generally that these practices could be, and in some cases doubtless are, really objectionable, there was still much to be said against discontinuing this custom, especially when teachers were of a broad-minded and unsectarian disposition.

It was significant, however, that the Jews were not a unit in opposing the celebration of Christmas and Easter in the public schools. They even called attention to the fact that the Christmas and Easter festivals had so grown into business and social life that all people of all faiths were interested in them and derived business and other profits from their observance. In many synagogues rabbis speak sympathetically, on these anniversaries, of the great principles involved, though they do not accept the Christian view of the historical and religious implications of the occasions. A Jewish woman who had been a teacher in the public schools for many years was emphatic in her approval of these observances in the schools, and she testified as to the possibility of a Jewish teacher so conducting the exercises as to avoid giving offense to anyone. Not long ago a Catholic public school teacher expressed to this writer the satisfaction she had in co-operating with the Protestant church of the neighborhood in preparing the children for Christmas and Easter exercises that were much the same in both school and church.

Attention was gratefully called to the co-operation that is already being practiced as a means of better acquaintance and that tends to do away with hurtful prejudices: such as raising funds for community chests in many cities, the settling of industrial disputes, relief of the unemployed and efforts at the solution of the problem of unemployment, and combined efforts for doing away with war and bringing in the reign of peace. No great disaster anywhere fails to make an appeal to all religions. Prayers for the victims of famine, flood, and fire and for the safe return of the child of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh are offered in all churches and synagogues.

Addresses of special interest were given by two Professors of History in Columbia University. The first was by Professor Carlton J. H. Hayes, a Roman Catholic, on the "Historical Backgrounds for the Discussion of Inter-Group Relations." The other was by Professor Evarts B. Greene, a Protestant, on "The American Experience with Religious Freedom." There is not space here for even a brief summary. I trust that both of these addresses may become available for general reading.

At the closing session Wednesday night the Glee club of Howard University (colored) gave a most delightful recital. This was followed by brief summaries and interpretations of round table discussions presented by Miss Rhoda E. McCulloch, editor of the Woman's Press, New York, for the Protestants; Professor John A. Lapp, Marquette University, for Catholics; and Rabbi Morris Lazeron, Baltimore, for the Jews. Honorable Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, Secretary of War in Wilson's Cabinet, then gave an appropriate closing address.

A fitting last word came from the chairman of the meeting, Roger W. Straus, of the Union American Hebrew Congregation, being a significant interpretation of The Melting Pot. Mr. Straus said:

"About twenty-five or thirty years ago Israel Zangwill gave to this country a beautiful ideal in the phrase 'the melting pot.' Many felt that the melting pot meant that every group should be liquified in a mass and cast in a single type. This is a misconception. Allow me to use an illustration from my own business. It is a process known as smelting and refining. We take various ores and minerals from all parts of the earth, smelt them in a furnace and refine them in a pot, and then cast bars of pig lead, each one identically the same as the other. Before getting this exact sameness, we must remove all the gold and silver, that is, the precious metals.

"In the same way, if we were to try to mould every one in this country to the same pattern, we should have to remove the precious elements of individual initiative and individual idealism. The finer ideal is to permit liberty to individuals and groups and at the same time to promote co-operation and understanding." Luther K. Long.

MORE HINTS TO THE WISE

At no time is a member more likely to subscribe to the Herald than when he first joins the church. He is interested in the Methodist Protestant Church, as evidenced by his joining. He wants to know more about the church to which he belongs, and wants to know more about what it is doing. Give him the opportunity, call on him at his home and let him know about the Herald. Make every effort to get his subscription. It will make him a better church member and increase his interest in the church of his choice. As I notice the accounts of new members being added to the church, I keep thinking, they ought to be subscribers to our church paper, and I can't help wondering is anybody seeing them about it. It ought to be some one's business in every church to approach all new members about the Herald. It will be a favor to them and it is bound to benefit the church in years to come, through added interest and increased loyalty.

On March 10th with 36% of the Herald issues for the year in the hands of subscribers there were 54 charges that had raised less than 20% of their Herald quota. Of these 54 charges 30 of them had raised less than 10% of their quota, and of these 30 charges 11 of them had still not sent in a single subscriber. Are these 54 charges going to be the cause of our failure to reach our goal? Is your church or charge among these 54? It is time to get busy. A little later I am planning to show a list of all the charges arranged in order of the percentage of their quotas that they have raised up to that time. Whitakers already has raised 147% of its quota, Midway-Shady Grove 105%, Thomasville First 100%, Winston First 77% and will probably be the next to raise its quota to the full 100% or more, and so on down the list. Now how is it going to look with some of our charges bringing up the tail end of that list because they have so low a percentage of their quota raised. Just passing this notice on to you and giving you a little time to work up the standing of your charge, before we print your standing in the Herald. I feel that the next Conference is going to look with interest on the standing of the charges as to this Herald Campaign, and if they don't it wont be because they do not have the information. The time is coming when a delegate wll ask the question about his prospective new Pastor, "Did his charge raise their Herald quota?" Anyway it is a good recommendation for any Pastor and for any charge, when the Herald quota has been raised. It will help the minister to get a better charge and the charge to get a better pastor, than if this had not been accomplished.

AN EDITOR'S CALL TO THE CHURCH

This is not an essay, but a bit of reporting. I am not responsible for the sentiments expressed, although I share them. They are all up to an editor friend, who fairly drove me to this little task of carrying his message to the preachers. I took no notes, so his sentiments are a bit paraphrased—but the views are accurately his.

It happens that I am looked upon by many daily newspaper editors as representing the Christian church; and many an intense hour I have spent in editorial offices, defending her. At the same time, quite a few churchmen regard me as representing the press, for journalism is my calling. So I am regularly kept warm by two fires.

On this occasion, the editor of a daily newspaper, upon whom I was paying a social call, had barely greeted me before he began to challenge the church in the present crisis. He is an old-school editor, blunt, forthright, a crusader with a strong sense of infallibility. His desk is a heaped-up clutteration that would make an orderly housewife or an efficiency expert despair. He works in his shirt-sleeves; and looks like a farmer—is, indeed, a dirt farmer, out of office hours. This time he had scarcely a word to say about his wonderful crop of grapes; he wanted to know what the Church is doing in this period of depression and emergency.

Pointing an indicting finger at me, he demanded, "Doesn't the Church know that it is all up to her? She should be the rallying center of all real relief. She has the Word that will make things right. Every preacher in the land ought to be hot about his own business these days, which is preaching a Gospel for the people. This thing that has happened is all within the Church's province. It is her business to help people see straight and hold steady. And if she doesn't care for hurt human hearts now, she'll never get a chance to do so later."

I steered my friend on to the subject of the plight of the press in these times. In a few minutes, though, he was off again on his "concern." "Every Church ought to be a relief center. The Churches are closest to the people, and know their real needs. The very genius of religion is brotherliness and helpfulness. People instinctively turn to the Church when in trouble. This is your chance; this is your chance; look out that you don't miss it."

We were interrupted by the arrival of other newspaper workers. After introductions and general talk, I arose to take my leave. The old editor followed me to the door. He laid his hand upon my arm, and looking into my face with eager, earnest eyes, he insisted, "Don't forget! Tell the churches that this is their hour. Every church should rally to the job. The most important aspect of this depression is the need that people should get back to God, and to all the essentials of real religion. Nobody but the Church can make plain the will of God to the people; who need comfort and guidance and inspiration. Mark what I say: this is the Church's chance. You tell them so."

So I have done as directed.

William T. Ellis.

THE PARENTS SPEAK

My son has attended High Point College for the past three years and I am well satisfied with the training he has received. A child there will be surrounded by Christian influence and his ideals of life further enlarged.

The high moral caliber of graduates of High Point College influenced me in sending my child there. Surely it is a place of Christian culture and thought. My contact with the alumni persuaded me also that the scholastic attainment was good. The Christian tone of the institution commended it to me.

I send my daughter to High Point College because it is economical and convenient, and at the same time I consider it carries with it the same efficiencies of the larger colleges. It gives the student the opportunity of asserting more individuality and permits a closer contact with the personnel of the college—all of which I consider advantageous.

TWO NOTED FISHERS OF MEN

A certain Christian worker in the company of two other men, visited the Moody Bible Institute in 1917. Their object was to gather information as to the methods of conducting an institution of that character.

As they passed from one building to another, their guide suddenly stopped and said, "Dwight L. Moody stood on this very spot several years ago where this building now stands when this part of the city was nothing more than a grassy common and spoke these memorable words, 'Please God, the day will come when men and women shall go from this place carrying the message of Salvation and of good will to the north, to the south, to the east, and to the west. Men trained in the institution to be established here, shall carry the gospel message to every country in America, to the isles of the sea, and to every continent of the globe'."

The famous evangelist had a vision of the world-renowned Bible Institute and the vision became a reality.

George Whitfield, born December 16, 1714, liked to speak of himself as one who was "hunting for souls." He is known as "the prince of open-air preachers." He was a grandson of a clergyman in the church of England, but his parents were inn-keepers at Gloucester, where they eked out a miserable existence in the sale of strong drnk. Much allowance can be made for them, however, as they had no such light on the question of Prohibition as we have today.

But notwithstand such tremendous disadvantages, Whitfield arose to the front ranks of those who are on fire for God and souls. To him was given that great power of God which every successful minister must have—the power to bring sinners under conviction of sin, making them feel their need of God, and turning them away from darkness to the Light of the World.

It is natural to look lightly on our own sins and to justify self. But Whitfield, having spent days and nights in wrestling against the world, the flesh and the adversary, saw man's real condition before God, and was given the ability to uncover his hearers before themselves, so that they would seek and receive Salvation.

We are told that the church of St. Mary de Crypt, at Gloucester, occupied a big place in Whitfield's life, for there he was christened, and there he preached his first sermon at the age of twenty-one.

He attended common school at Gloucester until he was fifteen years of age. God was working on his heart. He said to his sister, "The Lord intends something for me that we know not of." His mother had high hopes for him.

At eighteen years of age he entered Oxford, and there came in contact with a band that were then called "Methodists" in derision. There were fifteen members including the famous Wesley brothers. Charles Wesley himself loaned Whitfield a book entitled "The Love of God, in the Soul of Man." From then on he decided that religion did not consist in mere outward forms and ceremonies, but as Charles Wesley said, "True religion is a union of the soul with God that Christ formed within us." Whitfield was awakened by this Light on the new birth, and surrendered his soul to God, even before the Wesleys were brought out in the clear light.

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Dr. Andrews

It will be pleasing news to the conference to know that he is getting on well. He had his final operation last Saturday, and with no complications, he should go right on now to a complete recovery. However, time will play an important part in this, and he most likely will not leave the hospital for some weeks. He will be glad to see and to hear from his friends, and they will continue to remember him in their prayers.

Mrs. T. F. McCulloch

The HERALD last week brought to us our first information of the serious illness of Sister McCulloch, wife of our beloved superannuated minister, Brother T. F. McCulloch. We do trust that her condition is now improved, and that she may be entirely well at an early date. She has our sympathy and prayers.

Easter

We appeal once more on behalf of the observance of this day, in accord with the Easter program of the General Church. We trust that many of our churches are planning for this, and that programs have already been secured. Where the program, as provided by the General Church, is not given, we urge that an offering be taken for New Century Service, and forwarded at once to Dr. Brown. Some of our churches will observe Easter Evangelism. We pray that their efforts may be abundantly blessed. Easter commemorates the one fact about our Lord that confirms everything else that he claimed and taught. "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain." "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept." This is the keystone that holds our Christian system together, and we fittingly make much of it at the Easter season.

Herald

Brother Douglas is keeping this matter before us with necessary emphasis. His efforts are getting results, but not in the measure of the need and the worthiness of the cause. We urge that he be given increasing support in this enterprise until our goal of 3,000 subscribers is secured and the accrued publishing deficit paid. A little work, and then a little more work is what it takes. Brother Douglas is doing his part, let's see to it that we do ours.

Dr. Straughn's Meetings

Owing to illness, Dr. Straughn is not able to be with us in these meetings, as he had hoped much to be. But he has given us a good substitute in Brother F. L. Gibbs, the Associate Executive Secretary of the department of Young People's Work of the Board of Religious Education. To date, three meetings have been held, as follows: First Church, High Point, Flat Rock Church, Flat Rock Charge, and Tabernacle Church, Tabernacle Charge. These meetings were held as scheduled. The attendance was gratifying, and the reaction pleasing. We are sure that good is being done through these efforts. The only break in our program thus far was at Henderson and Burlington. Owing to the inability of Dr. Straughn to come, we were not able to keep those appointments, much to his regret, and to mine also The program, as previously announced, will go right on through the week, closing with the Denton Church Sunday night.

Representatives' Expenses

The apportionment for this is in the Journal, page 119. And the General Conference is just "around the corner." We trust that pastors will take the offering for this at once, so it may be in hand for the Representatives in due time. The amount is not large enough at any church to be a burden; but a failure to raise it will entail a burden on the Representatives who must go to attend to the business of the Church. Please, pastors, and church officials, give this matter timely attention. Thank you.

"A Joash Day in Every Church"

That is the slogan, and the interest is growing. A number of charges have already signified their purpose to observe the DAY, and to that list the following are to be added: Community Church, Winston First, Albemarle, Glen Raven, Richland, Orange, Forsyth, Mt. Hermon, Flat Rock, Calvary, St. Paul, West End, Greensboro, Haw River, Cleveland. Pastors will help us in this undertaking if they will notify us that they expect to observe the DAY. A postal card is sufficient. Let's make it 100 per cent. A big list of charges in the HERALD would look mighty good next week. Let that card come right on, brethren. And once more, that the JOASH DAY plan may be fully understood: It is NOT an extra offering. Those who give get credit on their pledges or assessment, as the case may be. To get this credit, use an envelop with your name on it and the amount, or simply tell your steward the amount of your offering. The money is to be used for the following purposes: Pastors' salary, 50 per cent.; A. C. B., 25 per cent.; New Century Service, 25 per cent. The treasurer of the church will handle this offering just as the other offerings for these purposes are handled. This should make the matter clear as to the offering. The JOASH DAY for each church should be designated at the earliest possible date, and announcements made each Sunday that intervenes, so the people may be looking forward to it and make preparation for it. Something should be laid aside beforehand for JOASH DAY. Remember the slogan, "A JOASH DAY IN EVERY CHURCH."

Appointments

March 16.—Mt. Pleasant and Liberty church.
March 17.—Pleasant Hill and Thomasville churches.
March 18.—Bess Chapel and Oak Grove.
March 20.—Shiloh and Denton.
The above meetings are arranged for Dr. Straughn.
March 19.—Mt. Pleasant church, North Davidson charge, in quarterly conference.

March 7.—Easter, at home.

"His word was in my heart as a burning fire shut up in my bones, and I was weary with forbearing, and I could not stay." S. W. Taylor.

PROHIBITION NECESSARY

(Smedley D. Butler, in the Christian Herald, New York)

I am unalterably in favor of prohibition because I believe it is the only way to secure temperance in the use of liquor. I believe in temperance and moderation in everything in our lives; not only in drinking, but in eating, in exercise, in work, and, in fact, the sum total treatment of our minds and bodies.

I am not a fanatic on the subject. I have taken the stand that I will not discuss with anyone the advantages of prohibition. The methods of accomplishing the result, however, I am always willing to discuss. Nor am I a professional reformer or a crusader. I do not try to force my opinions down anyone's throat. . . .

I am in favor of prohibition because it is a necessary measure for our economic supremacy, as well as for the health and welfare of our race.

I believe in prohibition because liquor has never brought happiness to anyone; usually it brings distress and misery.

I have seen what liquor does to men and communities . . .

My experience with thousands of youngsters in the service has been that when they are occupied with physical labor during working hours, and healthy amusement the rest of the time, they keep out of trouble, are perfectly healthy and well, and that after they pass twenty-five years of age their habits are formed, and the danger of liquor is not so great.

There is no discussion of the advisability of enforcing to the limit the law to prevent bank officials from using depositors' money for their own benefit, and yet it is done constantly, even with the exercise of the greatest care by bank examiners and other officials.

There is no discussion of the advisability of enforcing traffic laws to prevent accidents to pedestrians and motorists, but they continue to increase in number, despite all vigilance.

Then why discuss the advisability of enforcing the prohibition laws? They are on the books.

The principle of prohibition, we know, cannot be enforced one hundred per cent. Unless, however, a sincere and honest effort is made at one hundred per cent enforcement of any law, we will not get any results. I believe in attempting to enforce prohibition one hundred per cent, and I believe that by so doing we would probably get eighty-five to ninety per cent success. No law I know of is enforced better than ninety per cent.

If we should reverse or in any way modify our present national stand on the question of prohibition, I believe we would have an orgy of law-breaking of all kinds, and we would, in turn, loose a flood of drinking in this country that would swamp it.

We must not "change horses in midstream," therefore.

And, besides, there is no other "horse."

No really practicable plan has yet been proposed to replace prohibition. We have had a flood of schemes, but they have been indefinite propositions, mostly formulated and put forth to win votes.

Whenever I have found it my duty to enforce laws, I have always attempted to do so fully and impartially. The dry law is no exception. I have endeavored to enforce the dry law impartially, for I believe there is the same law for rich and poor, high and low. I have endeavored to enforce it because it is on our statute books. If we let down on the enforcement of one law, why not on another? I have endeavored to enforce it because I know that is the only way to reduce all crime, for crime and rum walk side by side in our big cities. The more effective liquor enforcement is, statistics of any metropolitan center will show, the less crime there is; inversely, the more lax dry law enforcement is, the more crime will flourish, and in its most vicious forms.

I have endeavored to enforce the dry laws most vigorously because I have children, and I want them, as well as all other children, to grow up in a land where liquor is virtually unknown, and not where it flows freely to tempt every boy and girl. I have endeavored to enforce the laws because I believe our economic supremacy in the world depends upon it.

THE SECRET OF A LONG LIFE

Sometimes we see a woman whose old age is as exquisite as was the perfect bloom of her youth.

You wonder how this has come about—you wonder how it is that her life has been a long and happy one.

Here are some of the reasons:

She knew how to forget disagreeable things.

She understood the art of enjoyment.

She kept her nerves well in hand and inflicted them on no one.

She believed in the goodness of her own daughter and that of her neighbors.

She cultivated a good digestion.

She mastered the art of saying pleasant words.

She did not expect too much of her friends.

She made whatever work came to her congenial.

She relieved the miserable and sympathized with the sorrowful.

She made the best of everything.

She did to others as she would be done by; and now that old age has come to her and there is a halo of white hair about her head, she is loved and considered.

KEEP—KEPT

The motto of Spurgeon's College shows a hand holding a cross. About both are the Latin words, "Teneo et teneor": "I both hold and am held." Good as the first word is, the latter is better. It is fine to hold the cross; it is far finer to be held by it. St. Jude's word "keep" (vs. 21) is a necessary injunction, but St. Peter's word "kept" reveals the grace which makes the other possible.

We hold the cross, but we are held by the cross. We keep ourselves in the love of God, but we are kept by the power of God. "My Beloved is mine" passes on to the more satisfying, blessed fact of ownership on His part: "I am His"!—Help and Food.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE LIE SHE NEVER FORGOT

"Auntie May, why is it you always make a fuss over every teeniest little fib? One would think it was a dreadful sin, the way you go on about it."

The speaker, a wilful maid of some ten years, leaned her elbows on Auntie May's chair and looked rather crossly into the gentle face that smiled back at her fretful questioning.

"Come around here, dear, and sit down beside me, and I will tell you about it. I have never been able to forget it."

"Forget what, Auntie May."

"The lie I once told, the results of which make me hate even 'the teeniest little fib,' dear little girlie of mine."

"Auntie! Why, Auntie May! I don't believe you ever could have told a lie. You always seem to feel so bad over the least little 'white lie,' even if you know it is just for fun."

A shadow crept into the quiet, grey eyes, and a look as of some painful memory made the lines of the usually tender mouth a trifle stern. She stroked the soft, brown hair of the little niece she loved so dearly, who often was careless about speaking the truth. She had been reproved, and a somewhat vexed expression now marred the sunny face Grace was accustomed to wear. Presently Auntie May roused herself and began to speak in a saddened voice.

"Gracie, my dear, I do not tell this often, for it always pains me keenly to recall it; but I will tell you, and hope that knowing of the years of regret that my childish falsehood have left with me may help you to hate a lie as badly as I do. I was only a very little girl, not more than five years old, and my sister, your dear Aunt Jean, was a year and a half older. Your Uncle Jack was next older, and the things he did and said were usually the guide of my childish ideas.

"This particular day, I so often recall, we three sat on the old garden fence, watching the activities of a stout, bustling lady who lived just across the other side of our garden, and whom, for various reasons, we all three heartily disliked, although she really was a very worthy person. I especially disliked her because she once had caught me digging my naughty little fingers into every one of a row of her freshly made pumpkin pies, which she had set out to cool on the pantry shelf, and with a very angry 'You naughty child, I'll teach you,' she had soundly spanked me.

"Well, as we three sat there on the fence, she came around the corner of the house and spoke rather sharply to us, when Uncle Jack said to me, 'May, tell her she's an old——'; and the name he uttered was so rude and naughty I cannot tell even you."

"But, Auntie May, you didn't say it?" said Grace in unbelieving, shocked surprise.

"Yes, dearie I did; just then your grandpa came out and caught the words, but did not know which one of us was guilty.

" 'Children,' he said, very angry, indeed, 'which of you said that?' Terrified lest we should be very severely whipped, your Uncle Jack, who was usually brave and honest, in a panic turned and whispered to me, 'Tell him Jean said it.' Your grandpa looked so stern that I was more frightened than Uncle Jack and before I could think I called out, regardless of results, 'It was Jean, Daddy.'

" 'Daddy, I did not—oh, I did not,' she firmly denied.

"But cowardly fear had gripped both Jack and myself, and we repeated our accusation. Poor little Jean, always gentle, delicate, and sensitive, burst into tears, and again denied it.

" 'Who did say it, then? I will punish whoever did so you will not forget it in a hurry,' said Grandpa, who, though the kindest of fathers, had a very quick temper. Had he only stopped to think, he would have known that we were afraid, and by patience and kindness could have won the truth even then. But, seeing his anger, we were too scared to confess, so held to our cruel, cowardly story; and, to our horror, your grandpa took Jean swiftly into the house, and in a few moments we heard the sound of a blow, followed by a pitiful cry, and then a sobbing, choking plea,

" 'Don't Daddy; oh please don't! I didn't say it.'

" 'Who did say it then?'

"But the loyal little lips refused to speak, and we heard again that awful sound of blows, and then Grandpa's voice,

" 'Answer me, or I will make you; I will whip you until you tell me the truth.'

"Gracie, dear"—and Auntie May's eyes were filling with tears, and her lips were trembling—"I cannot tell you all—those cruelly unjust blows, the utter misery of our frightened hearts, Jean's sobs and pleading cries, Grandpa's determination to make her yield—I cannot forget it. I can scarcely bear to go on."

She paused a moment; then, controlling herself, she said, "Grandpa punished her until she lifted her white, agonized face to his and, scarcely able to speak at all, confessed to my sin—mine and Uncle Jack's. Then at four o'clock in the afternoon she was put to bed, with no supper, where she sobbed, heartbroken. But not once did she accuse either of us, and when (unknown to Daddy, who had forbidden anyone to go near her) I crept up to her bedside and found her sobbing, sobbing, such pitiful, tearless sobs, I thought God would surely punish me in some dreadful way. Yet fear of my lie and the possible results to me should I now confess kept me silent."

Gracie was crying as Auntie paused. She looked up and said, chokingly:

"Auntie May, you did tell. You didn't let Aunt Jean cry herself to sleep with no supper and knowing you just made her tell a lie?"

"Little Gracie," and Auntie's voice was very low and very sad, "not for long years did we confess, nor did she ever tell. When finally your grandpa learned the truth, it was too late to punish us, but it almost broke his heart to think he had forced her to lie to save herself. I have seen him cry many a time as he would tell this story to others. Do you wonder, Grace, that Auntie hates a lie, even a 'little bit' of a lie, even what you call a white one?"

Grace sat for a few moments with her head leaning against Auntie's shoulder. Suddenly she looked up, put her hands softly on either side of the gentle face, and after kissing her several times she said, "Auntie, I'm sorry you told me, because it has made you sad; but I am glad, too, for now I see how bad one little lie can make things for everybody."

"Yes, dear. It made your grandpa unjust; it made Uncle Jack a coward; it made me a liar; and finally, it made Aunt Jean so terrified that she, too, was forced to lie through fear. Girlie, dear, oh, how I wish—"

But here Grace interrupted her,

"I know what you wish, Auntie dear; and I will try, indeed, I will, to always say just what is true."

As Auntie May kissed her lovingly, Gracie heard her say, almost to herself,

"Let your yea be yea, and your nay nay; for whatsoever is more than these cometh evil."—Publisher Unknown.

WHAT AM I GOOD FOR?

A gentleman, while speaking to some children, took out his watch, and asked what it was for.

"To tell the time," the children answered.

"Well, suppose it won't keep time, and can't be made to keep time, what is it good for?"

"It is good for nothing," they replied.

He then took out a lead pencil, and asked what it was for.

"It is to mark with," was the answer.

"But supposing the lead is out, and it won't mark, what is it good for?"

"It's good for nothing."

He then took out a pocket knife, and asked what was its use.

"To sharpen pencils with," said some. "To cut with," said others.

"Suppose it has no blade, then what is good for?"

"Good for nothing."

"Then a watch, or pencil, or knife is good for nothing unless each can do the thing for which it is made?"

"Yes, sir," the children all answered.

"Well, what is a boy or girl made for?"

The children hesitated.

"The chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy Him for ever," said the gentleman.

"Now, then, if a boy or girl does not do what he or she is made for, and glorify God, what is he or she good for?"

And the children all answered, without seeming to think how it would sound—

"GOOD FOR NOTHING"

Now, boys and girls, God made you and gave you the powers you possess, and so He has the first claim upon you. If you construct a machine, you expect to get the benefit of your work; and if, after making it, you spend money in keeping it in order, you expect it to be useful to you.

Well, if children are made to glorify God, and they don't do it, are they good for anything? It is so much more important that they should glorify God, and be prepared to enjoy Him for ever, than anything else, that if they fail to do this, it is as though they failed in everything.

How can you glorify God, seeing that you are a sinner and therefore unfit for His holy presence? You must be converted, seeing the Lord Jesus said, "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 18:3). Then, having entered the kingdom, your sins will be forgiven. "I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for His Name's sake" (I John 2:12). Then you will begin to love God, for we read, "We love Him, because He first loved us" (I John 4:19). Without love to God, all other things are as nothing.

Are you answering the end for which you were made? If not, what are you good for? Think of the children's answer—"GOOD FOR NOTHING."—E. A., Publisher Unknown.

EVENING PRAYER

Now the light has gone away,
Saviour, listen while I pray,
Asking Thee to watch and keep,
And to send me quiet sleep.

Jesus, Saviour, wash away
All that has been wrong today.
Help me every day to be
Good and gentle, more like Thee.

Let my near and dear ones be
Always near and dear to Thee;
Oh, bring me and all I love
To Thy happy home above.

WHO PAYS THE TAX

"Who really pays the tax, the brewers and distillers? Not one cent of it.

"A woman bends over the washtub. Her husband is down in the saloon drinking, helping to pay the tax.

"A young man is taking his first drink. He is beginning to pay the tax. He may be a drunkard in a few years and then he will pay more tax.

"An employee has just been discharged for drinking. He was paying the tax. He joins the large army of the unemployed.

"A husband is selling off some of his best furniture and the family is moving into a stuffy flat. He has been paying the tax.

"A constable is ringing his bell. He is going to sell some house-hold goods for rent. The owner has been paying the tax at the corner saloon.

"A lot of noisy men are in a saloon drinking. Paying the tax.

"A 'speakeasy' is being run in a dark alley under a 'Government License' in violation of state law. Its patrons are paying the tax. It is one of more than fifty thousands lawless places protected by the Federal Government."—Finley C. Hendrickson in 1910.

LOST

The secretary of Young People's Work, Mrs. F. W. Paschall, Burlington, N. C., has not been able to locate the Sunshine Circle banner, and the one for Young People's Circles is worn out. The organizations holding banners will please write to Mrs. Paschall. Will someone volunteer to donate a new banner? We want to exhibit them all at Branch Meeting.

LIFE, MEMORIAL AND PERPETUAL MEMBERSHIPS

The secretary of Life, Memorial and Perpetual Memberships has done very little this year as there seemed nothing that she could do, since no reports were made to her from the Auxiliaries. Only six certificates have been asked for, which were filled out and sent. Two were for Life Members, Mrs. R. H. Brooks and Miss Charley Hunter, from Grace, Greensboro; and for Memorial Members, Mrs. Lossie Hardee Rieves, Eden, Halifax Circuit; Mrs. Viola Medearis Holland and Miss Maie Bain, Grace, Greensboro; Mrs. Lebus Stone, from Siler City.

I should like to ask that every Auxiliary elect a secretary of Life, Memorial and Perpetual members, and that she try to get members in her Auxiliary, then apply to the Branch Secretary for certificates which she will be glad to fill out and send her, and the names will be reported to editor of Missionary Record, and will be in the Annual number. If any of the Auxiliaries have either Life, Memorial or Perpetual members, and you do not see their names in the July number of The Missionary Record it is because the names have not been sent either to the Branch secretary or the editor.

The "Auxiliary Secretary can be of great aid in helping the Auxiliary raise their budget and at the same time create missionary impulses."

BRANCH MEETING, APRIL 12-14, ENFIELD

Dr. George H. Miller Will Address Convention

The North Carolina Branch of the Women's Work will meet in Enfield April 12-14. The program printed in the Herald this week shows that an unusually interesting program has been arranged. Dr. George H. Miller, president of the Mission Board of our church, will deliver a missionary address. We are especially fortunate in having Dr. Miller with us.

A new and unique feature of the program will be demonstrations which will follow reports of the district chairmen and secretaries of departments of Thank-Offering, Young People's Work, and Missionary Education. There will also be an exhibit of plans for programs in Auxiliary work.

The Enfield, Whitakers and surrounding churches are looking forward to having the Branch Meeting and are anxious to know the number of delegates expecting to attend the meeting.

The general Thank-Offering service, over which the secretary, Mrs. J. W. Boyles, of Thomasville, will preside, will not only serve as a demonstration Thank-Offering service, but will afford an opportunity for each Auxiliary to contribute to the support of Rev. and Mrs. Minnis in India and receive credit on next year's budget.

The meeting this year closes our quadrennium and each organization and all churches are urged to pay up apportionments and make free will offerings to the Women's Work. The North Carolina Conference has been wonderfully blessed and may we not now unite our efforts in completing our task in a way that will maintain our reputation and be pleasing to the Great Giver of all gifts? Pray and plan for the Branch Meeting.

Very truly,
MRS. W. C. HAMMER, Pres.,
N. C. Branch, Women's Work.

WHAT THE HERALD MEANS TO ME

I have been acquainted with the Herald since its beginning and during that time I have seen great growth in the Conference. Our wonderful Children's Home and our great College have been built. We are indebted to the Herald for a large share of these achievements. During these years I have seen a great man lay himself upon the altar of our church and literally give the prime of his life to the work of developing our people through the Herald. The Herald is a weekly love letter among our people and I am one of the lovers. The Herald keeps me in touch with the good people and the work of the Conference. This relationship I feel I could not do without. The thought and the beauty found in the poems and the editorials are of the highest order and mean food to my mind and soul. Long live the editor and the Herold. God bless you, Dr. McCulloch. We owe you much and appreciate you greatly.

GEO. L. CURRY.

NOTICE DISTRICT NUMBER SEVEN

There will be a district meeting of women from all the churches in District No. 7 at Julian church on Tabernacle charge Sunday, March 20, 1932 beginning at 10:30.

This district includes the following churches: Moriah, Tabernacle, Julian, Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant, and Liberty. It is a women's meeting, but the men are invited to come and bring the women. All are asked to bring lunch.

The following is the program for the day 10:30 a. m., Devotional period; Welcome, Mrs. W. T. Hanner; Special music by the Tabernacle Male Quartet; Address by Mrs. C. W. Bates, Lunch, Devotional period, Special music.

Mrs. W. C. Hammer of Asheboro, president of the North Carolina Branch, will speak on "Our Work." We hope each secretary from every church named wil be present to give a report of work done since last April through March.

MRS. E. T. COBLE,
Chairman.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

West Forsyth.—Our services at Union Hill and Tabernacle churches were well attended, considering the extremely cold weather prevailing during the day. After the service at Union Hill we went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. P. Baker, having had an invitation one month previous. We enjoyed a splendid dinner and pleasant visit in this good home. Miss Mattie Scott, one of the faithful members of Union Hill, who had been confined to her home with illness for five weeks, was reported almost recovered, and expected to resume her duties as teacher of the Union Hill school last Monday morning.

The church was more than half filled at Tabernacle for the service there at 7:30 p. m., and interest shown by those present was splendid. We had a number of visitors in the service. The absence of Brother S. H. Speas, one of the oldest and among the most faithful members, was noted with regret. Inquiry about him revealed that he was not ill but due to his age he would not venture out in the cold weather. It was the first service he has missed in this conference year.

We are to be honored with a visit of Dr. J. H. Straughn to West Forsyth charge Thursday afternoon of tis week. Pleasant Hill is the place for his address.

The pastor met his two appointments on the first Sunday in this month. We were at Baltimore at 11 a. m., and there were 0 (none) members present for the service. After waiting a reasonable time and no one came for the service, we drove to the home of Brother Jim Patterson at Stony Knoll where a good dinner was enjoyed. At 2:30 p. m. we were at Stony Knoll church for the service there. Although the snow had ceased, and the weather moderated, there were 0 members present for the service. This pastor has not missed an appointment during the three years and four months on West Forsyth charge. Only one service had been missed until last Sunday, and that one was not held on account of rain.

We will be at Pleasant Hill church next Sunday at 11 a. m.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Pastor Love filled his regular 11 o'clock appointment for us Sunday using as a text "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?" In his earnest and sincere way he appealed to us as a church to be more grateful for our many blessings and use the means that God has given us for His glory. He gave statistics showing how little we spend toward the church as compared with what we spend for luxuries and other things. The figures were appalling and Brother Love's heart is burdened and if Christian people felt it as keenly as he does much good could be done to lift the burden.

Our pastor is active and zealous in his work and with the proper co-operation we are hoping to accomplish much. Since the first of the year he has organized a senior Christian Endeavor and much interest has been manifested although rough weather and other things have hindered; but we are hoping as the weather opens up that we are going to have a real live society.

A number of our people went to Siler City a few Sundays ago and enjoyed a splendid program rendered by their C. E. society. They have a fine group of young people there. Some of our auxiliary members also had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Clyde Auman at Siler City recently.

Our weekly prayer meetings are not largely attended but all who go report interesting and worthwhile meetings.

We are planning a program for Easter which will be given on Easter Sunday night. Mrs. Love and the teachers of the primary classes are in charge of the program. We will also observe "Joash Day," the second Sunday in April.

Draper.—Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Vickery, gives us real uplifting sermons. And the prescence of God is felt at each service.

Our congregations are not so large, but God is with us, and where He is there is no failure. "We shall reap in due season if we faint not."

We are planning to organize our C. E. society again as it has not been going for some time. Our church club is doing a right good work, hoping by the help of God to get our church debt paid before the end of the year.

We are looking forward to our revival, which will begin the first Sunday in April, with Rev. H. W. Bell as pulpit help. Pray for us that much good may be done and many souls brought from darkness to light and born into the kingdom of God.

Friendship, Shiloh Charge.—Sunday morning, March 13, Rev. R. S. Troxler brought to us a most interesting sermon. He said we need more family altars. If the world would get down on their knees there wouldn't be such a depression. He said everybody ought to read the Bible and pray each day.

Pray more; the prayer of the righteous availeth much.

We welcome the membership of Miss Lula Snider in our church from Goodhope M. E. church.

The woman's auxiliary met in February with Miss Lelia Byerly and was reorganized for this year. We were glad to have some of our number present Sunday, who had been absent on account of sickness for quite a while.

Young Men's Wide Awake Class, Shiloh.—March 13. It is a great blessing to have such a fine class of young men, and a good leader like Mr. Evans. May our class shine for Christ in our church community, that we may help lead others to Christ.

We had 55 present a few of which were visitors. We were glad to add some new members to our class. We are always glad to have the visitors and new members.

Jesus said: "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you." What a great comfort to any sorrowing heart! May we so live that we may have that place which Jesus has gone to prepare for us. We cannot have Jesus Christ with us in person but He is always with us in spirit. Jesus said, "If ye love me keep my commandments." We show by our ways and by our deeds whether we love Him or whether we keep His commandments. We as followers of Christ should keep His commandments and lead others to Christ. Our teacher said, "Whenever we do anything, do it for the glory of God." If we do this we will keep His commandments.

Friendship, Stanley.—Our work is moving along nicely. Our Sunday school and preaching services are well attended; better than last year. On Sunday night, our pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams, delivered a wonderful message on "Casting Out Devils." I think we should all study that more.

On Wednesday evening, February 16, the Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. O. B. Williams which we all enjoy doing. We are doing good work in our Aid. We have sowed our lawn seed and we are going to underpin our church at an early date.

On Sunday night the 20th the Christian Endeavor from first church Albemarle will be with us, hoping for a good meeting. We will have our Easter program on Sunday, March 27.

First Church, Albemarle.—The Men's Bible class is putting forth effort in their contest. It would be hard to say just which side is going to win. If each side keeps up their good work, I'm afraid both sides will win and Rev. Mr. Anderson will be compelled to furnish the dinner himself.

The weekly prayer service that is held each Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock seems to be creating a great deal of interest lately. Those faithful few who have continued to come all along are doing some good work. Our average number for a while was from six to ten members. While now we have from fifteen to twenty. To those who have not been attending prayer service, we want to tell you that you are missing a great deal of the true worship in our church. And I am sure that we are safe in saying, "If you attend the services you will not go away feeling that your efforts were in vain."

The Lucy Hatley circle held its monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. Ira Smart, with Mrs. J. W. Hornbuckle as leader. Mrs. Troutman who recently moved to Albemarle joined our circle. We are indeed glad to have Mrs. Troutman in our group.

The Kam Snotherly club met with Maizy Simpson: this circle is doing some good work lately despite the fact that several of their members are careless in thir attendance. This circle surprised the congregation by donating a very beautiful clock to the church. This was highly appreciated by the pastor and congregation as a whole.

Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Anderson and children attended the Pastors' Conference in High Point Monday.

Mr. Carl Moton will entertain his class in the dining hall of the church on next Tuesday evening. All members are urged to attend, there will be plenty of fun, and lots to eat.

Mr. Anderson is putting forth some very strenuous efforts toward our coming revival.

He has urged that each member be much in paryer for the success of this revival.

A pageant, "The Easter Vision," will be given on Easter Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock. Mrs. J. E. Gantt and Mrs. Allen Wagner are working very hard on this presentation. Mrs. I. R. Johnson, pianist, has the music in charge.

The Christian Endeavor has been invited to atted the program out at Friendship next Sunday evening at 6:00 o'clock. The Christian Endeavor at Friendship is composed of much older members than our boys and girls, and Mrs. Carl Moton who is supervisor of our boys and girls, feels sure they will receive much good from attending this program.

Porter Church.—Our pastor, Rev. J. R. Anderson, preached a very helpful and inspiring sermon last Sunday to a very attentive congregation. The attendance was off, owing to the cold weather and sickness among our members.

We are sorry to report the serious illness of one of the young men of our church, Mr. Sam Mabry, son of Mr. W. H. Mabry. He has been in the hospital at Albemarle for three weeks. However, it seems that some improvement is noted in his condition and we are hoping that he will soon be restored to health.

Mr. G. H. Thompson has been quite sick at his home, but is improving and we are hoping he will soon be well and back at church.

Miss Lula Mabry who has been working in Asheboro for some time has been spending the past few weeks at home to be at the bedside of her brother, Sam Mabry. We were glad to have her worship with us last Sunday.

Our Sunday school is increasing both in attendance and interest and as spring and summer approaches we are hoping to see it grow in leaps and bounds. One addition has been made to our church membership, Mr. Tommie Randall, coming from First Church, Alebmarle. We are glad to have Mr. Randall unite with us and we are sure he will be a great help to the church.

Next appointment will be the fourth Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at which time the Lord's Supper will be observed.

First Church, High Point.—Owing to the illness of Rev. R. I. Farmer, who has been suffering from influenza, the pulpit was filled Sunday morning in a most pleasing manner by Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, who chose as his text Luke 11:1, "Lord, teach us how to pray." He said that from the beginning of time man has had an idea of God and a conception of prayer. The honest conclusion of the intelligence of the world is that Jesus is the greatest intelligent manifestation of God. We pray to God as one who is able in power to give us what we need and because we believe He is willing to hear our requests. Prayer is not the same for two individuals. Let us take into consideration three relationships of prayer. We sometimes make our own conception of God, and we get our ideas of prayer from the Jews, who believed that God is powerful, changeable, vengeful, and if it pleased Him, He would hear and answer our prayers. This is the kingly idea of God and then there is the rationalistic idea, which does not believe that God can be tricked, cajoled, or wooed into giving us what we ask for. Another idea is the Christian view that makes prayer our most natural approach to God, as we say "Our Father," believing that He knows and understands our needs. God is all-powerful, wise, and holy, and man is capable of having approach to Him. Have faith, fear not, only believe. It does not teach that we will always receive what we ask, for man must not expect to be the center of the universe. Prayer is an attitude. Can God answer prayer in spite of natural laws? Three hundred years ago who knew anything about electricity or the law of gravity? What is a miracle? It is God. O, how many forces God can set in motion that we know nothing about. Joe Humphreys, the sportsman, the other night prayed for the return of the Lindbergh baby to his parents—who can say that this miracle will not be performed? It was the wrestling of Jacob with the angel that won the victory. We should be willing to sink our will into His, and humbly say, like Jesus prayed in Gethsemane, "Not my will, but thine be done." The congregation greatly appreciates this splendid message, and many thanks are due Dr. Humphreys for his kindness. There was no evening service.

Our church has been called on to mourn the loss of one of its oldest members, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Tussey, wife of Joseph A. Tussey, 109 West Ray street, who died Wednesday at midnight, March 9th. She had been a helpless invalid for more than four years, not being able to walk during that time. Mrs. Tussey was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bailey, and was born in Wake county February 16, 1855. In August, 1901, she and Mr. Tussey were married and in October of the same year moved to High Point, where they have since made their home. Mrs. Tussey was an unusually kind neighbor and a warm, sympathetic friend. Her health was frail for a number of years, and she spent many months in the High Point Hospital at different intervals. Of a bright, happy disposition she was always cheerful, and bore her affliction bravely and without complaint. Surviving relatives are her husband, one son, Lee Bailey, of Davidson County, and a sister, Mrs. S. B. Wilson, of High Point, who tenderly nursed her for two years. Funeral services were conducted at the home, 109 West Ray street, Friday morning at 11 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. J. I. Farmer, a former pastor, Dr. George R. Brown, of Reidsville, and Rev. J. M. Hilliard, of the Baptist church. Burial was made at Bethesda, six miles north of Lexington. To her faithful and devoted husband, who will miss her sadly, we extend loving and hearty sympathy. "After life's faithful fever she sleeps well."

The Woman's Auxiliary held a most interesting meeting Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. C. C. Robbins on the Archdale road. In spite of the disagreeable weather, there was a good attendance of 35 members. Mrs. P. S. Kennett presided and a beautiful devotional service, the theme of which was "To Add to Our Faith," was led by Mrs. G. I. Humphreys. Mrs. S. S. Coe led the program on Missionary Education and made an interesting talk on the Project Plan, followed by a reading, "Methods and Materials," by Mrs. J. C. Whitesell. The secretary, Mrs. R. W. Riggins, read the minutes of the last meeting, and the executive board meeting. The project of each member contributing a penny a day was voted on and carried. The sale of salted peanuts will be undertaken next year as an Auxiliary project instead of being handled by two circles as heretofore. The following delegates to the Branch meeting at Enfield April 12-14 were elected: Mrs. P. S. Kennett and Mrs. R. W. Riggins by virtue of their offices as president and secretary, Mrs. L. R. Peacock and Mrs. S. D. Shelton; alternates, Mesdames H. A. Moffitt, John S. Pickett, C. L. Gray, and W. A. Davis. The secretaries of the various causes were also elected. There was much enthusiasm over the announcement of the new Circle groups, the chairmen of which will be duly elected by the members at a later date. Mrs. R. I. Farmer announced as chairman of the Public Welfare work that the same donations of groceries and clothing for seven needy families will be asked for in March as in January and February. At the close of business the hostess, Mrs. Robbins, served Russian tea and small cakes.

A very important meeting of the Workers' Council of the Sabbath school is called for Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock by J. C. Whitesell, president, and J. H. Jennings, superintendent. Every officer and teacher is expected and urged to bring reports of the departments. There will also be a meeting of stewards Tuesday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. George H. Miller, of Adrian, Mich., who are spending the winter months at Southern Pines, came to High Point last Tuesday and were guests of Rev. and Mrs. R. I. Farmer at the parsonage. They stopped at Asheboro with Mrs. W. C. Hammer en route to Southern Pines. Dr. Miller is president of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Protestant Church.

Mrs. George R. Brown came to High Point last Friday with Dr. Brown, and spent the day with Mrs. S. P. Montgomery.

Master Gilbert Gray, small son of Mr. and Mrs. June Gray, is improving from influenza.

We are pleased to announce the improved condition of Rev. R. I. Farmer, who has been suffering from influenza.

Graham.—The Auxiliary met on Monday night of this week in their annual meeting. Circle No. 3 had the program in charge and entertained and edified everyone with the giving of a splendid play, "Let Mary Do It." The new officers were installed for the coming year. Mrs. H. M. Rogers was made president, Mrs. C. C. Burke, secretary, and Mrs. J. Clyde Auman, treasurer. The officers and Mrs. George Stafford were made representatives to the annual Branch Meeting in Enfield.

Since our last report a Brotherhood has been organized at the Graham church. Bro. Phil S. Dixon has headed it up. We are hoping that this organization, especially cut out for men, will fill a needy place in the church life of our men.

About a month ago or a little more an Intermediate C. E. Society was organized with about 25 members. Now our C. E. leaders tell me that they expect to organize a Junior Society in the next Sunday or so. Our Christian Endeavor among the Seniors is going fine also; we have some of the finest leaders here I have found anywhere. Miss Myrtle Foushee is the president of the Senior Society and Miss Gladys is superintendent of the Intermediates.

The members of the choir are preparing a cantata for Easter Sunday night.

Our Sunday school has been exceptionally good with the exception of a few Sundays when the attendance was off a little.

Finances, of course, do not come up so easily as they used to, yet when we consider the times we cannot complain so much.

Mrs. W. R. Goley has not been able to attend regularly the services of her church for some time. She is greatly missed. Mrs. Z. E. Noah, another one of our sick members, has been confined to her bed for some little time. She seems at this time to be making progress toward recovery. Sarah Catherine Hughes, our little girl of the church and Sunday school, is at Duke Memorial Hospital recovering from a sever attack of pneumonia.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—The second Sunday in February we were very pleasantly surprised to have with us Bro. N. M. Harrison. His sermon was good and was enjoyed by all present. We hope he can come this way again.

The fourth Sunday and yesterday Bro. Trollinger filled his appointments with good sermons. His subject yesterday was "God Answers Prayer." Bro. Trollinger has planned a visitation month for March. We think this a good plan, but the weather has been so bad so far we have failed to carry out his plan. However, we hope to visit Friendship and Brown Summit next Sunday.

Last Sunday at 2:30 the County Sunday school convention was held at this place. All the Sunday schools were represented except Sharon Baptist church. The main speaker for the afternoon was Dr. George Brown, of Reidsville, followed by several short talks.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely. We have had good attendance all the winter. But on March 6th we were backed down for the first time in a number of years; not even "a faithful few."

We are sorry to report that one of our members, Mrs. C. W. Butler, is very sick in Duke Hospital at Durham. Will ask that all Christians who read this offer a word of prayer for her recovery.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. M. C. Henderson, brought us two very helpful and inspiring messages yesterday. We are having preaching only once a month this year as Yarborough charge was left without a pastor and we felt that it was our duty to give them one of our appointments. We were truly glad to have Mr. Henderson returned to us.

Our Sunday school has not been so good for the last two Sundays on account of the cold weather and, too, there is a good deal of sickness in the community. Mrs. J. F. Compton is very sick at his home. Mr. W. M. Compton's family have flu. Mrs. J. Lee Poole of Greenville is seriously ill.

A committee composed of Mrs. N. G. McClimon, Miss Lula Pearson and Miss Emma Lee Poole is getting up an Easter program.

The C. E. Society is progressing nicely under the leadership of Miss Emma Lee Poole. Miss Poole is a graduate of High Point College and is teaching school in this community. The monthly business meeting and social was held at the home of Misses Bonnie and Hazel Massengale last Wednesday night. At the February meeting it was decided the society would help buy new song books for the church.

Lexington, State Street.—No news from us in the past two weeks does not mean that nothing has been done in that time, for surely no two weeks of our history have been fuller of activity in all the departments of the work. Sunday school is alive and flourishing under the very efficient leadership of Mrs. H. S. Lanier. A unique plan for raising some much needed funds is in progress in the school now. It is called 'a half mile of pennies." The smaller children have been provided with strips which hold a foot of pennies. A prize is to be given the child raising the most pennies during this month. All members and friends of the school are contributing in as large a way as possible to this half mile goal which when reached will represent quite a sum of money. The Women's Bible class will serve a chicken pie supper in the church dining room Saturday night, the proceeds of which will go to the half-mile race. This class is working for and nearing another goal—that of an enrollment of 50 members. A generous member of the Sunday school has offered $5.00 to the Women's and Men's class, the conditions being an enrollment of 75 for the men or 50 for the women in a given time. The women lack only a few of their number and feel sure they will win.

The Senior C. E. Society will give a social Wednesday evening. The regular business session will precede the social hour. Mrs. H. S. Lanier is president of the society and is quite as satisfactory there as in the Sunday school.

The thank-ogering service was held Sunday night. A splendid program was given by a group of young ladies of the young people's branch of the Missionary Society and by Mrs. C. L. Koonts and Mrs. H. S. Lanier. Little Misses Dotsy Koonts and Mary Belle Forcum and John Burke Leonard also had parts in the program and rendered them beautifully. Mrs. Annie Harkey is thank-offering secretary and fills the place so well that she is always re-elected. Mrs. Harkey gives the work the best of effort and always produces good results.

A pageant, "Living Water," was given by members of the Auxiliary a few weeks ago and was so well given and so impressive and well enjoyed by all who saw it that a request was made for a second presentation of it, which will be next Sunday night.

The Men's Brotherhood met Tuesday night of last week. They report a good meeting in every sense and a rare treat in the privilege of having Rev. Roy I. Farmer with them to give an address.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Bible class was held with Mrs. Hendry at the parsonage last month. There was an unusually large representation of the class and a number of friends from other churches. As a surprise and a most delightful feature of the meeting Mrs. Hendry asked Miss Roxie Sheets of the First Baptist church to be present and speak to us on some methods of gaining and holding Sunday school pupils. Miss Sheets is one of Lexington's best workers in church and civic circles and was for years a teacher in county and city schools. Her ideas and methods were presented in her attractive and pleasant way. Mrs. Hendry served delicious refreshments.

Mrs. H. T. Blanton and son, Francis, have returned from an extended visit to Jacksonville, Fla., and were with us in the services Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Blanton are living in Salisbury, N. C.

Mrs. Hendry, Mrs. John Leonard, and Mrs. Roy Hoffman comprise the visiting committee. They report a general improvement among the sick visited last week with the exception of the serious illness of Mrs. Paul Gilbert, who is a patient at the Davidson Hospital. We are pained to know of her sickness and hope for her early recovery.

Mrs. Ed Foster was unable to attend services Sunday because of sickness. We hope she can soon be out again.

We were glad to have Mrs. Forcum with us again Sunday after a period of illness.

Thomasville.—The Woman's Auxiliary held the March meeting in the ladies' parlor Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The president, Mrs. A. H. Ragan, presided, with Mrs. W. G. Myers as devotional leader. Mrs. Ragan was also program leader and used as her subject "The Project Plan."

The regular business routine followed the program. The election of officers was as follows: President, Mrs. A. H. Ragan; vice-president, Mrs. T. Glenn Madison; secretary, Mrs. W. G. Myers, and treasurer, Mrs. D. R. Connell. Fifteen members responded to the roll call, with one new member, Mrs. Ed Perry, being welcomed into the society.

During the social hour refreshments were served by Misses Virginia Brown Jarrett and Nora Kay.

Our C. E. Society is taking an active part in the activities of the church. We are glad to report that our society won the C. E. banner for the first month in the City Union contest. Now that we have the banner, please encourage everyone to help keep it in our society.

Union Grove, Mocksville Charge.—Our reporter, saying she did not have time to write, asked me to write a report to this paper. I suppose you readers wish she had time to write, at least I do, for she can write so much better than I can. Anyway, with the help of God and the always faithful few, our church work is successfully moving upward.

Mr. Ferree has been preaching some real good sermons to us if we'll only heed them. We are looking forward without doubt for a real good Easter sermon on Easter Sunday in the afternoon from our pastor, Mr. Ferree.

Mr. Daniels, one of our Sunday school scholars that I spoke about before, had to go back to the hospital. It seems as if his knee is getting worse. We are hoping it will soon be better. We are glad that Mr. Jurney, one of our church members, is getting better. We are sorry that our superintendent's mother is ill and that he had to be absent last Sunday. We are also sorry that one of our teachers and Sunday school scholars, Miss Starr, had to go to the hospital last Sunday afternoon.

March 6th being a real bad Sunday, rain and snow until after Sunday school hour, our

Sunday school scholars entertained themselves at home or somewhere else. Although it was cold and windy last Sunday the always faithful few were out to worship and to hear Mr. Ferree's wonderful message that he had to give us. The text was, "He went a little further and prayed."

"When the meeting's called to order,
And you look around the room,
You're sure to see some faces
That from out the shadows loom;
They are always at the meeting,
And they stay until it's through—
The ones that I will mention
Are the always faithful few.

"They fill the many offices,
And are always on the spot,
No matter what the weather,
Though it may be awful hot;
It may be dark and rainy,
But they are tried and true;
The ones that you rely on
Are the always faithful few.

"There're lots of worthy members
Who would come when in the mood;
When everything's convenient,
They can do a little good;
They're a factor in the meeting,
And are necessary, too,
But the ones who never fail us
Are the always faithful few.

"If it were not for these faithful,
Whose shoulders at the wheel
Keep the institution moving,
Without a halt or reel—
What would be the fate of meeting
Where we claim so much to do?
They surely would be failures
But for the always faithful few."

Our Junior Christian Endeavor class has divided into two groups, Blue Birds and Red Birds, Mozelle Templeton being the Blue Birds' teacher, and Pauline Robertson being the Red Birds' teacher. They have a verse of Scripture to memorize every Sunday evening, and are carrying on an interesting contest.

Our Christian Endeavor is interesting. It is divided into two groups, with a group captain at the head of each group. Our points are counted in presences of the members, sword drill points, and number of Bibles on each side of the groups.

We are hoping with the faith in God our church work, not only ours but all others, will be successful in the future.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Circles 1 and 2 of the Ladies' Auxiliary served the Railway Mail Clerks at their annual banquet Saturday night, March 12th, at the Y. M. C. A. The banquet was attended by the mail clerks and their wives, who expressed their appreciation and praise of such a well cooked and well served feast. We sincerely hope they remember our culinary art in the serving of future banquets.

Our thank-offering service was held Sunday night. The Ladies' Auxiliary had charge of the service. A missionary play, "The Challenge," was given. Those who attended praised the work of the ladies and pronounced the play both beautiful and heart-touching.

April begins a new year for the Auxiliary. The Circles have done splendid work this year. In this time of depression we feel proud in saying the Auxiliary has about raised its budget. During the remainder of the month they hope to go over the top. Wonder what the men would do if it were not for the ladies? Hats off to them!

Let us not forget our workers in the foreign fields. Especially should we remember those who are in the war zone. Next week is "Passion Week." I hope all of our members will make a daily sacrificial offering. This offering is to be placed in the collection plate Easter Sunday.

Let us put ourselves in the place of those heathen who do not know Christ. Picture how unhappy we would be. So let's brighten their lives by making it possible to keep our missionaries there to show them the way.

Corinth Church.—There was no preaching service the first Sunday morning due to the bad weather, although our pastor and two more were present. There will be services on the third Sunday night at 7:30. Don't forget to be there. This will be the first night service we have had since November.

One of our oldest member, Mrs. Rosa Williams, died on March 5th and was laid to rest on March 7th in the church cemetery. Rev. Bingham had charge of the funeral. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Morris, Mrs. M. J. Morris, Vera and Henry Morris attended the funeal of Mrs. W. M. Hochaday at New Hope church Sunday afternoon. Our deepest sympathy goes out to Mr. Hochaday in the loss of his wife, and mother-in-law in three days' time.

West End, Thomasville.—Our pastor Rev. H. W. Bell at 11 o'clock Sunday morning preached a very interesting inspiring sermon.

We are still having good attendance at Senior societies. We are thinking of dividing our Junior Society and making a Junior and Intermediate Society also. This is on account of having more Juniors than we can take care of in one society.

Our Ladies' Aid Society met this month with Mrs. Carlos Hill. We were very glad to receive four new members. All of our members are active and we feel that we are doing a good work for our church. We have paid our part on the carpet of the church and have helped to buy for the church this winter. Our meeting in April will be at the home of Mrs. S. C. Clinard on Miller street.

Yarborough's Chapel.—Since our reporter has failed to report for some time, and I am elected corresponding secretary for the C. E. Society, I will report for both. Our society has held up well through the winter months; now spring is here we hope it will increase our attendance.

Dr. Taylor has assigned Rev. M. C. Henderson to this work. He has preached twice for us. On the second Sunday at 3 p. m. he delivered a very able sermon to a small but attentive congregation. We are hoping this will be a good year for us in the Master's work.

We are planning to hold our Easter program the fourth Sunday evening at 7:30. Misses Lois Watson and Lizzie Bell Gossett are in charge.

We failed to pay our former pastor in full last year, but trust he will bear with us until we get able to finish paying him up. We have paid him $79.50 since Conference.

Shiloh.—The Woman's Auxiliary gave a Thank-Offering service on the fourth Sunday night in February. The attendance was not so large as was desired, but the offering was good, the program interesting: a good talk was made by Pastor Troxler on the value of the Christian church to the community. The Woman's Auxiliary, which is composed of three active circles, is faithfully doing its work in church.

Even on the cold, snowy first Sunday in March, a good sized number came to Sunday school. Every class was represented, and though our crowd was smaller than usual, we knew Christ was among us and we had a good day. Bro. Troxler preached just as though he faced a filled church and brought a message on "King Saul."

Next Sunday the third Sunday, Dr. Straughn, of Baltimore, will be at Shiloh and preach for us. Hope every one will be able to come.

The C. E. will give an Easter program and are busy preparing for it. Won't you all keep it in mind and make your plans to attend? It will be worth while.

Moriah.—The Thank-Offering program was given Sunday, March 13. The program was sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The people participating did their parts well and every one present enjoyed the service, this being shown by the liberal offering received.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met with Mrs. E. P. Sharpe Thursday, March 3. An interesting program was rendered by Mrs. Ethel Sharpe. After the program the officers for the new year were elected. Mrs. Ed Berry and Mrs. Bob Sharpe were elected as delegates to the North Carolina Branch Meeting. After the program and business meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments. The attendance was very good and much interest was shown in the missionary work.

A large number of Moriah people attended the quarterly conference held at Liberty Sunday night, March 13. Much business was transacted.

The attendance at Sunday school and church has been excellent this cold weather. We are forward marching! REPORTER.

SPIRITUAL GIFTS AND HOW TO FIND THEM

In the twelfth chapter of First Corinthians, and usually in Paul's writings, the church is represented as the body of which Christ is the head. As the head directs the body, and through it gives expression to its will, so Christ expresses His will through the church, which is His body.

Every believer at conversion is united to the body of Christ, and thereby becomes a member. Each member has some function to perform, just as the hand or eye has in the physical body. "To every man his work."

As each member has some funtion to perform, so also he has some gift, for the great Head of the church does not expect the members to serve without a capacity for service. "The manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man" (1 Cor. 12:7).

Every believer is bound to believe that he has some spiritual gift, even if he has not discovered it, and even if other people think and say that he has none. God says he has, and that settles it, and the humblest believer will find, if he is willing to wait, and work, and pray, that God's promise is true.

When Dwight L. Moody was examined for church membership one of the deacons went home and told his family that of all the people whom he had ever examined, young Moody was the most unpromising. Events proved that God's promises are more reliable than a deacon's judgment.

The spiritual gifts which believers receive are not of their own selection, but are such as God chooses to confer upon them. "Dividing to every man severally as He will." "God hath set the members every one of them in the body as it hath pleased Him" (1 Cor. 12:11, 18).

No member has a right to be proud of his gifts, any more than an eye has a right to feel superior to the hand or foot. Neither should one member envy another member's gifts, seeing that each one has just what God has seen fit to bestow upon him, each one has more than he deserves, and doubtless more than he is faithfully using.

Spiritual gifts are not conferred on us for our own benefit, but "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ" (Eph. 4:12). Too often this is forgotten, and many a feeble church has unemployed talent enough in its membership to make it a mighty spiritual power, if only its members would exercise their gifts.

I.

Many Christians question seriously if they have any spiritual gift, and the devil encourages them in this belief. So long as he can keep them inactive in the Master's service, they give him little trouble. As a rule this notion arises from the fact that they have never attempted any kind of Christian work. They have never tried earnestly to meet any spiritual need, and hence they do not know what they can do. A duck would never know that it could swim if it did not attempt it.

In the writer's first pastorate he asked several brethren to lead a meeting during the Week of Prayer. All consented but one. He expressed great willingness, but pleaded that he was utterly unable to speak in public. He said that his wife and mother both agreed with him that he could not do it. Soon conversions began to occur, and occasionally one of the converts was asked to sit on the platform with the pastor and open the meeting. One night in response to an invitation to accept Christ, an aged woman and her little grandson arose, holding each other by the hand. Their ages were nine and sixty-nine. A few nights later the little boy was asked to sit with the preacher and lead the meeting. He announced a hymn, read a selection of Scripture, and then prayed. He was small for his age, but very mature, and he had a real gift of prayer. He seemed to forget where he was, and he pleaded so earnestly for the lost that the whole audience was moved to tears, and ungodly men came forward to confess their sins and accept Christ as their Saviour. It was the most effective service we had held.

At the close the brother who thought he had no gift of speech came to me and asked the privilege of leading the service the next night, saying that if a little fellow of nine years old could lead a meeting like that, he would attempt it, even if he made a fool of himself. The next night he led the service in a masterful way, and I never heard him complain again that he had no gift of speech.

It is a great mistake to suppose that all spiritual gifts are necassarily gifts of speech. By no means. What a misfortune it would be if the body of Christ were all mouth! Let it never be forgotten that the eye and the ear, the hand and the foot, are just as important as the mouth. Romans 12:6-15 shows what a great variety of gifts the Spirit confers on the members of the body. Among them is cheerfulness, hatred of evil, patience in suffering, prayerfulness, and hospitality. The fact is that many spiritual gifts are not recognized as such.

About two years ago I was present at a football game between Yale and Princeton. On the grandstand were nearly twenty thousand people. Directly back of me sat a young lady accompanied by a gentleman. She was one of those healthy, happy girls that carry sunshine with them wherever they go. Whenever a good play was made, she gave vent to her enthusiasm in the heartiest manner. Finally, a Yale man caught the ball and, making a fine end play, he ran down the field in triumph. Springing to her feet, she threw up her hat, coat, and everything about her that was loose, and shouted, "Oh, I am so glad I was born."

The young man seemed equally glad, and I am frank to confess that I shared his sentiments. Such splendid enthusiasm! What would it be worth to the cause of Christ? How it would inspire a church, or put new life into a dead prayer meeting, or make even drudgery seem delightful.

You may not have the gift of enthusiasm, but perhaps you have courage to attempt hard things, or a patience that never tires, or a cheerfulness that is contagious, or the faculty of making others see things as you do, or the gift of appreciating other people's good qualities, which is one of the finest of all. You certainly have some gift, for God says so.

II.

How can one ascertain what his gifts are? By going to work for Christ. As a rule no one knows what gifts he possesses until he begins to use them. A few years ago I was connected with the International Christian Workers' Association. This brought me into contact each year with hundreds of Christian workers whom God had signally blessed in some particular line of usefulness. I came to know the history of many of these people, and in almost every instance the story was practically the same.

They had seen some crying need in their community; they had tried in vain to get some one else to meet it; timidly, and in a small way, they had taken up the work themselves; God had blessed their labors, and had given them such joy and success in the work, that eventually they had relinquihed all other business and had devoted their lives to it. Few of them suspected that they had any special gift for the work, and probably they would never have known it, had they not been moved with compassion for some one's need.

I once wrote a leaflet entitled, "Will You Go or Send?" It suggested that, as in war time when men could not go they often sent a substitute, so the Christian who could not go to the foreign field as a missionary, ought to try to send a substitute; that almost any one by much prayer and some sacrifice could support one of those native preachers who can be maintained for thirty dollars a year. A woman in a destitute part of the West wrote me that she wanted a substitute, but she was too poor to have one; however if I would send her some of those leaflets she would try to interest others, and perhaps they could jointly support one. In a few weeks she wrote me that she had organized a missionary society and had a hundred members in it, and that society has been supporting native preachers in the foreign field ever since. Probably she did not suspect that she had the organizing gift, but she found that she had.

I am firmly convinced that if any Christian will take up the first case of spiritual need which presents itself, and endeavor to meet it, and continue so doing, it will not be long before he will find that he has a real gift for some kind of spiritual work. But let him not quarrel with his gift, and wish it were something else. God knew what He was doing when He conferred it, and if one will exercise his gift vigorously and cheerfully, he will find that there is untold joy and blessing to be found therein.

Unless we employ our gifts, they will be taken from us, for the law which governs all our faculties is this—use them or lose them. Mr. Charles Darwin in early life was very fond of poetry, and passionately fond of music. He became interested in natural science, and eventually devoted his life to it. In his last years he testified that his scientific studies had so completely changed his tastes that he no longer cared for poetry, and music caused him positive torture. In other words, he had lost certain gifts by disuse.

In view of this law it is not strange that Paul so often urges Timothy to stir up the gift that is in him. God forbid that any member of Christ's body should lose his gift, or that he should become a near-sighted eye which cannot see afar off, or a defective ear which cannot hear the music of heaven, or a withered arm which is practically useless.

Finally, let us covet, or, as the Revised Version has it, "desire earnestly" the best gifts. We have no right to envy others their gifts, but it is our duty to desire for ourselves the best gifts, to pray for them, and to expect

Moser

Mrs. Ladoskie Watkins Moser, wife of A. H. Moser died at her home on March 8, 1932, aged 63 years. She is survived by her husband, A. H. Moser, two stepdaughters, Mertha Moser, and Mrs. Ivey Kimball; two stepsons, U. L. Moser, and G. D. Moser; and also by six sisters, Miss Mammie Watkins, Mrs. Etta Moser, Mrs Emma Watkins, Mrs. Daisy Wyrick, Mrs. Ora Micheal, and one half-sister, Mrs. Nannie Pearson. The following brothers also survive her, T. W. Watkins. Landy Watkins, and one half brother, Joe Watkins.

The deceased was a faithful member of Mt. Herman church. We feel that our loss is Heaven's gain. She lived a devoted Christian life, and was loved by all who knew her.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, her pastor at Mt. Herman church March 9, and her body was laid to rest in the church cemetery. L. E. MABRY.

Flynn

Mary Elizabeth Gough Flynn was born in Yadkin county N. C. October 21, 1866 and departed this life in Winston-Salem, N. C. March 8, 1932, her age being 65 years, four months and 16 days.

She was united in marriage to J. D. Flynn on December 7, 1884. Her entire life was spent in Yadkin county where she had brought up a large family and where she was favorably known.

She professed saving faith in Jesus Christ when thirteen years of age and united with Stony Knoll Methodist Protestant church where her membership remained so long as she lived.

She is survived by her husband and ten children, W. A. Flynn of Hoke county, L. H. and J. T. Flynn of Winston-Salem, J. H. Flynn of Yadkin county, Mrs. M. A. Angel of Forsyth county, Mrs. W. G. Weaver of Rural Hall, Mrs. E. G. Sears of Winston-Salem, Mrs J. T. Ridings of Yadkin county, Mrs. W. E. Reid and Mrs. W. M. McBride both of Winston-Salem, one brother J. K. Gough and one sister, Mrs. W. T. Hennings, both of East Bend, R.F.D., and 36 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at Enon Baptist church, in Yadkin county, by the writer, who was assisted by Rev. J. E. Pritchard, pastor of First Church, Winston-Salem, and Rev. R. E. Adams, pastor of Enon Baptist church, of East Bend. The body was tenderly laid to rest in the Enon cemetery to await the Resurrection Morning.

Resolutions of Respect for Mrs. Geo. F. Crutchfield

Efland Methodist Protestant church has suffered, a great loss in the passing of one of its best and most faithful members, Mrs. Geo. F. Crutchfield, who fell asleep February 2. 1932.

There is an empty place in the home, a vacant pew in the church, auxiliary and Sunday school class, yet we are thankful to have known her.

The Woman's auxiliary and Philathea class in appreciation of her Christian character and influence wish to offer the following resolutions:

First, That we bow in humble submission to Him that doeth all things well.

Second, That we thank our Heavenly Father for blessing us these years with her loving service to the church, the community and the family.

Third, That as an auxiliary and class we, who have known her, who have seen the faithfulness and loyalty to her church, auxiliary, community, and home, may try to emulate her exalted life, assured that in "God's own time we shall meet again."

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be framed and placed on the walls of the Philathea class room, dedicated to her memory, that a copy be sent to her bereaved family, and a copy be sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald and to the Missionary Record for publication.

MRS. C. L. BOGGS.

Thompson

Mrs. Kendrick Roby Thompson departed this life March 10, 1932, at the age of 71 years, eight months, and 29 days.

She joined the Mt. Ebal M. P. church about 55 years ago. She leaves a long and useful life behind.

She leaves to mourn her departure a husband and three children: S. A. Thompson of Pomona, N. C.; J. G. Thompson of High Point, N. C.; Mrs. Tular Tuttle of Montgomery, Ala., a brother, Franklin Bichur of Randleman, N. C., a sister, Roseline Surratt, of Denton, N. C., 15 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Her remains were laid to rest in the Deep River cemetery.

She was a faithful wife and mother and will be missed by the bereaved family. She has just gone out to explore the regions of her Father's mansions. We realize that her going is our loss, and her eternal gain. May the family and friends be comforted by the fact that in a little while they too may cross over the river and join the family circle that will never more be broken.

The funeral was conducted by the writer assisted by Rev. G. T. Tunstall of East Green Baptist church, High Point, N. C.

CHARLIE L. GRANT.

A NEW DANGER

A man who has not had any kind of job for more than a year wrote a letter to a middle-western newspaper the other day. After telling of his plight he remarked:

"When you see your last few dollars going, no hope of work, not a friend that gives a though, your thoughts are not pleasant and you become bitter. It's this bitterness and hate that terrifies me more than financial embarrassment."

That brief sentence goes about as nearly to the heart of the matter as any one sentence could. It illuminates, that is, the most dismaying part of the entire depression.

It is never easy to see what is going on under our noses. Any highly significant change in the emotional background of the ordinary man is usually recognizable only after it has taken place. But it is beginning to become evident that unless present conditions change shortly, we in the United States shall have built up a class comparable to the proletariat of Europe; a class that sticks to the bottom rung of the ladder, has no hope of rising any higher and looks with envy, suspicion and enmity on those above it.

Heretofore we have not had such a class. The old American tradition—and it is one of the finest traditions ever given to any people—has always been strong, even at the bottom of the heap. Hope was always a common possession of every American. All felt that the freedom and equality of opportunity about which we talk so much were more than empty dreams.

But now the inexorable force of events is beginning to produce a change. The bitterness and hate that this man speaks of are beginning to spread; and they are spreading because the old tradition is losing its force.

There is the real danger that the depression has brought us. It is a worse thing to contemplate even than the hunger and cold and privation that are the lot of so many. We must check it—by showing a greater reeadiness to help those who need help, by making more determined efforts to protect those who need protection. If we fail we shall have infinite cause to regret it.—Selected.

BETTER TO SMILE

It is better to smile
Than to scowl anytime,
It makes life pleasant
And keeps it in rhyme.
The scowler is always
A man you pass by;
It is very much better
To smile than to sigh.

It is better to smile
Than to scowl if you lose;
To laugh, not resent,
If some one abuse.
To scowl and to grumble
Will make you feel worse;
It is better to smile
Than your worries rehearse.

It is better to smile
When things seem wrong;
To drown old depression
In a flood of song.
No matter what happens
You can make it worthwhile,
If you turn from vexation
And wear a bright smile.

TAXING THE CAT

An Associated Press report from Sagan, Silesia, says that an abundance of cats in this Silesian town has induced the City Council to put a heavy tax on these pets. The annual tax amounts to $5 for the first cat, $15 for a second cat and about $22 for a third animal kept in the same househald.—Our Dumb Animals.

THE AFTER DINNER SPEAKER

The speaker's in his den,
Busy with his pen.
Hi! Ho! How words do flow,
When used by fluent men.

The speaker's on his feet,
To practice and repeat.
Hi! Ho! How words do flow,
When tongues are very fleet.

The speaker's out to dine,
Where everything is fine.
Hi! Ho! How words do flow,
When language trys to shine.

The spkear's up to speak,
While fellow diners shriek.
Hi! Ho! How words do flow,
When thoughts an outlet seek.

The speaker's now in bed,
With palpitating head.
Hi! Ho! How words do flow,
And nothing much is said!

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. C. M. Yokely, for the ladies of Bethesda, North Davidson, 2 quilts. This should have been reported earlier. We apologize.

Missionary Society, Beaver Falls, Pa., 10 dozen handkerchiefs, 6 sheets, 6 pairs pillow slips, 6 pairs bloomers and 1 slip for little girls.

We are truly grateful for these gifts of money and substance. We thoroughly appreciate all that comes.

You will note the brevity o f the report. The shortest we ever made following the first Sunday in any month. This we think is due entirly to the cold, stormy Sunday on March 6. We feel sure the people will make it up to us in some way.

The ten dollar contribution above, while credited to a church, comes from a dear brother who recently sent us $5.00. This ten comes as a special to help us meet pressing obligations. Five hundred such individuals out of our 30,000 would clear up our obligations.

Praying God's blessings upon every phase of Kingdom service throughtout the conference, We are,

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

them. There may be a difference of opinion as to what the best gifts are, but personally I should prefer the gift of prayer. In my judgment it is a far higher gift than preaching, and I see no reason why this gift is not open to all. Let us all covet it and expect it. God's Magnet for Souls

Downward,
downward,
downward,
He came
To this region of sin and shame:
Down to weakness, down to His death,
Helpless lies He, and draws no breath.

Men look on with fear and dismay,
Doubting, knowing not what to say.
Time will tell if good man or no,
Let us see what issues will show.

Hours and moments spoke as they passed—
Honest men saw the truth at last!
Man of God and more—God's own Son!
What a shocking thing we have done!

God has o'erruled our human hate,
Making for us an open gate!
Christ is God's Magnet here below—
we go!
upward,
upward,
Upward,

God's Non-Interventions

There has been much surprise, not to say complaint, that God does not intervene to prevent great calamities. Non-intervention seems to imply inattention if not unconcern on the part of God. But Jesus taught that God is not inattentive. He notes the sparrow's fall. He is especially attentive to man: the hairs of his head are numbered. Nor is God unconcerned for men. He loves men with an unwavering love. Yet He permits men to be victims of tragic accident, serious injury, sudden and violent death. Why is it so?

It is not possible for us to understand all the ways of God. His designs are too deep for our comprehension. We are in this world a few years for development and training for a future state. Suffering is one of God's great means of accomplishing His spiritual purposes in us. If we could not believe this, life would be a dark and painful mystery. We would be unreasonable in our demands upon God for relief. We would cry out with the slightest trouble.

Note on this point the difference between Paul and Jesus. Paul had a bodily ailment which he called a "thorn in the flesh." It does not seem to have been serious enough to interfere with his usefulness, but it was no doubt unpleasant and he besought the Lord three times to remove it. But the trouble, whatever it was, had its good purpose in the plan of God and was not removed, but promise was given of sufficient grace to endure it. Jesus came to a very great trouble in the course of his life, but he did not ask God to intervene and save him from it. He said: "What shall I say? Father, save me from this hour?" No, he did not pray that prayer. He prayed, "Father, glorify Thy name!" Then he went on firmly in the way that involved his own most terrible death.

Jesus taught us the proper attitude toward suffering. We are not to seek suffering for its own sake, but when it comes in the way of duty it is to be endured in such a spirit as to glorify God. He that dodges all unpleasant experiences will neither glorify God nor win glory himself.

Suffering seems to be a necessary means of developing the highest virtue in man.

Greensboro Loses a Leading Citizen

Report comes of the death of Charles H. Ireland in Florida where he has spent the winter in an effort to regain his health. He had what physicians call a "tired heart," and was probably a victim of overwork. He was a strenuous worker in several lines. He was very active in business. In association with Brothers R. H. Brooks and J. Norman Wills he built up the great Odell Hardware business, a monument to their industry. He was also a strong political factor, especially in work against the liquor traffic. When told that prohibition will not really prohibit, Mr. Ireland replied: "Then we will try something that will!" In the field of public school management he did much work. He served for years as a member of the school boards of both Greensboro and Guilford county. In church work he was extraordinarily active. For many years he has taught a Bible class. In the business of the church, local and general, he took a very active part. Though he was a laymen he sometimes mounted the pulpit and preached a sermon. He was a native of Virginia; but came to Greensboro fifty years ago. Death took him at the age of 73 years. He leaves a place that will not be filled. But is he not prepared for a large place in the realm to which he has gone?

A Law That Looks Ugly

The legislature of New York has just passed a law making it a crime punishable by fine or imprisonment or both for employers of school teachers for the public schools to ask a prospective teacher his religious affiliations. This is separation of church and state "with a vengeance." We hope to read that New York's governor has vetoed the law.

A Statement and A Challenge

To the North Carolina Conference

I ASK the careful consideration of our church in North Carolina of this message. You will bear witness that I have not imposed myself upon you in the columns of THE HERALD. I do feel that the time has come when I should speak through this paper.

Is the North Carolina Conference of the mind to preserve High Point College, and thus conserve all that has been invested and assure its future, or is it a matter of unconcern? A plain question but a pertinent one. This business of trying to maintain our College is not—can never be—a one-man job. We can preserve this institution but it will take all of us—all the time—to do it. Ours is a common interest and a common task.

I AM APPEALING

First—For the raising of the College Allotment. Each year the Conference allots a budget for the maintenance fund of the College. Nearly five months of the conference year are past—and $150.00 has come to us. The College has received from September 1st to September 1st the following amounts through these several years:

1931-32	$?
1930-31	1,775.00
1929-30	8,209.04
1928-29	6,134.01
1927-28	3,525.14
1926-27	3,927.21

In one week the Easter appeal will be out of the way. May I urge that all our pastors make a special effort to get in the allotment for the College during April? We have so many obligations on us, and only two months of the College year remains. If already you have raised monies for this cause, send your check to Dr. Brown, Treasurer, so that he can get it to us.

Second—For the selling of the High Point College Bonds. Needless to say it has been a matter of grave concern that there has seemed so little co-operation on the part of the pastors and church committees in trying to place these bonds. I do not ask why—I only say it ought not so to be. The Board of Education of this Conference and the Conference authorized these bonds: the Conference, last November, pledged its full co-operation to the selling of them. The material assets behind the bonds are sufficient to fully secure them. The church has pledged its honor to stand by them. Every minister and lay member of the church is a party to that pledge.

To date there has been sold and delivered in the North Carolina Conference $14,700.00. I am giving below the charges from which these purchases have come, along with the quota for such charges:

	Bought	Quota
Haw River	$ 500.00	$2,500.00
Moriah	200.00	2,000.00
North Davidson	1,400.00	2,000.00
Orange	1,300.00	2,000.00
Fallston	200.00	2,000.00
Mt. Hermon	300.00	2,000.00
Denton	100.00	1,000.00
Whitakers	500.00	1,000.00
Enfield	2,000.00	2,000.00
Shiloh	1,500.00	2,000.00
Weaverville	200.00	700.00
Halifax	200.00	1,000.00
Albemarle	100.00	500.00
Reidsville	100.00	1,000.00
Tabernacle	100.00	2,500.00
Pinnacle	1,200.00	2,500.00
Richland	200.00	500.00
Henderson	100.00	5,000.00
Asheboro	300.00	5,000.00
Grace	600.00	2,000.00
Calvary	800.00	2,500.00
Cleveland	1,200.00	1,000.00
At Large	1,600.00
	$14,700.00	$42,700.00

Thus twenty-three (23) charges have bought all that have been placed, in a range from $100.00 to $2,000.00; and these charges represent forty-four (44) families. You can see that the entire purchase is about one-third of the quota. Cleveland and Enfield are over the top.

Four charges have reached the fifty percent mark—Whitakers, North Davidson, Orange and Shiloh. Pinnacle has nearly reached this mark. What about the great number of charges left—with no bonds?

It might be of interest to our readers to see this from another angle. The forty-four (44) purchases have been as follows: one for $2,000.00, one for $1,500.00, four for $1,000.00, two for $600.00, three for $500.00, one for $400.00, nine for $200.00, twenty-three for $100.00.

Several of the pastors of these twenty-three charges have said, "We will sell our quota." Fine; now pastor, will you help to speed this up? Other pastors, not in this group, have said the same thing. Fine again: only, will you make the start? So much depends on this work being done!

Not a gift—but an investment!
Not a chance—but a certainty!
Not speculating—but specializing!

We will pull through with God's help, but God can only help the College through you. No institution in the whole church is rendering a greater service for the church than High Point College. Will the church let it fail?

The Campaign in High Point? Certain business conditions made delay imperative in trying to place bonds; but, remember, $12,000.00 was placed in High Point (outside the denomination) before Christmas—nearly as much as in the conference. The church must show her own interest if we expect High Point to rally to the cause.

What about the General Church? $31,000.00 worth of these bonds were bought in Maryland before September, 1930. $5,200.00 has been bought by the other sections of the church. So, the church outside of North Carolina has now $36,200.00 of these bonds,—two and one-half times as much as North Carolina. Ought we not do for ourselves as much at least as the rest of the church has done for us? Surely so.

I have not yet cried, "Wolf, Wolf!"—nor shall I do so. But, this is apparent,—the church, to which this College belongs, has fought too long in the trenches. It is time to come out. The best defensive is a strong offensive. The question is, does the ministry and laity of the North Carolina Conference really want to save and secure High Point College? What answer will you make?

G. I. Humphreys.

THE PARENTS SPEAK

I am indeed very much pleased with the report of my daughter for the past semester.

For three years she was the student of a large college for women, but transferred at the beginning of this college year to your college. She is now receiving the individual instruction she did not receive at the larger college, and in my opinion is doing much better work.

I like the spirit of your college, and the interest taken in the students, as well as the instruction given in the class room.

M. W. Nash,
High Point, N. C.

* * *

I sent my daughter to High Point College because I believe she would get better Christian training there than in any of the State Colleges. Because I believe the faculty is composed of the highest type of Christian people. We are Methodist Protestants and think all Methodist Protestants in North Carolina should send their children to High Point College.

SAYING IT WITH PICTURES

At least once a week I see some outstanding moving picture.

This is partly for the sake of amusement, somewhat for information and instruction, and, to a considerable extent, that I may keep in touch with the thinking and feeling of the masses of people through one of the most significant disclosures of what they desire to see and hear.

In these pictures some things are said and done exceedingly well. Some information, and lessons of various sorts, are sent home with a directness, a strength, and an impressiveness that make me wish that the churches had the wit and wisdom and enterprise to make a much larger and more effective use of this marvelous invention.

There is also a great deal of blundering work. And much misinformation and many exceedingly harmful lessons and suggestions are sent home to receptive minds by skillful and insinuating methods. This should make thoughtful people tremble at what is being done to the millions who, at the most impressionable age, are subjecting themselves to this modern form of entertainment.

I suppose that moving pictures, as is the case with daily newspapers, are meant to give a representation of what people are thinking and doing—to present a cross-section of American thought and taste and life.

There are dailies that unblushingly cater to the lowest levels of humanity by presenting in their columns the basest and most corrupt phases of human life and thought. In the same way there are pictures that express and minister to the feeling for crime and vice.

There are some great newspaper—I am glad to mention in this connection The Chicago Daily News and The Washington Evening Star—in which not only the editorial departments but the news sections as well are conducted on a high level of intellectual and moral character.

There are moving pictures—I shall mention a few of them—that are so good in staging, acting, and photography, and that ring so true in representations of the right slant morally and socially, that they become of immense value in every way.

"Abraham Lincoln," in which Walter Huston is starred, is such a picture. So is "The Man Who Played God," starring George Arliss. So is "Emma," in which Marie Dressler shines and furnishes loud laughs for everybody. "His Woman," co-starring Gerry Cooper and Claudette Colbert, is a good picture, as is also "Delicious," in which Janet Gaynor delights everyone.

There are other good pictures, above the average, that are marred by marked defects. Last week I saw "Arrowsmith," a picture made from what is said to be Sinclair Lewis' best novel, by that name. There is good work and heroism of the right sort in it—including a fine instance of love-loyalty. But it is unnecessarily greatly marred by drinking and smoking. The hero, a fine scientist, goes wild in his orgies after the death of his devoted wife. The heroine, Helen Hayes—an unusually talented and effective actress—smokes under circumstances which greatly discount her powers of self-control. Some of the smoking by film stars would at least suggest the possibility that cigarette companies were using moving pictures for advertising purposes.

Yesterday I saw "The Office Girl." This picture was made in England by English performers, the scenes being laid in Vienna. It contains some very fine work, and some exceedingly interesting and beautiful situations. But it also has an excessive amount of drinking. In one scene where beer and champagne were flowing freely, a woman two seats behind me remarked, "My, I wish I could have some of that!"

In the pictures that I have unreservedly commended, I noticed the almost complete absence of three objectionable features—smoking, drinking, and excessive frequent and prolonged embracing. One need not object to a reasonable amount of these in order to be true to the facts in the case, but the absence of excesses is a decided advantage.

It would not be fair to leave the impression that moving picture people are the only offenders in some of these matters. At the recent conference of representative Protestants, Catholics, and Jews held here in Washington, I was surprised to see so much smoking during the sessions of small groups and in the gathering of the entire conference. Cigars, cigarettes, and pipes were in evidence. Priests, rabbis, and Protestant ministers indulged freely—even Methodist and Congregational ministers. I was glad not to see any woman smoking.

The remedy in all cases against objectionable features in moving pictures and in life must, in the nature of the case, be largely personal and family. The home and the individual conscience and good taste will always be the main dependence when it comes to forming and stabilizing the characters, lives and habits of the young.

LUTHER K. LONG.

HE IS AT THE HELM

"It was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them" (John 6:17).

It turned out to be a dark and stormy night, and, to outward appearance, the disciples were left alone in the midst of the raging billows. There was no Jesus in the ship with them—no blessed Master to compose their troubled minds or encourage their drooping hearts. Had the night been calm and clear, they would not have felt His absence in the same way. But now everything seemed against them. The troubled sea, the stormy wind, the darkness of the night, the difficulty in rowing, and the Lord's absence made their position one of perplexity and distress.

But where is the Lord all this time, and whither has He gone? Has He ceased to care for His disciples or is He not aware of their distress? He has gone to the place of power, and that power He is using on their behalf. From the mountain, whither He had gone to pray, His all-seeing eye is following them unweariedly. Not a single wave has touched the vessel without His measuring hand, and not a breath of wind that He has not sent forth from its chambers. He is at the helm, we may say, of the winds, the waves, and the vessel. His hand lays hold on everything; He rules over all. Never was He more near to His people, or they more dear to Him, than when they were passing through the storm, apparently alone.—Publisher Unknown.

TRIUMPHANT PRAYER

John W. Redfield was a remarkable revivalist among the Methodists. After he had preached one morning, a number waited upon him, and told him they did not care for his preaching. He said, "Did I preach anything untrue?" They said, "No! But we do not care for your style."

The following Sunday he preached again, but to an unresponsive audience. His heart was crushed. He felt something must be done to break up the stony hearts of the people. The following day he resorted to the woods, and undertook to pray things through. After praying for some time he seemed to come in contact with what seemed like a stone wall. This was repeated over and over again. He continued in prayer throughout the days which followed until Saturday evening. The next day he told the people possibly it was the last day he would minister to them. He said, "You do not care for my preaching, and I am tired of pouring water on rocks. But I have decided that before I leave I shall see a break, or annihilate this unholy apology for Methodism."

He proceeded with his message, and concluded without seeing any apparent results. Returning to the church at night, he which he had made in the morning, and proceeded to preach. After preaching, he asked how many in the congregation were prepared to take the way which he had marked out, namely, the way of the Cross. Two men stood. He said, "We will just pray." The two man prayed without any result being apparent. Then Mr. Redfield began. He knew the hour had come to make good the statement he had made at the morning service. He prayed for a little, but soon encountered the same obstacle which he had met without in the woods. Exhausted he fell back and waited for a moment, and then regaining his strength and inspiration, he prayed again. But again he encountered the same difficulty. This was repeated six times. Then mustering all the courage and strength he had left, he undertook for the seventh time to pray things through. After he had prayed a little he encountered the same difficulty, but this time it broke into shivers. The people were prostrated. Backslidden church-members confessed their backsliding. Old wrongs were made right, and a glorious revival broke loose in the neighborhood, resulting in scores of people being converted. The devil can outwit, outwork and out-general us: but he cannot out pray us. When the vision is filled with a Living God, it is marvelous what things you will dare to do. Elijah only prayed sixty-three words. Dare to launch out on God. He has promised to meet our every need.—Elim Evangel.

Repeated the Announcement

FAITH

Faith—that most precious, priceless, Divinely-wrought principle, positively delights in being called to lean absolutely and abidingly upon the Living God. But it must be the real thing. It is of little use talking about faith if the heart be a stranger to its power. Mere profession is perfectly worthless. God deals in moral realities. "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he have faith?" He does not say, "What doth it profit though a man have faith?" Blessed be God, those who, through grace, have it, known that it profits much every way. It glorifies God as nothing else can do. It lifts the soul above the depressing influences of things seen and temporal. It tranquillizes the spirit in a most blessed manner. It enlarges the heart, by leading us out of our own narrow circle of personal interests, sympathies, cares and burdens, and connecting us livingly with the eternal, exhaustless spring of goodness. It works by love, and draws us out in gracious activity towards every object of need, but specially toward those who are of the household of faith. It is faith alone that can move along the path where Jesus leads.—Scripture Truth.

Schedule Completed

Up to the time of our last week's report we had gone as far as Tabernacle church, Tabernacle charge, in the schedule arranged for Dr. Straughn. Since that time we have been to Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant charge; Liberty, Liberty-Moriah charge; Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth charge; Thomasville, Bess Chapel, Bess Chapel—Caroleen charge; Oak Grove, Cleveland charge; Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson charge; Shiloh, Shiloh charge; and Denton, where we closed in a good service Sunday night. The itinerary may be tabulated as follows: Appointments met, 12; ministers in attendance, 38; charges represented, 38; churches represented, 114; total attendance other than ministers at all meetings, 650; miles traveled, about 550. The reactions on the part of the people to these efforts were gratifying,—highly so in many places. We are led by these meetings strongly to the belief that this is one of the most effective ways of getting the programs of the church before the people. Our largest week-day attendance was at Oak Grove Friday night. About 75 were present. The pastor estimated the attendance at 300 at Shiloh Sunday morning, and in the closing service at Denton we had the house well filled. Brother Gibbs made a good substitute for Dr. Straughn, and his messages were well received. We are confident that results will fully justify this effort.

We are indebted to Brother Wilberforce Causey and family, Brother and Sister J. E. Pritchard, Brother C. E. Ridge and family, Brother Jeff Berrier and family, and Brother Robert Short and family for entertainment. Brother Gibbs left Sunday night for his home in Westminster, Md. Dr. Straughn writes today, expressing his deep disappointment at not being able to keep these appointments. His cold persisted for a number of days before yielding to treatment. He is now able to be in his office again.

Joash

''We will observe JOASH DAY in all churches on Spring Church charge.''—Wm. H. Neese.

This post card message came today. Cheering, too. Thank you, Brother Neese. A few more cards like this and we would have assurance from every pastor in the conference. Come on, brethren, and let's make JOASH 100 per cent. To the list of charges already given that will observe JOASH DAY the following are to be added: Bess Chapel—Caroleen, Lincolnton, Fallston, West Forsyth, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion, Mocksville, Shiloh, Denton, Davidson, Community Church, Thomasville First church, Thomasville West End, North Davidson. Brother C. E. Ridge has the JOASH BOX ready, and it was on exhibition at Oak Grove last Friday night. Brother R. S. Troxler expects to have his ready by next Sunday. JOASH is marching on. If April 30th does not show marked improvements in pastor's salaries and budget receipts, one man will be greatly disappointed. This is a fine opportunity for pastors to get their laymen to work, and likewise a fine opportunity for laymen to do some work. If the officers of the church will get behind this movement, they will have a great deal less work to do at the end of the year. Laymen and laywomen, give this your lift, your strong lift, and make it go. And young people, you get into it. It needs your enthusiasm and your confidence. All together, now, pastors and people, for a great Pay-up experience through JOASH DAY!

And let's get it clearly in mind: Pastorss' salary gets 50 per cent; A. C. B., 25 per cent; N. C. S., 25 per cent. It is a regular, and NOT an extra offering. All persons who contribute are to be given full credit on their pledges or assessments, as the case may be. And note this: April is just half of the conference year. Figure out the balance due on salary, A. C. B. and N. C. S. up to April 30, and you will have the GOAL for JOASH DAY. Announce this to the congregation and then,—well, just give the JOASH BOX gospel measure.

Everybody now, talking, working, praying, for JOASH success.

Next Sunday

We trust that it may be a happy one for our pastors and their people, and that in all of our churches much emphasis may be put on the resurrection of our Saviour. No fact is more vital to our religious belief than this. If we worship a dead Christ, what hope have we? ''But now is Christ risen from the dead.'' That is our hope; that is our assurance. Let us make that blessed fact resound with confidence and gladness in all of our churches next Sunday. And please let the offering be taken for NEW CENTURY SERVICE. Do this, whether the Easter program, as provided by our Board of Missions, is rendered or not. May our hearts burn within us as we worship our risen Lord on Easter Sunday.

Allotment for Representatives

The amount given to each charge will be found on page 119 of the Journal. We trust that it may be raised at once and forwarded to Dr. Brown. The General Conference will be on in a little while, and our delegates must not be left to attend at their own expense.

North Davidson

March 19.—We were with this charge on this date in the second quarterly conference, which was held at Mt. Pleasant church. Brother Gibbs spoke in the morning in the interest of New Century Service. The conference followed in the afternoon, with 24 officials present, and quite a number of other interested persons. All churches were represented but Union Grove. Pastor Loy submitted a written report. The organizations of the charge appear to be in good condition. Mt. Pleasant, Spring Hill, and Bethesda have C. E. societies; Spring Hill has a good Aid Society, and Bethesda an active Auxiliary. Each of the five churches has a Sunday School. Bethesda reports the best winter attendance ever. All schools contribute monthly to the Home. Canaan and Bethesda are preparing an Easter program. Report as to finances showed that pastor had received a total of $282, leaving a balance due to date of $263. The total budget payments amount to $22.83. We trust that JOASH DAY may bring all balances up to date. Official action was taken by the conference toward providing a parsonage for the charge. A committee was appointed to investigate sites and the cost of building, and report to the conference, which will meet in special session when the committee is ready to report. Much interest was shown toward this project. We wish it success. Brother Loy has been kindly received by the charge, and is giving himself earnestly to the work. A hopeful spirit prevails. Mt. Pleasant church has just lost one of its most faithful members in the passing of Mrs. J. R. Stone. The funeral service was held at this church, and was participated in by Pastor Loy, Brother H. L. Powell, and myself. Brother Stone and the other members of his family have our sympathy in this sorrow.

Appointments

March 27.—EASTER, at home.
April 3.—Randleman charge, Lebanon church, 11 A. M.
April 9-10.—Saxapahaw charge, as previously announced.
April 24.—Calvary in Anniversary Service.

"I am the resurrection, and the life."

Fraternally yours,

S. W. Taylor.

ON THE ENGINE

No doubt all our readers have ridden in a train, but have you ever had a ride on a railway engine? Many years ago I had a ride on one as it drew a mixed train of trucks and carriages along the line.

I remember how strange it seemed to look back at the long train coming on behind, instead of looking out of the carriage window at the engine away ahead. I remember, too, how the engine seemed to dance about and wobble from side to side as it drew its heavy load onwards to its destination.

A man was one day walking alongside the railway track, when an engine driver whom he knew had been converted, hailed him, and asked him to come for a ride. Up he climbed into the cab and at once began to talk about the Bible.

After they had been talking for a while, the man said to the engine driver, "I can see you have a different religion from mine. You have a religion of two letters, while I have one of four letters."

"How do you make that out?" said the driver.

"Well," replied the other, "your religion is Do. You are always talking about what you do! My religion is Done—and I am always talking about what the Lord Jesus Christ has done when He bore my sins on the Cross."

Yes, there is a difference between "do" and "done." If you are going to try to be saved by doing, your work will never be done, and it is useless to start.

Useless, because on the Cross the Lord said, "It is finished? The work that saves: once and for ever done. We are told in Hebrews 10:12 that the Lord having offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down on the right hand of God.

It is foolish, too, to spend your days in doing, as the Lord might come for all who are saved, or you may die. We want you to be wise, and give up the doing at once.

When the Philippian jailer said to Paul and Silas, "What must I do to be saved?" they said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." Very simple, wasn't it?

The jailor believed and was saved. At once he began to do good deeds, not in order to be saved, but because he was saved. What is it to be then with you—do, or done.—H. C. H., in The Life Line.*

WHEN I WALK AND TALK WITH JESUS

I want to walk the narrow way;
Want Christ to lead me, day by day,
I know my feet will never stray
When I walk and talk with Jesus.

Sometimes I'm on a mountain high,
Or down the valley deep and wide,
But I am always satisfied
When I walk and talk with Jesus.

I oft' escape the tempter's snare
Even when my path is full of care,
For I can make it right with prayer
When I walk and talk with Jesus.

When threat'ning sin approaches near
I list' my Saviour's voice to hear . . .
I know that I have naught to fear
When I walk and talk with Jesus.

I lay my burdens at His feet,
It makes my blessings far more sweet,
And makes the narrow way complete . . .
When I walk and talk with Jesus.

—The Texas Christian Advocate.

TRUST HIM TO WORK THROUGH YOU

It is one thing to work for God; it is another to have God work through us. We are often eager for the former; God is always desirous of doing the latter. One of the important facts in the surrender of the life is that it is the attitude which gives God the chance to work His perfect will through us. For it is God that is working to evangelize the world; it is God who has laid the plans for it; it is God who has the power to successfully execute them. Now the God who is the Ruler of the universe does not want us to plan, and worry, and work for Him. For while He appreciates our purposes toward Him, yet they may be all athwart His purposes for, and through us. What He wants is not our plans, but our lives, that He may work His plans through us.

Now God will certainly do this through every life that is yielded to Him, if we simply trust Him so to do, and follow Him as He leads us on. His Word upon this is clear: "For we are * * * created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them." God hath an ordained plan of good works in Christ Jesus, and as each member of the body of Christ Jesus, and as each member of the body of Christ yields himself or herself to Him absolutely to do His ordained works, He will give to, and reveal to, that individual member his or her particular works, so that they may walk in them.—James H. McConkey.

OUR STORY PAGE

HOW HE TABULATED HER RELIGION

A minister was holding a series of meetings with Grand Avenue Church, and one evening when the topic had been, "The New Birth," Mrs. Fessenden said to her husband as they walked briskly down the lightest street: "I wish you had decided for Christ tonight, dear; I thought you would, the speaker made it so plain, and so many responded to the invitation."

"Would my rising to my feet there have made any difference with me in any way?"

"It would have put you and your influence on the side of the right."

"But is not my influence already on the right side?" he interrupted. "What do I do that you do not do? You are a professing Christian, and I am not."

"You remember the illustration that he gave," she interrupted now. "The moralist and the Christian are on the same street, but one is headed toward the Kingdom of God, and the other goes in an opposite direction."

"Yes, but I am not able to see that you and I are not headed the same way. I will try to state the matter more clearly to you later. Here we are now at home."

Presently as they sat down together with a bit of hot supper on the round table between them, he recurred to the matter as she poured the chocolate and laughed a little as she began reading the somewhat lengthy statement that he submitted for her inspection.

"How fearfully businesslike it looks!" she said.

"I do not use tobacco in any way. You do not.

"I do not use profane language. Neither do you.

"I am a teetotaler. So are you.

"I go to the theater. You go to the theater.

"I play cards. You play cards.

"I attend church irregularly. You do the same.

"I pay something for religious purposes. So do you.

"I dance. You dance.

"I associate with unbelievers. You do the same.

"I read trashy novels. You read trashy novels.

"I do not attend devotional meetings. You do not.

"I do not read the Bible. Do you read the Bible?

"I do not pray. Do you pray?

"Now what does your church membership add to your manner of living? Why are our ways different?"

The young woman began reading the list with a laugh, but ended in tears.

"Oh, my dear," he cried, "I had no intention of paining you! I am sorry."

"I am not sorry, I thank you. You make me see how far wrong I have gone in my endeavor to show you that religion need not make one stupid and poky. It is not strange that you hestitate to take your stand as a Christian when you see how inconsistent I am to my profession of having been born to newness of life."

Again their lives flowed onward side by side. She was not less bright, sweet, or companionable, but when the card clubs and the dancing clubs organized she did not join. She did jon the mission workers' band, and was faithful in attendance. She no longer went to the theater, and every time she declined, her husband put the expense for both, saved, into her mission box. She no longer read her Bible in secret. She took up work in the Sunday School. Her time was no more taken than before, but she was differently employed.

Soon the gay, thoughtless people with whom she had associated were no longer in sympathy. "What has become of Mrs. Fessenden?" was asked, and the reply came scornfully. "Oh, she's running her church now! Can't imagine what has come over her. She has always been a church member, but she was real decent about it. Did everything the rest of us did, and she didn't preach. She is really a bright, sweet woman, but now she has always some church engagement to attend to when we need her to make up our parties, and she does not hesitate to say: 'I have too long been regardless of the admonition, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God".' "

"And her husband?"

"Oh, he is loyal to her! He is a real lover. He goes wherever she goes: but the poor man must be having a dull time of it."

Mr. Fessenden meantime did not consider himself an object of commiseration. If his wife's departure was an experiment, he found it an interesting one. He found his new environment more refined, more intellectual, congenial than the old, for earnestness took the place of frivolity, and he found himself awakening to a knowledge of a spiritual life.

When at length he made his decision, he said: "I have at last, through the influence of my wife, found that the true meaning and purpose of life is to follow Christ and to do the work in the word which He left for His followers."

And the happy life often says: "How near I came to making a fatal mistake! I tell my experience that it may be a warning and a blessing for others. Do not sink to the level of the world; bring the word up to a knowledge of Christ."—Publisher Unknown.

BETH LEARNS THE MEANING OF COURTESY

"Mother, what is this word?" asked Beth, pointing to a word in the book she was reading.

"Spell it out, dear, and I will tell you," answered mother, for she thought this would be the best way to help Beth remember the word.

"C-o-u-r-t-e-s-y," and mother told her how to say it.

"What does it mean, mother?" Beth asked. Then mother explained that courtesy was real politeness in action and in words.

"Mary isn't polite, mother. This afternoon in school I asked her how to spell a word and she moved away and said I ought to learn my lesson myself. She's worse than me."

"So you ought to learn your lesson, dear. But we shall see." And mother went on with her work and said no more.

The next day Beth and her chum, Mary, had to go shopping for their mothers. This was a great treat to both and they kept up a continual chatter concerning many things.

Just as the girls were about to cross one of the busy streets they saw a man standing on the edge of the sidewalk. He wore dark glasses and Mary noticed he seemed nervous and fearful of crossing the street.

"Oh, Mary, no!" cried her chum. "He does not want to. He's just waiting for some one. Let's hurry home. I'm tired."

But Mary turned back, and walked up to the man, laid a small hand on his arm and asked gently:

"Do you want to cross the street, sir? May I help you?"

"Thank you, little lady," said the man in a grateful voice, "I have been standing here for what seems ages. You see it is only a short time since I lost my sight, and I'm not used to walking yet. My little girl generally comes with me, but she is ill."

"I will take you to the place you wish to go, sir, if you like." And Mary, motioning to Beth to join her, walked several blocks with the man, leaving him at the place where he told her he wanted to go.

Of course the girls were a little later than usual getting home and when Beth got home she told her mother about Mary and the blind man. "Mother," she said, "Mary always does things like that and spoils everything and makes us all tired."

"Beth," said mother, "yesterday you asked me what courtesy meant. Do you know now? And do you still think Mary is worse than you?"

Beth's face flushed. "No mother," she said slowly, "I must be the one that is wrong, but next time I'll try; really I will." And she did.—Young Soldier.

BILLY'S ANSWER

In our school days, it was the custom once a year for the "inspector" to come around and examine the various classes. It was always a busy time before the "inspector" came, drilling us in our lessons, that he might be able to report well of our school.

In those days, the Bible lesson was a matter of considerable importance, and we had to answer a great many questions from the Bible on whatever subjects the inspector thought fit to ask them. It was always an anxious time for the master, especially while the younger ones were being examined. I remember one inspection day, we were being questioned on the "Life of Paul."

"Who was Paul?" asked the inspector.

"The chief of sinners," said a little fellow.

This answer seemed to take the inspector by surprise, but he said nothing. In a few minutes he returned to the top of the class, where Billy, the boy who had given that answer stood.

The next question was, "Paul tells us he was a Pharisee: Who were the Pharisees?"

"People who had a religion without Christ," was Billy's answer.

The inspector looked at the master, shook his head, and Billy was asked no more questions. I believe the lad knew more about it than either the inspector or the master, for time has proved Billy to be a true Christian, and he was saved in his early days. His answers were right, although he receved no prize that day for them.

People read and admire the lives of Paul and the other Apostles, and generally miss the principal part of them, that is, their conversion to God. This is the first step in true Christian life, apart from which, none can truly serve the Lord on earth, or go to dwell with Him in Heaven.

Billy works diligently with his hands by day, and delights to preach Christ at night to those around him. How grand to be saved in early days! Dear reader, are you?—Young People's Guide.

CAPTAIN CHARLIE

He did not know he was a hero, but I think he was, and perhaps you will, too, when you read the story.

He was a square-shouldered little fellow, who lived in our street. He wore overalls when playing in the dirt, and he had a funny way of looking at you, as if he thought he was about as big as his father.

Half a dozen other little fellows chose Charlie as their leader. Instead of calling them by their first names he used their last names, and as his name was McArthur they named him "Mac."

These little fellows played all day long, game after game, and were very happy.

Charlie's mother used to say, "Charlie is a born leader. Oh, if I could only know he would be a good one!" I can tell you boys, between ourselves, that ever so many mothers are thinking of that very thing.

Well, one day a little chap wandered into our street and began to play with Charlie and his "regiment," for that is what he called the boys who followed his lead. When he had been with them half an hour he began to swear. Charlie stopped playing and looked at him.

"Did you do that a-purpose?" he asked.

"Yes," he replied, "and I'll do it again."

"Robinson," cried Charlie to one of his followers.

"Here," he answered, running to Charlie's side, the rest of the boys following.

"He sweared," said the little captain, pointing to the stranger, "and we don't have boys that swear on this street. What'll we do with him?"

"You can't do anything," he replied; "I'll stay here if I've a mind to," and began kicking dust.

"Not unless you promise never to swear again," said Charlie. "This regiment don't swear, and none of us are going to smoke or drink liquor, either."

Sullivan left, and when he turned the corner they all went on with their play.

Charlie's mother, who sat by an open window could not go on with her sewing until she had wiped the tears from her eyes. But they were tears of joy.—Water Lily.

HOW TO REACH ENFIELD

Enfield is 19 miles north of Rocky Mount on route 40. Persons from the central and western parts of the State would best go through Raleigh on No. 90 to Rocky Mount. From Rocky Mount travel north on No. 40 to Enfield.

From the vicinity of Mocksville, Lexington, or Asheboro travel all the way to Rocky Mount on No. 90.

From the vicinity of Winston-Salem, Greensboro, or Burlington travel No. 10 to where 10 and 90 come together about eight miles west of Raleigh. These two routes coincide for four or five miles. From where they separate travel No. 90 to Rocky Mount.

Persons traveling on No. 10 from points west of Burlington may save some distance and considerable time by taking a short cut to Graham at Frank Spoon's store near Burlington (all hard surface). From Graham travel No. 54 through Chapel Hill, coming on to No. 10 again nine miles beyond Durham. This short cut and No. 54 route avoids the delay in getting through a number of towns, including Burlington and Durham.

Distances: Greensboro to Raleigh, 77 to 82 miles; Raleigh to Rocky Mount, 56 miles. Rocky Mount to Enfield 19 miles.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Rev. T. M. Johnson, 1 Boy Scout suit, 1 dress and 2 pieces of underwear.

Sunday school, Kiswick, Iowa, 1 package of S. S. papers and picture cards.

We greatly appreciate the gifts of money and substance reported above.

The urge here is so great that we sent a letter to each pastor and to each S. S. superintendent in the conference at the first of March, stating the financial condition of the Home, and asking that every Sunday school in the conference plan to take the regular monthly offering, and to urge the schools up to their best.

The weather on the first and second Sundays in March was exceedingly cold and rough, and as a result the income for March, thus far, is the smallest monthly income we have had during any month since we have been here. However, it is the Lord's work and the Lord's weather and these are the Lord's children we are trying to provide for, so we know He will prompt you to remember His work here where your Sunday schools spring back to normal.

Yours in His Service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Laurel Hill.—Sunday, March 13th, our pastor, Rev. A. D. Shelton, delivered a good message from the text "Be strong and of good courage." The message was very impressive and all present enjoyed it. The audience was small due to the weather and so much sickness.

Our Sunday school attendance has been very good for the past few Sundays, but we are looking forward to an improvement.

Our superintendent is able to be with us again after a long illness.

A suite of furniture has been purchased for the pulpit and the church floor oiled. We are hoping to be able to buy some new carpet soon.

The second quarterly conference will be held at Friendship church on Saturday before the third Sunday in April. It is very important that each official be present.

Mr. Shelton was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Willis Sunday.

Sister Ella Alwran is improving , we are glad to say.

Sister Etta Sain is fast improving also.

We are very sorry to report that Sister Lucy Brackett is confined to her hed due to a cold. We hope for her a speedy recovery. REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—Last Sunday being Palm Sunday, at the morning service the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, read the account of Jesus' trumphal entry into Jerusalem upon a colt, when the multitude strewed palm branches before him and sang Hosannas in His honor. He chose for the subject of his message, the question of John the Baptist sent from prison to Jesus, "Art thou he that should come or look we for another?" which he called "Doubting or Praising Christ." He said many people are cheated out of their due measure of success by doubts. Lord Nelson, of naval fame, said, "When there is ever any doubt about fighting, I always fight.'" When they came to the hour of decision, there was no doubt in the minds of Martin Luther, John Knox, Abraham Lincoln, Schwab, Robert E. Lee, Henry Ford, or other immortals. O, young people, if you have any doubts about truth, hold steady and doubt your own powers! When people are discouraged, down, and out, then the devil gets in his best work. If you will go out and do something for somebody else, you will at once lose your doubts, and get a better perspective on life. All religious experience seems at times to include doubt and anguish of heart. I would rather have been John the Baptist with his hope of God than the crowd who shouted "Hosanna" and then crucified Him. Honest doubt is better than shallow praise. Believers need to bestir themselves and take their doubts to Jesus.

During all this Holy Week, services will be conducted each evening except Saturday by the minister. Monday evening was C. E. night; Tuesday evening the A Capella Choir of High Point College will sing as a special feature; Wednesday evening the Woman's Auxiliary will sponsor the service, and on Thursday the Men's Brotherhood, while on Friday evening the Sabbath school will be the prominent feature, and an Easter entertainment will be presented by members, the chairman of the program committee being Miss Lucille Pickens.

Cottage prayer meetings were held by the different circles of the Woman's Auxiliary in several homes last Thursday and Friday evenings preparatory to the Passion Week services. Then next week, beginning Monday evening, Mrs. Mary C. Seidley, an evangelist of note and considerable power, will conduct evangelistic services, and every member is expected to be present at all these meetings for the two weeks, unless providentially hindered.

On Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock the five circles met for the last time before disbanding.

In the interest of economy, the last quarterly conference ordered some changes in operating expenses of the church; the pastor's salary has been reduced to $3,000 per annum, two phones have been removed, and we now have a voluntary choir with no salaries paid to singers.

The new Circles of the Auxiliary will hold called meetings this week, and members of each will elect its own chairman secretary and treasurer.

Our First Church is bereaved of a loyal and staunch friend by the death of Mr. W. Carey Beavans, a prominent merchant and business man, which occurred suddenly last Friday morning at 4 o'clock as result of a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Beavans was born in Enfield, N. C., of good Methodist Protestant stock February 21, 1874, a son of John and Laura W. Beavans. His grandmother was a Whitaker and he was closely related to the late Dr. C. L. Whitaker. In earmly life he united with the M. E. church, and since coming to High Point 28 years ago has been a faithful and consistent member of Wesley Memorial church. On March 11, 1908, he was happily united in marriage to Mrs. Julia Jones Steele, who survives him with a step-daughter, Mrs. Wade Marsh; two brothers, W. E. Beavans of Enfield and W. A. Beavans of Lawsonville, Va., and one sister, Miss Mary Beavans of Fnfield. For many years he made it a point to attend every dinner or supper given by our Auxiliary, and extended courtesies to many members and especially High Point College students and faculty. He was a Christian gentleman of the highest type seldom found, and High Point mourns today the passing of one of her most popular and outstanding citizens, in whose heart there was no guile. He upheld in a marked degree the old-fashioned Christian virtues, never partaking of a meal without first asking God's blessing, and always holding prayers with his devoted wife before retiring, an example worthy of emulation. Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon from his home, 641 North Main street, by his pastor, Rev. Ray Jordan, of Wesley Memorial church, assisted by Rev. L. F. Tuttle, the assistant pastor.

At the March Court of Honor service for the Boy Scouts of High Point district, held Monday evening, March 14th, at Wesley Memorial church, James Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Montgomery, was awarded a bronze palm, the highest award in scouting, which signifies that the one who receives it has won five merit badges above the Eagle Scout rank.

The A. M. Idol Philathea class held its monthly meeting last Thursday evening with Mrs. L. H. Zimmerman on Montlieu avenue. A series of suppers, the first of which will be given this week by Mrs. L. R. Peacock, are planned by this class, and a nominal sum will be charged.

Miss Rosalie Andrews, teacher in Oak Hill school, went to Charlotte as a delegate to the N. C. Education Association meeting last Thursday, and spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. R. M. Andrews.

Mrs. Emmett Pritchard is recovering nicely from two operations in High Point Hospital, and this announcement will be good news to her many friends.

Mrs. B. F. Montgomery and daughters, Misses Jewel and Frances, have moved into their attractive new home on North Hamilton street.

The numerous friends of Dr. R. M. Andrews will be much gratified to learn that he underwent a second operation in High Point Hospital, and he is making satisfactory progress toward a complete recovery. Dr. Andrews is very cheerful, and looks forward to going home soon with eager anticipation after a stay of four weeks in the hospital.

Dr. Arthur A. York, a highly esteemed physician, has undergone a serious operation in High Point Hospital, and is resting more comfortably, his host of friends will be pleased to learn.

It is a source of pleasure to the friends of Mrs. Fred W. McPherson to hear that she has returned to her home on Forrest Avenue from the hospital.

Miss Alice Faulkner, of Henderson, a former student at High Point College, is the guest of friends here.

Mr. Earl Teague, of Durham, was visiting relatives here over the past week-end.

Pleasant Grove.—Our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, preached a splendid and inspiring sermon Sunday to a very large congregation. He read as his scripture the 40th Psalm. He also used the 15th chapter of Mark and the 40th verse, saying that we should be cross-bearers and not standing by and looking on as they did when Jesus was crucified.

The Christian Endeavorers meet eevry Sunday evening at 6:45 o'clock. We had as our leader Sunday night Miss Helen Kennedy.

Our pastor brought us another wonderful message Sunday night.

The Sunday school was greatly pleased to have the addition of two new members Sunday: Mrs. A. R. Craven and Mr. Stuart Payne. The Sunday school classes took their usual offering for the Conference budget Sunday, which we pledged to pay monthly on the budget.

We are sorry to report that Mr. Joseph Moon has been confined to his bed for quite a while and doesn't seem to show much improvement. Mrs. D. M. Kennedy had the misfortune to cut a limb and has been confined to her home for some weeks.

The Sunshine Auxiliary and Servotha class held their monthly meeting on the first Monday night at 7:30 o'clock with Mrs. Wallace Kennedy. Mrs. Rob Kennedy presided over the class and Mrs. J. R. Meredith over the Auxiliary. After the devotional the Auxiliary voted to pay $30.00 on the pastor's salary, also to get Larkin orders to add money to the treasury. At the close of the business the hostess served chicken salad on lettuce with saltines, pickles, cake, and fruit jello and hot coffee.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. George Hilton the first Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Everett Veach, Mrs. W. H. Burton, Mrs. Clay Beck were in charge of the program, which was on the life of Christ from his birth to His resurrection, with a few additional readings of poems. The project of each member contributing a penny a day was voted on and carried. Each member was to get another person to contribute a penny a day. At the close of the business the hostess, Mrs. Hilton, served chicken salad with crackers, ham sandwiches, wafers, custard tarts, cherry jello, and coffee.

The Brotherhood will hold its monthly meeting Saturday night, March 26th, with B. E. Payne and Clyde Payne.

Elbaville, Mocksville Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock delivered a wonderful message. The Lord's Supper was observed in the closing of the service, which helps all to live closer to the Lord. There will be a Joash Day program given here at the 11 o'clock service on April 3.

We will meet the first Saturday in April at Bethel to hold our second quarterly conference.

Our Ladies' Aid will meet next Sunday morning after Sunday school to hold their monthly meeting.

Because of whooping-cough and bad weather our Sunday school has fallen somewhat below normal, but spring has peeped around the corner and we are eagerly looking forward to the time when all may be able to come back to the church they love and which loves them. We pray that we all will do our very best to move the Lord's work on, to make it a pleasure to help someone along life's rugged way. It is a critical time; it seems to be the most wicked time I ever witnessed. Let's pray that we all may see ourselves and turn our course to the Great Shepherd.

Concord, First Church—Our attendance was very good Sunday. We had 321 present and $6.56 collection. Our Cradle Roll Department had 49 present Sunday.

Bro. Morgan preached at the 11 o'clock service. The subject was "A True Christian." This message was a very helpful one.

We were very glad to have in our midst Sunday some visitors from Monroe, N. C., who sang for us at the morning service. We welcome all who come our way and appreciate any service that they may render in our church.

This is not the month of June, however we had a wedding here in Concord and it came as a pleasant surprise. Miss Maggie Mann and Mr. Fred Sides were married at the parsonage March 5th by our pastor, Bro. Morgan.

Mrs. Sides has been a member of our church for a number of years and during this time she has also been a wonderful leader and workers in our church and by her sweet personality and her Christ-like life she has won many friends, and we as a church consider her as one of our most valuable members and we are unable to express our appreciation and our gratitude to God for the splendid service which she has rendered, and we pray that God's richest blessings may rest upon this young couple and their lives may be filled with joy and happiness.

Remember the work here in your prayers.

Rehoboth Church, Granville Charge.—On account of bad weather there were no services at this church the first Sunday of this month. The thank-offering service was held Sunday morning, March 13, at 11 o'clock. The speaker of the hour was Mr. J. H. Medfort, of Oxford. The offering was rather small; not near what we had hoped for. The topic used by the pastor at his last appointment was "Co-operation." In this sermon he put special emphasis upon the fact that the success of a church depends, first, upon co-operation with God through prayer and, second, co-operation with the leaders and other members of the church. At this service we were favored with a solo, "I Know He Cares For Me," by Mrs. R. S. Tillertson.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. J. T. Wrenn for the March meeting.

The quarterly conference will be held at the parsonage on Saturday, April 9th.

Mr. A. A. Hicks suffered a stroke of paralysis last week. His condition is slightly improved. We hope and pray that he will soon be well again.

Am glad to report that we are making some progress in our Sunday school work. Especially the children's work. Our attendance is not what we would like for it to be, but is better than last year at this time.

Eden, Halifax.—Sunday school yesterday with fair attendance. Mr. J. W. Hardee, our superintendent, is serving his tenth year in this capacity. We love and appreciate him for his love and faithfulness to the Sunday school and church.

In the afternoon we had our regular third Sunday preaching service. Mr. Fogleman used as his subject, "The Stone Which the Builders Rejected." The text was taken from Psalm 118:22. Continuing, it was pointed out and first discussed in its original setting, that Christ centuries later honored the text and asked the disciples if they had caught its meaning; that God builds His temples by methods and approaches which man in his own wisdom often overlooks and sometimes wilfully tosses aside. This is not because God's approaches and instruments are unfit, but because the world, and too often established religion, has a false conception of fitness. Hence, the delay and temporary defeat which often overtake the church and the best attempts of the race.

At length God will bring forth a generation able to appreciate and discriminate. In that day God will be given His proper place in all the endeavors of life. This is the true march triumphant, the enthronement of Christ in all the relationships of life.

The Auxiliary held its last meeting in the home of Mrs. Mary Barnhill, with Mrs. E. A. Smith and Mrs. J. R. Locke as joint hostesses. After the devotionals and program conducted by Mrs. Ethel Barnhill the meeting opened for business. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Miss Winnie Burt; vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Moore; secretary, Mrs. Z. A. Hardee; treasurer, Miss Blanche Hardee. Committees were appointed and plans made for helping entertain the Branch meeting to be held in Enfield April 12-14. The ladies of the church are delighted and looking forward to having a part in its entertainment. The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held in the home of Mrs. S. A. Whitley, April 1, at 3 p. m.

The Junior Missionary Society will hold its meeting Thursday night of this week in the home of Miss Alta Jean Hamill at 7:30.

Midland.—We have been somewhat hindered by cold weather and sickness but still we are steadily forging on. Since coming to this charge we have had five additions to the church, three by profession, two by transfer. We have lost three by death. We have conducted seven funerals, 3 of our own and four of other denominations. The last laid to rest was Grandmother Turner, of Pageland, S. C., wife of Rev. John Turner of sainted memory, of our church.

We are having increased congregations with increased evidences of interest. During the cold days Bros. Misenheimer, Garmon and Hartsell supplied us with wood prepared for fire-place. Mrs. Mabry, of Pine Bluff, gave us a fine lot of canned fruit and sausage; Mrs. Fannie Mangum, of Pageland, brought the climax when she laid on us a variety of eats that would have been creditable to a whole church. These South Carolinians never do things in a half-hearted way. May God bless them all.

Our second quarterly conference will convene at Pine Bluff church on Saturday before the first Sunday in April at 2 o'clock p. m. No official will be expected to attend who is not interested.

English Street Church.—We are very glad to report that our attendance is still gaining in Sunday school as well as for the preaching services. The past Sunday our attendance at Sunday school was 114 more than that of a year ago. For both preaching services we noticed a large number of visitors from other churches.

We are planning to begin a revival the second Sunday in April.

An Easter program is being planned by the children to be given on Easter Sunday morning. Mrs. J. A. Lee, Mrs. Ava Hoover, and Miss Tressie Caudle are taking charge of the program.

The Christian Endeavor Society will give a program on Friday night of this week at the church. The Society met with the Intermediate boys and girls Sunday afternoon and organized an Intermediate C. E. Society. The organization was explained and then the officers were elected. Mr. J. A. Bowers was elected superintendent, with Mr. J. T. Macklin as assistant. Each Sunday night a member of the Senior Society is going to help one of the Intermediate to plan and lead the program. The Senior C. E. Society gave a program at Hickory Chapel last Sunday night to a good crowd. We enjoyed meeting with them and hope to have the privilege again.

The Ladies' Aid Society is doing some wonderful work. They are now getting up a play, entitled, "It's All Over Town." The date for the play has not been definitely decided upon.

The C. E. Society also won the city Union Shield again for doing the best work in the last three months at the last mass meeting.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Our Sunday school is going on as well as usual. After Sunday school Sunday Mr. E. B. Pair conducted prayer service.

Miss Maggie Hawkins, the card teacher, entertained her class Saturday p. m. at her home.

We are planning for an Easter program Sunday at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Baldy Green and Misses Maggie and Erma Hawkins are in charge of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Bingham and Miss Vera Morris were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hawkins the second Sunday.

Miss Tula Pittard has returned to her sister, Mrs. C. M. Hawkins, after a brief visit at Roanoke Rapids with her niece, Mrs. Tom Carpenter.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hawkins visited his mother, Mrs. V. T. Hawkins, Sunday.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Pair in our home Sunday.

Our C. E. Society had a social this month in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Pittard. They postponed their second Sunday meeting on account of Mrs. Hockaday's death.

Mr. B. S. Hawkins is very ill yet.

Best wishes for every one and a happy Easter.

Asheboro.—The Philathea class held its February meeting on the 29th in the home of Miss Lollie Jones, with Miss Jones and Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., as joint hostesses. Mrs. L. F. Ross, president of the class, presided over the business session preceding the evening's entertainment of games, stunts and music, after which refrehments were served. Miss Clarice Hafford, of Joplin, Missouri, and Mrs. M. H. Burkhead, of Asheboro, were invited guests.

The executive committee of the Woman's Auxiliary met on Friday evening, March 11, with Mrs. R. C. Stubbins at the new parsonage in Greystone Terrace. At this time the secretaries of causes were elected and the circles were re-arranged for the new year with each group to elect their chairman and pefect the organization of the circles. Circle No. 4 held the March meeting with their chairman, Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr.; officers were elected for the ensuing year. A miscellaneous shower was given to Mrs. Stanton Presnell, nee Miss Helen Amick, a recent bride and a member of the circle.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held in the social room of the church Monday evening, March 14th, with Miss Esther Ross, who has served as president two years, presiding. The program was "An Evening With Ships." The activities of the year were represented as valuable cargo coming into port, and as each officer, circle chairman and secretary of causes concluded her report she placed her ship on the sea facing the harbor (a white cross). The president anchored the fleet, giving a resume of the year's work, including local, state and national interests, closing with the thought that only as our ships had sailed to port bringing their cargo to the foot of the cross for His blessing can we ever hope to receive His "Well done." A most impressive installation service followed, with Rev. R. C. Stubbins presiding. As the names of the new officers were called each came forward, and after her duties were read, gave a fitting response. Following this Miss Ross presented to the Auxiliary a lovely gavel with engraved name plate. This was accepted by the incoming president, who no doubt will find it useful.

Miss Lollie Jones is the new president, Mesdames Jess Pugh and L. D. Burkhead, vice-presidents; Mrs. N. M. Harrison, recording secretary; Mrs. R. C. Stubbins, corresponding secretary, and Miss Esther Ross, treasurer. The new president appointed a finance committee and read the new list of circles; each circle was asked to get together and elect their chairman. During this time refreshments were served.

The choir enjoyed a practice of the Easter music in the home of the director, Mrs. Harriet Hammer Walker, last Friday evening. After the practice assorted sandwiches and Russian tea were served in the dining room; while in there Miss Jane Page Walker came in with an umbrella filled with packages for Mrs. Stanton Presnell; upon opening these she found many useful gifts.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—March 20. We had a large number out today; there were 55 bright young men present. We were very glad indeed to have Mr. C. A. Leonard to teach our class. He is one of our fine young men who has always stood by our class and church; he is one whom we love and we feel that he has meant much to our church and community. He said, "Let us stand for the things that are right and do them." If we do this we shall be helping others, ourselves, and, above all, we shall be serving God.

We were pleased to have the visitors and new members. We always welcome them in our class. We miss you when you are absent; be there each Sunday to fill your chair.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Friday night, March 25, at 7:30 o'clock, the choir will give an Easter cantata. We hope our members will be out in full force to reward them for their efforts.

The Christian Endeavor Union will have a sunrise service at the Asheboro Street Friends church Easter Sunday at 6:30 a. m. Breakfast will be served for 15 cents. Those wishing tickets please notify Mary Margaret Bates.

Our pastor has prepared a special service for Easter Sunday night. He announced it as something new in sermons. The title of this service is "Easter, in Scripture, Poetry and Song." The scripture lesson will be the account of the death and resurrection of Jesus. Several Easter poems will be given by the young people of our Sunday school. Easter songs will be sung by the congregation.

We can show our appreciation to our pastor for his efforts in giving us such a beautiful picture of the death and resurrection of Christ by coming to church Sunday night and bringing our friends.

Monday afternoon, March 21st, the Ladies' Auxiliary met in the church hut. Our retiring president, Mrs. D. E. Curtis, was in the chair. This meeting closed a very successful year under her leadership. We wish to thank her and to say that she has done wonderful work. If all our future presidents do as well we will be "sitting on top of the world!"

St. Paul, Greensboro.—Our pastor delivered a very impressive sermon Sunday morning. The attendance was good; 160 present for Sunday school last Sunday and 160 present one year ago Sunday. So you can see we are holding our own, if we are not gaining any.

Mrs. D. I. Garner and Mrs. Moore have the Easter program in charge, which will be given Easter Sunday night.

Some of our people that have been sick are improving. Mrs. R. L. Yates was able to be back at Sunday school Sunday after being absent for a few weeks with a badly hurt hand. Mrs. R. C. Lineberry is improving; she has been very sick for two weeks. Mr. C. E. Wilson was sick Sunday and not able to be at church.

The Royal Blue Class held their class meeting this month with Mrs. Lineberry. The class decided to draw names and to look after the member which they drew, not to let them know who has their name, but when they are sick or absent to send them a card and keep them guesing who is looking after them.

The parsonage has been newly painted inside, which was badly needed, and we feel sure our pastor and wife are proud to have this work done.

The Ladies' Aid held its monthly meeting Saturday night at the church hut.

New Hope, Why Not Charge.—We were pleased to have Bro. Reynolds with us the third Sunday at 3 p. m. We are always glad to hear his inspiring sermons.

We were very glad to welcome our old friends and church workers, Mrs. Nettie Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Williams, of Seagrove, and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Presnell, of Asheboro, to our church for the preaching hour. We are always glad to welcome old friends and church members that live so far away from the church they cannot attend regularly.

We had planned to have an Easter exercise but measles and chicken-pox have got in the community, so we thought best to postpone the exercises.

We are hoping to have a Children's Day service later.

Sunday school and C. E. Society are still progressing nicely. The young people seem to be really interested in the work.

Liberty.—This has been a glorious Sabbath day. Our Sunday school, under the efficient leadership of our faithful superintendent, is striving to reach the goal of the best attendance in the history of our Liberty church.

At the morning service last Sunday the minister, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, brought to us a glowing message from the text, Matthew 5:13: "Ye are the salt of the earth." His sermon was divided into four topics: The educational world; the political world; the economic and industrial world, and the religious world. In conclusion he said we should let our lights shine, and by living right ourselves we can help to bring about better conditions in the world.

The second quarterly conference met Sunday evening, March 13th. A goodly number of our membership was present. There were quite a number from Moriah church also. The usual business was transacted. Everyone is urged to pay up, as April completes half of the Conference year.

On Wednesday evening at 7:30 Dr. S. W. Taylor and Rev. F. L. Gibbs spoke very interestingly. They came to us in the interest of the New Century service, and to create a deepened interest on the part of the local church.

The Woman's Auxiliary met last Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. F. A. Shepard, president, presiding. A Joash box will be placed in our church; also an Easter program will be given Easter Sunday morning. Our motto is "Service."

Mizpah, Haw River Circuit.—Several ventured out in the sleet and snow the first Sunday in March to hear Rev. J. L. Trollinger, but he failed to appear. He explained his absence in a satisfactory way Sunday morning. He filled his appointment Sunday morning preached an extra good sermon from the subject, "God's Measure of Our Church Life."

Our revival begins Easter Sunday night. We are expecting Rev. C. E. Ridge as help. He was with us in our meeting last year and won the love and respect of everyone.

Our C. E. Society is growing in interest and attendance. Howard Jones, one of our young men, makes an excellent president. We were entertained recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Hill.

Mrs. M. L. Wagoner has recovered from a recent attack of blood poisoning in her hand. Mrs. Harvey Hill is suffering from an infected foot. Hope she will escape blood poisoning. Ernest Jones is in a Norfolk government hospital for treatment.

Mrs. J. D. McCollum and Mrs. H. G. Jones have planted shrubbery in front of the church and on the lawn. REPORTER.

First Church, Lexington.—In our Sunday school this morning the junior choir did the singing for the opening. Mrs. B. F. Everidge has been practicing the children for some time and the good singing which the children did this morning was greatly enjoyed by the large crowd which was present for the service.

At the morning preaching service the pastor preached a very interesting and inspiring sermon on how to have a great revival meeting, and the large crowd which was present for the service seemed to greatly enjoy the message. We will begin our revival meeting on the first Sunday of next month. Rev. O. C. Loy will do the preaching and Wayne Curtis will direct the choir, and we are hoping and praying that God may pour out a wonderful blessing on this community during the meeting.

On Sunday night, Bro. Easley and Miss Beavers, two blind people, were with us and gave a very interesting program of singing and music. The church was filled, including the large Sunday school room, and all were much pleased with the splendid program.

One of the best Easter programs we have ever given will be held here Sunday evening at 7 o'clock and a large crowd is expected to attend.

On last Sunday a week ago we elected Mr. O. F. Johnson to take Bro. Glenn Brown's place on the board of stewards. Mr. Brown has gone to Burlington to work and will soon move his family. We feel sure that Mr. Johnson will make a good steward.

Mt. Lebanon, Randleman.—Everything is moving along nicely at Mt. Lebanon. Our pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, is again able to be with his people after having been ill for some time. We are indeed glad that he is much improved. Sunday he brought a helpful message.

Sunday evening the Ladies' Auxiliary had charge of the service. A Missionary Thank-Offering program directed by Mrs. J. T. Hall was given. A splendid offering was received. We are glad to know that our quota, $60.00, has just about been paid.

On March 26, at 7:36, quarterly conference will convene at New Salem. It is hoped that a goodly number will be present.

On Easter Sunday morning we will have our annual sunrise prayer meeting.

The first Sunday in April at the 11 o'clock hour we are expecting to hear Rev. S. W. Taylor, president of the Conference, in one of his splendid sermons.

Orange Chapel, Saxapahaw Charge.—On March 20th our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, had a large congregation to hear his helpful and inspiring sermon. His text was "Gather up the fragments." His sermons are always good and helpful.

We are not moving along with our church work as nicely as we would like, but we have our pastor paid up to date and almost a month in advance.

Rev. J. Clyde Auman preached for us the fifth Sunday in January. He and Bro. Whitehead exchanged pulpits. He said he felt like he has a warm place in the hearts of the Orange Chapel people and he certainly has. He was our pastor two years and we learned to love him then; we are always glad to have him come back.

The Memorial Association has recently planted shrubs around the cemetery; such a nice thing to care for our loved ones and beautify their resting-place.

Mrs. Charlie Edwards had the misfortune to fall and break her right arm over three months ago and she can not use it yet. But she is looking on the bright side; she said it could have been her hip instead and that would have been worse.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—Dr. Johnson conducted a thank-offering service Sunday morning. After reading a part of the 17th chapter of Luke the pastor called attention to the fact that the ten lepers who had been cured had much for which to be thankful. We today have much for which to give thanks, just as the people of Bible times. Dr. Johnson emphasized the importance of showing our appreciation to those who help us. No doubt Jesus suffered intensely when He found that His work was so often unappreciated.

Besides Dr. Johnson's talk, other numbers on the program of the thank-offering service were: Solo, We've a Story to Tell to the Nations, by Miss Rebecca W. Causey; original poem, Thankful Service, by Miss Nila Amick; story, Through Another's Eyes, by Miss Ruby Smith; duet, Take Up the Cross and Follow Jesus, Mrs. H. Floyd Amick and Miss Rebecca W. Causey.

After the service an offering was taken to be contributed to the Woman's Auxiliary to be used in raising the budget of the Auxiliary.

Dr. Johnson announced that "Joash Day" would be observed one month hence. Easter service will be held next Sunday at 11 o'clock.

Dr. Taylor and Mr. F. L. Gibbs were at Mt. Pleasant last Wednesday, speaking in the interest of the New Century Service.

Enfield.—This week we are having pre-Easter services each evening at 7:30 oclock. The Cross will be the central thought of each discourse. Rev. Mr. Surratt brought a splendid message to us last evening, Monday, his theme being The Prayer at the Cross; his text was "And Jesus said, Father forgive them for they know not what they do." The concluding service will be Thursday at which time the Lord's Supper will be celebrated.

Mr. Henry Neal came home Sunday from a sanitorium where he has been taking treatment.

Mrs. Lily Whitaker continues very ill; we trust both of these loyal members will soon be restored to normal health.

We are sending in $1.00 from Mrs. W. D. Bustin, who is about 84 years young, and she did hand work (tatting, I understand) and sold it to give this amount on Herald deficit. Three cheers for Mrs. Bustin! May she continue well and active many years yet. Would that some of our younger members would catch the fine spirit of this woman and manifest it in worthy deeds!

Efland, Orange Charge.—Sunday was a good day for us. Bro. Williams brought us two very helpful messages. At the morning service 12 new members were added to our church. Six were transferred from Chestnut Ridge M. P. church, one from Cedar Grove M. E. church and five on profession of faith. We extend to these people a hearty welcome.

Easter Sunday night we will have Easter services at Efland.

Several of our members are on the sick list. We wish for them a speedy recovery.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Since our reporter had some items in last week's Herald, perhaps it is rushing things a bit for me to have anything to say this week. But I do want to make a few remarks, from my angle, about some things she reported.

First, to tell you that our Thank-Offering amounted to $40.89. This is "the best yet." And the pageant-play was presented in a splendid way. A sequel to its presentation is the request from a lady at Pinehurst for a copy of the pageant.

One of the lighting features of the pageant was an electric cross made by two of our members. After the West Market Street M. E. church has had the use of it, we expect to place it on the front of the church and let it shine on Sunday night.

At the Auxiliary meeting yesterday, Mrs. Willis Booth, the treasurer, reported a total of $1,044 as having been raised this Auxiliary year. The women wolks set $1,000 as their goal. So they have gone beyond it. And it seems to me they did it easier this year than last, when they raised $1,019. But the finest thing about raising it has been the beautiful spirit of co-operation they have manifested. It is wonderful the harmony that prevails in this group, and, for that matter, in the whole church.

The second quarterly conference was held last Thursday night. Brothers Hester Causey and D. E. Curtis were nominated for delegate. A review of the finances finds us a bit behind, but much farther along than at this time last year. A number of suggestions were made. The one of greatest interest, perhaps, being the working out of plans for the eighth anniversary of the church, which will come on the last Sunday in April. We have invited the president of the Conference to make the address, or deliver the sermon. And at that time we will observe "Joash Day," the whole offering to be applied on the church debt. (We can do this because our G. C. B. is overpaid to date, and the A. C. B. is being taken care of through the offerings each Sunday,) and this preacher objects to any part of his salary coming out of that box.)

This Friday night the choir will give the Easter Cantata, "The Life Triumphant." We have invited our near church neighbors in South Greensboro to come and enjoy it with us. And I am extending the same invitation to all who may read this. The service will begin at 7:45. You will be amply repaid by coming.

Easter Sunday will be observed with services all day. At 6:30 the City Christian Endeavor Union will have a sunrise service at the Asheboro Street Friends church. Sunday school at 9:45. At 11:00 o'clock the Easter sermon, followed by the reception of members. We are expecting a number of folk to join us at that time. At 7:30 an Easter program, "Easter in Scripture, Poetry and Song." We invite all who read this to come for any or all of these services.

An item I overlooked in my last report has to do with Washington's birthday, which some of our men celebrated by working on the church yard, replacing shrubbery, and setting out trees. The next project they have on hand is to terrace the bank on the south side of the church. Our folks are fully aware they have the most beautiful church grounds in Greensboro, and they have pride enough to want to keep them so.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—The work is progressing as well as could be expected. It indicates a deep interest when people brave cold weather and muddy roads to be at the services. General improvement is noted over the work. Sunday, February 28, we received two additions to the church at the close of services: Mrs. Mae E. Love (wife) letter, and Mr. Clifford Orr, confession of faith; others prevented because of sickness.

Several weeks past we reorganized the Sunday school at Antioch with a goodly number present for enrollment. Prospects for this church appear very promising.

We are sorry to report a great deal of sickness in our community, several deaths resulting. Mr. P. L. Garmon, our Sunday school superintendent and active member at Stallings, recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at Presbyterian Hospital, Charlotte, N. C. We are glad to report he is recovering nicely at home. Mrs. Mae Matthews, our reporter, organist, Sunday school teacher, active member at Antioch, is back home from Presbyterian hospital where she went for a few days' treatment. Her condition is favorable at this writing. We rejoice. We haven't any of this type to spare.

Our community mourns the loss by death of several beloved friends and neighbors, all in the past ten days. Especially does the pastor feel keenly the departure of Grandpa Honeycutt, a close neighbor and recent acquaintance. I was becoming more fond of him each day by our frequent association and intimate conversations. May the bereaved ones be comforted with the eternal hope of a happy reunion, and the Lord find glory in their deaths.

Mr. Tobe Cook, father of Rev. Earl Cook, recently lost his home by fire. His misfortunes are ours to share. We find consolation in the truth of the text, "All things work together for good to those who love the Lord." He is a member of New Hope church.

We are hoping the coming of spring will find our people awakening to a deeper sense of their spiritual needs and responsibilities, which applies to the state of all Christian professors.

J. L. LOVE, Pastor.

West End, Greensboro.—Our new home location is 1801 Spring Garden street. We are pleased with the new home and the location. The new home is just across the street from the church. Call to see us or write. The new home and a pastor with a family on the grounds has called for parsonage furnishings. Hard times and many demands have made it difficult to find the money to buy these things just now. The good people have found the way out by loaning, for the time, different articles of furnishings from different homes. In this way we have been made comfortable with little outlay of money. The interest of our ladies in this respect is greatly appreciated by the occupants of the parsonage. Thanks.

Some weeks ago the Baracas and Philatheas with a few invited guests enjoyed a fine "Pot Luck" supper. The contributions to the supper were just whatever the different ones cared to contribute with no understanding among each other as to what each was to contribute. The result was that there was a table loaded with a great variety as well as a great quantity of good eats. A Washington birthday program was rendered. The occasion was a great success. About 140 were present.

On Sunday evening of March 13 Miss Margaret Perryman, of High Point, who recently made journeys through Europe, Asia and Africa, gave to our people a report of her travels. We were delighted with her address and we would be pleased to have her with us again.

Our penny a day plan to collect funds for the church debt is working nicely. We are finding that enough little things make large things.

We are looking forward to Easter with a full and helpful program. Besides the Easter sermon there will be appropriate music in the morning. At the evening service the choir will render a beautiful cantata. Our choir has been working hard on this program for a number of weeks and we are expecting a musical feast. The music of West End is always of a high order.

Bro. O. F. Stafford, who underwent a very serious operation some weeks ago, is now back at home and is doing remarkably well. Jane, the little daughter of Bro. and Sister John Mundy, has been a pneumonia patient for some time, but is now improving nicely.

Our Christian Endeavor Society conducted a service at the nearby prison camp on last Sunday afternoon. The prisoners seemed to enjoy this service very much, as well as did the young people.

We were pleased to have Miss Mamie Ellis, of First Church, High Point, in our congregation on a recent date and we were glad to have Bro. W. W. Fry and family, of Welch Memorial, High Point, call recently at the parsonage. We are always glad to have our High Point friends with us, either at the church or at the parsonage.

The pastor and family recently enjoyed a pleasant visit in the home of Bro. W. V. Routh when a sumptuous supper was served, just the kind to be enjoyed by a preacher's family. Bro. Routh is the brother of Rev. O. P. Routh, once a member of our Conference.

NO MODIFICATION

Honorable Herbert Hoover, President of the United States, declares:

"Modification of the enforcement laws which would permit that which the Constitution forbids is nullification. This the American people will not countenance . . .

"Whoever is elected President takes an oath not only to faithfully execute the office of President, but that oath provides still further that he will, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. I should be untrue to these greatest traditions, untrue to my oath of office, were I to declare otherwise."

"At dinner, Mary," she explained, "you must remember always to serve from the left and take the plates from the right. Is that clear?" "Yes, ma'am," answered the girl condescendingly. "What's the matter, superstitious or something?"—New York Morning Telegraph.

—When a certain officer of the governor's staff died, there were some applicants for the post, and some were indecently impatient. While the dead colonel was awaiting burial, one aspirant buttonholed the governor, asking:

"Would you object to my taking the place of the colonel?"

"Not at all," the governor replied tartly. "See the undertaker."—Syracuse Post Standard.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Hinshaw

Mrs. Virgia May Hinshaw was born May 5, 1900. She died at her home in Burlington on February 3, 1932. She had been in ill health for some months and a part of that time suffered much pain. Death was a great relief to her.

Mrs. Hinshaw was patient under the hand of affliction. She did not complain or grumble, but all the while seemed to be sure of the presence of God. She often said that she could not bear it if He were not with her. It was an inspiration to talk with her because she always manifested a beautiful faith in God.

May the bereaved find God a very present and all-sufficient help in this time of their sorrow. FRED W. PASCHALL.

Crawford

Mrs. Lydia C. Crawford was born on November 12th, 1861. She died at her home in Burlington on January 30th, 1932. Her death was due to pneumonia.

Mrs. Crawford was a good woman. She was true to her children and home. Often she said things which manifested her deep concern in the welfare and happiness of her children. She was a good Christian woman. Her faith in God was steadfast and we believe that the crown of life which is promised to the faithful is her reward.

May the children and the other loved ones find the grace of God a sufficient refuge in their bereavement. FRED W. PASCHALL.

Stone

Mrs. Dora E. Collett Stone, wife of J. R. Stone, was born June 8, 1860, and died March 8, 1932.

Mrs. Stone was converted in early life and joined Zion M. E. church. Later she removed her membership to Mt. Pleasant M. P. church, now on the North Davidson charge, and had been a loyal member for the past 23 years. Her passing is a great loss to the community, her church and, most of all, to her home, from which she was taken. She was one who made many friends in life, as was indicated by the large crowd that attended her funeral.

The funeral was conducted in Mt. Pleasant M. P. church by the writer, assisted by Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of the N. C. Annual Conference, and two of her former pastors, Rev. H. L. Powell and Rev. R. S. Troxler. The body was laid to its final resting place in the local cemetery.

Survived to mourn this loss are her husband and six children, O. O. Stone, Greensboro, N. C.; B. W. Stone, Thomasville, N. C.; Paul D. and J. Ruffin Stone, both of Thomasville, N. C.; Mrs. W. D. Payne, High Point, N. C., and Mrs. John Kennedy, Thomasville, N. C. She had one son, R. O. Stone, who preceded her in death nine years ago. Surviving also are her step-mother, Mrs. E. E. Collett, Thomasville, N. C.; one sister, Mrs. J. A. Lindsay, Lexington, N. C.; three brothers, James Collett, Trinity, N. C.; Walter L. and J. J. Collett, both of Thomasville, N. C. To each of these we extend our deepest sympathy, and upon them we pray God's richest blessings. O. C. LOY.

KINDNESS SMOOTHES THE ROAD

Perhaps the days of my activity are over, I am compelled to stay indoors most of the time, I was deeply impressed not long ago by some words uttered by Rev. L. W. Gerringer. Here they are: "I have been trying to put myself in his place," referring to myself very likely we would all be kinder to one another, especially in times of trials, sickness, afflictions, if we would, as far as possible, put ourselves in the place of others. It is not only a duty, but a great privilege to live and love people. I feel more than ever before that I ought to show kindness to all classes of people—the good, the bad, the bootlegger, not his life. The human heart craves sympathy—Gen. 40:14 Joseph said in prison: "Think on me when it shall be well with thee, and show kindness, I pray thee, unto me, and make mention of me unto Pharoah, and bring me out of this house." There was an old man severely afflicted, confined to his bed for a long time; his neighbors ceased to visit him as they once did. The old man said, I have no friends any more—when the old man died, the house was full of people, his wife said, O that he had known that he had so many friends. His neighbors were kind, but had ceased to show it. Prov. 27:5, Open rebuke is better than secret love. To be kind is a debt we owe to all classes of people. A debt, I for one, have failed to pay, especially in failing to show kindness.

The motive determines the genuineness of the kindness. I used to take the children with me when visiting. Once I took the oldest boy. He said to me, papa, why do you go to people's homes? I said, to do some good I suppose, I said to him, Why do you go? He said, I go to get something good to eat. That is just like a child, I remember when the people used to visit the parsonage with a pounding—how the little fellows were delighted when the people left, to look over the things they brought, and the children were not the only ones who were delighted. I have noticed reports made by preachers of a pounding. They said, and I have said it myself, that they were good people, and no doubt it was true, but it looked like they meant that they were good people because they pounded them. They are good people whether they pound the preacher or not.

I (we) have been delighted, encouraged, because many people have visited us since my return from the hospital. They have helped me because their presence took my mind off myself. Some times I get blue, thinking of my helplessness, not being able to get out among the people as I once did. So the people are not only kind, but have shown kindness. We shall delight to love them. Also those who have not visited us.

I hve said a good deal about myself in this conglomeration of words, but it is not all about myself, nor all for myself. I believe there is a lot of good people in the world. We see it best when something takes place to draw people out of themselves. Lee and Grant, perhaps, would never have been known as great men, had it not been for the Civil war. Joseph, perhaps, would not have been the second ruler in Egypt, had it not been for his severe trials.

I am not the only man that is afflicted; if I were, it would be a mighty poor world. We can't all be great men like Lee, Grant, Joseph and many others, but can be kind and good and useful.

WHAT THE HERALD MEANS TO ME

First of all, it means so much that I do not see how I could do without it. It enables me to hear from the people and the charges that I have served in former years, and brings to mind many happy recollections of the days we spent together in the work on those fields.

It helps me to keep informed as to what the other charges in the Conference are doing or trying to do along all lines of work in the church.

And through its columns I am able to keep in tourch with my brethren in the ministry, and friends from all sections of the Conference, whom I am not able to keep in touch with save through this medium.

As someone had said, "It is like getting a letter from home," or from a very dear friend in some distant part of the state, for we do not have the time to write many letters to so many people, and we can hear from them occasionally through the Herald.

I anxiously await each issue of the paper, and always look forward to Friday afternoon when my Herald comes, and I read that first of all, even before I scan the daily paper which comes to me in the same mail.

It is read more eagerly and more completely than any other periodical that comes into our home, and we enjoy it more. I would simply be lost without it.

I am sure that I am a better informed Methodist Protestant by reading the Herald than I would be otherwise, and so would all of our people if they would only take the paper and read it, that goes without saying.

E. G. COWAN,
Pastor Weaverville Charge.

CHARLOTTE-CALVARY S. S. CONTEST

I suppose a good many folks are wondering what happened to the Contest. Well, it ended with Sunday, March 6, which, you remember, was a very bad day. If it had ended the Sunday before, the showing might have been very different. As it is, both schools fell way below the average. It happens that Calvary didn't fall quite so far. Calvary gained 134 points and lost 196. Charlotte gained 15 points and lost 165. So Calvary's net loss is 62 points, and Charlotte's net loss is 150. So Calvary wins by 88 points. We congratulate the losers, and wish them better luck next time.

GREATEST HUMAN STEP

John Harvey Kellogg, M. D., founder of Battle Creek Sanitarium, writes the Foundation:

"I regard the passage of the Prohibition Amendment as the greatest forward step in human progress ever taken by any country in the whole history of the world. Prohibition is a tremendous success. It would be a greater success if all those whose duty it is to enforce the law would make an honest and sincere attempt to do so."

Spare the Birds!

God made birds and then made man—
Doubt the record if you can!
Birds can fly and man cannot,
Yet you'd slay a bird with shot!

All God's birds are feather-clad;
Songs they sing to make us glad:
Cheering friends they are indeed.
Grudge them not a little seed.

God sees birds whene'er they fall,
Hears their mates' most plaintive call,
Sees the man that holds the gun,
Notes the wicked thing he's done.

A Rising From the Dead

In the 27th chapter of his gospel St. Matthew records a resurrection of the dead. It occurred after the resurrection of Jesus. The implication seems to be that the tombs from which these men arose were opened by a great earthquake on the day of Christ's crucifixion. However the men did not come out of them until after Jesus came forth from his tomb. Had they risen on the day of the crucifixion Jesus would not have have been the "first fruits of them that slept" as Paul declares he was, unless we make the resurrection of these men of a different order from that of Jesus. I know of no reason for contending that this was not the final resurrection of these men. Would they have to die again and be buried again? That was probably true of Lazarus and the others raised to life, but the case of these men seems different. They are not described as resuming the earthly life. The little that is said of them seems to imply that they were assuming the heavenly life.

It surely was no trfling thing that the apostle was telling. Four important facts stand out: (1) There were many of these men; (2) They were saints; (3) They rose from the dead; (4) They went into Jerusalem and appeared to many people. The effect of such an invasion of the city of Jerusalem can be imagined. Jesus after his resurrection went into the city, but he appeared to only a few. These men appeared to many. The probability is that they talked as well as appeared. What did they talk about? When Moses and Elijah appeared talking with Jesus, they talked about the decease which he would soon accomplish at Jerusalem. What more probable subject of conversation for these men than the decease which Jesus had just accomplished at Jerusalem? They saw the matter from a superior point of view. The people they called on in Jerusalem were largely in ignorance and error regarding the significance of Jesus' death. These visitors from the spirit world, being saints, would feel called upon to throw light on the deep meaning of the great event. They would proclaim Jesus as the world's Savior and Lord, now victor over death. Knowing the meaning and effect of Jesus' death, could they be silent? They themselves had been permitted to enter into the victory over death, the first of the death-stricken race. Could they be dumb? Surely they must tell what a great salvation they had found. Their conduct under the circumstances is natural. And how great must have been the effect of the testimony of these many saintly witnesses! This may have helped to prepare the way for the ready acceptance of Peter's sermon on the day of Pentecost. Where did Matthew get his information regarding this matter? Perhaps from some of the people in Jerusalem visited by these risen saints.

"The Deceitfulness of Riches"

Jesus perhaps coined this expression. He used it in interpreting the parable of the sower, Matthew's account. What a meaningful expression it is! Jesus saw how the danger of wealth is magnified and intensified by its power to deceive. Wealth makes promises that it never can fulfill. It deceives in various ways. It makes some believe that material wealth is the greatest gain: not a word of truth in it. It deludes many into the belief that it would be easy for them to become rich: they toil for years in the effort and never reach their goal. Some gain wealth and are disappointed in it: it does not bring the happiness expected. Some rich people wake up to find that their riches have taken to themselves wings and flown away. Some find the care of riches a great burden. Yet there are many mammon worshipers, people who imagine that the chief good is to be found in and through material things. Jesus was not an ascetic, but he knew the peril in riches and warned men against it with words that burn.

—The Herald had a call this week from Rev. Mr. Higby and wife, lately of Florida. He is an evangelist and she is a gospel singer. He was formerly for years a pastor in the Georgia Conference of our church. He expects to provide himself with a tent soon and be ready for tent services about the first of May.

—We were pleased to have a call, though brief, from Rev. Samuel Tamblyn of the Michigan Conference on Tuesday morning. He had made a flying visit to his son, Rev. Ronald Tamblyn, pastor of Grace Church, this city. He was accompanied in the trip by his wife and daughter. The daughter is a teacher in the public schools of Hudson, Mich. The Easter vacation gave her a few days off.

FIVE YOUNG WORKERS

1. Joe Lump. Joe, of himself, never discovers anything to be done. Nor does he see a task when some one points it out to him. He never stirs his stumps. The only way in which he can be utilized for any purpose is to push him into some place, as you would shove a stone into position to fill a gap in a wall. This fellow differs little from a stump or a lump of earth.

2. Alec Drudge. Alec can see a thing that needs to be done when it is clearly pointed out to him, and he can move himself to do a task when ordered to do so by some one in charge. Dobbin the horse, and Jerry the ox can do as much under the management of a skillful trainer and driver. Thousands of Alecs are doing work that can be as well done by Dobbins and Jerrys. Modern machines and robots are crowding the Alecs out of their jobs. Is it good social management to continue breeding Alecs?

3. Simple Simon. Simon sees many things to do. There is wood to be cut, water to be brought, feed to be carried to the pigs. But he has no initiative, no skill to direct his powers. He can only think and dream ineffectually. When some one rises, speaks to him, and directs him what and when and where to put forth his strength he adds somewhat to the sum of human achievement.

4. Harry the Hustler. Harry is quick to see the things that need to be done. He has learned how to do many things —especially one thing—and he is a self-starter. This fellow accomplishes much. But he doesn't work well with others. He knows what should be done next but, unfortunately, he is obsessed with the fixed conviction that he is the only one to do it. He runs a small farm, a small store, a small shop and does practically all the work himself—not knowing how to employ and utilize the labor of others. When he is sick, or called away, his business is at a standstill. Harry never gets on very far, and if the world depends on him alone it will make but little advancement.

5. Henry. I might as well have called this last worker John, or Thomas, or Harvey, or Charlie; for there is nothing distinctive in the name except that it is a very common one suggesting that its bearer comes from one of the many families with a lowly origin. Henry easily finds a task and readily starts himself to the doing of it. But he also discovers that he cannot do all the work, and he soon has another person working under his direction. Then many more come into his organization, some of them with great ability along certain essential lines in which Henry may not be so proficient himself. By and by he is at the head of a great manufacturing concern, his name and his products become widely known, orders for goods come in increasing volume, and Henry has become a wealthy and influential citizen of the world.

It has often been remarked that men of great managerial ability never seem to be in a hurry. They have time for their friends, for collecting books, curios, pictures and other works of art. They serve as directors and trustees of many institutions, educational, religious, charitable, and social. The secret of their marked success is not that they went to bed early and got up early, that they were diligent in business and fervent in spirit, and that they never gave up until their objective was reached. It is rather, that they were endowed with, or that they somehow acquired, the faculty for using the brain and brawn and inspiration and loyalty of many other men and women.

Recently I came across this expression in the course of my reading: "That full measure of success justified by your native ability." "Native ability" is that ability that comes to us as an inheritance—some of it coming down through many generations. The best sort of environment—including education and all sorts of discipline and the development of the will—may so fill out and utilize that native ability as to make any individual a much more worth while person than the average member of his class. But it cannot take him out of his class!

There are mistakes made by parents and teachers by trying to develop into a swan a child that is by nature only a duckling. Young people may make the mistake of being satisfied with the duckling status when nature has meant that they should play well the role of a higher fowl, even if they cannot reach the grace and beauty of the swan.

Every person will do well to listen to the voice within, to train the mind and soul to aspire, to reach up for the highest possible for him.

Luther K. Long.

OUR SLEEPING FRIENDS

By Rev. W. A. Ledford

The world had long looked at death through the eyes of pagans. These pagans called their cemeteries monuments to the past. Their partings at the grave were final. Sad, "farewells" were written on their tombstones, which means, they would never see their deceased again. Into such a world of gloom Jesus came; proclaiming Himself the Resurrection and the Life. He spoke of death as a temporary sleep, from which would come the eternal awaking. This new conception of death is noted in all four Gospels, and stressed in the Epistles. Paul wrote, "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, with a loud summons, when the archangel calls and the trumpet of God sounds; the dead in Christ will rise first; then we the living, who survive will be caught up along with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord." The Christian's view of death then is sleeping till they meet at Jesus feet.

The raising of Lazarus has been called the climax of all the Miracles of our Lord, and prophetic of the general Resurrection. The daughter of Jairus had probably just died when Jesus brought her back to life. The son of the widow of Nain had probably been dead less than a day when he was restored to life again. Lazarus had now been dead four days, the record states. However, none of them had been dead so long that the Christ could not awaken them, demonstrating that He was victor over death and the grave. These victories over death and the grave finally begat a living hope among the Apostles and in the churches.

In saying, "Our friend Lazarus," Jesus joined Lazarus, the disciples and Himself into a bond in the spiritual world that death itself cannot break. The large floral contributions at most funerals is proof of this interpretation. Further and stronger proof of the fact that there is a bond of friendship between the living and dead may be had from visiting cemeteries. On most any day, in summer or winter, cold or hot; may be seen little groups, or lone persons; wending their way to a little mound, where is placed a wreath of flowers: a token of love and affection that death itself cannot destroy. Lord Alfred Tennyson is writing of his great loss in the death of Arthur Henry Hellam expressed the heart-longings of humanity.

> "But O for the touch of a vanished hand,
> And the sound of a voice that is still!"

WHOLESOME HOME ENVIRONMENT

This is a sacred thought that comes to us. We, the leaders in our respective communities, stand as it were upon the threshold of the home, and of the world. We see visions of a glorious future, of a life well-spent. The world stretches out before us like a virgin field, awaiting our touch to transform it into an earthly paradise. A golden vision arises before us, of a land where there is no more sorrow, where the hand of want has lost its touch, and man has found the philosopher's stone which transforms all into eternal joy. The vision passes: a chilling blast strikes our soul, and the realization comes home to us how weak and puny we really are. But we must hear the call and obey.

It has been said that the most sacred words in the English language are: Mother, Home, and Heaven. We know of none more sacred. Then the question arises—What is a home? Is it a house? Just a place to go to and get three meals per day, and eight hours sleep? It is not. It is not necessarily a hovel, nor a palace. It may be either, and yet not be a home. It may be either and be a home. Let the greatest lesson we learn ourselves, and teach to our boys and girls be the fact that a home is not built on material things. These help to make it what we desire, but there is something that is higher than these things, which are transient.

Home is a place of sacred ties; it is a place where love abides, and is the controlling force. It is a place where every member of it is ready to do his part, and fulfil the obligations that devolve upon them. When mother's rule is a reign of law, the warm coloring of the picture is badly faded. When father's authority is despotic, the home picture is drawn in hard lines. When the daughters in the home wait for mother to do the drudgery, while they entertain the company, and do the visiting, that home is better in imagination, than in fact. And when the boys perform their tasks because they are compelled by the despotic rule of authority, the place might better be called "quarters" rather than home.

As stated before, material things do not make a home. A home of the right type is a place that invites the wanderer back, a light house to beckon the prodigal into the haven. There would be less going astray on the part of our young people, if our home-life were made what it should be, and could be.

Nothing is more attractive and helpful in the home than music—the proper kind of course. Nothing will soothe the weary body, and soul, more than music. Let's remember that the master writer of the English speaking world said, "He that is not moved by sweet concords of music is fit for treason, strategem, or spoil. He is not to be trusted." To my mind no utterance was ever made that covered the thoughts so completely.

Another thing we find badly needed in the present day homes, is the proper reading matter. But sad to say, too many of our homes take only one paper. That is good, but not quite good enough for the best. The children must read something, so why not select the proper material. There is scarcely any end to the good current literature that could easily be had in the homes of the humblest, by a little careful planning and forethought, and judicious investment of a few of the odd nickles and dimes.

Take your boys into your confidence, fathers; make your girls your associates, mother, and you will be surprised to know how much they will appreciate your company. A child, who is reared in an environment of sympathy, service, (the cornerstone of true democracy) through invitation becomes the incarnation of those virtues. The home is the cradle of democracy, and when the children are reared in homes where the spirit is "all for one, and one for all," they are being prepared for a democracy, in a democracy. Good habits are formed by wholesome environments, in which the laws of readiness, exercise, and effect, are used in connection with vital life situations. This being true parents must always keep in mind that they are the child's ideal. What mother and daddy do, is all right. So never preach one thing and practice another.

So many homes of today are built without the proper foundation. They are on sand. We are striving too hard, to develop the mental side of the child first, forgetting the spiritual life should be the firm foundation. The moral and mental side can easily be added as the walls of a house, after the foundation is securely laid. Let us build our homes on "Christ the solid rock," in order that the young may not fall when the worldly storm rages. With the return of the old home spirit, combined with the present day opportunities there will be little doubt that the mentality of the child shall increase rapidly.

Give your children every spiritual advantage, teach them holy things. They will need it all. We must be something to the spiritual, as well as the mental. We are to be something to the soul, as well as the body. These things—these ideals in the home—will be attractive to the youth, or the aged. And if our homes are to be effective in doing the things we wish done, we must do our part to make them the best agency to attract, develop, and make men and women for the next generation that will be towers of strength against evil. Men and women, who will do the things that are good and right in the sight of God, and man; and those shall reap a rich reward in the "Life Eternal" because of the good done in this life. And for the sake of those let us spare no amount of time, or labor but be up and about our Father's business.

If the sculptor's chisel can make an impression upon the stone that will brave the forces of nature and be read and admired by the distant eye a thousand years hence, may we not do infinitely more by working on our children's hearts and destinies? And by so doing we shall mould characters and shape lives, that will stand the test of time and eternity. Thus we shall find the "Perfect way," and attain to everlasting life. And when the sun shall be sinking for its last time, and the lights of this world are fading fast, and with a faith in the Omnipotent "I am," by having performed the deeds worthy of His commendations, we shall find all well, in the "Great Beyond."

THE REPLY OF SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTISTS TO THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL, "LUX VERITATIS"

(Action taken by the Executive Committee of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, March 3, 1932)

With such impressive formality and such dignity of expression as seems appropriate to one who claims to be the vicar of Christ, the successor of Peter, and the head of the one true church of God on earth, Pius XI, the Pope of Rome and the King of the Vatican State, has again given official utterance to some of the lofty assumptions and the dogmatic teaching of the Roman Catholic Church. We who represent the Christian body of believers known as Seventh-day Adventists, freely concede to him the absolute right to do this as a free member of the wide circle of world citizenship. We have read with due attention his encyclical, "Lux Veritatis," issued on "the fifteenth centenary of the Ecumenical Council of Ephesus," and we recognize the formal courtesy with which he refers to "the many who are separated from the Apostolic See, brothers and sons most dear to us."

As Protestants who are not included in the membership of the Roman Catholic Church, and yet who sincerely believe in the deity of Jesus Christ, and who accept His forgiving mercy and His saving grace as our only hope, we deem it proper that we should make some response to the invitation of the Pope, "May all return to Us." And while we may use the same plainness of speech which he does in this encyclical when he refers to Arius as "that most nefarious subverter of Catholic unity," yet we shall endeavor to do so in the love of the truth, and with due respect to those who differ with us.

We regard the preservation of the doctrines of the Bible, unchanged by any ecclesiastical action and untainted by tradition or by any breath of heresy, as of more fundamental importance than any merely outward unity of organization, and because we are firmly convinced that the creed of the Council of Trent, interpreted and promulgated by the teaching authority of the Roman Catholic Church, notably in "The Catechism of the Council of Trent," is a serious departure from "the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints," we are constrained to express in the following paragraphs our understanding of some of the fundamental truths of genuine Christianity, and our dissent from the teaching and practice of the Roman Catholic Church in regard to these matters. We do not attempt to elaborate our views into a formal theology, or an authorized creed, or even to make a complete statement of our belief, but our brief reply is stated in plain language.

1. The Holy Scriptures, consistent of the Old and New Testaments according to the Protestant canon, are the only infallible authority in matters of faith and practice. We therefore cannot accept the ex cathedra utterances of the pope, or the decrees of the councils, or the traditions of the Roman Church as a sufficient reason for departing from the plain teachings of the word of God.

2. The eternal Son of God assumed human nature "that He might become a merciful and faithful High Priest in things pertaining to God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people." Thus "we have such a High Priest, who sat down on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, a minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, not man," who is "a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek," and "who hath been made, not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life." "Having, then, a great High Priest, who hath passed through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God," we can neither accept the pope as our high priest, nor those ordained as priests by his authority, in the place of the heavenly Priest, nor can we accept an earthly temple with its earthly order of service in place of the heavenly temple with its heavenly order of service.

3. Inasmuch as our High Priest "offered one sacrifice for sins forever," when "He offered up Himself," we cannot accept any alleged repetition of that sacrifice. As under the Aaronic priesthood, although divinely ordained, it was "impossible that the blood of bulls and goats should take away sins," much more is it impossible that any sacrifice ordained by merely human authority should now take away sins. We cannot accept the claim that creative power has been granted to any human being to transform bread and wine into the veritable body and blood of Christ be offered to God "in order to represent and continue the sacrifice of the cross." Our blessed Lord took away all earthly sacrifices, and " by one offering He hath perfected forever them that are sanctified." We agree with the Roman Catholic Encyclopedia that "the mass . . . is the central feature of the Catholic religion," but we affirm that it is an unscriptural and unreasonable ceremony.

4. The word of God plainly declares that there is "one Mediator between God and man, himself man, Christ Jesus," and that "through Him we both (Jews and Gentiles) have our access in one Spirit unto the Father."

—Church officials can make JOASH DAY a big success.

—Chicago Conference of the World Alliance afforded another proof of the power of religion to unite the people of all races and denominations in opposition to war. Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic, white and black and yellow, all were represented on the interesting programs presented, and added their testimony to the folly of attempting to settle international disputes by force of arms, the value of courts of arbitration, and the need of earnest and persistent effort in the promotion of goodwill among nations. The largely attended meetings provided a wholesome antidote for the 'Big Army' and 'Big Navy' propaganda of an influential section of the Chicago Press.—Clifford W. Barnes.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Joash Day

Before this reaches our readers we will be in JOASH MONTH—APRIL. During this month there is to be a JOASH DAY in all of our churches throughout the conference. One pastor told us this week of how it was being pushed on his charge. We want to appeal again to the laymen—the officers of the church—on behalf of this undertaking. It won't succeed, brethren, unless YOU give to it your support. But we are trusting you. The cause is so plausible and the plan so reasonable that we can't feel you will fail to give it support. Of course money is not as plentiful as it was a few years ago; but we can't stop the work of the church because of that. It is our duty to give the people an opportunity to honor God with their substance, and then let them decide how much, out of their little or their abundance, they can lay upon the altar of his church. This is what JOASH DAY means. Let us get behind it, brethren,—pastors and people—and make it a great success. We have been explaining the plan for a month through our weekly letter, and of course, every one understands it by this time. The only thing that remains is to make it go. "To your tents, O Israel."

Dr. Humphreys' Appeal

With his usual clearness and force Dr. Humphreys laid upon our hearts last week the claims of High Point College. The money stringency through which we are passing makes it difficult for us to answer this appeal in the measure of our interest but the very thing that makes it difficult for us to respond, is the very thing that makes it necessary for us to respond. If money were easy, Dr. Humphreys would not be under the necessity of making this appeal. We must respond in the measure of our ability. We can not do more; surely we must not do less. BUY A BOND! BUY A BOND! BUY A BOND!

Dr. Andrews at Home

It will be gratifying to his many friends to know that Dr. Andrews is back in his home at Charlotte. He made a good comeback, and was able to go home much earlier than we feared he would be able to do, though he was in the hospital slightly over a month. We trust that he will safeguard his strength, and not become active too soon. He will have to make haste now by being slow.

District Chairmen

The duties of the District Chairman are defined on page 57, Journal of our last conference. JOASH DAY provides a good occasion for these Chairmen to do some effective work. We trust that they will acquaint themselves with their duties, as set forth by the last conference, and then lend a good hand to JOASH.

Easter Offering

We trust that the beautiful Easter day was conducive to church attendance, and a liberal Easter offering. The next thing now is to get that offering promptly to Dr. Brown, so the Board of Missions may have it at the earliest possible moment for urgent needs. Please see to it, pastors and church treasurers, that it goes in at once.

Spring Revivals

Some pastors have these in progress now. Brother Maier has just closed a meeting at Community Church; Brother Farmer is holding one at First Church, and it was our privilege to be in two of the services there Sunday. Brother Morris informs us that he is in a meeting at Caroleen, and Brother Vickory will hold one soon at Draper. Some may be in progress that we have not heard of, and others will most likely be held during the spring months. Let us have these meetings on our minds, and pray much that an evangelistic spirit of great power may fall upon the church. Gipsy Smith says that the church has undoubtedly degenerated. None of us will question, I think, that it is living far below its privilege and responsibility in power and influence. Let us give ourselves—pastors and people—to a renewed consecration of heart and life, and pray with a new fervor that the Holy Spirit may lift the church to higher spiritual levels.

Appointments

March 30.—Draper, in quarterly conference, 7:30 P. M.

April 3.—Randleman charge, Lebanon church, 11 A. M.

April 6.—Asheville, in quarterly conference.

April 9-10.—Saxapahaw charge, as previously announced.

April 24.—Calvary, in Anniversary service, 11 A. M.

"Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom."

THE PARENTS SPEAK

I send my child to High Point College because it is a reliable A grade institution which offers a literary course of merit and provides a well-trained faculty to instruct the students. Since the number of students there is not too great, and overcrowded conditions do not exist, each student is given valuable individual attention and help. This personal contact with teachers and fellow students affords one a great educational advantage. In addition, there are religious, literary, athletic, and social activities which offer extra-curricula work which is a great help to any student.

D. F. Fritts,
Lexington, N. C.

* * *

I sent my daughter to High Point College when she had planned to go elsewhere because I thought that she would get the training in Christian ideals that I wanted her to have. I know no better school for the training of young people in high spiritual and moral ideals.

UNCOMMON WAYS OF THE COMMON OPOSSUM

There are few animals common to us, I venture to say, whose habits and characteristics are more interesting and peculiar than those of the Virginian or common opossum. Of course the first thing that comes to mind when speaking of this animal is its characteristically cunning habit of feigning death when in the hands of its enemies, which has given rise to the very general expression ''playing possum.'' But there are other things about the opossum, not so generally known, which are every bit as peculiar and interesting as this one.

For one thing, the opossum is a most excellent climber, and has slight difficulty in scaling an ordinary wall, and can proceed at a good pace on the top of a zig-zagging rail-fence with the greatest ease. In its scansorial efforts, it is very ably assisted by its long white tail, covered with scales, with a few short black hairs protuding here and there, which it is able to coil about the branch of a tree. The hinder feet are also well adapted for climbing, with the thumb placed opposite to the other toes, as on the human hand, enabling the animal to grasp a limb with no little force, and to permit, with the aid of its tail, its whole body to hang downward.

As the name implies, the Virginian opossum is a native of Virginia. It is found as well in many other portions of the United States. It is about the size of a large cat, its total length being something over a yard, the head and body measuring twenty-two inches, and the tail fifteen. Its color is a grayish-white, slightly tinged with yellow, with a brownish hue prevalent upon the limbs, and, to some extent, about the eyes. The fur, as a rule, is rough and coarse.

The opossum is to be found in both wooded and open sections of territory. It makes its nest in a hollow log, or a hollow tree, sometimes under the shelter of some old protecting roots, or, as is most generally the case, in an old woodchuck den that has been abandoned. It is by no means a gregarious animal, and it is said that even the members of the same family range far apart when out in the open air. Neither is it a hibernating animal, as it is to be found roaming the woods in quest of food in the coldest weather. True, it puts on a large amount of fat during the autumn months, which naturally gives it greater powers of resisting hunger and the inclement winter weather, and enables it to subsist upon the comparatively small amount of food to be picked up during the cold season.

Perhaps the most interesting thing to be noted about the opossum is the manner in which it cares for its young. Generally, about two weeks after the young ones are born, which are from twelve to fifteen in number, they are transferred by the mother to her cradle-pouch, where their growth is very rapid. In a short time they are to be found coiling their thick, scaly tails about each other's bodies. Perhaps a month elapses, when they have gained sufficient strength to put their heads out of the pouch, and in another week they are able to leave it entirely for a brief period. When the young opossums are first placed in the mother's pouch they are less than an inch in length, the tail included.

A very singular circumstance is that when the mother first puts them into her pouch, they are totally deaf and blind. The eyes and ears are closed and are not opened until several days have passed. This is not the case with kittens, puppies and other small animals at the time of birth; they are only partially blind. In the case of the kitten or puppy, it seems that the presence of light, as well as the action of the atmosphere, is needed to fully clear its vision. But with the young opossum, the absence of light is generally necessary until the time comes for it to open its eyes and ears, while the action of the atmosphere is needed to make the tiny ears sensitive to the sounds that are transmitted through them.

The prevailing idea among farmers and other people acquainted with the opossum is that it is a greedy and destructive animal, prowling about at nights, devouring young rabbits and squirrels, and even sneaking into the hen-house to make a meal on a fowl or her eggs. It is true, where there are many opossums in a thickly settled community, that they may become quite a serious nuisance to the farmer, but their food does not altogether consist of the flesh of innocent animals. They feed, as well, on mice, moles and other destructive rodents that prey and derive their living on the farmer's crops, on insect pests, on reptiles of various kinds, and on beechnuts, acorns, wild berries and wild grapes, and on certain tender plants. Thus the opossum is not altogether an undesirable animal, but, like most creatures, mixes the bad with the good. Certainly it does not deserve extermination.—Raymond E. Moore in Our Dumb Animals.

REFLECTION

When you have a difficult problem to solve, sit down where you can be quiet and uninterrupted, dismiss from your mind every other thought, take up the problem seriously, and work it out to a conclusion. This will save both your time and strength, and develop in you valuable qualities of definiteness and decision. When you have thought out such a matter quietly and carefully in advance, you will be able to prosecute it with half the ordinary expenditure of time and energy.

Stand away from your work occasionally, as a painter does from his picture, in order to see more advantageously its proportion and perspective. Your hand held close to your eyes will shut out the sun. In like manner, you may keep so close to your daily occupations as to neglect consideration of the larger aspects of your life.

Conserve your time. Do not waste time on trifles or nonessentials. Concentrate upon your daily plan, keep before you a great purpose, and make every day contribute as much as possible to your personal advancement. You do not have to wait for opportunities; opportunities are waiting for you. Look about you and you will see them on all sides.

GRENVILLE KLEISER.

A HORSE IN THE WAY

It was in the winter of my first year as a presiding elder. I loved the pastorate above any other place and loved the revival work. We held our quarterly conference in the school-house Saturday at 2 p. m. The pastor was a live young man and was in a revival at that point with several conversions already. Everyone talked of the revival.

That evening the people began to come about sunset and soon the little school-house had a big crowd. Vigorous singing and general enthusiasm characterized ministers and co-workers. There was an air of expectancy that helps one to preach. Four or five came to the mourner's bench. There was real mourning for sin. Not long and the altar was clear except a rugged-looking man at one end of the bench. As the people sang lustily the young preacher called me to one side and said, "That man has been here three nights. There is something wrong."

I said, "You are close to him. I would probe the matter." He pressed close and asked, "Jim, what is wrong?" He said, "In prayer the Holy Spirit will help us to see." Soon the man said, "It is a horse. At the election I bet and won. What am I to do?"

The pastor said, "Take it back. The man is here and the horse is tied to the fence."

The man sprang to his feet and pressed his way through the crowd and said, "Jones, God calls for me to give you back your horse." And with a victorious joy the man shouted praises to God. Jones rose and said, "If this is religion, I want it," and a half dozen said, "So do I." It was a scene never to be forgotten. The angels of Heaven rejoiced. When sin and pardon and communion with God and the Holy Spirit's work are treated as more real, Pentecost will be nearer.—Publisher Unknown.

PLEASURE—SORROW

"I walked a mile with Pleasure.
  She chattered all the way;
But I was none the wiser
  For all she had to say.
I walked a mile with Sorrow,
  And ne'er a word said she—
But, oh, the things I learned that day
  When Sorrow walked with me!"

—Rays of Sunshine.

ESTABLISHED

There is an old story of a deacon whose Christian life had stagnated, and who yet sturdily maintained the dignity of his Christian standing and experience. "Yes, brethren," was his testimony, "I'm not making much progress, but I'm established." One day in the spring when the frost was coming out of the ground the deacon set off to town with a heavy load and became mired. He did his best to get out, but horses and wagon were stuck. A neighbor coming by stopped to help him, but could not forbear first a cheerful shaft. "Well, deacon," said he, "I see you are not making much progress, but you are established." It is better to get on a bit.—Publisher Unknown.

EXPERIENCE THE TEST

An infidel was lecturing to a great audience and, having finished his address, he invited any who had questions to ask to come on the platform. After a short interval a man who had been well known in the town as a notorious drunkard, but who had lately been converted, stepped forward, and taking an orange from his pocket, coolly began to peel it. The lecturer asked him to propound his question, but without replying to him the man finished peeling his orange, and then ate it. When he had finished his orange he turned to the lecturer and asked him if it was a sweet one. Very angry, the man said, "Idiot, how can I know whether it was sweet or sour, when I never tasted it?" To this the converted drunkard retorted, "And how can you know anything about Christ if you have not tried Him?"—Christian Herald.

TO SAY A WORD FOR CHRIST

God gave me something very sweet
  To be mine own this day—
A precious opportunity,
  A word for Christ to say;
A soul that my desire might reach,
  A work to do for Him;
And now I thank Him for His grace,
  Ere yet the light grows dim.

So in this twilight hour I kneel,
  And pour my grateful thought
In song and prayer to Jesus
  For the gifts this day hath brought.
Sure never service is so sweet,
  Nor life hath so much zest,
As when He bids me speak for Him,
  And then He does the rest.

—The closing illustration used by Rabbi Wise was an overwhelming and powerful appeal to the church to give itself to the cause of peace without any reservations—"I recall the chapter on 'Crema and the Crucifix' in John Addington Symond's 'Sketches in Italy' in which he tells of a crucifix he found in Crema, twenty-one inches long, made of strong wood, and shod at the four ends with brass, bought from the Frati when their ministry in Crema was dissolved. 'Under a little steel knob fixed into the back between the arms of the Christ figure there was a spring, and, when pressed, the upper and lower parts came down. Holding the top, I drew out from the scabbard a sharp steel blade concealed in the wood behind the very body of the Christ. What had been a crucifix became a deadly poinard in my grasp.' A sword concealed in a crucifix! If I were a Christian, as I am a Jew," said Dr. Wise, "I would say that crucifix and sword must part company—and part company forever."—Selected.

OUR STORY PAGE

A SHIP THAT WENT A-SAILING

Peter had a little wooden ship. Uncle Jack had carved it from a piece of oak, and Peter was very proud of it, indeed. He had named it the ''High Ho.''

One day when Peter was playing sailor with his boat in the water trough, one of his little playmates came running up to him.

''Oh, Peter!'' he called. ''Bobby hurt his foot; so he can't play sailor with us this afternoon. We'll have to play by ourselves.''

''That is too bad,'' said Peter. ''I wonder if we could do something for Bobby?''

The two little boys looked at each other. They knew it would be very lonesome for Bobby to sit all alone by himself on the porch.

''I know,'' said Peter, smiling. ''Let's fill the 'High Ho' with something and then take it to Bobby. We'll make believe it sailed to his house on a journey, and we were the sailors. Then we can unload our cargo at Bobby's house, because that will be our port.''

''Oh, that is just great,'' said Jimsie in a very much excited voice. ''But what shall we put in our ship?''

''We can find an apple in the orchard, and I know mother will give us some cookies,'' said Peter.

''And I will put in some of my marbles,'' said Jimsie.

''And I will put one of my story books,'' said Peter.

And so they did. Down to Bobby's house sailed the ''High Ho'' with its loaded cargo, and the two happy sailors. Bobby was on the porch as the boat sailed into port.

''We were sorry you couldn't play sailor with us, Bobby,'' said Peter; ''so we decided to sail down to your house. The cargo belongs to you.''

Bobby's eyes glowed as he thanked Peter and Jimsie.

''I am so glad you did sail down here to me,'' said Bobby. ''This is lots of fun.''

And both Jimsie and Peter thought so, too, as the three happy boys played together.—Picture Story Paper.

THE AMEN CORNER

Grandma Price had been telling five-year-old Jimmy of the early days of Methodism, when it was customary for the saints to occupy the Amen Corner of the church at Back Run, and that Grandpa Price was often heard to shout out a hearty amen when the preacher said something worth while. Not entirely satisfied, Jimmie starts to cross-examine Grandma on this wise:

''What was an Amen Corner, Grandma?''

''Why, sonnie, it was a corner in the very front of the church where the old saints sat, and felt free to say amen when the preacher said something worth while.''

''But, Grandma—don't preachers say anything worth while any more?''

''Yes, my dear, only it seems to disturb the minister nowadays to hear the people say amen.''

''Then, don't he like to be disturbed?''

''No, indeed,'' says Grandma. ''It makes him nervous.''

''Say, Grandma, did my daddy ever say amen?''

''I'm afraid not—I never heard him.''

''Would the preacher get nervous if he had said amen?''

''Yes, I rather think he would.''

''Say, Grandma, why else don't people say amen any more?''

''Because it is not the fashion, I rather suspect.''

''Listen, Grandma—if I can holler at a game of ball and cheer as a parade goes by, why can't I say amen in church?''

''O, Jimmy, that is a hard question.''

''How does the preacher act when he gets nervous?''

''Why, he simply forgets what he was going to say.''

''Grandma, if I should jump up and say, 'I'll subscribe a million dollars for home and foreign missions,' would he get scared and forget to take it? Would he, Grandma?''

''I think not, my little man.''

''Say, Grandma, you loan me a million, I'm going to try him out next Sunday, and if he don't faint or get scared, why I'll say amen out loud, just like good old Grandpa used to say it, so I will.''—The Christian Advocate.

SAM'S LEADERSHIP

The wind swept keenly through a little, snow-wrapped town on the banks of the Ohio. In most manufacturing towns the night of destitution is not uncommon, yet the lapse of years has not dimmed the memory of the small barefoot boy who that morning battled with the snow drifts before a handsome residence.

''Heigh-ho! my lad, are you not frozen?'' I asked.

''Ruther,'' answered the boy, sending the white flakes swirling in every direction.

''Do you go to Sunday School?'' I asked. A contemptuous look flashed over the half-famished face, a look unknown to childhood, save where bitter experience has set its seal. Planting his shovel firmly in the snow, he replied, ''Don't talk to me 'bout Sunday School.''

''Why, my boy, have you and the Sunday School had a quarrel?'' I asked.

He gave his ragged cap an impatient jerk, and nodding his little head toward the residence exclaimed: ''Them's Sunday School people w'at I'm workin' fer. Biggest kind of Sunday School people, and they'll gimme same cold crust for clearin' their sidewalk.''

I seized one of the half-frozen little hands and said, ''See here, boy, don't you want a pair of shoes and some mittens?''

He looked at me as though he could not believe me, and replied, ''Now, you're a-shoutin'!''

''What is your name?'' I asked.

''Sam,'' he answered.

''All right, Sam,'' I replied, ''when you have finished here, come up to my house, and I will give you a warm breakfast,'' and pointing out a house in the same block I left him.

Shortly after, the half-frozen, ragged little creature presented himself at my mother's kitchen. Under the kind influence that reigned there, little Sam's prejudices waned. He warmed and brightened, and promised that the very next Sunday he would join the School.

True to promise, Sunday found little Sam in the primary class, where were gathered two hundred little children, most of whom were as poor and wretched as himself. During the lesson the child disappeared for a moment, and at its close I explained for the benefit of the newcomers that inasmuch as there were two hundred little ones in the class, they must never go out during the teaching of the lesson.

Sam's grimy little hand went up, and he called out, "Please, Ma'am, I want to tell you what I went out fer. When you told about Him up there—God's Son (pointing upward)—I never knowed before that anybody loved me, or cared for me, and I says to myself, 'Here, Sam, you'd better dump them cigar stumps outer yer pocket, fer if He really loves you He wouldn't want ye usin' the like of them.' So I throwed 'em all out."

The child was only seven years old, and his little face shone with as much brightness as it expressed scorn a few days before. Truly the seed had fallen upon "good ground" this time, and little Sam was at his post of duty every Sunday morning during the entire winter.

Early one morning the following spring there appeared at my mother's door a blear-eyed, bloated drunkard, who asked for me, exclaiming, "Sam is dyin', and callin' for you!" When I reached the wretched hovel, the soul of little Sam had winged its flight from the pitiful body, and a smile of peace kissed the tired face of the little waif of poverty.

The wretched mother caught my hands and wept, exclaiming in broken sobs, "God has taken little Sam, poor little boy that we all—yes, even I—mistreated. Ever since he has been in your Sunday School," she went on, "he knelt down every night and prayed; prayed while we scoffed at him! O God, he was too good for us, and You have taken him!"

It was such a pitiful scene! The drunken father, the hard-faced mother, broken now with remorse and contrition, two or three very small children who gazed in blank wonder upon the solemn scene their childish minds could not comprehend; and apart from the little group, upon a bed of straw in one corner of the room, was the now familiar face of the dead boy.

No earnest effort is ever lost, and the brief life of little Sam, with its outstretching for something higher, was the guiding star of the entire family. The face of the mother soon grew familiar in "little Sam's church," of which she afterward became a member, followed later by the father, in whom seemed wrought a very miracle of grace. The "little child" had led them.—Publisher Unknown.

—The events of Passion Week were finely impressed in a special service of scripture reading, song, and recitation of poems given in Calvary Church last Sunday night. Pastor Bates conducted the service, reading the scripture selections.

BOTH BLADES NECESSARY

John Harcourt sat before his desk in thought, "I can not for the life of me understand why the Rev. Smith is not satisfied when I agreed to give ten thousand dollars toward the building of the church. That is infinitely more than any one else is giving. He reminded me that the gift without the giver is bare. 'Who gives himself with his gift feeds three, himself, his needy neighbor, and Me.'

"What was that he said about faith and works being like a pair of scissors? I remember now he said how one blade would not work without the other. The costliest pair of scissors are worthless if the blades do not work in conjunction with each other. Of course, everybody knows that, but I really wonder if it is the same with good works, are they useless if not coupled with faith?"

A long time he sat musing, his mind traveling back to his childhood days when he investigated his mother's scissors. Being of an inquiring mind he had unloosened the rivet that held them together. He was in the garden at the time and the rivet got lost in the earth and it could not be found, consequently the scissors were useless until a new rivet was found to hold the blades together.

"So faith and works are like that," he mused. "Strange that childish incident should come to me just now, I believe the Bible says that faith without works is dead. I had faith enough when I was a child, and now I have the ability to do the works, but what will it avail when I have lost the faith?"

Further pondering on the matter led to John Harcourt's finding the faith he had lost, the result being that he became a changed man. He rejoiced in doing great things for the Master he now loved and served.—Unknown.

ONE TOUCH OF GOD

At one time a group of men were attempting to raise an obelisk in Egypt to its base, and the work was under the supervision of a very exact and careful engineer. They had raised the great mass of granite to within a few inches of the level of the base and then were unable to lift it further. They could not get it up to the level of the pedestal by their utmost efforts.

But there was a secret in nature that they did not know. There was a sailor there who knew all about it. He shouted, "Wet the ropes!" As they did so, the ropes began to groan, and strain, and shorten, and the great mass rose, and rose, till it came to the level of the base, and they could push it over and establish it firmly on its pedestal.

It was a little secret, but it was an effectual one. The men had pulled at the cordage and strained away at it, but the obelisk was in midair, and there it hung until the cry came to wet the ropes.

Dear friends, the instant we let the Holy Ghost saturate the soul, the Lord Jesus Christ brings into it all His infinite forces of love and power. One touch of God will do all that our tugging and struggling could not do.—A. B. Simpson in Alliance Weekly.

—Has the day been announced,—JOASH DAY.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

APPEAL TO AUXILIARIES AND THANK-OFFERING SECRETARIES

At the Branch meeting at Enfield April 12 to 14 we will hold a Thank-Offering service. A short program will be held. The roll of Auxiliaries will be called and as your Auxiliary is called won't you be glad to respond with an offering? Then please begin now to collect an offering to take or send to Branch Meeting to lay on the altar in response to your name and to represent your church, when the amount will be announced and a candle lighted in recognition of your service and willingness to help give light and life to others.

We hope to make this an impressive and sweet service and you are needed and urged to have a part in it and thereby receive a blessing while helping others. We are hoping for several $10.00 offerings and any amount, from $1.00 up, will light a candle and be gladly received and will go to the support of Rev. Mr. Minnis and family, apply on his salary, and will count on your next year's budget.

Please respond by doing what you can and let's make this thank-offering service interesting and helpful. I am counting on your assistance.

MRS. J. W. BOYLES,
State Sec'y of Thank-Offering.

INVITATION TO BRANCH MEETING

Enfield and surrounding community feels indeed fortunate and honored to have the Branch Meeting April 12-14. We want to extend a cordial invitation to all delegates, representatives and visitors; we sincerely trust all sholl see fit to come. We shall do our best to make you comfortable and happy while with us.

We request that all delegates, representatives and visitors please send in their names at once to Mrs. Cecille Matthews, Enfield, N. C., chairman of the entertainment committee. We urge you to do this right away.

Light lunch will be served at church (Hut) Tuesday for those who will arrive about lunch time.

MRS. E. I. BELLAMY.

CONTINUED

Paid in full on budgets since last report: Bethesda, Eden, Halifax; Calvary, Pleasant Hill, Reidsville, Lebanon, Gibsonville, Thomasville Community, Moriah.

MRS. S. W. TAYLOR, Sec'y.

—David C. Cook, 2d, president of the David C. Cook Company, publishers of religious literature, died last week at his home in Elgin, Ill., of pneumonia. He was 51 years old.

—Mayor Jack Edwards of Marion, Ind., announced that all traffic sinners would pay their fines in food, fuel or clothing, the articles obtained thereby to be distributed to the needy of the city.

—America ranks 10th among nations in public health.

A WELCOME TO THE BRANCH REPRESENTATIVES

As pastor of the church which will give entertainment for the N. C. Branch Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, I wish to say that we are happy to know of your coming. We desire to do everything possible to make your visit with us a pleasant one. Do not hesitate to "pack up your kit" and let every Auxiliary be represented.

Our people are as hospitable as any people I know. We are looking forward to the Branch Meeting with great pleasure. We feel certain that we will gather a great deal of information and inspiration from having the meeting with us.

BE SURE to send in the names of your representatives immediately, and tell us from what charges you come.

MY GARDEN

(To my dear friends, Elizabeth and Grenville Kleiser)

Mine is an intimate garden
Enclosed by trees and wall,
Where orioles dwell in summertime
And bluejays in the fall.

Beside this lovely garden wall
Where precious feet have trod,
There mounts a simple rustic Cross
With arms outstretched to God.

This rosetwined Cross bespeaks
Of heartache, loss, and pain;
It also points to that new life
Where added joy doth reign.

A winding path to a shady nook
Where a little tea-house stands,
Here I am writing to you, my dears,
Inspired by Nature's hand.

The air is filled with rare perfume
Of heliotrope, roses and phlox,
But the glory of the garden lies
In hedges and trees of box.

Now the sunset shadows lengthen,
There's a rustling of the leaves,
I turn my steps to the home nest,
Beneath the old oak trees.

But above this earthly garden
Lies another beyond compare,
It holds no worldly treasure,
Only Love can enter there.

—Fanny L. Waters.

THANKS

First, I want to thank Drs. Dixon, Taylor, Lindley and Kennett for so willingly and acceptably filling the 11 a. m: appointments for me for four Sundays. The congregations greatly appreciated the privilege of hearing these brethren.

Then I want to thank all those who halved my hours of loneliness by their much appreciated visits to me during the month I ruled from my throne, the high hospital bed, where I said "Come," and she cometh, and "Do this," and she doeth it. Nowhere could I have received better and kinder services than from the faithful physicians and nurses in the High Point Hospital.

And then there were those who did not come in person but who remembered me in my isolation and wrote good letters or sent beautiful cards. These had no small part in helping me to keep the right mental attitude for a speedy recovery.

Then, too, I want to thank Dr. Taylor for giving through his weekly letter information about my condition so that any friend who might read the Herald could know.

I left the hospital last Saturday, stood the trip home in an automobile quite well and am now looking forward to the time, at no distant day, when I can enter again fully into the work of the pastorate.

Cordially yours,
R. M. ANDREWS.

With burning zeal and humble faith,
He preaches the Living Word
To types of every Christian grace,
The love of Jesus Christ, our Lord.

He leaves his loved ones far behind
While he goes forth tt do his bit,
To bring gospel truth to spiritually blind,
And light to souls in the darkened pit.
He spends his days in doing good
To the heathen and distressed,
He fulfills the duty to his Savior and Lord:
Rise up, ye Christians, and call him blest!

Midway Church.—The Ladies' Aid Society has tried various ways of raising money this year. Last Saturday they served Brunswick stew at Mr. England's auction tent in Greensboro. The sales were quite successful, and they succeeded in raising some money for the treasury.

We were very glad to have 109 members present at Sunday school last Sunday. The average attendance and number of new members have increased very much as a result of the membership drive the Sunday school has put on. The drive is to last three months and the losing side entertains the winners. Much enthusiasm has been aroused. The reds were leading last Sunday.

Easter Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the children of the Sunday school will present an Easter program. The choir has arranged for some special Easter music also. Visitors are welcome at all times.

In addition to our Sunday morning services Mr. Grant has graciously consented to hold a night service for us on the second Sunday of each month. REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—The services each evening of Holy Week were very well attended. On Tuesday evening, March 22, the A Capella Choir of High Point College, under the able and skilful direction of Prof. Ernest B. Stimson, rendered a program of beautiful music to the delight of those in attendance. This group of 35 young people sings without accompaniment, and the harmony and blending of the natural human voices is very beautiful. Dressed in conventional choristers' surplices, they present an impressive picture. A most pleasing feature of the program was the solo singing of Master S. W. Taylor, Jr., 11-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Taylor, who rendered the lovely favorites, "Softly Now the Light of Day" and "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old" with charming poise and self-possession. His voice is a clear, strong soprano, and gives promise of great beauty and power. Another favorite with our congregation, C. L. Gray, Jr., sang "Come Ye Blessed" with fine effect. The number, Schubert's Serenade, given by Miss Mildred Luce on the violin, Mr. Templeton on the clarinet, and Miss Alma Andrews on the piano, was delightful and well received. Miss Vera Smith, of our choir, also sang a pretty solo. The fine and effective work of this talented and unusual choir reflects much credit on the music department of the college. The congregation greatly appreciates the opportunity of hearing this beautiful program.

On Friday evening the Sabbath school presented its annual Easter entertainment in the assembly room, and each department from Beginners through Primary, Intermediate, and Junior, was well represented in choruses, recitations, and solos. Miss Mary Elizabeth Farmer sang a pretty solo, Miss Ernestine Vuncannon played a violin number, and Master Gilbert Gray, aged five, gave a recitation without a mistake. Mrs. R. I. Farmer, Miss Lucille Pickens, and Mrs. Theodore Ballard served as the committee on program.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock amid a lovely setting of Easter lilies, palms, and beautiful cut flowers, placed in the pulpit by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Penny, an annual custom in memory of their sainted young daughter, Evelyn, the Easter service was conducted. There was special Easter music rendered by the choir with Prof. Ernest B. Stimson at the organ, and a large congregation greeted the minister when he rose to deliver his Easter message on "The Resurrection As a Constraining Power" from the text in II Cor. 5: "For the love of Christ constraineth us." He said, There never was a series of events that ended with so much significance as the crucifixion. Today as in the past, the love of Christ abides, and "is the passion that kindles honor." Gethsemane was the expression of the love of Christ, and without this triumph we could have no Easter morning. Southey said, "They sin who tell us love can die." Jesus looked out into the future and saw his church organized; He was confident in His resurrection. He left something that made the heart burn; Calvary cannot be defeated. Men in all ages have gone out with the constraining power of the living Christ. Duty is a delight when the heart is filled with love and this constraining love of Christ is the motive of self-sacrifice and work for Him. Warm-hearted, sacrificial love comes from the love of Christ in the heart. O beloved friends, I want to challenge you for the services in this coming week, and I yearn that you may know the constraining love of Christ. After the close of the sermon, almost the entire congregation gathered around the altar rail and consecrated themselves anew to their vows, and especially to the services of the coming week.

Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock Mrs. Mary C. Steidley, a local evangelist, began the series of meetings with a goodly number in attendance. At 4 o'clock P. M. she conducted a special meeting for young people and children of high school and junior high school ages, and again at 7:30 Monday evening she will bring the message. These services will continue each day through the week and longer if conditions demand it. We are praying and trusting for a blessed revival in our midst.

Little Miss Pauline Kennett, president, calls a meetting of the Sunshine Circle on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. S. W. Taylor and Miss Margaret Walton are leaders of this group of promising children.

Wilbur Pritchard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard, has returned to his studies at State College, Raleigh, after spending the Spring holidays at home.

Mrs. H. C. Harrox, of Peeksville, N. Y., left Saturday for her home after a week's visit to her sister, Mrs. C. H. Bass, on Lindsay street.

The friends of Mrs. James T. Ryan are pleased to know that she is recovering nicely from an operation which she underwent in Guilford General Hospital last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Vance, of Yanceyville, spent the Easter holidays with Mrs. C. W. Vance.

We are much pleased to announce that Mrs. L. J. Diffee is resting comfortably in High Point Hospital after an attack of influenza.

Last Thursday afternoon Mrs. John C. Whitesell called together the members of the new Circle No. 5 of the Woman's Auxiliary at her home on Rotary Drive, and they organized with the following officers: Chairman, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker; first vice-chairman, Mrs. P. E. Lindley; second vice-chairman, Mrs. H. A. Moffitt; secretary, Mrs. R. T. Pickens; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Pritchard.

High Point College closed its doors for the Easter holidays Thursday at 1 P. M., and will resume classes on Tuesday morning. The majority of the pupils went to their respective homes.

Miss Claire Douglas, member of the faculty of Davenport College, Lenoir, N. C., spent the Easter recess with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Douglas, on Montlieu Avenue.

Miss Louise Jennings was at home from the University of North Carolina for the brief holiday.

Miss Dorothy Lee Rankin, who is a student at Western Maryland College, spent the Easter vacation with her room-mate, Miss Anna Doris Pope, of Salisbury, Md. Dorothy has been selected as one of two juniors to serve as maid of honor to the queen of the May day fete on May 1st.

Mrs. Lewis E. Teague is recovering from an attack of influenza, to the gratification of many friends.

Moriah.—At the morning service on Easter Sunday our pastor, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, brought to us a wonderful message about Easter. After the preaching service the Easter program was rendered, which consisted mainly of songs and recitations by the very small children. Following the children's exercise a splendid talk was given by Mr. J. Norman Wills. We were very glad indeed to have Mr. and Mrs. Wills with us at this service.

Quite a number of people from Moriah attended the afternoon session of the district meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary held at Julian Sunday, March 20.

Joash Day will be observed the third Sunday in April at Moriah.

The members of the Woman's Auxiliary are very glad to report the budget for this year paid in full. REPORTER.

Siler City.—On the second Sunday night in March, the Woman's Auxiliary rendered a very interesting Thank-Offering program. They used the suggestive program in the January number of the Missionary Record, and also a play, "Aunt Polly Joins the Missionary Society," by five girls. An offering was taken which will be sent to the Branch Meeting for Rev. and Mrs. Minnis.

We are still without a pastor, but not a preacher. Bro. Pike was with us again on the third Sunday at 11 o'clock with another one of his inspiring sermons. His subject was "The Resurrection of Jesus," which was very appropriate so near the Easter time. We were indeed glad to have Bro. Pike's son, Samuel, worship with us on this occasion.

The Woman's Auxiliary met at the church Wednesday afternoon, March 23rd. At this time Mrs. D. L. Johnson, Mrs. C. E. Brady and Miss Minnie Cooper were elected delegates to the Branch Meeting in April. Among other business transacted a committee was appointed to look after painting the church, which is very much needed, and will add so much to the looks.

Some of the Christian Endeavorers, with Miss Sallie Smith as leader, visited Mrs. Riley, a very old lady of our town, and read, sang songs, and prayed with her. To say she enjoyed this visit does not half express it. Just to think how little such good deeds cost us and how little we do.

Since my last report Mr. J. A. Cooper, Mrs. E. D. Woody, and Mr. B. E. Fox have had charge of the mid-week prayer services. Hezekiah, Isaiah, and Joeab were the characters we studied. Next week Mr. L. L. Wrenn will have the meeting in charge. The interest is holding up fine in these meetings and we feel sure this is a good time to learn more about these great Bible characters.

Our Easter service was held on Sunday night and was a grand success. Misses Sallie Smith, Clata F. Andrew, and Flossie Siler had charge of the program and Miss Minnie Cooper directed the music. The program consisted of Easter songs, recitations, a drill, and a pageant, "The Easter Vision," which was presented in a splendid way. The lighting feature of the pageant was very impressive, especially the electrically lighted cross which stood at the rear of the stage and was flashed on and off as the scene unfolded inself. This cross was planned and made by D. G. Fox. All the lighting features of the evening were planned and ruled by him and they were a credit to any electrician. The Easter songs by the young people and small children were above the average. We feel very proud of the good singers coming along in our church.

Antioch, Mecklenburg Charge.—We are glad to report that our attendance is growing both in Sunday school and preaching services. Our Sunday school looks very promising just now. Our number has almost doubled and much interest is being manifested, although there is much sickness in our community.

Our pastor has filled all appointments with splendid sermons. I am sure I voice the sentiment of our people when I say we are very well pleased with him and his family.

We were unable to hold Easter services owing to the bad weather of previous Sundays which prevented our getting to hold Sunday school. But we hope to observe the other special days. REPORTER.

◆

Midway, Midway-Shady Grove Charge.—We are continuing to grow, despite the bad weather and sickness this spring. There were 109 in Sunday school the Sunday before Easter. Easter Sunday there were 125 present. This attendance is double that of a year ago. Easter Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the children gave a program that was composed mainly of music. The program was under the direction of Miss Beulah Suits and Mrs. E. C. Walters.

The Ladies' Aid Society met Friday, March 25, with Mrs. George McGhee. They are continuing their drive to pay for the piano. Saturday, March 19th, they gave a brunswick stew with good success. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Leo Palmer, Friday, April 8.

The church is just about painted. The work was started last week and with good weather prevailing will be completed by the middle of this week.

We have some very interesting Christian Endeavor programs. The attendance is unusually good for the bad weather.

Our pastor, Mr. Charles Grant, has decided to give us a Sunday night service. This will be the second Sunday night at 8 o'clock, beginning with April. We will have services every Sunday in April. The fourth Sunday at 11 o'clock Dr. Taylor will be with us. Our regular appointments are first and third Sunday mornings at 11 o'clock, and second Sunday night at 8 o'clock. We always welcome visitors and especially our old friends. Come to see us and we will prove just how much we have grown in such a short while. Our pastor is not a stranger in our homes; he is just like a member of each family. We appreciate this fact very much.

Among our visitors Easter Sunday we had two ministerial students of Western Maryland College, Mr. Wayne Moore, of Iowa, and our own student, Eugene A. Lamb. These two young men complete their college work this year. Also, we had three Misses Taylor, of Bluefield, W. Va.

Four of our group attended services at Shady Grove Sunday afternoon.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—March 22. We had a good number present in our class today. Our teacher taught a very interesting lesson. He reviewed the past quarter and told of the things that led to where "Jesus Rises from the Dead." He brought out some interesting points about our lesson today. He remarked: "It matters not where we are or what we do, Jesus is always present with us. Jesus dying on the cross and rising from the dead means that He will always be with us." May we always live and act that we might glorify our risen Lord and King. Let us all get the true meaning of Easter so we may serve our Lord in the way that will be pleasing to Him who gave His life for us.

We were very glad to have our visiting friends with us today; we always give them a hearty welcome.

We ask the prayers of all the Herald readers that we may be lifted to higher planes of Christian living.

Pleasant Grove.—We had a good attendance at Sunday school Sunday. In the absence of Mr. E. M. Macon, teacher of the Men's class, Mr. B. L. West, principal of Hasty High School, had charge of his class. We are always glad to have visitors come and take part.

At the 11 o'clock service the children gave the Easter program to a large crowd. It always makes our hearts glad to hear the children bring us these messages in song and recitations, for we find in the Scriptures, "And a little child shall lead them."

Much credit is due to Mrs. Clyde Payne, Mrs. Ralph Kennedy and Mrs. Wallace Kennedy. Mrs. J. R. Meredith had charge of the music for this program. Our Easter offering amounted to $9.00.

At the close of the service we had communion service.

Christian Endeavor met Sunday evening at 6:45 o'clock. Our topic was "What Easter Means." We had as our leader Mr. Joe Murphy.

At the evening worship our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, brought us a wonderful message from the text, "For when we were yet without strength in due time Christ died for the ungodly," saying that when we get weak we should go to Christ for strength to support us as Christ did when He was on the cross when He said, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" That was the only account in the Bible where we find He was thinking God had forsaken Him.

There is no way for Christians but the way of the cross. Sometimes the way may seem dark, but Christ died for sins. So we can go to Christ alone in prayer and He will roll the clouds away and give new strength and courage to press onward.

People have been in our community distributing false doctrine. So next Sunday, April 3, at the 11 o'clock service our pastor will bring us a message on "Is the Grave Hell?" We invite anyone that will come and hear this message to do so.

Friends of Mrs. D. M. Kennedy will be glad to hear she is getting better. We are sorry to learn Mrs. Crissie Scott is very ill. We pray for her speedy recovery.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The C. E. Society met Sunday night, March 20, with 74 young people present. Our lesson on "How Can I Show My Crowd That I Am a Christian?" was led by Mrs. Kyle Sink and interestingly discussed by each one who took part.

Sunday night, March 27, the C. E. Society gave a pageant entitled "Behold, He Liveth," coached by the chairman of our program committee, Mrs. R. S. Troxler. The program was well attended and all who had parts are to be commended on the way in which they carried them out.

Three new members were added to our roll Sunday night; we welcome you, and hope you will get some good from meeting with us, and we are sure we will be helped by your presence.

The average attendance for the month of February was not as large as we had hoped for, but a few cold, rainy Sunday nights cut the attendance considerably, with only an average of 55.

As the society continues to grow in number it also continues to grow in spirit. We feel that growing in spirit means infinitely more than in number, even though the greater the number, the greater is the manifestation of the spirit. C. E. REPORTER.

Lebanon, High Point.—We had two very interesting services Sunday. At the morning service our pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison, preached on the subject, "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" He said in part: All people throughout life are in search of happiness, and of that which is permanent and eternal. But most of us search in the realm of the physical, natural and superficial things of life. These are but tombs of the dead and shall not live. Our hopes of immortality and for all that is eternal are realized in the risen Christ and in Him alone. Happiness is the by-product of serving Him here below.

Special music for this service was a duet by Misses Gertrude Clark and Mabel Koontz, with flute obligato by Miss Iris Welch, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Stokes Gallimore. At the evening service a cantata, "King of the Ages," by Stults, was presented. Solo parts in this contata were rendered by Misses Louise Welch, Esther Murphy and Mr. C. A. King. The Junior and Intermediate Christian Endeavorers assisted the choir in the program. The program was one of the best ever presented here. We enjoyed it very much.

We were very glad to have two new members join with us last Sunday, Mrs. Ida Gillen and Miss Frances Craven.

During the Easter season the Ladies' Aid presented flowers and fruit to the members of the church on the sick list.

The congregation joins in sympathy with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Daniels in the loss of their son. REPORTER.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville.—There has been a considerable fall-off in attendance.

Mrs. Oscar Mead has been quite ill with rheumatism. Also little Katherine Blankenship has had pneumonia. Both are much improved now.

As the warmth of springtime brings forth all the beauties of nature, more interest will be manifested in every way.

Bro. E. G. Cowan was invited to take part in a commencement program yesterday and made arrangements with Bro. Thompson, from High Point College, to fill his pulpit. He brought to us a splendid Easter message, which we enjoyed very much.

On Wednesday, April 6, at 7:30 p. m. the second quarterly conference will convene. We truly hope that not only the members of our church will have a good attendance and church report, but each church on the charge.

We love to see the work grow.

Let us work and pray that the work here may progress.

Seagrove.—Pastor Reynolds last Sunday night delivered a splendid message, as he always does. Owing to the Easter program at Fair Grove that night we held our service at 7 o'clock so the pastor could be at both places.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. County President S. G. Richardson was present last Sunday and made an interesting talk.

We are very sorry that one of our Sunday school teachers, Mrs. W. C. Auman, is very sick with pneumonia. We hope and pray for her speedy recovery.

The Junior class, taught by Mrs. D. J. Johnson, enjoyed an egg-hunt and marshmallow roast Tuesday afternoon. The Primary class, taught by Mrs. Noah Williams, enjoyed an egg-hunt Monday afternoon.

Our Ladies' Aid Society met Friday night, March 25th, with Mrs. Nettie Allen. A large number was present. The program was given by the Juniors.

The Juniors received one new member, Miss Edith Tucker. The Seniors have recently received two new members, Mrs. L. A. King and Mrs. Clyde Russell. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. J. R. Comer.

Charlotte.—We are pleased to report the return of our pastor, Rev. R. M. Andrews, to his home Saturday from the hospital.

The Senior C. E. Society has been holding joint meetings with other societies of the city.

With Branch Meeting at Enleld nearing, the Auxiliary members have been very busy getting everything rounded out and bring in a paid in full report. There is to be a called meeting Tuesday. Even though times are rather strenuous, Charlotte will do her full part.

Our service Sunday morning was most refreshing and inspiring, conducted by Mr. R. S. Garmon, one of our laymen. Rev. N. M. Harrison was delayed and could not reach us.

The regular Wednesday evening prayer meetings have been resumed and are well attended.

Sunday, April 3, is the 20th anniversary of our church here, and we are having a special service at which time the Joash box will be opened and contents dedicated to the church fund.

Misses Rosalie and Alma Andrews accompanied their father home Saturday and spent Easter at home, returning to High Point Monday. REPORTER.

Harmony, Yarborough Charge.—Pastor Henderson delivered a very fine message at the morning service. A pageant, "The Easter Vision," was given at the evening service. Attendance was good at both services in spite of the severe storm which was raging just at church time Sunday evening.

Our Sunday school attendance is rapidly increasing. It seems that people are taking more interest in coming to church as spring approaches.

The Ladies' Auxiliary did not hold its regular meeting Saturday afternoon. This meeting, however, will be held some time this week.

There has been quite a bit of sickness in our community the past few weeks. We wish a speedy recovery for all those who are sick.

Kannapolis.—We had an Easter program which was enjoyed by all. We have several members sick. Grandma Ramseur is still sick. We are hoping she will be able to be out in a few days.

The Sunday school is doing fine. Christian Endeavor is adding new members to their number.

The Brotherhood will meet at Mrs. L. C. Carter's Saturday night, April 2 at 7:30 o'clock. A cordial welcome to all.

West Forsyth.—Our services for the past two Sundays were well attended. The third Sunday morning we were greeted by a large congregation at Pleasant Hill church, with splendid interest shown in the service. Last Sunday we were at Harmony Grove church for the appointment there at 11 a. m. There were 47 in Sunday school, which was an increase as compared with a year ayo. In the absence of Bro. G. B. Craft, the superintendent, Bro. Ed Smith directed the Sunday school. After the service at Harmony Grove last Sunday morning the pastor and family enjoyed a visit and a good dinner at the home of Bro. John Jarvis and family. We had received an invitation to this home two months ago. While Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis are not members of Harmony Grove church, they are regular attendants and the parents and sister of Bro. Jarvis are faithful members of the church there.

This writer was inspired by the splendid address of Rev. F. L. Gibbs at Pleasant Hill church on Thursday, March 17, at the group meeting arranged for Dr. J. H. Straughn. While we regretted that Dr. Straughn was ill and could not come, we were delighted with the substitute which he provided. Bro. Gibbs is one of our most promising young ministers and we are proud of his consecration to and valuable service for the Methodist Protestant church in general. His address, "The Unfinished Task," was presented in a most interesting and effective manner.

The second quarterly conference for West Forsyth charge will convene at Stony Knoll church on Saturday, April 16, with the usual program consisting of preaching at 11 a. m., dinner at the church, and the business session in the afternoon. One item of business will be the election of nominees for delegate to the next Annual Conference. We hope to have a good attendance of the officials and other members from all the churches.

The pastor and family have been remembered with a variety of gifts since our last report, for which we are thankful, and we assure each one that we appreciate, not only the various articles given, but the spirit which prompted the giving. We thank the following for the gifts: Mrs. R. P. Petree, Mrs. J. F. Hunter, Mrs. E. M. Long, W. A. Long, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sprinkle, of Pleasant Hill church; Mrs. S. M. Speas, who gave three pounds of butter.

We greatly appreciate the gift of a seven-weeks-old pig from Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Whitman, of Tabernacle church. These good people presented the pastor and family with a similar gift last March. Our thanks are also due the following for work of clearing and ploughing the garden space and other land surrounding the parsonage, which was done one day last week: A. R. Long, C. E. Sprinkle, E. M. Long, J. F. Hunter, C. G. Hunter, and E. G. Long.

Our next Sunday will be at Baltimore church at 11 a. m., and at Stony Knoll church at 2:30 P. M. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

West End, Greensboro.—Under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary our people have found themselves in the world of drama. On Friday night, March 18, "The Old-Fashioned Mother" was rendered in the auditorium of the Sunday school annex. The attendance was so good and the people were so well pleased that it was found necessary to repeat the play on Monday night of March 28. A small admission fee was charged and on both occasions there was a nice sum that found its way to the treasurer of the Auxiliary. Already engagements are out for our people to give the play at a number of other places.

Easter was a red letter day with us. At early dawn a number of our people found ourselves at Asheboro Street Friends church in a union service. Breakfast was served in the basement of the church and then we assembled in the main part of the church where we enjoyed a most appropriate and helpful service of good music appropriate for the occasion, and then were were edified by a most beautiful Easter message by the pastor of the South Greensboro Baptist church. Our attendance was good at both the Sunday school and the morning preaching service. At the evening service the climax of the day came when our choir of more than 20 voices rendered the most beautiful Easter cantata, "The Prince of Life." This was a great message in song. Indeed it was a musical feast. It was of the finest class of music and it was rendered in a way that it was a credit to any church and the congregation privileged to be favored with this fine musical program was indeed fortunatte. To prepare this program and make it possible the choir has spared neither time nor effort for a number of weeks. We are greatly indebted to every member of the choir, but especially does Bro. L. M. Foust, our very efficient choir master, deserve praise and special mention for his ability and his most untiring efforts.

Gibsonville Church.—We have a wide-awake Sunday school with Mrs. F. G. Hammer and Mr. F. R. Owen as superintendents. Mrs. Hammer is in charge of the Primary Department. She and her assistants are doing a splendid work in that department. Last Sunday morning they came out to the church auditorium after classes were over and presented a splendid little Easter pageant.

The program on Sunday night was in charge of the Young Ladies' Bible class. At this time an Easter pageant was presented by them.

Mr. Bethea always has an interesting message for the preaching hour and it is well worth hearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Bethea and Mrs. K. J. Williams have recently returned from Florida where they spent about two weeks. They report a splendid trip. While away Dr. P. E. Lindley filled the appointment here.

The friends of Miss Esther McCollum will regret to learn that she has undergone an operation for appendicitis at St. Leo's Hospital. She is reported as recuperating nicely and hopes to be able to resume her studies soon at Guilford College, where she is a member of the freshman class.

Miss Mary Ruth Huffman spent the Easter holidays with her parents on Church street. She was also a welcome visitor to the Young Ladies' Bible Class on last Sunday morning.

Henderson.—A few words from the pastor of the Henderson church will perhaps not be out of order. We are still enjoying our work with the Henderson people. A good spirit of co-operation prevails and goes a long way toward making a pastorate enjoyable and profitable.

For the past five weeks our people have been enjoying evangelistic services in the different Henderson churches. It started in the Christian church. Then it shifted to the First Baptist where it took on something of the nature of a community meeting. The different pastors took turns at preaching. After a week there it was transferred to the Methodis Episcopal church where a revival was already scheduled to begin. After two weeks there the interest was such as to lead some to think it should be carried on for another week. So this week the services are being held in the First Presbyterian church with five co-operating churches to have charge by turns, laymen doing the talking with the pastors leading the meeting. Not many additions have been made to the churches but a very fine spirit of Christian fellowship prevails and much has been accomplished for the Kingdom no doubt.

Last Friday evening an Easter pageant, "The Easter Vision," was given at our church. The committee that had this in charge is due great credit for a well rendered program. A good congregation witnessed the performance, but not so large as would have been present if it had not been for the revival at the M. E. church. It is hoped that the pageant may be repeated next Sunday night or the Sunday night following.

A good sized congregation was present Sunday morning for the Easter service. We were delighted to see a number of our people home for the Easter time, included among whom were Mrs. O. O. Young, Miss Mary Young, and Miss Eleanor Young, of High Point College; Miss Jessie Page Gooch, of Duke University, and Miss Helen Hayes, of the Asheboro school faculty.

Ten boys and girls were received into membership Easter Sunday. These had been prepared for this important step by instruction from parents, Sunday school teachers and pastor. The pastor had talked to the Sunday school two Sundays before the decision service was held the Sunday before Easter, endeavoring to give such instruction as would help the young people to make an intelligent decision. The pastor was indeed happy to dedicate these young lives, among whom was his own boy, Wilson, to the service of Christ. The choir gave a very fine musical program at the morning service, rendering two special selections, "Welcome Happy Morn," and "God So Loved the World." A very unique and much appreciated number was the "Easter Chimes" rendered by Mrs. F. R. Harris on the piano.

The pastor and his family were delighted to have as their guests for Easter Brother Ira W. Baity and his wife and two boys from our Maple Springs church, Winston-Salem. We were glad indeed to have these loyal church workers and friends visit us. Misses Hyacinth and Thelma Hunter, daughters of Rev. R. A. Hunter, who served this church for six years, were welcome visitors in our Sunday service and in the homes of the people.

I trust that this has been a joyous Easter time for our church people throughout the Conference. L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Bethesda.—We thank God for the great lessons brought to us Easter by our pastor, Rev. C. W. Saunders, and also the great program brought to us by the children. We think it was as good as we have ever had at our church. We are proud of our children.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Bernard Baruch, the financier, and Herbert B. Swope, the journalist, are always kidding each other. In phoning the other, one is prone to announce "This is Mussolini calling," or something equally ridiculous. Recently, while in the company with Winston Churchhill, Baruch was summoned to the phone. "President Hoover is on the phone," he was told. He winked at Churchill. According to the New York News, this is the conversation that ensued:

Baruch: "How are you, you big cheese?"

Voice: "Did you say 'chief' or 'cheese'?"

Baruch: "I said 'cheese.' I know who I'm speaking to."

Voice: "This is President Hoover."

And it was!—Pathfinder.

Wood

George Washington Wood was born March 13, 1865, and passed away at his home March 14, 1932. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice Wood; five daughters, Mrs. Norva Guthrie, Graham; Mrs. Cora Walker, Burlington; Mrs. Birdie Lutterloh, Snow Camp; Mrs. Alma Hunley, Burlington; Mrs. Marcie Johnson, Snow Camp; one son, Walter Wood, Burlington; four sisters, Mrs. Florence Thompson, Graham; Mrs. Ila Teal, Cary, N. C.; Miss Dosbia Wood, Graham; Miss Fannie Wood, Graham; three brothers, W. H. Wood, Burlington; Jasper Wood, Haw River; Henry Wood, Graham. He is also survived by 16 grandchildren.

Brother Wood was a life-long member of Mt. Hermon church. The community will feel its loss keenly. He was always to be found at the church to do his share willingly. God has seen fit to call a useful man from the community and the church. May the bereaved have grace to submit to the will of God who does all things well to those who love Him.

The funeral was conducted at Mt. Hermon church by the writer, assisted by the Rev. H. L. Isley and Dr. F. W. Paschall.

Braxton

The soul of little Ruth Carroll Braxton was taken back to God on February 8th, 1932. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Braxton. Just a few days more than a year old, she came to bless the home with her sweetness and purity, gave an insight into the bliss and glory of heaven, and then her soul went back to God who gave it.

May the peace of God sustain and comfort the bereaved. FRED W. PASCHALL.

Hockaday

Mrs. Mamie Hicks Hockaday departed this life on Friday night, March 11th, and was laid to rest at New Hope M. E. church on Sunday at 3 p. m. Her suffering was intense but brief, having developed pneumonia in both sides, and in addition to her physical suffering her aged mother, Mrs. Hicks, passed away during her illness, and was laid to rest on Thursday in the church cemetery at Wise, N. C.

Mrs. Hockaday was born near Wise, N. C., and was about 41 years of age. She was reared among the high ideals that characterize an old-time Methodist home. Early in life she was united in marriage to Mr. W. M. Hockaday, of Halifax county, N. C. They established a nice country home near the church and school she loved so well. Mrs. Hockaday was an ideal companion in her home, and was a friend and servant to the various churches and denominations, to the schools and community in which she lived. Her congenial disposition and true Christian spirit won for her a great host of friends, far and near.

She will be missed in the home, in the church, and in the community at large. We will miss her at Hawkins Chapel, for she attended the services and worked willingly in this church of which her husband and daughter were members. She was a student in High Point College.

She leaves to mourn their loss her husband and four children, two boys and two girls; the baby is about seven months old. She also leaves one sister, Miss Stella Hicks.

The funeral service was conducted from New Hope M. E. church by her pastor, Rev. D. M. Sharpe, assisted by Rev. J. E. Kirk, of Rosemary Baptist church, Rev. A. P. Mustian of Roanoke Rapids Baptist church, and Rev. P. E. Bingham, of Littleton charge.

The congregation that over-filled the church, the beautiful floral offerings bespeak the love and high esteem in which she was held in the hearts of her friends and relatives.

"I know not where His islands lift their fronded palms in air;
I only know we cannot drift beyond His love and care.

"There is no death; the stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forevermore.

"There is no death; an angel form
Walks o'er the earth with silent tread;
He bears our best loved ones away
And then we call them 'dead.'

"He leaves our hearts all desolate,
He plucks our sweetest flowers:
Transplanted in eternal bliss,
They now adorn immortal bowers."

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS.

Shore

Salem community was made sad on March 3, 1932, when death entered the home of Mrs. G. L. Shore and claimed as its own Guthrie L. Shore, aged 47 years, 11 months and 12 days.

When we think of his passing we wonder why God took him from us. But, we think again, and we remember God doeth all things well. He was a faithful member of Salem M. P. church, and acted as teacher of his Sunday school class for several years. We feel that there is a vacant spot in our church as well as the home and community by his passing.

He leaves a wife, ten children, a mother, three brothers and a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted at Salem M. P. church March 5, 1932, by his pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, assisted by a former pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley. The body was tenderly laid to rest in the church cemetery under a beautiful mound of flowers. A FRIEND.

Memorial to David A. Bivins

Whereas, we, the Baraca class of Bethel church, Alamance charge, have lost by the death of David A. Bivins a member highly esteemed for his Christian fellowship, who had endeared himself to us by his genial disposition, his loyal support of all the interests of the class and our long association, therefore, Be it Resolved:

First, That while we keenly feel our loss, yet we yield submissively to our Father's will, whose dispensations are always just and best for us, who in loving kindness called our friend and brother, after a long life of faithful service, into that rest which He has prepared for them that love, honor, obey, and serve Him.

Second, That we will always hold him in loving remembrance and will emulate the virtues that he exemplified in his life by meeting the requirement, "To do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."

Third, That we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved relatives, and pray the Father's blessings to rest upon them. We recommend that this memorial be entered upon the records of our class, that a copy be sent to the family, and that a copy be sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald and to he Burlington Times-News for publication.

Shearin

Mrs. T. A. Shearin fell asleep early Thursday morning, February 25, 1932, aged 83 years, 5 months and 19 days. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hawkins. In her young days she became the bride of Mr. Spear Shearin; to this union were born seven children, four living: Mrs. India Jenkins, of Littleton; Mrs. Mattie Gaither, of Edgecombe; Miss Mary Ida Shearin, of Thelma; Mr. M. W. Shearin, of Roanoke Rapids; also 22 grandchildren, two great-grandchildren; one brother, Mr. C. F. Hawkins; one sister, Mrs. V. C. Pittard, of Thelma. She also leaves a number of relatives and a host of friends.

Since her husband died she had been making her home with her children. She was at her son's home when God saw fit to let the death angel enter the door.

She professed faith in God at an early age, was one of the oldest members of our church.

Funeral service was conducted at Hawkins Chapel church Friday p. m. by Rev. Mr. Bradly, of Littleton. Her pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, was ill.

Interment was made in the family burying ground with beautiful flowers and a large crowd to pay her a last tribute of love.

She was an affectionate companion, a loving mother, and will be greatly missed in church and community, but we hope to meet in the heavenly home in the sweet bye-and-bye. MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS.

Nicholson

H. G. Nicholson, one of Mt. Hermon's oldest and best members, has been called to his heavenly home. He was 93 years, 4 months and 16 days old. For many years he was a member of Mt. Hermon church and in every way loyal to it. Several years ago his faithful wife preceded him. He leaves three sons and two daughter. He has left a neighborhood made up of his friends and a name for goodness that will not soon be forgotten. A world made up of such men would be delightful to live in. J. A. BURGESS.

Winningham

Kenneth La Zelle Winningham was born January 26, 1856, and departed this life March 24, 1932. He was married to Pirena Ellen Spoon March 10, 1881, and they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in March, 1931. To this union were born three sons and two daughters: Messrs. Colbert, Carson, and Claud Winningham, and Mesdames Ross D. Lowdermilk and Roland A. Briles, all of Asheboro, N. C. He is also survived by ten grandchildren.

He was an honorable, upright citizen and neighbor, having attended church with his family until moving from this section, and suffering from infirmities of old age. He gave of his means to the support of the church and to charitable causes. The land upon which Browers church was built years ago was given by him.

He professed faith in Christ and said he was ready to go, and that his good Lord had bestowed many blessings upon him.

Interment took place at Browers church cemetery. Funeral services were conducted by Revs. McDowell, Stubbins, assisted by the writer. Q. L. JOYNER, Pastor.

Whitaker

Mrs. Lillie Montgomery Whitaker, wife of the late Wilson Cary Whitaker, died at the home of her son, Hubert M. Whitaker, Friday evening, March 25th, at 10:45 o'clock, following an illness of two weeks. She was 76 years of age.

Mrs. Whitaker was a daughter of Lawrence Baker and Alice Pierson Whitaker. She was a sister of the late Rev. Clifton L. Whitaker, D. D., and she is survived by one brother, Rev. Cary H. Whitaker, of Winston-Salem. The following children are living: one daughter, Mrs. D. A. Ricks, of Winston-Salem; and four sons, Stanley C., John Cary, Lawrence, and Hubert M. Whitaker, all of Enfield.

Funeral services were held from the home on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by her pastor, and burial took place in Whitakers Chapel cemetery.

Mrs. Whitaker was a strong Christian and a loyal member of the Methodist Protestant church. Her disposition was pleasant and she readily made friends.

We extend our sympathy to the bereaved ones. H. FREO SURRATT.

Wright

Dora Scott, daughter of Eliza and Henry Scott died March 16th, 1932, aged 68 years, three days.

In 1882 she was married to Thomas J. Wright. To this union eight children were born, five of whom are living: Henry, Clarence, John, and Sam; one daughter, Lizzie.

She also leaves five grandchildren besides her husband and a large number of relatives and friends.

Mrs. Wright was a member of Clover Garden M. E. church from early girlhood, but for some time she was unable to attend services on account of ill health. She was a consecrated Christian woman. Just a few moments before her passing she called each member of her family to her bedside and asked them to so live that they might be also ready when the last summons comes.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Overton, and her body was placed in Clover Garden cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

She saw a hand you could not see, beckoning her away;
She heard a voice you could not hear, that would not let her stay:
Some day, we say, and turn our eyes toward the fair hills of Paradise;
Someday, sometime, a sweet new rest shall blossom in each breast;
Someday, sometime, our eyes shall see the faces kept in memory,
Someday their hands shall clasp our hands,
just over in the morning land.

RIGHT WITH GOD

If you're right with God,
  Then come what may,
With perfect faith
  You can face each day.

If you're right with God,
  Though the way seems dim,
You can bravely walk
  And trust in Him.

If you're right with God,
  You can banish fear,
Know all is well
  Since He is near.

—Much laudatory comment has been heard on the poems which have appeared lately in the Palm Beach Times by Grenville Kleiser, writer of international repute, who is spending his usual season at the Mayflower. Mr. Kleiser's publishers have just brought out a booklet of his most cheerful poems published under the title of "Good Luck Poems," for which there is much demand already. These booklets will be published quarterly and give promise of being one of the outstanding collections in their field.—Palm Beach Times, Fla.

Mrs. H. R. Albaugh, Westminster, Md., 18 dresses, 1 coat, 2 pieces of underwear and 10 handkerchiefs.

Mrs. Minnie Jarrell and Mrs. Della Thomas, Melton's Grove, 1 quilt.

Mr. A. W. Staley, Greensboro, N. C., 50 pounds honey and 2 pounds butter.

We are thankful to all who have in any way contributed to make the above report possible. We are pressing on in the work the very best we can.

Special Needs

We are very greatly in need just now of boys' clothing. Any good clothing for boys from 5 to 18 years of age. We especially need summer underwear and overalls for boys. It will take at least 100 suits of underwear and 100 pairs of overalls to supply the present need.

We can buy at factory prices less 10 per cent, if we have the money to pay cash.

We thank you and pray God's blessings upon all of you.

Two Thanatopses

The Pagan View

Death has triumphed, Life has perished:
All is gone that man has cherished;
Nought remains but dreamless sleeping,
Silent darkness vigil keeping.

The Christian View

Life is victor, Death is victim:
Right was faith and true its dictum;
Night and gloom have gone forever:
Ours our friends and nought can sever.

God Over All and God in All

There are four views of God and His relation to the world. First, there is the primitive, thoughtless view that excludes God from the world. Most of us entertained this view in our early childhood days. A view of the world or any part of it did not suggest to us the thought of God. We had not come to be philosophers in any large way. We took the world as a matter of course. We did not consider either its origin or its destiny. Practically we were atheists. God was outside the world and far away.

Secondly, we discover that God is over the world. The facts of divine providence in human life open the eyes of men. They see the hand of God in the affairs of our human world. God appears as provider and guardian. Men begin to fear Him or to trust Him. They feel, "Thou God seest me." The awakening of conscience hastens the realization of the presence of God as the world's Over Lord. The religious instincts of our nature prepare the way for our recognition of God. We come to bow before the Mighty One unseen by us in His far away abode. He is not here, but He looks down upon us from His lofty place in the heaven. He is over the world but not in the world.

Thirdly, men who delve in the mysteries of nature, the scientists, discover such evidences of the presence of God in the earth that they cry out: "Lo, God is in this place and I knew it not!" Everywhere are found the footsteps and the thumbprints of God. The marks are recent. Not only has God been here, but He is here now! In plant, in animal and mineral, everywhere are evidences of God's presence and activity. Surely God is in His world, makes all creation His dwelling place! It is but a step to the thought that God is in the world and not above the world. It is but another step to the conclusion of the pantheists that God is the world, the whole world and nothing but the world.

Fourthly, there is the view that God is over the world and in the world. He is over the world as a designer and He is in the world as dynamic. He is not slave but Master. He is a Person and not a blind force. He impresses his character on His universe. The world reveals his Fatherhood. It also reveals His marvelous intelligenece and His amazing power. He is God over all and God in all.

Thoughtless Politeness

Thoughtful politeness is a very good quality, but when thought does not enter into the production, even a very good heart will not always redeem its charecter. Rev. J. L. Michaux had an experience which illustrates the point. One time when he was being entertained in a home of very polite people he was seized with a violent headache and retired to his room in the hope of sleeping it off. But he found the people too polite to permit that. Every few minutes some of them would come to the door to inquire about his aching head and to express the hope that it would soon be better. Mr. Michaux thought those people "painfully polite."

—Brother I. L. Trogdon's condition was only temporarily relieved by his operation at the hospital. He died last Saturday night at his home near Tabernacle. The funeral on Monday at 11 o'clock was attended by a great throng of relatives and friends, completely filling the large church auditorium. In the funeral service parts were taken by Rev. H. L. Isley, Rev. Mr. Millard of Alamnce Presbyterian church, Rev. J. A. Burgess, Dr. T. M. Johnson, and by officials of the Pleasant Garden Junior Order. There were about a dozen ministers present, including Rev. J. B. Trogdon, brother of the deceased. There were many beautiful floral designs expressing the regard of friends of the family. The family have our sympathy in their great loss.

—State Street Church, Lexington, has an interesting story of heroic effort to meet a pressing financial obligation. It is heartening to read that the effort was crowned with success. It may point the way to other churches under the necessity of raising much money to pay debts. Church debts serve a good purpose when they inspire the church members to heroic and self-sacrificing action.

—An association of taxpayers has been formed in Guilford county. The aim is protection against over-taxation. Some lively meetings have been held. Brother Roscoe Causey is chairman of the organization. There are no membership fees and all tax-payers are invited to join.

—Brother R. F. Williams has bought 160 acres of land near Mt. Pleasant and Pleasant Union churches and is transforming himself into a real dirt farmer. We wish him happiness.

ENROLLING THE FRIENDS OF PROHIBITION

Enrollment of all friends of the 18th Amendment now is in progress in more than 300 cities and towns throughout the country as a result of the national tour being conducted by the Allied Forces for Prohibition under the leadership of Dr. Daniel A. Poling. The Allied Campaigners have touched that many strategic centers to date, and in all of them have started local enrollment campaigns.

The speaking campaign will continue until June and by that time leaders of the Allied Forces hope to have enrollment campaigns under way in more than 500 cities and towns.

From these centers, Dr. Poling hopes to have deputations go out to other communities to advance the cause of prohibition and extend the enrollment of all citizens who believe the 18th Amendment should be upheld. "We believe that the great majority of the American people are in favor of the 18th Amendment," he has sid, "but we also believe that the cause stands in jeopardy until friends of the amendment come to the front again nd make their wishes known."

Deputations going out from community to community in this way will serve to rouse old friends of prohibition to its active support and add many new friends, Dr. Poling believes.

"This plan will be pushed all over the country," Dr. Poling says. "With a force spreading out in this way from more than 500 cities and towns, I am sure that we shall have 2,000,000 voters enlisted in this movement by June, and 2,000,000 voters committed actively to a cause are going to have weight with the great political conventions."

In each city which the Allied Campaigners have visited, they have enrolled an average of fully 1,000 persons during the course of the meetings, and this naturally has been increased greatly by the subsequent campaigns. In one city, 167 persons were enrolled during the meetings, but in two weeks this had been increased to 5,000.

In all the cities which the Campaigners have visited, units of Allied Citizens have been formed to carry in other ways. Councils of Allied Youth also have been organized in most of the cities. Young people as well as adults are being enlisted in this movement.

As president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, Dr. Poling is a world famous leader of young people. He believes that young people as a whole today are sound, and that not only do most of them refrain from the use of liquor but that the great bulk of them will become active supporters of the 18th Amendment when acquainted with the facts. He hopes through councils of Allied Youth to give them information as to the advantages of prohibition as compared to the old saloon method and then to utilize their energies and interest in advancing the cause in other communities. Deputations and speaking teams of young people are already going out from many centers.

Headquarters of the Allied Forces at 419 Fourth Avenue, New York, are being deluged with requests for help in the work being done in connection with both Allied Citizens and Allied Youth.

The purpose of this new activity is not to replace any of the present organizations working in behalf of prohibition, officers of the Allied Forces have explained, but merely to supplement their work and provide a means for bringing together on a united front all who want to see the 18th Amendment preserved.

Are You for Prohibition?

If you are in favor of the 18th Amendment, you can aid materially in its support if you will sign the pledge card below and mail it to headquarters of the Allied Forces for Prohibition at 419 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

IN CASE OF MIXED MARRIAGES, WHAT?

In my report of the Conference of representative Protestant, Catholics, and Jews, held in Washington a few weeks ago, I called attention to the fact that almost all the complaints of unfair treatment came from Catholics and Jews. Protestants, being in the large majority in this country, were accused of assuming that this should be regarded as a Protestant Christian nation and conducting schools and other institutions without due regard for the rights and feelings of minority groups.

There is something in this. But I could not but think of unfair treatment we are subject to in the opposition of Catholics to the public school system, their disregarding the valadity of the marriage ceremony celebrated by our ministers in case one of the parties is a Ctholic, and the pledging of the couple to bring up their children in the Catholic faith. While they complain that Protestants are guilty of proselyting, they themselves are at it continuously and systematically.

The Federal Council of Churches evidently has been considering for some time the problem of mixed marriages. Just this week there has been released a warning by the Council dealing with this matter. It is well worth considering. Here it is:

"1. Where the young people are members of different communions, nearly related in doctrine or policy, they may well be advised by their respective pastors to settle the question by agreeing to attend together one or the other of their churches, or even a third church, and to bring their children up in it.

"2. Where only one of the persons is a member of a church of the Protestant group, and the religious differences are profound, such persons should be advised to consider the situation with great seriousness and to reach an agreement before marriage.

"3. Where intolerable conditions are imposed by either church, persons contemplating a mixed marriage should be advised not to enter it. The committee protests earnestly against the requirement by any church that the children of mixed marriages should be pledged to that church.

"4. Where the conferences in the churches interested in the questions arising from mixed marriages can be arranged, such conferences should be welcomed with a view to safeguarding the sanctity of marriage and the spiritual welfare of the home."

It seems to me that before a couple—a Protestant and a Catholic—have gone too far to retreat gracefully there should be developed a good understanding as to what shall be done concerning church matters. They are responsible for themselves and their children as no other parties are or have a right to be. And no priest or minister should be allowed to come in and dictate what they should do. If the young people themselves do not have the intelligence and conscience to bear the responsibility and settle the matter satisfactorily they would better forego entering a mixed marriage.

Luther K. Long.

FROM GIFFORD PINCHOT

A most dangerous attack on the Roosevelt conservation policy is now under way in Washington. For more than a generation we have been fighting to save the forests, the minerals, the lands, and the waters of the public domain for all the people of the United States, and great progress has been made. We are likely to lose a very large part of it if the Evans Bill (H. R. 5840) goes through.

This Bill puts the National Forests at the mercy of a board of five politically appointed men in each State which still has 400,000 acres of public land. Each board, at its own sweet will, with no public hearings, no public notice, no publicity by advertisement or otherwise, no investigation or study on the ground, no review by any authority, and no co-operation with any other board, is authorized secretly to throw out of the National Forests any land it may choose to decide is not chiefly valuable for forest purposes.

This is about as bad as it could be. The National Forests belong to all the people of all the States. They are immensely valuable. Their timber and other resources are worth billions. If the Bill passes, these boards will turn large parts of them over to individual States, and open the way for exploitation by selfish private interests.

Our National Forests were selected after many years of thorough-going investigation on the ground by trained men. The proposed boards are not required to include trained men and are given no money to employ them. Not a cent is appropriated for investigation of any kind, and there is no requirement that any investigation shall be made. The only information the boards are likely to get will come from people with an axe to grind.

For forty years National Forest lands have been included or excluded only by Presidential proclamation or Congressional action. There can be no good reason why that policy should be changed. Yet this Bill gives the boards, not the President or Congress, the unrestricted power to decide what lands shall or shall not be included in National Forests.

Most significant of all, the boards are required to do their work with in a single year after the passage of the Bill, which means within less than a year after the boards can be organized. In that brief time they are required to decide the fate of a total area of National Forest land larger than all New England and the Middle States, with Virginia added.

In addition, and within the same ridiculously insufficient time, they are required to pass upon innumerable military reservations, reservoir sites, power sites, and other similar reservations and withdrawals, and upon 170,000,000 acres of unreserved public lands. The total area whose fate they are authorized or required to decide in secret within less than a single year is as large as all the Atlantic Seaboard and Gulf States from Maine to Louisiana. They could not do it intelligently, and in the public interest if they were all supermen, and they are far from likely to be that.

With this vast area, whose resources are of paramount importance to the people of the United States, these star chamber boards are authorized to play ducks and drakes. By their mere say-so they can undo the work of thousands of trained men throughout a generation, and cripple the whole Federal policy of conservation.

When Secretary Fall made his notorious attempt to give away to private interest the oil reserves set aside for our Navy, he got as far as he did only because of exactly the same kind of secrecy which is provided in this Bill.

Public business ought to be done in the open. Any open attack upon our National Forests will have small chance of success. This Bill opens the way for a secret attack, and that is why it is so dangerous.

The Bill has other faults, but the foregoing are enough to condemn it. There is, however, one more that should be mentioned, for it would reduce the future allotment of Federal money for roads to the States which do not have 400,000 acres of public lands.

The States to which the Federal resources are to be handed over by this Bill are now allotted a larger proportion of Federal road funds in consideration of the Government lands within their boundariees. This Bill provides that they shall go on drawing the same extra allottments, thus reducing the allotments of other States, for ten years after the Federal lands are handed over to them. The bill will give them both the lands and the extra allotment, which is altogether unfair.

I hope you will give this letter to your readers and that you will use all the influence of your paper to defeat this raid on the National Forests and on other natural resources still in the hands of all the people.

Sincerely yours,

Gifford Pinchot.

THE EVANGELISTIC YEAR

By HENRY W. HULBERT

"The light of the Glorious Gospel of Christ" shines for the whole year round, all the 365 days of it. And each season brings its special significance and natural appeal, no one of which should be neglected by any spiritual leader. It is a glaring psychological mistake to leave out of account these varying factors and to concentrate evangelistic efforts on any one part of the church year.

The Advent season, closing with the Christmas festivities, gives opportunity to press home a phase of the Gospel message to certain minds and temperaments that might not be reached so effectively at any other time. It is then that the startling proclamations of the prophets, linking the Old Testament with the New, may lead up to the compelling story of the Incarnation in the birth of the Christ. There is a peculiar tenderness that reaches certain hearts, old and young, as the whole world witnesses to the rising of the Sun of Righteousness, the Heart of God made manifest through Jesus Christ. The roll of any church will show a definite percentage who took that occasion to confess Christ and to claim their part in His Church. They might well be called "Christmas Christians."

The Gospel accounts of the beginnings of Jesus' ministry and the call of the first disciples also have their special appeal to hearts that may not have been touched even by the joy of Christmas. The testimony of the stern Baptist brought Andrew and Simon and Philip. The night-talk with Jesus sounded to the depths of the soul of Nicodemus. Many earnest hearts have been led by these scenes to take their places as witnesses for Christ. They may rightfully be called "Epiphany Christians."

Then, there is the touching story of the devotion of the Holy Family going as a unit to the House of God for dedication and consecration on Febrary second. The best texts and all latest revisions have changed this incident from a bit of Old Testament legalism to a New Testament household festival, the most beautiful of its kind in the Bible. The first Sunday of February is more and more being commemorated as "Family Sunday." The evangelistic appeal of that occasion and of all that goes naturally with it should be recognized as having the greatest possibilities. A hundred per cent invitation to the homes of any parish to appear that day as complete families, young and old, in their chosen church for consecration and dedication brings home to each member the solidarity of the family unit together with the sacred duties of parents and children.

The Lenten appeal has long been recognized as of special significance, a time of instruction, of examination, of repentance, of prayer and preparation. Probably this will be accounted the most important of all the evangelistic seasons. Deep searchings of heart are called for, confession of sin, the conquest of besetting faults, forgiveness of enemies, humility.

These influences reach a climax in Holy Week, when the whole world comes under the shadow of the Cross. Hearts that have resisted the call of Christ are broken. The loneliness of the Master, weeping over Jerusalem in the midst of the triumphs of Palm Sunday, His high indignation over the desecration of the Temple, His tender counseling of the still-blinded disciples, His agony and bloody sweat in Gethsemane's garden, the story of the Cross, all these conditions powerfully influence perhaps the majority of those annually coming into church membership.

The Easter season, forty days with the risen Lord, can reach still another type of mind and heart and experience. Too often all active church work is given over at this point. Preachers seek a period of rest. But these forty days are as necessary now as they were to the doubting Thomas, when the risen Lord brought back from what seemed a total failure the nucleus of a church, which, in an astonishingly short time, conquered the Roman Empire. This is just the season in the church year when spiritual leadership is needed for the most delicate personal evangelism.

Then comes Pentecost, a harvest season of the Church, typified by the harvest season in Palestine. The New Testament church bore testimony to the results of united prayer and came forward on its spiritual birthday to the beginnings of a peaceful conquest of the world. St. Paul observed the anniversary of the day, hastening from Ephesus to be in time. The ancient and medieval Church kept the festival of Pentecost, which was observed as a spiritual harvest period, especially among the youth, who, after instruction, were privileged to take their places in full membership in the church.

The last word in religious pedagogy is that the best time for such entrance upon specialized Christian service is at the early adolescent age. Then children are leaving grammar and junior high school, the majority to go out into life's work, a large minority to step into the discipline of high school or academy, where parental influence and example often have less power. The Pentecost season, leading on to Children's Day, furnishes a most important evangelistic opportunity. No child should leave school without having the attitude toward religion carefully and wisely attended to. It would not be a rash prediction that Pentecost will again be one of the great days of ingathering in the churches, as indeed it continues to be in the Roman Catholic body.

Then comes the special summer emphasis on God in His world, the beauty and marvel in nature, in their most striking aspects, the heavens above and the earth beneath, of bird and flower, seashore and mountain, a continuous creation as man co-operates with the Divine. There are multitudes of souls that are reached with these surroundings as at no other time of the year, when every bush may be a burning bush and every lily of the field arrayed more resplendently that even Solomon in all his artificial glory. The laws of growth, science in all its breadths and depths, never came so near to being a revelation of God as now, and no spiritual leader should fail to use such an aid in reaching souls.

The autumnal harvests appeal to still another temperament. In one way or another the equivalent of the Hebrew Feast of Tabernacles is celebrated with the genial Thanksgiving note, calling families together in gratitude to Almighty God. The season naturally lends itself to profound thoughtfulness and a deepening sense of duty and devotion. The signal place of the Church and its services makes special claim at the opening of the new season, and church membership and active personal support are pressed upon the attention of the whole parish.

A discussion of the evangelistic year cannot be complete without laying emphasis upon All Saint's Day (November 1), which is more and more becoming the whole world's Memorial Day. It is a commemoration of all who have rendered signal service to the world. It may have special reference to those who have recently set particular examples for home and Church and country and humanity. Here again the challenge to high and noble living may be properly sounded forth in such a way as to reach still another type of mind and heart. The roll of the faithful may well be called to mind, joining on to that of the mighty seers of old, the prophets of Israel who laid the foundations of our whole life and government, justice, mercy, truth, beauty, chivalry, humanity and world-fellowship.

Such is the wide variety of the evangelistic year, never twice alike and bringing the heart of the Gospel at home and abroad to every type of human need. The technical word "evangelism" may not once be mentioned, but its message is to be steadily pressed home.—Federal Council Bulletin.

ONLY ANOTHER WOODEN LEG

Recently a man came to my door and asked, "Mister, will you please give me some money to help me buy an artificial limb?" At first this may seem humorous, and yet how pathetic. When he secured the necessary amount, in place of his crutch, he would have nothing better than an artificial limb.

The world today is a bit wobbly, endeavoring to struggle forward on the artificial limb of expediency. Morals that are dictated by society's competitive, retaliatory, and utilitarian demands are cold, inanimate, artificial substitutes. The morals which give poise are the expressions of loyalty to the winsome and restraining influence of Christianity.—William Orville Ecklor.

THE LARGER ROLE OF THE CHURCH

The world has become a big apartment house, pestered by loud speakers. Other nations are so close we can almost hear them turning things over in their minds. The sixty-five nations must live in peace, if the family of nations is not to degenerate into a menagerie of nations. God is the God and judge of nations. All nations are under the law of love. We cannot go on as we have been going. I see stormy weather. The church is going to lose a lot of members and money and must be ready to be the church militant.—Charles E. Jefferson.

—We have been tolerating lawlessness, playing with lawlessness, encouraging lawlessness, defending lawlessness until we have an empire of lawlessness within the law, an empire that must be reckoned with. It has its own code of ethics, its own laws and penalties, its own system of law enforcement, and woe be to those who run foul of the system, or who win the ill will of its dictators. And we have only ourselves to blame for its existence.—The United Presbyterian.

IGNORANCE OF TOBACCO COSTS DEARLY

Dr. J. H. Kellogg tells of a business man who came into his office, much excited, saying his own physician had informed him he had tobacco heart, and could not live longer than two years. The man declared he MUST live ten years more, in order to develop a business enterprise in which he had induced his friends to invest, adding:

"I am absolutely indispensable to the business. If I fail the whole thing will fail and my friends will lose every dollar of their money. Tell me, doctor, how I can keep on my feet ten years more."

Dr. Kellogg replied: "Your safety margin is used up; your reserve strength is gone. Your heart, liver and kidneys have carried such a heavy burden, done so by years of overwork, that they are worn out. You are like a man whose once bank balance of millions has been reduced by extravagance a few cents."

As Dr. Kellogg paused, the man read his thoughts, and saw there was no hope. He sprang to his feet, strode excitedly back and forth, pulling his hair out by the roots. Suddenly he paused and shrieked: "Why didn't I know this before? Why didn't some one tell me what tobacco would do to a man? If I had ever dreamed that tobacco would injure my health or my business, I would have cut my throat as soon as I would have smoked."

This shows the great responsibility resting upon those who do know of the evils of tobacco, to inform those who do not know, especially the rising generation.

NOTICE!

The 1932 Conference Leadership Training school will be held in High Point College June 27-July 3. I am hoping a great number of our people will begin making plans now to attend. A splendid program is in the making. Rev. T. J. Whitehead will direct the pre-registration campaign. I am sure that the pastors will respond in a fine way to the letter he has already sent out. The pre-registration fee is 25 cents for all, regardless of age. Let's get the campaign going NOW. Mr. Whitehead's address is Duke University, Box 4674, Durham, N. C. F. W. PASCHALL.

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

A Good Endorsement from Dr. T. M. Johnson

"The Joash spirit behind the Joash idea will accomplish much during April. The Joash idea comes to us direct from Joash, we get it for the reading; but the Joash spirit must be gotten from the same source from which Joash received it—from Him who created the heavens and the earth and established the Kingdom.

"Then, too, the preacher plays an important part in promoting the Joash movement. 'Jehoiada the priest took a chest and bored a hole in the lid of it, and set it beside the altar,'' to receive ''all the money that was brought into the house of the Lord.'

"Both Mount Pleasnt and Pleasant Union will observe Joash Day with emphasis."

Thank you, Dr. Johnson, for this good word . JOASH IS MARCHING ON!

Churches that Observed Joash Day Last Sunday

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge. Amount of Offering $30.

Fairfield, Guilford Charge. Amount of Offering $8.

These results are most gratifying, and they indicate what may be expected throughout the conference where this DAY is earnestly observed. With this average maintained, and the DAY observed in each of our 232 churches, the receipts would be $4,408. But this average is not large, and we trust that it may be considerably increased. We are told that the making of the offering at Fairfieeld was much like a high hour in a revival meeting. Surely the Lord is with us in this undertaking.

Charges that Have Signified Their Purpose to Observe Joash Day

Alamance, Albemarle, Asheboro, Bess Chapel-Caroleen, Charlotte, Chatham, Cleveland, Concord, Creswell, Davidson, Denton, Draper, Enfield, Fairveiw, Fallston, Flat Rock, Forsyth, Glen Raven, Graham, Granville, Calvary, St. Paul, West End (Greensboro), Guilford, Halifax, Haw River, Henderson, High Point First, Lebanon, Welch, Kannapolis, Liberty-Moriah, Lincolnton, Littleton, Mebane, Mecklenbrg, Midway-Shady Grove, Mocksville, Mt. Hermon, Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson, Orange, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion, Pleasant Grove, Randleman, Randolph, Richland, Roberta, Shiloh, Spring Church, Tabernacle, Thomasville Community, Thomasville First, Thomasville West End, West Forsyth, THIS IS A TOTAL OF 56 CHARGES.

The pastors serving these charges are: Burgess, Anderson, Stubbins, Morris, Andrews, Love (F. R.), Ridge (C. E.), Morgan, Russell, Bingham (E. A.), Short, Vickery, Surratt, Cranford, Shelton, Hutton, Hunter (R. A.), Pegg, Auman, Spencer, Bates, Garner, Curry, Peeler, Fogleman, Trollinger (J. L.), Gerringer, Farmer, Madison (J. C.), Williams (J. D.), Smith, Chambliss, Cranford, Bingham (P. E.), Loy (W. M.), Love (J L.), Grant, Ferree, Mabry, Johnson,, Loy (O. C.), Williams (B. M.), Hunter (A. L., Williams D. R.), Williams (T. A.), Suits, Joyner, Trogdon, Neese, Isley (H. L.), Maier, Madison (T. G.), Bell, Way, Reynolds, Pritchard.

OF THE 28 REMAINING CHARGES, we expect that several will observe the DAY, and that they will so report to us shortly. We hope to list them next week. JOASH IS MARCHING ON!

Not Just to Raise Money

JOASH DAY has not been appointed just to raise money. Of course money is involved. But that is not the chief purpose of this effort. JOASH DAY stands for the Kingdom. It is to promote the Kingdom, to enlarge the Kingdom, to carry on the work of the Kingdom, that JOASH DAY has been appointed. And we, His stewards, entrusted with the material things necessary to carry on the work of His Kingdom, are being asked to bring a portion on JOASH DAY and put it into a box, that God's Kingdom may prosper. Let us work then, brethren, let us pray, let us give, that God may be honored and pleased with the results of JOASH DAY.

Draper

March 30.—This was Wednesday night. We were with the Draper church in the second quarterly conference at this time. We found the work there in good condition. Church attendance was reported on the increase; the Sunday school is in excellent condition, and contributes monthly to the Home. A Church club, composed largely of the women of the church, is active. The chief object of this organization is to assist in paying the small balance on the church debt. Since last August, $47 has been paid through this organization. We trust that ultimately the club may go back to the auxiliary. An intermediate C. E. society, with 17 members has just been organized. The pastor has made 152 visits during the past quarter, and has received a salary of $189.65. He lacks only $18.68 of having received his salary in full to date. We trust that JOASH DAY, to be observed April 24, may bring his salary up to date, as well as balance on budgets Herald subscription covering the full quota of seven, have been promised. Brothers A. L. McGee, and W. T. Howell are the nominees for delegate to represent the church in the next Annual Conference. We are pleased with conditions at Draper. The church is making progress. The pastor, Brother Vickery, was suffering from a severe cold. We trust that he may be entirely well soon.

Improved

The many friends of Sister T. F. McCulloch will be glad to know that she is better than she was some time since. However, she is still confined to her bed. She will continue to have our sympathy and prayers.

Expenses of Representatives

The meeting of the General Conference draws near, and pratically nothing is in on expense of Representatives. Pastors and church officials, please give this prompt attention. We cannot expect our Representatives to bear their own expenses while they attend to the business of the church. The money should go to Dr. Brown, treasurer.

Appointments

April 6—Asheville.
April 9, 10—Saxpahaw charge.
April 13—Enfield, in Branch meeting.
April 16, 17—Weest Forsyth.
April 23—Mt. Hermon church, in District Rally of three Districts, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, Chairman.
April 24—Calvary, in Anniversary service.
May 1—Midway-Shady Grove.
May 18—Columbus, Ohio, in General Conference.

BUILDING FAITH

By Grenville Kleiser

The degree of faith in yourself, in your resourcefulness, in your work, and in your future, is a great determining quality in your ultimate personal achievement. Your real growth and progress will be greatly accelerated when you have firmly established such self-faith. Therefore give special attention to this lesson.

1. Have faith in yourself. Believe increasingly in your inherent powers; believe that your abilities are sufficient to achieve unusual success; believe deeply that you have within yourself all the qualities necessary for great achievement. Think of what other men have done with ability such as you possess, and resolve that you, too, will win a place of distinction in the world.

A practical way to increase your faith is to make a written list of your various abilities and personal qualities, and then carefully consider how you can use them to increased advantage. Occasional self-appraisement or mental stock-taking is of great benefit.

Thoughts which increase your faith, courage, industry, ambition, optimism, energy, confidence, independence, determination, power, enthusiasm, or other desirable qualities are right thoughts. Repeated thoughts lead to acts, and repeated acts at last consolidate into habits. The procedure is: Thoughts, acts, habits, character, destiny. There is the philosophy of life in a nut-shell.

2. Have faith in your resourcefulness. Realize that if one means is not sufficient for your purpose, you have other powers in reserve to summon into use. A commander who knows he has re-enforcements at his ready hand in case of need finds in this assurance a source of great courage. You will do better with the power you use when you realize that it is re-enforced by other powers. You have large resources within you which you have not yet used. You have reason for great faith in yourself when you think that you can never exhaust your God-given powers.

3. Have faith in your work. A profound belief in your work will cause you to do it with greater regularity and cheerfulness. Apply your energy to a definite purpose until it is accomplished, and accustom yourself to preserve in the face of any difficulty. Fix your mind upon one thing at a time, and bring your mind back to it as often as it wanders away, whether it be once or a hundred times. This is the secret of concentration.

4. Have faith in your future. Your mind is a powerful force in attracting what it habitually dwells upon. Constantly picture yourself as the man you wish to be, and try to see, mentally, the conditions with which you desire ultimately to surround yourself. Keep one great object before you. Realize the great responsibility devolving upon you to make the most of yourself. Persistently fill your mind with thoughts of increasing power. Believe deeply and sincerely that your faith, coupled with diligence and determination, will ultimately carry you forward to a place of influence and independence.

5. Associate with men of self-faith. This tends to be reciprocal. Your faith will communicate itself to them, and their faith to you. Do your work in a "faith" atmosphere and you will work at a maximum advantage. You impress others by your own faith, and they will have faith in you only in the degree that you have faith in yourself.

Men of faith have done the world's supreme work. Faith is the soul of every great enterprise. With faith great enough you can do the seemingly impossible.

Many men who have achieved success acknowledge that had they known the difficulties before them, they would have given up in despair, but their immense faith led them to persevere and carried them step by step to the realization of success.

THE PARENTS SPEAK

Dr. Gilbert T. Rowe, one of the outstanding ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who is at present connected with the school of religion at Duke University, said any boy could get just as good training at High Point College as anywhere, and my high regard for his opinion settled the question with me for my boy. We are perfectly satisfied with the college work.

I sent my boy to High Point College because I thought that in a smaller school he would get more personal attention than he would in a large school.

And then the climate suits him very well, he never could stand our winters.

I am sending my boy to High Point College, First, because I am anxious that he shall have a college education under the most favorable conditions, and Second: Because I believe the character and the scholarship of the professors of High Point College to be of high caliber.

Third: I believe the administration to be Christian and sympathetic, concerned with development of the body, mind and spirit of each student.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE MISSIONARY MICE

"Where there's a will, there's a way"; but how to find the way is the question. Susie Simms had been thinking it over. Money was none too plentiful, and she did not see how to get any to help the mission cause.

"No butter for supper?" said father.

"No," answered mother; "a mouse got into the cream jar. I don't know what to do about the mice, they are so troublesome. They get into everything; they have been into the closet and cut my shawl, besides doing mischief everywhere else!"

"Get a cat," said John.

"They catch more young chickens than mice," answered mother.

"Poison them," suggested Will.

"No," said father; "I'm afraid to have it around. I will get some traps, if some of you will attend to them every day."

"Let me do it," said Susie. "Father, all the rest have been earning missionary money, and there has been nothing for me to do. Pay me a little for every mouse, and I'll keep the traps baited."

"I will do it,:" said father, "I will give you five cents apiece for rats, and three cents for mice, and it will pay me better than it does you."

"Rat-catcher!" said Bennie, slyly, and when mamma shook her finger, Susie said, "I'll catch 'em if I can."

So the traps were bought, and Susie had her work. The rat-traps she set in the barn and corn-crib, the mouse-traps in pantry, cellar, and closet. Every day she made several trips to seem them all, and soon her money began to pour in so that her father talked of cutting down the price; but Susie would not let him.

Every few days she washed all the traps with hot soap-suds, so they would be neat and clean; then she broiled scraps of bacon, and toasted bits of cheese, to make tempting bait.

Only six weeks, and she had caught twenty-eight mice and thirty-three rats.

Father paid up. What a time she had making the calculation! Three times twenty-eight—eighty-four cents for mice! Five times thirty-three—one dollar and sixty-five cents for rats! Two dollars and forty-nine cents! What a pile! She had to borrow mother's pocketbook to take it to Sunday School. How funny she felt when the teacher read out the amounts given, and told how they all earned their money!

It seemed that everybody opened their eyes when Miss Lee read:

"Susie Simms, $2.49. Earned in catching mice and rats."

Oh, what a laugh! And Susie laughed too, though she felt more like crying.

Uncle Jerry could hardly stop laughing, but Susie forgave him, for after Sunday School he came and said,

"Susie, don't you want to take the contract at my house? The rats are about to take the place, and we have no youngsters to tend the traps; and your Aunt Lucy is so busy, and I am so lame, I believe it would pay me to pay you to clean them out for us."

"I'll do it," said Susie. "I know mother will let me, and I'm going to tell all the boys and girls to make the mice and rats help the missionaries."—Publisher Unknown.

THE JUNGLE BOY

If you look at the map of Africa you will see a country called Burmah, to the east of India. There the little jungle boy lived about whom you are going to read. His skin was dark brown, and he was a heathen, brought up without any knowledge of the Lord Jesus or the Bible. But kind missionaries carried the Gospel into the country where the jungle boy lived.

One bright morning an English Christian lady was sitting in the veranda of her house. Lying before her on the table was a long palm-leaf book, covered with a number of round-looking scratches. She was trying to read this curious book, but the glare of the sun dazzled her eyes, and it was a relief to look away and see the beautiful flowers and birds near the house.

On the other side of the fence was a schoolhouse, made of poles and a bamboo roof. The sound of busy voices came over the hedge, and the lady was pleased to think that the native schoolmaster was doing his duty, and the little dark brown children were getting on with their "talk."

While she was looking around a strange figure made its way through an opening in the hedge, which served as a gateway to the school. It was a little rough-haired jungle boy, with a little dirty cotton plaid thrown over him.

"Does Jesus live here?" he asked, scarcely stopping to draw a breath. Without an invitation he ran up the steps, and threw himself at the lady's feet.

"What do you want with the Lord Jesus?" she gently asked.

"I want to see Him; I want to confess to Him," said the poor boy.

"Does He live here?" he asked very anxiously: and then added: "Doing? why, I tell lies, I steal, I do everything bad, and I want to see the Lord Jesus, for I heard a man say that He can save me from hell. Oh, tell me where I can find Him!"

"You cannot see the Lord Jesus now," said the lady, and the boy began to cry; "but," she added: "I am His humble friend and follower, and He has sent me to teach those who wish to get their sins forgiven how they may do so."

The boy's face brightened up, and he seemed very glad. "Tell me, oh, tell me!" he said. "Only ask your Master, the Lord Jesus Christ, to save me, and I will be your slave for life. I want to be saved."

Was the lady angry? Of course not. She gently told him how the Lord Jesus had died to save him; that all he had to do was to trust Him as his own personal Saviour.

The next day this wild heathen lad was sitting in the bamboo school listening so eagerly to what the teacher had to say about the way of salvation. And he trusted the Lord Jesus, and confessed Him as his Saviour.—Tract.

Woman's Missionary Department

"PRAY YE THEREFORE"

Time nears for the annual session of the Branch meeting. Our year's work is over, the books are closed, and reports will soon be heard of our many efforts. Some will be happy and some filled with regret. Still there is much we may accomplish through prayer in these remaining days while plans are being completed for the meeting at Enfield. In the past month we were to pray especially for Home Missions, our executive officers, the Branch officers and local auxiliary officers. You, of course, have been doing this, and may we continue our prayers for the leaders in our Woman's Work, as they get ready for this meeting, that they may be led on in wisdom in plans for next year's work. There are several days yet in which to work, not on a budget, but on a spiritual uplift. We need to stay close to the great Fountain Head from whom our blessings flow.

At our last Executive Branch meeting when Mrs. J. E. Pritchard, secretary of temperance, gave her report, Mrs. Andrews, asked that the Methodist Protestant women pray every day at noon for Prohibition. Let's continue in that, it is so very important! Then, too, will you pray also each day for the success of the Branch meeting, that the Christ spirit will abide with us, that the women may be greatly encouraged, and may each delegate take back to her own auxiliary a great vision of a bigger, better, more glorious future for the North Carolina Women's Work in the Master's service.

"If every woman prayed
As 'tis her gracious privilege to pray;
If every woman prayed
For increase of God's Kingdom, day by day;
For light and love, for liberty and might;
For wrong cast out, enthronement of the right;
How soon the dawning of the perfect day
Of Christ's unchallenged universal sway—
If every woman prayed."

Sec. of Spiritual Life Dept.

MRS. R. ANDREWS REPORTS AND ASKS PRAYERS

Dear Dr. McCulloch:

When it's almost mail time at our house Dr. Andrews asks very hopefully, "See if there's any mail this time."

It has just occurred to me that if his friends knew that he'd been flat of his back for a week, suffering more than the week following his operation, I wouldn't have to say, "No, Daddy, the postman is going by and not stopping here."

He hopes to get up before this will be seen in the Herald, but I'm not so sure, and any how I'd like to have the prayers of the people of our church.

Please don't anybody think, "Mrs. Andrews is evidently a poor nurse!" for I asked our good doctor if I'd blundered about treating him and he was most encouraging to me—his reply was: "No, Mrs. Andrews, this complication is not due to anything that anybody has, or has not done and it is very unusual for it to occur this long after the operation."

The kindnesses of his many friends while he was in the hospital helped him, I am sure, and he is missing the old friends, and almost too weak to talk to people, but he looks forward to mail time.

With all good wishes to you and your family I am,

Sincerely,
OLIVE HARRIS ANDREWS.

THE STRUGGLE TO LIVE

We see it everywhere—the hospitals, physicians, medicines, are all in evidence. The human race is heir to many diseases through the fall in Eden. Many of our troubles could be avoided, or modified if we were more careful to observe the laws of health. We see this great struggle to extend human life in the hospitals, where so many people, from fifty to eighty years old are there for treatment. In the Deaconess Hospital in Boston, Mass., the great majority who are there for the treatment of diabetes are beyond fifty years of age. Diabetes is increasing in the United States. It is one of the most terrible scourges of the human race, perhaps, except cancer. It, so far, is incurable. It can be controlled by treatment, and life extended. Diabetic ulcers, in most cases, start about the great toe, sometimes from cuts and bruises, and often without these it breaks out. If the circulation is good the ulcers can be cured. If the circulation is poor—almost no circulation —amputation is the only remedy. In the great majority of cases, it is the right foot that is affected—among the great numbers of amputations in the Boston hospital, eight out of ten, it is the right foot or leg—Why the right leg? Perhaps because the right foot is further from the heart than the left foot, hence the circulation is poorer in the right foot. The chief physician in the Deaconess Hospital, Boston, Mass., is Dr. Elliott P. Joslin, next, Dr. Root, Dr. Pratt, Dr. Rodgers, Dr. White (woman), Dr Jordan and a number of others.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. Margaret Whitaker White, Greensboro, 2 dresses and 1 pair shoes.

We are so thankful to all who helped in any way to make the above report possible. It looks like April is starting off better than March did. Our books show the smallest income for March of any month since we have been here.

The two friends above saw our expressed need for clothing for boys, at least 100 suits of underwear and 100 pair of overalls, besides other clothing, so they sent along their check for one hundred. Oh boy! but it looks good.

Our spring planting is going on and we are having to buy fertilizers and seeds.

We thank all of you for your help, and may God abundantly bless each of you.

Yours in His service
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

NOTICE

So far I have received $2.00 on Representatives' expenses to the General Conference. I hope the brethren will make a special effort to get this money in my hands as soon as possible. If all the Representatives are as hard up as some with whom I am intimately acquainted, we shall not be represented at Columbus in May, unless their expenses are paid.

May I add this other sad note? Last week I received $3.00, no more no less, on all claims, and to date I have received, including money borrowed, the enormous sum of $2,079.57, and five months of the conference year are gone. Brethren, isn't it possible for us to do better than this? Our work is seriously embarrassed for the lack of funds.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Union Ridge Church.—The pastor, Rev. R. A. Hunter, brought us a very interesting and inspiring message at the 11:00 o'clock service using as his subject, "The Destiny of the Soul." After the morning service communion was observed and a goodly number partook. Sunday school convened at 10:00 o'clock. We have a good Sunday school with large attendance and much interest shown.

The primary and junior pupils of the Sunday school rendered a very interesting Easter program yesterday evening. There was a large crowd attended and it was enjoyed by all. Collection was taken up at the close of the service which was for the benefit of the Children's Home at High Point.

We ask each one to pray for the work here that we may keep on growing in number and faith. We want our lights to shine that men may see our good works and glorify our Father in heaven. May God bless you all is our prayer.

MRS. ADDIE POPE, Reporter.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Our church gave a good Easter program on Easter Sunday. The pageant, the Easter Vision, was especially good. The children and the ladies in charge deserve much credit for the success of the program, considering the short time they had in getting it up.

Our Auxiliary has been re-organized with the following officers to serve the coming year. Mrs. F. R. Love, president; Mrs. J. L. Fields, vice-president; Mrs. J. D. Jones, secretary; and Kara Andrew, treasurer. Mrs. Love, Mrs. Jones, Miss Clara Johnson and Kara Andrew are delegates to the Branch meeting at Enfield.

Next Sunday is "Joash" day at our church. We are hoping for a good service.

Our Christian Endeavor society went to Siler City last Sunday night and gave a program. The social committee is planning a social for next Friday night.

Reidsville.—The women of the Reidsville M. P. church have been very busy for the past month working on the pageant, "Women of the Bible." The first time it was given was March 8th; the church was filled to it full capacity. Upon popular request it was given again a week later to a full attendance. The pageant took in nearly all the women of the church and all the children. It was a portrayal of the important women of the Bible. It was all in costume with the beautiful colored lights to bring out the effect. The costumes were copied as near as possible from the Biblical pictures. The scene of Pharaoh's daughter finding Moses in the bulrushes was a beautiful picture. As a whole it was interesting as well as beautiful.

Frieden's Lutheran church asked the women to bring the pageant to the church on Tuesday, March 22. Mrs Smith, our leader, and Mrs. I. R. McCollum, who was "Dorcas Electa," were not able to with us. They were missed very much.

At the February meeting of the Woman's auixiliary, which was held at the church, the officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Mrs. J. R. McCollum, president; Mrs. J. H. Allen, vice-president; Mrs George R. Brown, secretary, and Mrs D. L. Carroll, treasurer.

Miss Mabel Butler has organized a junior choir. We expect to let you hear more about them later.

Winston.—The Christian Endeavor society of the First Methodist Protestant church of Winston-Salem held a business meeting and social, Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. E. Kirk on North Poplar street.

Mrs. Kirk conducted devotionals and read the scripture, which was followed by sentence prayers.

Various reports from officers were made. Plans for a Christian Endeavor library were discussed, and the following committees were appointed: Look-out committee, chairman, Miss Pauline Branson, Miss Margaret Smith, Mr. Ralph Murphy; Prayer meeting committee, chairman, Miss Pearl Sapp, Miss Ellen Wakefield, Mr. Hubert Smothers; Missionary and social committee, chairman, Miss Helen Vass, Miss Sarah Hall, Mr. Joyner Burns; Sunday school committee chairman, Mr. Paul Minish, Mr. Archie Smith, Misses Frances Voss and Dorothy Brewer.

Miss Pauline Branson had charge of the social hour, during which a number of games and contests were enjoyed, carrying out the April Fool idea.

The society was glad to have as visitors, Miss Louise Blom, president of Christian Endeavor society of Fairview Moravian church and Mrs. J. T. Sharp, of Reidsville.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. Sharp, served tempting refreshments.

◆

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—We had 53 young men present on April 3. The lesson being on, "God in Creation." Our teacher taught an uplifting lesson. The main thought he wanted to leave with us was: "All the beautiful things we see around us make us think of God." God created all things and all that we have comes from God. What a wonderful Father He is.

We were glad to have Mr. C. A. Leonard with us today, who made a few remarks on the lesson. He asked that we read the book of Genesis. It deals with three particular words, generation, degeneration, and regeneration.

We were glad to have the visitors, we always welcome them.

We hope that God will continue His blessings upon us.

◆

West End.—The West End congregation enjoyed a second feast of Easter music on last Sunday night when the choir of Calvary Methodist Protestant church on request repeated the rendering of their beautiful Easter canta "Life Eternal." Mr. Arthur Fiddler, of High Point, sang the offertory solo. The large attendance was an evidence of the appreciation of good music and the fellowship existing between these two churches of our city. By this great program of music our souls were lifted up and we are all happy that it was our good fortune to have these good people with us. Out of good thought of fellowship as well as the appreciation of the program of music the pastor and the Calvary congregation worshiped with us. Besides Pastor Bates, Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk, Rev. J. F. McCulloch and Rev. T. F. McCulloch were in the congregation. This was a great occasion always to be remembered and appreciated. Thank you, good Calvary people. Come again.

Because of a hurried writing and some other circumstances the tidings of last week failed to make mention of some of the events of Easter that were very much appreciated. Passion week services were observed during the week at the regular evening hour, 7:30 o'clock. On Thursday night the Lord's Supper was observed. On Sunday two members were received. This is the first time these services have been observed by the West End people. While the attendance was not large crowds the people seem to appreciate the services very much.

West Forsyth.—We had the largest congregations at Baltimore and Stony Knoll last Sunday that have been present since the first of the year. The interest shown was good, and we had a number of visitors at each service. After the service at Baltimore we went to the home of Brother J. S. Phillips, where a splendid dinner was enjoyed and a brief visit made. From there we hurried to Stony Knoll for the service at 2:30. The interest and attention at this service were good.

The second quarterly conference will convene at Stony Knoll church on April 16. Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of the annual conference, has been invited to be present and preach at 11 o'clock and conduct the quarterly conference in the afternoon. At this writing, (Monday morning), we have not learned from him whether he can be with us. We desire a full attendance of the official members of each church and invite others to attend the conference.

Next Sunday we will be at Union Hill at 11 a. m., and at Tabernacle at 7:30 p. m., for the regular appointments at those churches.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Pleasant Grove. — Our Sunday school is growing. We added two new members last Sunday. We invite anyone who is not attending Sunday school anywhere to come and join our school.

Sunday being the first Sunday the offering went to the Children's Home which amounted to $10.00.

Our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, brought us a wonderful message Sunday on "Is the Grave Hell." He read for his scripture St. Luke 16:19-23. "And in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torment, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom." He also read scriptures from the Old Testament. Said when Christ told Peter "Upon this rock I establish my church and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it" Christ did not say the grave shall not prevail against it but Hell. The rich man lifted up his eyes in Hell and called to Abraham afar off (he had five brothers back in his father's house) and send Lazarus back to warn them so they would not come to that place. Lazarus went to Abraham's bosom a place of rest. When they cast the man at the wedding feast into outer darkness whence there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. We don't find these things in the grave.

We are glad to say we don't have any in our church that believe that doctrine but we have these things to contend wih, so it helps us to hear sermons against it.

We must strive to live a Christ-like life so when the end comes that we, too, like Lazarus, go to a resting place.

Christian Endeavor met Sunday evening at 6:45 o'clock. We had as our teacher, Mrs. Clyde Payne.

For the evening worship our pastor used the 6th chapter of St. John, whence Christ fed the multitude on the loaves of bread and fishes. After they were filled they did not care about Christ, they went another way. Church members today are very much like the multitude: if they get in trouble they will follow Christ until they think they are cut and as the multitude did go another way.

Christ said if you want life, follow me to the end and not for loaves or fishes and miracles.

Death visited in our community last week and called away one of our members, Mrs. Crissie Scott Petty. She is survived by her husband, one son, Johnnie Scott of the home and two brothers and one sister.

May God bless and comfort the bereaved.

Mid-week prayer service every Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Friendship Station.—Our letters have been few this year, but our aid has been so busy we haven't had time to write. The following ladies have entertained the aid with excellent meetings: Mesdames C. R. Hatley, W. H. Harwood, L. C. Burleyson, T. J. Lefler and J. T. Mason. Seven quilts were quilted for Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Herlocker. Mr. Herlocker is still in very feeble health and it requires all Mrs. Herlocker's time to care for him.

A play was given by the aid members, also a sale. The play was very much enjoyed and the sale proved a decided success.

We now have our parsonage in excellent condition. Rev. and Mrs. Williams are very grateful for anything we do toward church and parsonage improvement. They show this by the way they care for them. Some work has been done on the church lawn. Hope to do more later.

Our Easter program was given last Sunday evening. A splendid pageant was rendered by the young people, directed by Mesdames O. B. Williams and Oscar Hatley.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—Our missionary organization is looking forward to the Branch meeting in Enfield, April 12-14. The delegates are Mrs. T. C. Williams and Miss Kathleen Shearin.

We had a splendid service on Easter Sunday morning. Brother Fogleman used as his subject, "Christ, the Way." The text was taken from that portion of the Scripture where Jesus declared himself, "the way, the truth, and the life." Here are some statements snatched from the sermon: Jesus came incarnating a new way of life. Christ is the apostle of love, but never of compromise. The resurrection did more than restore a life; it honored a way of life. Our religion is not a way from earth to heaven, but a way through earth to heaven; not a way to die, but a way to live. Christianity is more than a profession, a creed, a denomination; it is a person. The congregation, in response to the sermon, sang "All hail the power of Jesus Name."

At night the Sunday school gave the pageant, "The Easter Vision." The children played their part well, there was some special singing. The choir sang "He Arose" and Mrs. W. E. Knight and Miss Kathleen Shearin sang a duet, "The Heart That Was Broken For Me."

Miss Sallie Wood and Mr. Ollie Knight of High Point college, spent the holidays at home and attended the services on Sunday morning. Mr. Willie Wood also attended the service.

Winston-Salem, First.—We held a Communion service on Thursday evening before Easter and had our plans all made for a great Easter when almost suddenly, on Good Friday, the pastor went down with a bad case of flu. Brother C. H. Smith presided at the Easter Sunday morning services and addresses were made by two members of a local evangelistic club. Yesterday morning Rev. C. H. Whitaker brought a helpful message to our people.

Our second quarterly conference was held some weeks ago. Brothers S. E. Hauser and W. G. White were elected nominees for delegate to the next Annual Conference. As a part of an emergency economy measure which must be adopted by both state and church, this pastor voluntarily reduced his own salary by the sum of three hundred dollars.

Our Sunday school superintendent and chairman of board of church trustees, Brother R. N. Hauser, has been signally honored by being elected to the presidency of the Farmers' National Bank and Trust Co. here. He has been, a vice-president for some time.

The famous English evangelist, Gipsy Smith, began a three weeks revival in a large warehouse here March 27. At every service thousands have heard him and it is said that the number turned away last night was almost equal to the ones who could get in. Already there have been many professions and reconsecrations.

Our people here sympathize with Rev. C. H. Whitaker in the death at Enfield of his only sister at Easter time.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Our reporter has turned the job over to me this week, so here goes. And it goes back to Friday before Easter, when the choir sang the cantata, "Life Eternal." A very small congregation heard a very fine rendition of this beautiful music.

Easter Sunday was a good day with us. 210 in Sunday school, and I think the largest Easter Sunday congregations we have had at all. Easter time is vacation time, and a great many of our folks go away over that Sunday. But they stayed in Greensboro, and came to church this time. Eight were received into the membership of the church at the morning service. At the evening service, in spite of the threatening weather, we had a good congregation, and an interesting service. Just got through it when the lights went out, and the folks had to leave in the dark.

One of the interesting improvements made during the Easter season was the placing of the sentence "The Lord Is in His Holy Temple; Let All the Earth Keep Silence Before Him," over the organ arch. The sign painter put it there, and it is paid for.

The Baraca boys took some of their Easter leisure to paint their class room, and did a creditable job of it. The new room, or something, has certainly put new life into the class.

Last Sunday was another good day. 236 in Sunday school. And an extra good congregation at the morning service. There was no evening service at Calvary. Instead, the choir, the preacher and a goodly number of the members, went to West End church, where the Calvary choir showed 'em and us how to sing. They did it to perfection.

We are looking forward now to our eighth anniversary. We are setting two goals for the day: An offering of $500 on the church debt; the rounding out of the membership to a full 300. We lack 36 of having that number. But we have the letters for three, and one coming in on profession, next Sunday. So we do not think either goal is beyond our reach by the last Sunday in this month. (More about our anniversary services next week.)

The circles met at the parsonage Monday for the last meeting of the old and the reorganization of the new circles. New circle officers were elected. The new year under the new officers gives promise of the same fine success the women have been having all along.

A number of the men are working today on the sodding of the bank on the southeast side of the church. The work they have done already shows a great improvement.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

◆

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—On Easter Sunday an Easter Service was given by the children and young people of our church. The program consisted of songs, recitations and a pageant, "The Easter Vision." Those directing the program were Miss Blanche Staley, Mrs. Charlie Shepard and Dortha E. Causey. A large crowd was present for the service and the offering was good.

The Woman's Missionary society met with Mrs. Blanche Bowman Wednesday afternoon, March 30th. Our society is small but is growing and much interest is being shown by all. It was decided that the women will piece a quilt for sale as one way of making money for our next year's pledge. The quilt has already been started and no doubt will be finished before long.

We are very glad to have Mrs. J. T.Neese with us in worship again. Mrs. Neese has not been able to attend for almost a year until the last few Sundays. She seems to be much improved now.

Mrs. Blanche Bowman has been ill for the past two weeks. We are glad to report that she is improving.

Welcome visitors for our Sunday school April 3rd were Prof. R. W. Utley, Mr. Jim Utley, and little Miss Elizabeth Edwards.

Charlotte.—Due to the continued illness of pastor, Dr. R. M. Andrews, our service was conducted Sunday by Mrs. G. B. Spillman of the Laymen Evangelistic club of this city. His subject, "The New Birth," was presented in a most interesting and helpful manner.

Mr. A. L. Roberts, secretary of the Charlotte Y. M. C. A., will conduct the morning service next Sunday.

An interesting feature of our service Sunday morning was the anniversary service presided over by Mr. R. S. Garmon. The church history was given by Mrs. Carrie Blake and the Joash box was opened by Mr. G. W. Stegall. The contribution from the self-denial week, in which nearly all present had a part together with the offering in the Joash box netted nearly $30.

Our auxiliary has elected the following officers and chairmen of the various committees:

President: Mrs. B. W. Little; first vice-president, Mrs. G. W. Stegall; secretary, Mrs. H. G. Garrison; treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Atkins.

Secretary Missionary Education, Mrs. C. H. Daughtry.

Sec. Scholarships and Workers, Mrs. R. C. Milloway.

Sec. Literature, Mrs. L. D. Fesperman.

Sec. Thank Offering, Mrs. R. M. Andrews.

Sec. Christian Endeavor, Mrs. P. C. Carpenter.

Sec. Spiritual Life, Mrs. G. P. Younginer.

Sec. Temperance, Mrs. G. W. Stegall.

Sec. Benevolence, Mrs. J. H. McCall.

Sec. Life Memorial and Perpetual Members, Mrs. R. S. Garmon.

Sec. Pastors Aid, Mrs. J. C. Perry.

Sec. Programs, Mrs. G. P. Younginer.

Delegates to Branch meeting: Mesdames Younginer and Stegall with Mrs. C. H. Daughtry, alternate.

Our sick are all improving.

Mrs. J. L Spencer of Friendship, worshipped with us Sunday, also Miss Barbara Younginer, who is a student at N. C. C. They are visiting their parents in the city for spring holidays.

We are glad to have Miss Mildred Younginer back with us after an absence of three weeks. We missed her in our S. S. work.

Christian Endeavor was conducted at 7:15 Sunday evening by Miss Mary Shaw, the subject, "Why We Need the Church—What it Means to Us." It was a most refreshing and inspirational meeting. There was a good attendance and a ready response by the young people. Mrs. A. F. Love, who supervises the C. E. work, gave an interesting and helpful talk on our reverence for the church.

Shiloh.—Sunday school enrollment to date is 319, with 235 present today. New members and visitors are always welcome.

Will you follow us, as we continue our visit through the Sunday school that we started a few weeks ago? As you climb the stairs when Sunday school first opens, you will hear the voices of little children singing, for the Junior department conducts its own opening exercise. Up there you will find the Primary classes of bright-eyed little boys and girls. Also you will see the Junior and Intermediate boys and girls, all wide-awake and interesting. Last but not least, there is a fine class of young ladies, which is doing good work. It is our prayer that God will lay his hand upon some of these boys and girls and lead them into definite service.

The Third Sunday in April will be observed at Shiloh as Joash Sunday, when each member is requested to put a donation into the Joash box. Your gift will count on your part of the budget just as it does on any other Sunday. Just put your offering in your envelope as usual, write your name on it and put it into the box. We are looking forward to a good day and a large offering that the work of the Lord may not be retarded, and all the church budget be paid up to date.

First Kings 18:42, 43 were the verses that Brother Troxler preached from today, "Elijah, praying on Carmel." The climax of his timely message was that as a people and as individuals, our great need today is to humbly turn to God, and persistently call upon him.

God, and only He, is able to sustain us in these testing times. All things are his, and when we turn sincerely and whole heartedly to him, "He will freely give us all things."

Mrs. Herman Leonard, who has been confined to her home for the past four months with rheumatism, was able to be at church today, and her many friends were delighted to see her.

Aunt Molly Waitman is also able to be back again after a long absence. Her grand-daughter, Miss Reba Grantham, has been right sick with low blood pressure, but has improved some. We hope for her an early and complete recovery.

The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary has been changed from the Fifth Sunday morning to the Fifth Sunday night. We now have a good program committee, and think that the meetings will be more interesting and profitable than they were in the past year.

Lexington.—We are pleased to see a gain in Sunday school attendance although we are still hindered somewhat by whooping cough, chicken pox and scarlet fever among our children. What we have lacked in numbers the past few Sundays because of sickness has been made up for in enthusiasm and co-operative effort by all departments of the church work.

We were recently faced with the necessity of raising a large sum of money in a short time—a sum that would not have seemed large a few years ago but under the trying conditions of today seemed impossible when viewed from a human standpoint only, but with the assurance and faith of Paul, "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me," all from the small children to the oldest members went to work in earnest and the money has almost all been raised. By next Sunday the amount in full will be in. Honorable acknowledgement will be tendered some of the Sunday school classes that have gone far over their quota. What an incentive to keep trying to do the things God wants us to do in the face of difficulties. If we only did the things we could see how to do we would have no stimulus for our faith.

Two chicken pie suppers recently served by the Woman's Bible class and Men's Bible class, respectively, have been quite successful in every way. The people who came to eat were enthusiastic in their praise of the quality of the food served and also of the quantity received for the small sum of 25c. Quite an encouraging su mof money was netted by both suppers. The men are indebted to Mrs. F. J. Cox and a group of young ladies under her supervision for the serving of their supper, and to their wives and other ladies of the church who worked faithfully in the preparation of the food and last but by no means least for washing dishes.

The Auxiliary met at the church last Wednesday night and rendered a program of interest and instruction. Mrs. C. L. Koonce, who teaches the study book, Christ comes to the village, had charge of the program. A very pleasing feature of the evening was provided by Mrs. W. L. Sink and her two little daughters, Elizabeth and Hilda, who appeared as a Japanese mother and daughter and sang a descriptive song about the customs of Japan.

The Women's Bible class met on Thursday night of last week with Mrs. A. H. Evans. There was a large attendance and a good program of devotion, business, and social period. Miss Louise Hendry sang a solo beautifully.

Last Thursday a group of the ladies of the Missionary society served lunch to the local Kiwanis club, realizing enough profit to help much on the conference budget where it was applied.

Mr. Hendry will preach a series of sermons of especial significance to women, touching on their privileges, duties and influence.

The service next Sunday evening will be conducted by the Men's Brotherhood.

As the weather is getting warmer our attendance in Sunday school is increasing and we hope it to continue until we have an extra large crowd.

Plans for beautifying the church grounds and we hope that all members will participate when time comes.

First Church, Lexington.—Our Sunday school attendance is holding up well. We had 273 present Sunday.

Our revival services began at the evening service with Rev. O. C. Loy present. The church was filled, also the large Sunday school room was filled and Brother Loy preached a very forceful and interesting sermon on rebuilding the church. We had visitors from all over the city present, also some of our good friends from Winston-Salem were with us. We are always glad to have visitors worship with us.

Brother Wayne Curtiss came to us on last Wednesday to get the choir ready for the beginning of the meeting. We hope that the good people all around will pray that God shall pour out a great blessing upon us during these series of services.

Belmont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—At the morning service on Easter Sunday our pastor delivered a very fine message, after which the Lord's Supper was administered. At the night service a pageant, "The Easter Vision," was presented in a splendid way. Misses Carrie Nicholson and Marie Hargis had charge of the program, and Mr. J. H. Randolph directed the music.

Our Sunday school attendance has dropped down considerable for the past two Sundays. However, we feel that this is on account of so much sickness in the community.

The second quarterly conference will convene at our church on Saturday, April 9, at 2:30 p. m. We hope to have a large attendance not only of the members of our church, but of each church on the charge.

We are planning to observe Joash Day the fourth Sunday of this month at the 11 o'clock service. Let us work and pray that this service may be a success.

Glad to report that Mrs. Claud Moser, who has been quite ill, is improving. We trust she will soon be able to come back to church.

Some of our members may wonder why Belmont has not had a report in the paper in the past month. It is because the reporter's eyes have been in such a condition that it was almost imposible for her to write.

Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—Rev. Mr. Isley delivered a very fine message at the Sunday morning service. Choosing as his subject, "Off and On Religion." He made very clear 'God's picture of a lazy church. A most pleasing feature of the day was the solo singing of Rev. Wayne Curtiss, of Burlington, who rendered "I Will Trade the Old Cross for a Crown," and "My Record Will Be There." We were very glad to have Rev. Mr. Curtiss and Mrs. Curtiss and a number of other visitors worship with us Sunday. We are always glad to have visitors.

Our Sunday school continues to grow. We had 109 present Sunday morning. This attendance is more than double that of a year ago.

First Church, High Point.—Since Easter Monday, March 28th, immediately following the Holy Week services conducted each evening by the pastor, our congregation has enjoyed an interesting series of meetings and a gracious revival. Mrs. Mary C. Steidley, a local evangelist, has conducted the services, assisted by the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, each morning at 8:30 o'clock a Bible Study hour, a service for children and young people at 4 p. m., and at 7:30 in the evening a worship period for everybody. These meetings have been well attended, and were helpful and uplifiting in a remarkable degree. Mrs. Steidley is a gifted speaker of attractive personality and much power. She is a consecrated Christian, and impresses one with her deep spirituality and faith, knowing in whom she has believed. She is a native of the state of Illinois, but a North Carolinian by adoption, residing at present on Montlieu Ave., this city. Of a quiet, gentle nature she speaks with conviction and without sensationalism or ostentation. She relates many of her own rich experiences born out of a checkered life, for like the majority of us, she has known bitter sorrow, having been bereft of her husband and an idolized son, Jack. A member of the Methodist Episcopal church; yet she gives her services in helpful assistance to all denominations with no remuneration except a free-will offering. She believes in a practical Christianity, and says that since Jesus Christ came into the world to seek sinners and save the outcast, the drunkard, the fallen women of the street, it is the duty of Christ's church and people to lift up the fallen, to extend a hand of greeting and companionship to the penitent sinners, "though their sins be as scarlet." When people begin to enumerate their many errors and shortcomings, she always tells them to take their sins to Jesus, telling Him about them and talking it through with Him. She has an unusual reverence and tender regard for the old Book as she calls the Bible, and making it the rule of her own life, advises everybody to follow its precepts: and her faith in prayer is firm and changeless. On Sunday morning she delivered an impressive and beautiful sermon, taking as her text the verse in Revelations: "I saw a new Heaven and a new earth—and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes," and Hebrews 13:14, "Here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come." She said: "The years come and go so rapidly. It seems just a short time since my brothers and I were trudging to school through the mud and snow of the Illinois plains, for we had no sidewalks there. Then it seems but as yesterday when my own boys and my daughter were tugging at my skirts and playing around my knees, often worrying and making me impatient as all you mothers know 'the little sharp vexations, and the briars that catch and fret,' but forgiving and forgetting, 'we send them to bed with a kiss'."

"Then leaving all our weakness
With the One divinely strong,
Forget that we bore the burden,
And carry away the song."

"Just the things of earth will not satisfy the soul. Pleasure will not satisfy you, neither will wealth or fame. There is no perfect leaf, no perfect flower, no perfect poem; the only perfect thing on earth was Jesus. Sin is the curse of the world, and has brought every heartache known to mortals. This world is not our abiding home. I believe that Heaven is a real place prepared for real people who are ready for it. As Christ went to the tomb as a body, and came out with another body, so shall we have a glorified body. Yes, we will know each other there as we really are." She then sang a touching little song, "I want to go there, don't you?" There have been 12 or 14 conversions with a large number of decisions among the Sabbath school pupils on Sunday morning. Mrs. Steidley has an engagement for a meeting to begin tomorrow in Salisbury, so this evening she will hold her last service. We feel very grateful to Mrs. Steidley for her helpful and comforting messages and prayers, and trust that God's blessings and tender mercies may follow her wherever she goes. The results of this revival cannot be estimated, for eternity alone can reveal the full fruition of the hopes and prayers of Christian people.

We were much pleased to receive four new additions to our membership Sunday morning as follows: Miss Eloise Cecil, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cecil; Miss Evelyn Sechrest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Sechrest; Miss Juanita Willard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Willard, and a young married man, Mr Addison Payne. There will probably be other additions by profession of faith and transfer of church letter next Sunday.

The friends of Mrs. L. J. Diffee will be gratified to learn that she has left the High Point hospital, and has gone to the home of of her daughter, Mrs. S. H. Tomlinson in Emerywood to recuperate from a recent illness. Mrs. Emmett Pritchard has also gone to her home on Sunset Drive from High Point hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

To the gratification of a large number of friends Dr. A. A. York is able to resume work in his office, following a serious operation in High Point hospital. Dr. R. M. Andrews has gone home to Charlotte; so the Methodist Protestant "colony" in High Point hospital is broken up.

We are pleased to note that Mrs. J. B. Spencer and Master Tommy Foister, who have been suffering from influenza, are much improved. Little Miss Sarah and Clyde Cox, children of Mrs. Juanita Moffitt Cox, are improving from attacks of influenza.

Miss Alice Armfield, of Concord, who is a student at N. C. College for Women, Greensboro, stopped in High Point and spent the past week-end with the family of her grandfather, Wyatt J. Armfield, en route home for the spring vacation. Miss Armfield is a second year that she has made "A's" on all studies.

Mrs. H. N. Steed, of Candor, N. C., spent the past week-end with her sister, Mrs P. S. Kennett on W. College Drive.

We regret so much to learn that Miss Elizabeth Welch entered Guilford General hospital yesterday for observation, and it may be necessary for her to undergo an operation.

The name of Robert D. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davis, Woodrow Ave., appears on the honor roll of the State university released this week for the winter quarter. Robert is a senior, and came home to spend the past Sunday with his parents.

Our congregation greatly regrets that the recent resignation of Dr. Chas. Haddon Nabers as pastor of First Presbyteriand church of this city will take him to Greenville, S. C., where he has accepted the pastorate of the First church there effective April 15. Dr. Nabers is a widely traveled minister, a writer and author of note, and a splendid Christian gentleman, whose place in our community will be difficult to fill. He has been a resident of High Point only two years, but has won for himself a worthy name and niche in his profession among his fellows.

Mrs. G. Will Armfield, her daughter, Miss Myrtle Armfield, and Mrs. Annette Sloan Tinsley, of Greensboro, were guests of Mrs. R. T. Pickens Sunday afternoon.

Miss Anne Robbins is spending her spring vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robbins. She is studying music in the Cincinnati Conservatory.

Mitchell Grove, Guilford Charge.—Last Sunday was a good day with us. Our Sunday school has 93 on roll and we had 89 present. In the afternoon our pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, brought us a good message on Life. He urged us to live the life abundant because Christ came into the world that we might have life and have it more abundantly. We see at this season of the year everything putting on new life and should not we do likewise? We think the Easter season a most uplifting season of the year. We should be inspired as we look out on nature and see new life in things that seem to be dead, but Easter means nothing to us unless it begets in us a living faith and hope through Christ. Love did not die on the cross, but hope and faith did yet both come to life again with the resurrection of our Lord. The vision of Easter will ever remain the same, for the resurrection was the proof of His divinity; then Easter is the most sacred time of the year. One could not help being touched at seeing the sacred pageant, "The Easter Vision," presented Sunday night at Mitchell's Grove church. It carried a message for everyone. The decorations were very impressive. The garden of flowers and evergreens with the tomb and cross made a sacred scene in soft glow of the candle light. Christianity, faith, truth and hope brought beauti ful messages and impressed all while kneeling at the cross in tableaux. The two Marys and the Woman of Samaria enter the tomb and find the angel who tells them Christ is risen and became the first fruits of them that slept. The music was directed by Mrs. A. C. Bergeron; the solo parts were rendered by Mr. Bergeron, Bessie Cashatt, Betsy Holton and Mrs. Robert Bulla. The children of the Primary and Junior departments gave a good program of songs, exercises and recitations just prior to presentation of the pageant; this was under the leadership of Miss Bessie Cashatt and Miss Ada Kersey. All are due much credit for the much appreciated work both in song and recital. The collection was $5.00.

We will observe Joash Day next Sunday afternoon. MARTHA PARSONS.

Elbaville, Mocksville Charge.—A very attentive congregation was present for the preaching service last Sunday morning. Rev. G. B. Ferree delivered a splendid sermon, his subject being, "Peace That Has Been Given to Us Through Our Atoning Lord." He based his sermon upon the 21st verse of the 20th chapter of St. John.

Our Sunday school seems to be increasing because last Sunday we had the largest attendance we have had for sometime.

May we have the prayers of the people that our Sunday school, church and community will grow more into the Spirit of our Father which is in Heaven. LIZZIE BAILEY, Reporter.

◆

Fair Grove Church, Haw River Circuit.—Quite a few people gathered at the church Easter Monday to clean the grounds and plant shrubbery, due to the day being so windy very little progress could be made toward cleaning, but quite a bit of shrubbery was planted.

A picnic lunch was served and the afternoon was turned into a time for play. Late in the afternoon the children enjoyed an egg hunt.

The Christian Endeavor society's monthly business meeting and social was held at the Richardson home Saturday night, April 2nd. After all business was transacted numerous games were enjoyed, followed by refreshments. Mrs. C. R Reed was in charge of the musical program.

Sunday morning being such a beautiful spring morning found an increase in the Sunday school attendance. We trust the coming Sunday will be equally as pretty in order that the attendance will not decrease.

Fountain Place.—The Easter season has passed but I trust we have not forgotten the good things we were privileged to see and hear.

Good Friday the people of Burlington were invited to the Lutheran church from 12 to 3 o'clock to attend an Easter service. The sayings of Jesus on the cross were each discussed by a local pastor. The service was interesting and very helpful.

The Easter program at Fountain Place was given Sunday morning by the children aided by the choir in special Easter music. The children gave their parts well and the music rendered by the choir was beautiful.

The attendance at Sunday school has been increased for the last few Sundays by a contest between the Annie Forest Bible class (Philathea) and the Auman Bible class (Baraca). The contest ended Easter with the young men's class in the lead. The other class is planning to entertain the winners soon and hope they will challenge the young women to another contest before so long.

Both Christian Endeavor societies meet on Wednesday night. The Juniors are greatly interested in the Poppy World Friendship club, directed by Mrs. Douglas at our school in Yokohoma, Japan. They are exchanging letters and souvenirs with the Japanese girls and plan to make scrapbooks for them in the near future.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its last meeting for the year with Mrs. J. W. Wright. The attendance was small because of the severe weather but the total amount added to the treasury was $23., so it was considered a good meeting. The auxiliary has not done as much this last year as in some other years but the meetings have been held regularly and the church apportionment is paid in full. We hope to send a delegate to the Branch meeting next week.

Our pastor brings us his helpful messages regularly, except when hindered by the weather, as on one occasion, and when special services come.

The Gibsonville young people brought us the Young People's Day Pageant some weeks ago and Dr. T. M. Johnson preached for us one Sunday night in the absence of our pastor. We were glad to have all of these friends with us.

Definite plans for our spring revival have not been made but we hope to have one in the near future. May God bless us with the revival we need so much is my prayer.

A CURE FOR "NERVES"

The chief problem of one suffering from "nerves" is to acquire mental poise. The best way to establish this is to do everything very slowly, consciously, and thoroughly. Fellow-sufferers will find this difficult because it is so simple! But if they will persevere, in a few days or weeks the results will be most gratifying.

Another helpful thing I have found: That when my mind tends to work too rapidly and intensely, I can get better control by reading aloud very slowly, pronouncing each word distinctly. The Psalms are particularly good for this purpose.

The best habit of all is to live one day at a time, as embodied in the following lines:

Live one day at a time,
If you would happy be.
  Stop all hurry,
  And vain worry,
Now is eternity.

Live one day at a time,
Thus guard precious health.
  Do not wonder,
  Avoid all blunder,
Health is best of wealth.

Live one day at a time,
Within a day-tight wall.
  Do not borrow
  From tomorrow,
Today is best of all!

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. George F. Crutchfield

1868-1932

"You cannot say, you must not say
That she is dead. She is just away.
With a cheery smile and a wave of her hand
She has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers There;
So think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here,
Think of Her still as the same and say:
She is not dead. She is just away."

Infinite and beyond our undestanding, are the ways of the Master, Our Lord. On February 2, 1932, the Giver of Life deemed is best to take to Himself one of His most choice earthly flowers. So, just after the clock had tolled the midnight hour, He sent into the home of Mr. George F. Crutchfield, an angel, whose mission it was to accompany her to her celestial home the pure white soul of his wife, born Mary Margaret Thompson, daughter of the late Edward C. and Rachel Shaw Thompson. Had she lived until February 23, she would have been 64 years of age.

"O not in cruelty, not in wrath,
The Reaper came that day;
'Twas an angel visiting this green earth
And took our dear flower away."

Mrs. Crutchfield had been sick for only a few days and her illness was not considered serious by her friends and family. Her passing was sudden, due to an acute heart attack.

She professed faith in Christ as a child and joined Chestnut Ridge Methodist Protestant church. Several years later transferring her name to the Efland M. P. church, where she was considered one of its most loyal members.

She was first married to J. Wellon Stroud of Chapel Hill. To them was born one daughter, Mrs. Robert C. Sharpe, of Efland.

Later she married Geoge F. Crutchfield, who with two sons, M. Ivey and James E., and two daughters, Mrs. Gaston B. Moore and Miss Pattye Crutchfield, survive her. She also has one brother living, W. E. Thompson, and three grandchildren, Harold, and Margaret Stroud, and Victor Sharpe. One little daughter, Annie Defoe was Over There to welcome Mamma home.

To relinquish so priceless a treasure seems almost too much to bear, when we needed her so, yet we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who errs not.

While we realize fully that hers was a triumphant battle, she ran a good race and victory was hers, yet it wrings our hearts to know that never again on earth shall we see her ever cheerful face and encouraging smile, nor listen to her allwise counsel, but as becomes Christian men and women with grief-torn hearts we say, "Not our will, but Thine, O Lord, be done."

The last rites were jointly conducted by her pastor, Rev. B. M. Wililams and Rev. R. C. Stubbins of Asheboro, one of her former pastors whom she loved. Other ministers expressed a desire to be present but weather conditions prevented their doing so. One attendant remarked that everything good that could be said of any one was uttered by these two ministers. Mr. Stubbins remarked, "I saw her for the first time in church, I see her for the last time in church." He also said, "The first words she ever said to me were: 'Roland, don't you want to give your heart to God'?"

She was passionately fond of flowers, she even loved the wild flowers of the field and meadows. So, in the presence of a throng of sorrowing friends and relatives, as was opportune, she was placed to rest beneath a most beautiful mound of flowers in Efland M. P. cemetery. The floral bearers were members of her Sunday school class. Her pallbearers were close friends of her family and members of her church. Beautiful old hymns which she loved were used. Miss Mary Davis sang one of Mrs. Crutchfield's favorite funeral hymns, "Death Is Only a Dream." The male quartet of Hebron church rendered beautiful selections at the grave.

While much could be said of her, she needs no eulogy, her funeral sermon was preached, her obituary written each hour, each day as she cheerfully trod life's rugged pathway that eventually led, as the Creator wills it should lead, all His children home. The last journey which she made was to attend Sunday school and the church which she loved as few love the church. She was closely affliated with and vitally interested in all phases of church work, as Mr. Williams said, "She not only wanted to do her part, but all that she could." To her pastor, she was ever devoted, seeking at all times their welfare and that of their families. Her motto was ever, "Others, Lord, Yes, Others," and if she ever had a selfish thought, it was never expressed before those who knew her most intimately.

She has gone now to wear her star-decked crown, won by her unselfish service to her fellowmen. She will be missed in the church, auixiliaries, and the community life at large, but most of all will she be missed in her home, where she was the center, the all. Home now seems desolate without her. Mamma is in everything, although she is not here. At times like these we can only lean more heavily upon the true God of Righteousness. Friends were loyal and helpful, but the real comfort must come from Him, in whom our dear departed trusted most implicitly. But life has its compensation, for we know it is well with her, she is not dead, only sleeping. Over in the Glory Land there is a star that has not been shining there now it has moved from earth to Heaven and seems saying to us each day, each hour, "Homts this way." Life truly has its compensations, for while it will be hard without her, the hope of Heaven will be sweeter. Mamma is there, we know, a beacon light to guide us there to live with her again. The loved hands that toiled for us here will be outstretched in welcome when we, too, shall join God's innumerable caravan journeying to the life beyond.

We, her children, rise up and call her blessed. Her love for us was abiding. Mama, your patient acceptance of life's joys, hardships and cares has pointed the way for us, so that we'll strive to so live that when life's brief span for us is finished, we'll come to you and the others. Having had you life was made richer and sweeter, loving us, you taught us to pray and God's great love was felt, losing you, Heaven will be more fair. We'll strive to become worthy monuments of thine that by our efforts we may deserve the rich heritage you left us. May we live, love, and serve God that by so doing we may render service to the Father and so make your example immortal.

"Mamma has come to the end of her journey,
Her sickness and sorrows are o'er,
She has entered the Beautiful City,
To dwell on the bright, golden, shore.

Dear Jesus, we pray that you'll help us
To tread in her footsteps so grand
And finally, dear loving Savior,
May we meet her in that Heavenly Land."

Ones Who Loved Her Devotedly.

Petty

Corissie Jane Petty departed this life March 31, 1932, aged 54 years 11 months and 18 days. She was the daughter of John S. and Elvin Veach Kennedy.

She was twice married, her first husband, Wiley Scott, died 12 years ago. She is survived by her last husband, J. R. Petty, one son, John Scott, two brothers, D. M. Kennedy, E. C. Kennedy, two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Florence Petty, and two grandchildren.

Early in life she professed faith in Christ, and joined Pleasant Grove Methodist Protestant church. She was faithful to her church and Sunday school. Her presence will be missed at church, but most in the home.

D. R. WILLIAMS.

Routh

We, the members of the Woman's auxiliary, First Methodist Protestant church, Winston-Salem, N. C., are called upon to record with sorrow the death of one of our beloved members, Mrs. M. E. Routh, who departed this life on November 4, 1931. She was an earnest and sincere worker in the Master's service, at all times being interested in every phase of the church work. Her presence will be missed not only in her home, church and community, but in the home for the aged where she so lovingly ministered. Therefore, be it resolved that the members of this auxiliary extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved husband, daughter and grandchildren; that a copy of this tribute be recorded in the minutes of our auxiliary and copies be sent the family, Missionary Record and Methodist Protestant Herald.

MRS. J. A. GWYN,
MRS. J. E. KIRK,
MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD,
Committee.

Noah

Mrs. Dena Daisy Noah, wife of Z. E. Noah, was born September 12, 1874, and died at the Duke Memorial hospital, Durham, N. C., on March 22, 1932. Her funeral service was held at the Graham Methodist Protestant church, where she had been a member since 1916 and her body was laid to rest in the Linwood cemetery. Rev. D. V. Pike, the pastor of the Friend's church and a next door neighbor for a number of years, had charge of the funeral services, and was assisted by the wrtier. A large host of friends and admirers came to pay their last respects as an evidence of the high esteem in which she was held by all.

Mrs. Noah was a good woman and a faithful member of the church. She had been in declining health for a number of years, which made it impossible for her to attend church nearly as often as she expressed a desire.

She was a good mother and reared a splendid family, all of which survive her with the exception of one daughter who preceded her to glory a few years ago. The oldest son, Clarence, and the only living daughter live in Raleigh. The other son, Dalise, lives in Landis, N. C.

Brother Noah has had the companionship of a good woman for all these years and he will not soon accustom himself to living without her. Christian folks, this good man needs our prayers and Christian sympathy.

THE VALUE OF THRIFT

By GRENVILLE KLEISER

THRIFT is the enemy of debt.

THRIFT promotes peace of mind, personal comfort, and the good will of the community in which one lives.

THRIFT, which implies habits of economy, safeguards one against self-indulgence, misery, poverty, and failure.

THRIFT brings increased happiness to oneself and family and adds to the real wealth of one's country.

THRIFT induces one to save systematically and intelligently, so that each succeeding day finds one better off than before.

THRIFT is a wise provision for possible emergencies, times of illness or disaster, and a sure protection for old age.

THRIFT is the basis of every large fortune.

THRIFT gives one a gratifying sense of self-respect and progress, and leads steadily and surely to prosperity and happiness.

THRIFT is evidence of practical common sense, sound judgment, and wise prudence, because it is willing to make present sacrifice for future competence.

THRIFT lifts one out of the large class of men who spend all they make, have nothing for the future, and are self-elected victims of daily fear and uncertainty.

THRIFT means care and wisdom in the management of one's resources.

THRIFT develops patient self-denial, so vital to greatness of character.

MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING

If I knew you
And you knew me,
I'm sure that we
Would quite agree.

Your seeming faults
Would disappear,
If I saw you
Transparent clear.

And on your part,
You'd soon forget,
The faults in me,
You now regret.

No ugly traits
Would either see,
If I knew you,
And you knew me.

A BETTER WORLD AND WISE

Do you wish the world were better?
Let me tell you what to do:
Set a watch upon your actions,
Keep them always straight and true,
Rid your mind of selfish motives,
Let your thoughts be clean and high,
You can make a little Eden
Of the sphere you occupy.

Do you wish the world were wiser?
Well, suppose you make a start
By accumulating wisdom
In the scrapbook of your heart.
Do not waste one page on folly,
Live to learn and learn to live;
If you want to give men knowledge
You must get it ere you give.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

C. E. SUBSCRIPTION CONTEST

Sometime ago I announced the fact that I was in a contest in the selling of subscriptions to the Christian Endeavor World, and that the winner of this contest gets a trip to the Holy Land free. The first half of this campaign is over, and I am glad to announce that I, with the help of others, have been winning so far and am now Official Campaigner for this state. The campaign will continue until June 15 when the trip abroad will be given to the five winners of the five respective divisions of the United States. May I say to those who have helped me so far, "Thank you." You have spent your money well in your own interest, but it has helped me also.

If anyone wishes to help me in the last half of this contest by subscribing for the C. E. World, I shall appreciate it very highly. To put this paper in the homes of our people is a Christian work that is worth while; that is the greatest reason for my being in the contest. However, the trip would do me lots of good and I want to win. Will you help me? If you care to subscribe send your fee of two dollars to me and indicate whether it is a new or renewal subscription. Please make all checks to me in order that I may deposit the money here and send the money on for several subscriptions in one check. If you had rather, send the order direct to the C. E. World office and request that it be registered to my credit. Let's be the winning state in this division and we'll talk about the trip abroad later.

That Fateful Tree

In Eden's garden grew a tree
With wondrous power of destiny:
Its fruit was fair and very sweet,
But death to him who dared to eat.

That fateful tree is seen today
In every land, by every way;
It has not lost its fatal power,
As men find out from hour to hour.

All men should know and then beware
The tree that holds a deadly snare:
It may be known by one sure mark—
Its perfumed flowers and scented bark.

The tree is called by many names;
Whate'er its name, it always shames:
The thing to do is pass around
And keep your feet on hallowed ground.

Its poisoned breath fills all the air
And leaves no safety anywhere:
Its good is bad, its way deceit;
Avoid, pass by, taste not its sweet!

In Justice to St. Paul

We publish this week an article entitled "The Things That Are Above." It was written by a frequent and esteemed contributor and the ethical teaching is fine. We feel called upon, however, to protest against what we deem a misrepresentation of St. Paul in his teaching regarding the resurrection. The charge is made that Paul is not consistent with himself in his teaching regarding this subject. He is made to apologize for his early teaching, asking his brethren to forget what he had said in prediction of resurrection events in First Thessalonians. Our brother would scarcely have taken that liberty had he carefully noted the significance of these words in First Thessalonians 4:15: "For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord." Would Paul ask the brethren to forget what Jesus had told him? Hardly. He could never regard the communication Jesus had made to him regarding the resurrection as false or worthless or having only a theoretical value. There was profound comfort in it. "Wherefore," said he, "comfort one another with these words."

Paul wrote regarding the resurrection to the Corinthians, the Thessalonians, and the Colossians. It has been charged before that Paul was not in accord with himself in all his teaching concerning the resurrection. But we fail to find any contradictions in his discourses on this subject. His purpose differs from case to case, and that accounts for diversity of treatment. Would such a man writing on such a theme write carelessly so that he must next year repudiate what he wrote this year? It is unbelievable.

There is no reason to doubt that Paul to the end of his life believed in the bodily resurrection. He did not teach, however, that the new bodies are to be composed of the identical elements that composed the old. He makes a distinction between a "natural body" and a "spiritual body." With Paul's conception he could have joined in reciting the Creed. Many today say, "I believe in the resurrection of the body," meaning the taking on of a new body and not the taking on of the old. Jesus took on his former body in His resurrection, but his body had never been defiled by sin and did not see corruption. It is beyond our knowledge how God will clothe us with new bodies, but we can believe that He will without knowing how. The hope of a resurrection is a priceless hope. The body is a great equipment. It is through the body that our minds communicate with other human minds. Poor is the man who has lost his hearing. Very poor is he who has lost his sight. Bankrupt is he who has lost his entire body: hopelessly bankrupt would he be if he did not believe in a resurrection.

We do not see the wisdom of those Christian teachers who in their effort to establish Christianity begin by impeaching the reliability of the chief historic witnesses to Christianity. They are sawing off the limb they are sitting on.

—The veterans of the World War in this country are becoming eager for the stipend promised them by the Federal Government. It is not so much a question as to what course is best for the Government as what is best for the ex-soldiers. They were paid little enough for what they endured, and if they now need what is coming to them it should be paid to them without delay. The Government would as well owe the bond-holders as to owe the soldiers.

—"Silas" calls attention to an important matter. The office of steward in the church is a very responsible one. No one has a right to accept the office as a sinecure. What a vast difference between a good steward and an inefficient one. How can an army get along without the commissariat? The stewards in the church can largely determine whether the religious program of the church will succeed or fail. Good stewards are sympathetic towards both the pastor and the church members. They can solicit contributions in such a way as to make the people glad to give.

THE THINGS THAT ARE ABOVE

By LUTHER K. LONG

There are two senses in which a man is supposed to be dead:

1. He is dead in trespasses and in sins. That is, through sin he has alienated himself from God, he has departed from the Father's house. Separation from God is death.

2. The repentant sinner is dead to sin—he has been crucified with Christ. He has entered into such sympathetic relations with Christ as to have suffered death on a cross. The sinner has suffered for his own sins, and he has entered into grateful appreciation of the sufferings and death of Jesus for the sins of the whole world. He died with Christ.

Jesus rose again. Paul teaches that believers are raised with Jesus through faith in the working of God, who raised Him from the dead. The believer is already risen together with Christ.

This is Paul's most distinctive and most valuable teaching concerning the resurrection.

Paul had other views about the resurrection in the early part of his ministry. The disciples often misunderstood and misinterpreted Jesus when He was still with them. It is not strange that Paul should have reached and expressed more correct views in the letter to the Colossians—written in his late ministry—than in his first letter to the church at Thessalonica—the earliest book of the New Testament.

In First Thessalonians Paul had a very definite program:

"For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also that are fallen asleep in Jesus will God bring with Him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we that are alive, that are left unto the coming of the Lord, shall in no wise precede them that are fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven, with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we that are alive, that are left, shall together with them be caught up in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

The returning Christ will come with a shout, the dead in Christ will rise, Paul and other living believers will join them in the air, and be ever with the Lord. Quite a different program, this, from his teaching in the letter to the Colossian church—that we are already risen together with the Lord.

When Martha spoke to Jesus concerning her brother, who had died, Jesus said to her: "Thy brother shall rise again. Martha saith unto Him: I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." That was the idea, "resurrection at the last day," a far-away indefinite time. The thought of Jesus is different. "Jesus saith unto her: I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die." Here is Jesus' contribution to the subject. He is the resurrection, He is the life, the dead are in Him and live in Him. Martha evidently grasps his idea and shifts to His position; for in response to His question, "Believest thou this? She saith unto Him, Yea, Lord; I have believed that Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

In the so-called Apostle's Creed is expressed belief in the resurrection of the body. Though the Apostles never saw that Creed, and had nothing directly to do with its formation, many Christians have by it been confirmed in the belief that the particles of the body one dies possessed of will somehow be gathered together and caught up in the air to be forever with the Lord.

Paul never saw that spectacular return of the Lord. He died and hundreds of generations of Christians have since died, without seeing Jesus descending from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God!

If Paul were here now, I imagine he might say: "Dear brethren: Many thanks for the interest you have in the obscure things I have written, but kindly forget the apocalyptic visions in those early letters. My mature thought is expressed in the Colossian letter: If then, ye were raised together with Christ, seek the things that are above."

What are the things that are above? Each of us knows very well, in a way, what they are—the higher things, the finer things, the things most worth while. To be more specific:

As between two friends, they are truth, fairneses, kindness, justice, faithfulness.

In the family, they are love, loyalty, service, honesty, discipline, considerateness.

In the church, they are a good spirit, co-operation, friendliness, devotion to a common Master and the things He wants done.

In the affairs of life in the community and in the world, they are industry, dependableness, truthfulness, an honest and courageous give-and-take in the practical problems of the days as they come and go.

In one's own personal life, they are honesty, sincerity, intelligence, self-respect based on character. It isn't piousness that counts, but genuineness of spirit. In Col. 3:12-17, Paul gathers together some of the qualities the Christian is to put on.

How may the Christian get these things?

Jesus said, "Ask, and ye shall receive; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

Wisdom, personified in Proverbs, says:

"Yea, if thou cry after discernment,
And lift up thy voice for understanding;
If thou seek her as silver,
And search for her as for hid treasures;
Then shalt thou understand the fear of Jehovah,
And find the knowledge of God."

Seek by Bible study, by prayer, by conversation with wiser people, by worship and fellowship in God's house, by participation in the great enterprises looking toward the establishing of the Kingdom of God in the world.

—Somewhere in each one of us is the power by which great things are done. It is the problem of each individual to find the work that will release his greatest force. If we but look, each day opens another lane to achievement, but we must have the courage, the enthusiasm and the willingness to follow it.—Western Electric News.

A SERIOUS MATTER

BROTHER McCULLOCH:

We often hear it said that a house-going pastor will make a church-going people. That may be true; but I would like to know how our rural pastors are to be house-going pastors unless they receive enough of their salaries to bear the expense of going into the homes of the people.

Many of our charges will not adopt any financial system, and many of the stewards never make any effort to collect anything until the close of the year. They have let the pastor get along the best he could. Of course, it does not cost anything to run a car, and provide the necessities of life for his family.

The average pastor is willing to suffer the hardships of life with his people, but when he sees that much of his financial embarrassment is due to the indifference of the people, especially the stewards, then it becomes a different matter. Why do churches elect men to the office of steward, when they know those very men will take no particular interest in that work?

We hear much now about the depression, but this matter I am speaking of is not the product of the present depression—it has existed ever since I have been connected with the church—twenty-five years.

The pastor is expected to visit the sick, bury the dead and make diligent search for the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and yet few members ever ask him if he needs anything. He is expected to do his duty in the face of financial embarrassment that almost breaks his heart.

I know a man who, just a few years ago, paid twelve dollars a year to his church, and smoked sixty dollars worth of cigarettes a year. If many of our laymen can provide for these luxuries and other things they want, they can make possible a better financial support of our pastors. Until they do this they should not complain that their pastor does not do his duty.

When we come to the close of this year and elect officers for 1933, some one be sure to nominate "the old board," because many of the old board have done nothing, "and the people love to have it so."

SILAS.

ANTON LANG

Dr. A. J. Bucher of Cincinnati, Ohio, editor of Der Christliche Apologete, told this story:

When Anton Lang, the "Christus" of the Oberammergau Passion Play, visited Cincinnati, he was the dinner guest of the German societies. The toastmaster had such bad taste as to address Herr Lang as "Herr Christ," and to enlarge on what a wonderful thing it would be if he should be able, like Christ at Cana, to turn the water into wine, or even beer. The crowd cheered, but Mr. Lang showed signs of displeasure. He rose and remarked with dignity that he was not the Christ, nothing more than his pale shadow. "Furthermore," he said, with emphasis, "if I were Christ and had the power you speak of I would not use it in that way. I would obey the law," and reaching across the table he took Doctor Bucher's hand, saying, "And I know that there is one here who agrees with what I say."—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

RELIGIOUS EXPERIENCE

Satan will give Christians all the trouble he can. He is always going about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. We find, Rev. 12:10, For the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night. Some peoeple never doubt their conversion, others doubt, and therefore fear they were mistaken when they professed to be converted. Satan tells the Christian if he really was converted he would be happy all the time, and the Christian knows he is not happy all the time, therefore he fears he was mistaken about the matter. We are prone to judge our religion by our feelings. When we feel happy we are satisfied; when we do not feel happy we fear we are not Christians. David says in Ps. 86:4, "Rejoice the Soul of thy Servant." Then he had no joy, and was troubled because he had it not. At the 16th verse he says, "O turn unto me, and have mercy upon me." It seems that God had turned his face away from David.

The Rev. A. B. Earle gives his religious experiences as follows: The devil hindered me so long. He said to me, if you had given yourself to Jesus right, you would have been a happy man. I said, I suppose that is so, and took it all back. I went through a hundred consecrations and the first one was just as good as the last one. The devil had advantage in another thing; he said, you have not given yourself to Jesus from a right motive: I said, if I should give a hungry man a loaf of bread, and the devil should tell me, you did not give that loaf of bread from a pure motive, I would not run after the man and say, friend, you will have to give me back that loaf of bread, for I don't think I gave it to you from a pure motive. I said, the hungry man shall have the bread whatever the motive. Then the devil said, you are a hypocrite, you have no feeling. Very well, I said, I will go without feeling, Jesus shall have me any way.

G. F. Millaway.

UNITED CHURCH

The term United Church does not mean much except that some body of Christians have united in closer fellowship, unless something more definite is said about the nature of the union. In December a union was consummated of eleven Protestant groups which are independent of any mission in the Philippine Islands, being principally the results of splits and sub-splits from mission churches about fifteen years ago. Henceforth this group will be known as the United Evangelical Church in the Philippine Islands. There are about 12,500 communicants in the new church. It is to be hoped that they are all so united that there may be no more splits and sub-splits among them, but this result may not materialize, as they have the habit of splitting.—Christian Sun.

—Census figures just published at Simla show that India now has a total population of 350,353,000. The Hindus increased 10 per cent in the last 10 years and now number 238,330,000, while the Moslems increased 13.1 per cent during the same period, now numbering 77,743,000. Sikhs increased 33 per cent; Jaines, two; Buddhists, eight, and Parsee, two.—Pathfinder.

PARDONED

During the Civil War in the United States, President Lincoln was a busy man. He had to marshal an army of more than two million men, to raise three thousand million dollars, to supervise the construction of a navy, and also to attend to the government of the country. But in spite of all this he was ever ready to listen to a story of distress, and make others happy if it lay within his power to do so. On one occasion while very busy he heard a child's cry in the corridor outside his room; he inquired at once what it was, and was told that a woman with a child has been waiting for him.

"Go at once and bring her to me," he said. The poor woman came pleading for the pardon of her husband, who was condemned to be shot for desertion.

Hastily scribbling on a piece of paper the sought-for order he handed it to the woman, saying, "That will secure your husband's release."

Sobbing with gratitude the poor woman passed out of the President's room, followed by his man-servant. "It was for the child's sake, ma'am, that the President did it. You must thank the baby."

And the servant, who well knew the kind and fatherly heart of Abraham Lincoln, spoke the truth. The deserter was forgiven for somebody else's sake.

Have you ever read something like that in the Bible? Turn to I John 2:12:—"I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for His Name's sake." For the sake of whose Name? Oh! the Name of Jesus. And to whom is this message sent? To all who trust in Him. Who unable to save themselves turn to Him alone. For Jesus' sake their sins are pardoned and they are set free.—J. T. M., in Faithful Words.

"MAKE IT A MATTER OF PRAYER"

A good, old English farmer had become the happy inventor of an improved plow. Queen Victoria, on seeing the new invention, inquired of the farmer how he thought of it, whereupon he replied:

"Well, your majesty, I had it in my head for a long time before it would come straight. I saw what was wanted plain enough, but I couldn't make out how to get at it. So at last I made it a matter of prayer; and one morning the whole thing came into my mind like a flash."

"Why, Mr. Smith," interrupted his royal listener, "do you pray about your plows?"

"Why, your majesty, why shouldn't I? My Father in Heaven, He knew I was in trouble about it, and why shouldn't I go and tell Him? I mind of one of my boys when he was a teeny little mite. I bought him a whip, and very pleased he was with it. Well, he came to me one day crying as if his little heart would break. He'd broken the whip, and he brought it to me. So I took him on my knee, and I wiped his tears, and I kissed him and comforted him. 'Now, don't cry, my boy,' says I. 'I'll mend the whip, I will, so that it'll crack as loud as ever.' Well, now, don't you think our Father in Heaven cares as much for me as I for my boy? My plow didn't much matter to Him, but I know quite well my trouble did."—Publisher Unknown.

OPTIMISM

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Sympathy Extended

We learn through the HERALD that Brother C. H. Whitaker has just suffered the loss by death of a sister, Mrs. Wilson Cary Whitaker. Brother Joel B. Trogdon is passing through a similar sorrow in the recent death of his brother, Mr. I. L. Trogdon. We extend sympathy to these brethren, and pray that the God of all comfort may comfort their hearts.

Dr. Andrews

We were distressed to learn through the HERALD of last week that Dr. Andrews has not been getting on so well since his return to his home in Charlotte. A later report indicates that he is better. We are glad of this good news. Our hope and prayer is that he may be entirely well soon.

Randleman Charge

April 24. Two churches of this charge were visited on this date—Lebanon and New Salem, the former in the morning and the latter in an afternoon service. We were heard at both places by congregations that were gratifyingly large, and the responses given to our efforts are pleasing and helpful. This was our first visit to New Salem. We found the church and church grounds well kept, and an appropriate church marker located on the side of the grounds where the two highways meet. The other church is well kept, also, and commands a position of eminence from the top of the hill where it is located. Deep River flows at the foot of the hill, and the town of Randleman lies in view in all directions. Each of these churches has three Honor Roll recognitions for last year. We bespeak for them another good record this year. Pastor Williams is serving his fiourth year on this charge. He is diligent in his labors and holds the esteem and confidence of his people. JOASH DAY will be observed at each of the four churches on the charge. We enjoyed the day with these churches, and Brother Williams and his family have our thanks for the hospitality of their home.

Asheville

April 6.—Our appointment with this church was met on this date at 7:30. We worshiped in the Wednesday night prayer service, which was in charge of Brother E. C. Faucett. Brother and Sister Faucett are very faithful in their attendance upon the services of this church, and very active and helpful in the work, though they hold their membership in the Friends Church. At the conclusion of the prayer service we held quarterly conference, combining the first and second, as the first had not been held. The usual reports were made, and the church was found to be in very good condition, considering the fact that there has been no pastor here for a year and a half. The Sunday School, C. E. Societies, and Auxiliary are all functioning, and preaching services are held regularly Sunday mornings, and also the mid-week service Wednesday night. Speakers from the city Evangelistic club, for the most part, hold the morning service. A new heating plant has recently been installed in the church. The parsonage needs repairs within and without, and has been unoccupied for some time. We trust that these needed repairs may be made in the near future. We are negotiating now for pastoral supply for the summer, and hope to make definite announcements soon. This will no doubt give a new impetus to the work. Our visit was limited, but enjoyed. We are indebted to "The McIntires" for entertainment at dinner Wednesday, and to Brother and Sister J. S. Williams for the hospitality of their home during the night.

We regretted not to visit Weaverville and Democrat charges while on this visit, but could not for lack of time. We hope to be on these charges at a later date during the year.

Interesting! Pleasing! Encouraging!

"We are observing JOASH DAY Sunday, April 24. Announcements will be made at each service at all three churches until April 24, when we believe we will have a great day."—Rev. J. D. Cranford.

"The third Sunday in April will be JOASH DAY at Shiloh (Shiloh charge). We are looking forward to a good day and a large offering."—HERALD of last week.

"We are planning to observe JOASH DAY on the fourth Sunday in this month, at the 11 o'clock service. Let us work and pray that this service may be a success."—Belmont, Mt. Hermon Charge.

Today's mail brings the following: "We are to observe JOASH DAY at Pleasant Hill Sunday morning."—C. B. Way.

"Two churches have observed JOASH DAY with good results. The others will do so at next appointments."—R. A. Hunter.

Brother Edw. Suits, pastor of Randolph charge, reports by phone that JOASH was observed at Gray's Chapel and Shiloh churches last Sunday, with the following results: Gray's Chapel, $14.50; Shiloh, $38.50. Total, $52.80. At this rate, an average of $26.40—JOASH, observed in our 232 churches, would bring in for Kingdom purposes, $6,124.80. And this is not a big average. One pastor told me last week that his church was taking hold of this undertaking very earnestly, and that they hoped to raise several hundred dollars. We'll watch that church! JOASH IS MARCHING ON!

Other Charges

Since our report of last week the following charges have signified their purpose to observe JOASH DAY; Burlington First, Saxapahaw, Kernersville (in part) Vance (in part) Asheville. The pastors of these charges, in the order named, are Paschall, Whitehead, Broome, and Braxton. This makes 64 of our 87 charges that have indicated their purpose to observe this Day. We DO HOPE that the remaining 23 may yet be counted in. WHY NOT 100 PER CENT?

Please Send It In

It is an easy matter to wait until more money is in hand before remitting to Dr. Brown. By doing that a good deal of money may reach Dr. Straughn after April 30, when his books for the fiscal year have been closed. And besides, these small amounts, going in regularly from many sources, make aggregates that help materially and timely to meet the pressing needs of the church. Let us urge, then, that pastors and church treasurers see to it that all budget money is sent promptly to Dr. George R. Brown, Treasurer.

Branch Meeting

I regret not to be at this meeting, and to share the fellowship of this group of earnest workers, and the pastors and laymen who will be present. But it seems impracticable for me to attend. I trust that reports may be encouraging, if not all that could be wished, and that the spirit of optimism and consecration may be much in evidence. The women of the conference are a great bulwark to the work. May God's blessings rest richly upon them, both in the Branch meeting, and when they go back home to take up anew the work of another year.

Appointments

April 16.—West Forsyth, in quarterly conference, Saturday at Stony Knoll. Pleasant Hill church Sunday morning.

April 17.—South Winston at night.

April 23.—Rally of THIRD DISTRICT, at Mt. Hermon Church.

April 24.—Calvary, in Anniversary service.

April 25.—Bess Chapel, in meeting of Western Pastors' Federation.

May 1.—Midway-Shady Grove.

May 18.—Columbus, in General Conference.

''God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us.''

Fraternally yours,

S. W. Taylor.

EVERY DAY A JUDGMENT DAY

''They had done it as the Lord had commanded''—(Exod. 39:43.)

Happy is the man who is not afraid of submitting his work to the closest scrutiny. For all unconsciously it may be, yet very certainly, life is constantly passing under review. Every day is a judgment day; and only he who so lives and works as to be humbly fearless of the Great Tribunal is worthily fulfilling his calling. These workers in the Tabernacle were of this sort. Day by day they had carefully carried out the Divine direction concerning all that was committed to them, so that when he who carried in his heart the pattern disclosed to him in the Mount came to examine their work, even his high ideals were satisfied. Nor is it recorded without significance that he thereupon ''blessed them.''

The man who sets the Lord always before him is lifted by his own high purpose beyond all that is mean and worthless. The remembrance that everything is to pass under His judgment, strangely, but surely, quickens every power of discernment so that it becomes an instinct to resist and reject anything less than the best. ''The utmost for the Highest'' becomes an abiding inspiration to him; while the Lord's approval and commendation far outweigh all the labor and cost which such entire thoroughness demands.—Publisher Unknown.

THE CURE FOR WEARINESS

''That tired feeling'' often creeps over the weary servant of God as he finds himself encompassed with a great cloud of opposition and discouragement. His own shortcomings, the influence of some who are personally unfriendly and whose misrepresentations sometimes amount to real persecution, the sight of a sin-mad world rushing wildly to destruction, the failures of others in whom he had full confidence, a failure on the part of others to appreciate or to respond to his well-meant efforts to magnify the Lord and to uplift the people, and many other causes bring a weariness to the flesh. Like Elijah he feels that he might as well quit.

Paul's advice to all such would be: ''Consider Him that endured such contradiction of sinners against Himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds'' (Heb. 12:3). In His endurance Jesus went to the limit, drank from the cup of suffering the bitterest dregs that was ever the lot of men to partake, passed through Gethsemane and Golgotha, and came out more than conqueror over every foe. He conquered death, overcame the severest contradiction of sinners, and led the way into the victorious life through which we also may through the grace of God become ''more than conquerors through Him that loved us.'' When tempted to become ''wearied and faint in your mind,'' look to Him who led the way and ''follow His steps.'' ''And let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.''—Gospel Herald (Scottdale).

A BUSINESS BOY

A Chicago stationer has a new office boy who is ''different.'' The lad entered the store early in the morning when the man was opening his mail. The latter glanced up and went on reading without speaking.

After three minutes the boy said,

''Excuse me—but I'm in a hurry!''

''What do you want?'' he asked.

''A job!''

''You do? Well,'' snorted the man of business, ''why are you in such a hurry?''

''Got to hurry,'' replied the boy. ''Left school yesterday to go to work, and haven't struck anything yet. I can waste no time. If you've nothing for me, say so, and I'll go elsewhere. The only place where I can stop long is where they pay me for it.''

''When can you come?'' asked the surprised stationer.

''Don't have to come,'' was the reply, ''I am here now.''—Publisher Unknown.

OUR STORY PAGE

DANNY'S DOBBIN

Danny Wright was a quaint old man who lived in a little, one-story house near the village. He was alone except for the companionship of his old, gray horse, Dobbin, by whose faithful service he raised and marketed vegetables from his few acres of land.

He was very kind to old Dobbin, and to us boys as well; we used to spend many hours in his company, and sometimes he let us ride on old Dobbin's back in the pasture.

Though Dobbin was faithful and willing with Danny Wright, he would not always obey us lads.

One day we were in the pasture, having gotten the consent of Danny, taking turns riding old Dobbin.

When Ben Peter's turn came Dobbin must have grown tired of the fun, for he refused to go, though we urged, shouted, whistled, clapped our hands, and flourished our arms, all the while commanding: "Go, Dobbin, go!" while Ben kept kicking him in the ribs.

Perhaps vexed at such treatment, Dobbin started to go—and go he did—at full speed, through the meadow, out of the gate, down the lane—with all the boys chasing and shouting close at his heels, enjoying the fun.

When Danny saw the chase, he, too, followed far in the rear, panting and shouting: "Whoa—whoa! Pull the lines—pull the lines!"—for old Dobbin was going straight for the brook, which was swollen by recent rains.

Seeing the danger we all began shouting at the top of our voices: "Whoa—whoa, Dobbin, whoa!"

He stopped at last, suddenly, at the brink of the stream. Putting his head down, he began to drink complacently, while Ben shot off his back and fell sprawling, splashing into the stream.

Ben managed to scramble to his feet and to the bank without help. He was not much hurt, but badly frightened, and a pretty picture he looked, I can tell you.

"Why didn't you stop him?" asked Danny Wright as soon as he could get his breath, for we were all panting from the chase and the excitement; yet in spite of poor Ben's predicament, we had our laugh at the comical sight.

Ben had nothing to say; he was too upset by the affair just then.

"Boys," said Danny as we trudged homeward, "you could make him go, but you couldn't make him stop—and do you take heed as you go through life, not to begin anything you can't stop, for, like the ride on Dobbin, once you start going down hill there is no tellin' where you'll land. So mind you well about your habits, and the company you keep, or you may be shot into a deeper stream than was Ben, here."

It is a long time since we were boys together and enjoyed our visit with Danny Wright and our rides on old Dobbin's back, and I regret to say that not all the boys profited by Ben's experience and Danny's counsel—yet whenever I see a youth spending his time in a wrong way or doing a wrong act, I always recall the old man's words:

"It is easier to start than to stop"—and sometimes I notice how some one goes from bad to worse, I think: "Take care! for I am afraid you are headed down hill on Danny Wright's old gray Dobbin."—A. K. L., in Junior Joys.

HOW BUFF SAVED CAROLYN

"What can I do, muvver?" Carolyn leaned against mother's chair and fretted.

Mother was so busy trying to finish a dress for Mabel that she really couldn't stop to amuse Carolyn.

"I'll tell you," she said; "suppose you and Buff have your luncheon out in the yard."

The yard sloped down toward the meadow where a little brook went singing along. Mother took out a little table and seat and then some milk and bread and crackers.

"There," she said, "now you can have a lovely time out here in the fresh air, and Buff will be your company." She laid her hand on Buff's collar, saying, "Buff, you must stay here and watch Carolyn. Don't let anything happen to her."

Buff didn't say a bark. His honest brown eyes looked straight into mother's as much as to say, "You can trust me," and mother patted him and hurried back to her work.

Mother looked out every few minutes to see that things were all right, and then the telephone rang and some one wanted to talk to her, and the minutes flew by. When mother could leave she ran to the door. Carolyn was not at the table. She had trotted on her short legs almost down to the brook, and she stood still looking frightened.

And what was the matter with Buff? He seemed to be dancing around, barking furiously, as if he were trying to catch something. Mother gave one look and then ran as fast as she could. There stood Baby Carolyn too frightened to move, and only a little distance away was a large snake lifting its head in the grass and trying to strike Buff. Buff jumped forward and backward, barking with each move.

Mother's heart fairly stood still with fear, but she darted forward and caught up Carolyn and flew back to the house, sobbing out, "Dear Father, thank You for saving my baby!" As she closed the door, leaving little Carolyn safe, she cried again, "Lord, help me to save brave Buff!" Instantly the thought came to her of a big stone at the end of the porch, and she ran and lifted it and carried it down to the meadow, lifted it a moment and then crashed it down on the head of the snake.

When the boys and Mabel came home from school an hour later they found their mother sitting holding Carolyn, happy and thankful but too weak to walk about much, and when they heard the story they raced down to the brook to find the snake, dead, but still wriggling. How they patted Buff and called him a brave dog for keeping the snake away from Carolyn! They ran back to the house to hear the story all over again, and sturdy Sam said, "Buff was a hero all right and so were you too, mother."

"And God helped us both," and mother smiled happily up at her children.—Janice Brown in Apples of Gold.

"LOOK UP AND AIM HIGH"

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

When I was in Ireland a few months ago, I came across a paper, which, in large type, asked the question, "Do you know your A. B. C.?" Below was written the following:

A is the Ale that will soften the brain,
B is the Bottle, be warned and abstain.
C is the Culprit, to jail he may go!
D is the Drink that has brought him so low.
E is the Earning, how spent you may guess.
F is the Family deep in distress.
G is the Gout that will tease him one day.
H is the Home that has gone to decay.
I is the Injury done to his friends.
J is the Jail where the drunkard may end.
K is the Kick that he gave to his wife.
M is the Money she wanted for bread.
N is the Nose that is awfully red.
O is the Outcast—when others have homes.
P is the Pauper who penniless roams.
Q is the Quarrel brought on by the drink.
R is the Ruin in which he must sink.
S is the Shame which must follow the Sin.
T is the Toppler, the way to begin.
U is the Uproar so dreadful to hear.
V is the Vice that we all have to fear.
W is the Wealth that soon flies away.
X is the eXpense of the drink every day.
Y is the Youth, e'er he drinks let him pause.
Z is our Zeal in the Young People's cause.

Don't you think that a fine Temperance A. B. C.? It made me say to myself, I will write an Alphabet for the boys and girls to whom I write letters. Here it is. I wonder how you will like it!

A is our Aim—look up and be true.
B is the Bible written for you.
C is what Jesus says to you, Come!
D is the Door which He has undone.
E is Eternal Life given by God.
F is the Friend who to Calvary trod.
G is the Glory one day we shall share.
H is the Happiness we have down here.
I is the Invitation we give to you.
J is for Jesus. He'll save you, too.
K is the King in Heaven above.
L is what He has for you—Love.
M is for Mother—let's give her a kiss.
N is the Good News we must not miss.
O is the Old Nature we have to destroy.
P is God's Prize for each girl and boy.
Q is the Question God puts to us all.
R is the Reply we must make to His call.
S is the Saviour who hears all we say,
T is the Time that is slipping away.
U is the Ultimate end of all things,
V is for Vice, which attacks even Kings.
W is the Work we must do while we may.
X is for Xmas, our Saviour's birthday.
Y is our Youth. At His feet be it laid.
Z is our Zeal to do as we're bade!

On my journeys in Ireland I heard a beautiful story of how the motto of the Golden Star Brigade of the Christian Herald had helped one little girl. She is grown-up now and is an officer in the Salvation Army. When she was small, she joined the Golden Star Brigade, and when her badge came to her, she read the Motto, "Look Up and Aim High," and she decided to make it her motto through all her life.

It was a great help to her in her every-day life when trials and temptations came; and they come to the smallest of us, don't they? There are days when we seem to have got out of bed the wrong way and nothing will go right, but if we remember to look up and remember who it is we can "look up" to, He does help us in a wonderful way. You remember how David said, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth" (Ps. 121:1, 2). He had learned to "look up and aim high."

Never chew your pills, boys and girls. We all have to do unpleasant things at some time or other. Do not dwell on them or try to dodge them, but look up and aim high. Swallow them quickly; do the unpleasant thing at once.

"I remember, in my boyhood," said a great preacher, "being told one day as our vessel sailed over the Atlantic, that if we looked out we could see the peak of Teneriffe. I was told the direction and I gazed at the horizon, and gazed at the horizon, and gazed again, but could see nothing. Then came one older than I and saw me searching. 'You are looking too low,' he said, and pointed up to the sky where I had never thought to look. Then I saw it, the lovely cone rose-tinted of the dawn fifteen thousand feet above the sea. My eyes were set on three thousand feet, not fifteen thousand!" If, boys and girls, we would win God's prizes we must aim high and look up, and remember to look high enough.

Do you know, I will tell you a secret. I have got written in my Bible—my every-day Bible—these words, "Remember every warrior of the Cross, even in the lowest ranks, has that distinction which the soldier counts most high "He is fighting under the eye of his general. Remember!" That is to remind me that God is watching me. You know there is a little verse in the Bible which says, "Thou God seest me." That little verse has been a great comfort to a great many people, for it is good, is it not, to know that wherever we are and whatever we are doing, God can see us and take care of us. And when temptation besets us, surely it will help us to resist if we remember God is watching us.

Do you know God says, "I am Alpha and Omega, the First and the Last" (Rev. 1:11)? God says He is not only the beginning of everything, but also the end. There can be nothing without Him, and we can do no good thing without Him. Alpha and Omega are the first and the last letters of the Greek Alphabet. I wonder if any of you are learning Greek? What a lot I have written to you about the Alphabet! Have you heard of the old saying, "We may know everything, but if we do not know Christ, we know nothing." Remember, boys and girls, that we are always on duty. A professing Christian once sold some bad hay to a certain Colonel who rebuked him sternly. The man whined, "I am a soldier, too." "You!" said the Colonel, "what kind of a soldier are you?" "I am a soldier of the Cross," was the reply. "That may be," was the Colonel's rejoinder, "but you have been on leave ever since I knew you!"

Oh, boys and girls, do be a recommendation for your Lord and Saviour. Look up and smile when things go wrong. I wonder if you have ever heard this?

If I knew the box where smiles were kept
No matter how large the key
Or how strong the bolt I would try so hard
It would open I know for me.
Then over the land and over the sea
I would scatter the smiles away
That the children's faces would hold them fast
For many and many a day.
If I knew a box that was large enough
To hold all the frowns I meet
I would like to gather them every one
From nursery school, and street.
Then folding them up I would pack them tight
And turning the monster key,
I would hire a giant to drop the box
In the depths of the deepest sea.

It was told of Sir Bartle Frere, a fine Christian nobleman, that one day his wife was unable to meet him when he was arriving home after a visit away, so she sent a servant. He was a new servant who had never yet seen his master, and he asked how he should know him. "Look for a tall man helping some one else," said Lady Frere; and sure enough the man found Sir Bartle helping an old infirm woman out of a third-class carriage.

"Look up and aim high" is a very fine motto. Perhaps there is some one reading this who wants to do noble things, but has not the power. Well, all the power for doing good comes from above. Some people imagine they can be good apart from the Lord Jesus Christ, but they never can. Oh, dear boys and girls, come to Him and ask Him to save you, and He will and He will give you the power to live a noble life.

A young artist was trying to copy Raphael's "Madonna and Child," one of the most beautiful pictures in all the world. He went to Florence and gazed and gazed on the picture. Then he brought his easel and as he watched day by day, his picture became a thing of beauty too. Now suppose that instead of only copying it, the spirit of Raphael could have come upon that young man. What a difference that would have made! Dear boys and girls, when we come to the Lord Jesus He gives us His Holy Spirit to help us to live up to all these wonderful ideals that we have. Come to Him now if you have never come and ask Him to give you His Holy Spirit.

There is a Danish fable about a spider which slipped down, by a single thread from one beam to a lower one. Then spun his web and grew fat with the flies he caught until one day he noticed the single thread that anchored him to the beam above. "What is the good of that?" he said, and in his pride he severed it with one bite. His whole web instantly collapsed and he fell down dead upon the floor beneath.

The Holy Spirit is like the silken thread which held up the spider's web. If in our day our whole life will be a failure, and will collapse as did the spider's web.—E. Goreham.

WHAT I WILL DO

I will start anew this morning
With a higher, fairer creed;
I will cease to stand complaining
Of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining
While my duty's call is clear;
I will waste no moment whining
And my heart shall know no fear.

I will look sometimes about me
For the things that merit praise;
I will search for hidden beauties
That elude the grumbler's gaze;
I will try to find contentment
In the paths that I must tread;
I will cease to have resentment
When another moves ahead.

I will not be swayed by envy
When my rival's strength is shown;
I will not deny his merit,
But I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty
Spread before me, rain or shine;
I will cease to preach your duty
And be more concerned with mine.

A MARK GUY PEARSE STORY

A new story of the beloved Mark Guy Pearse has recently been told.

Not many days before he died some repairs were being made in an adjoining flat, and his daughter was afraid the noise of hammering and banging would distress the patient in his weak state. She expressed her concern to her father.

"I hope the noise won't upset you," said she.

"No, my dear," was the grand old man's reply. "No, it's all right!" And then, with a flash of that unfailing humor of his, he added: "When one is getting close to the Promised Land one must expect a little trouble from the Hammerites and the Hittites!"—Publisher Unknown.

—Lindbergh seems to have endured heroically his great trial brought on by the stealing of his little boy. The ordeal has been made harder to endure by the many false reports set going. "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick." But the brave-hearted young man exhibited "pathetic emotions" when he realized recently that he had been deceived again. He has come to a situation that requires more courage than did his famous trip across the Atlantic.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

SPRING CHURCH CIRCUIT AUXILIARY

Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary met at the parsonage April 6. Seven active and one honorary member answered to the roll call.

The ladies discussed the Branch meeting and laid plans to attend. Since the meeting is nearby it is hoped that nearly all the members can attend at least one day. Delegates to represent the Auxiliary are Mesdames Rupert M. Robinson and William H. Neese; alternates are Mesdames H. E. Vassar and Leon Tucker.

A budget for next year was voted upon. Ways and means by which the treasury might be increased were discussed and it was decided to buy material ond make more aprons and dresses to be sold. The ladies have realized a nice sum from the sale of aprons and dresses. We are also using the Calendar Plan this year and expect a nice little sum from that.

The delegates were instructed to respond to the Thank-Offering roll-call with a thank offering. Since our Auxiliary is still young the amount this year is not as large as we would like for it to be.

Some time ago the pastor asked permission of the ladies to do some carpenter work in the cook-room. They told him to go ahead with as little expense as possible. As a result we now have a built-in kitchen cabinet, a corner-cupboard and a sink and one coat of paint has been put on the walls of the cook-room. The paint had been purchased sometime ago, so the only money the ladies had to pay out was $2.00 for lumber and hinges. The other lumber used was donated by Messrs. J. W. Crew, Sr., M. L. Crew, and Russell Jordan. The work was all done by the pastor except the painting. The pastor's family assisted in that. The ladies were much pleased with the work and expressed their thanks to Mr. Neese.

DUTIES OF SECRETARY OF LITERATURE

Necessary Qualifications

The Secretary of Literature, to be efficient, must love the coming of the Kingdom; must be willing to let many other matters take second place and concentrate on preparation for her work so she will be a bubbling fountain of information and a link between the church agencies and the members of the auxiliary.

General Duties

First of all, the Secretary of Literature should know the sources of supply of the various kinds of literature. (See list given below). She should write to these agencies asking for catalogues of their literature. In addition to these, she should send for catalogues from publishing houses of other denominations, and in them seek new and helpful suggestions. She should keep a scrap book for quick reference, putting in it every useful hint that she comes across in her religious or secular reading.

The wide-awake Secretary will keep in close touch with the whole work of the entire church through the excellent literature prepared by the church agencies. She should not only know what her own church is doing at home and abroad, but also what the great missionary movements of the world are accomplishing. In many newspapers and magazines are facts which throw light on the various lines of Christian work.

The Secretary will read religious and secular papers, magazines and books with a keener insight when she is seeking to know the relation between current happenings and the advancement of the Kingdom of God. History to her is the story of God's dealing with His children, and nations become great only as they lend themselves to the furtherance of His plans. To pass on to others this viewpoint is the important work of the Secretary of Literature.

Through the presentation of facts about all the work of the church, she will aid in the development of trained leaders—the most outstanding need of the church today. She can cultivate a love for church literature by using, first, some of the more attractive stories and gradually working up to the more serious textbooks.

Always the Secretary should keep in her mind that her office is to be filled—not held. She should not be satisfied with the year's work until at the close she has asked herself such questions as these: Is our auxiliary better prepared to pray intelligently for all the church causes? To give to them? To work for them?

Literature Table

The Secretary of Literature should make the literature table a center of interest at each monthly meeting. The plans and literature of every church agency shoud be presented.

Current numbers of the "Missionary Record" and the church papers should have a place on the table also, and subscriptions to them urged.

In addition to distributing literature to members of the church, an exhibit rack or table could be placed in the vestibule of the church, on which should be placed samples of free leaflets bearing upon the activities of the church agencies. Care should be exercised to keep the exhibit table free from propaganda leaflets of faddists, hobbyriders, and fanatics.

Year Book of Programs

The Year Book of Programs and leaflets from the Department of Women's Work should always be available with the monthly table literature for distribution on the subjects of the programs for the month. These programs are the greatest agency the auxiliary has for educating members in the work of the church and for the need of prayer and gifts for carrying it on.

Study Classes

When the period arrives for study classes in Home Missions, Foreign Missions, Stewardship, or any other subject, the Secretary of Literature should have available leaflets explaining the proposed courses, and should co-operate with the proper officials in organizing the study gorups, or classes.

She should be the agent for selling text books, leader's helps and other sale material used by the groups or classes. Inquiry should be made as to the probable requirements and orders should be sent for supplies well in advance of opening date of study periods.

The secretaries should not ask that text books and sale material be sent subject to return. The church agents buy material outright, and it is unfair to them to ask them to take back shopworn and out of date text books and other material.

The Secretary of Literature has a vital part in helping to promote the Home Mission and the Foreign Mission study classes.

Annual Canvass for the Missionary Record

The annual canvass by the Women's auxiliary for subscribers to the missionary magazine is the especial task of the Secretary of Literature. During that week every woman in the church should be urged to subscribe to it. The Secretary should plan for this canvass long in advance, giving it all the publicity possible in the church belletin, through pulpit announcements and in notices at Auxiliary meeting. Placing the Record in homes now counts in the Efficiency Standard and a blessing is brought to the homes where the Record is taken. This magazine represents the work of all the Boards, and the Secretary should stress the fact that the Record is essential in carrying out the Year Book programs, as it gives the newest information from the missionaries themselves concerning both the home and foreign fields.

Libraries

It is desirable that every Auxiliary have a missionary library of its own. The Secretary of Literature should foster such a collection of books, magazines or pamphlets. Two or three volumes added each year to the Home and Foreign Mission Study books, which every Auxiliary can have as a foundation, will soon give a collection of missionary literature which will prove invaluable to the members of the Auxiliary when rightly used.

The Auxiliary would do well to vote out of the Auxiliary contingent fund, a small monthly literature allowance. Seventy-five cents a month would provide material, which in time would grow into a workable missionary library.

Branch Secretary

The duty of first importance to the Branch Secretary of Literature is to see that each local Auxiliary has a Secretary of Literature.

The Branch Secretary should correspond frequently with the local Secretaries of Literature and aid them in the following:

(a) To secure the use of the Year Book of Programs in the local Auxiliary and subscriptions to the literature;

(b) To secure helpful articles, leaflets, books for circulation in their Auxiliary;

(c) To organize Home and Foreign Mission study classes;

(d) To plan for increasing the circulation of the Missionary Record and the church paper in the local church.

The Branch Secretary should make a special report comparing the local Auxiliaries in regard to the number of subscribers to the Record. She should encourage the annual canvasses of the publications.

The Branch Secretary of Literature should always attend Branch meetings and have an adequate and interesting supply of literature for circulation.

She should always be given at least ten or fifteen minutes of the first session to tell what the literature table contains. This account should be bright, spicy and inspiring to be effectual.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our second quarterly conference was held on last Saturday at the Belmont church. Considering the heavy rain that fell about all afternoon, the different churches were well represented. The charge is considering, through a special committee, securing a parsonage, either to build or rent.

There will be a district rally held at Mt. Hermon church April 23. Dr. Taylor and other prominent persons will be present to take part in the program.

Draper.—We are still working for the advancement of God's kingdom. We are very fortunate indeed to have Rev. H. W. Bell, of Thomasville, to conduct our revival. The revival has been going on for a week and we are having a real good meeting, assisted by Rev. R. L. Vickery, pastor of our Methodist Protestant church.

The Christian Endeavor has been reorganized and started in a big headway. Hoping that it will increase in number.

We are also planning to observe Joash Day and hoping that a number will respond to that.

Pray for the unbuilding of God's kingdom and our church. REPORTER.

◆

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—April 10 our teacher asked us to keep out of sin. He said the way to do this was "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." God alone can help us overcome temptations. When the tempter comes to us we may resist it if we say some scripture or we must look to God for help to overcome it.

The main thought our teacher left with us was "Keep clean." We must keep our hearts, souls and minds free from sin. God is all that we need in order to keep ourselves clean. Sin may look good to the eye as the forbidden fruit looked good to Adam and Eve. We must look to God that we may not be led away by the evil one.

We were glad to have a large number present today. We had 51, some of whom were visitors. We were very glad to see one of our faithful members back with us today.

We hope as we grow in number that we may also grow in spirit. May our entire class keep free from all sin. We hope the Lord will help us in our walks of life.

Spring Church Charge.—Lebanon and Pleasant Hill each had an interesting Easter service. Spring church had special music, and a sermon appropriate to the occasion. Each service was well attended.

The circuit auxiliary met last week at the parsonage with the president, Mrs. C. E. Dimick, presiding.

The recent quarterly conference was held at Spring church. Each church was represented. J. J. Massey and Clifton Cook are nominees for delegate to the ensuing Annual Conference.

Joash Day has been observed at Pleasant Hill and Spring church. Lebanon will observe the day next Sunday.

The writer has just completed two church markers, one for Lebanon and one for Spring church. These will be erected at conspicuous places on the highway between Roanoke Rapids and Pleasant Hill.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. D. C. Stallings Thursday afternoon, April 7.

The meeting opened with the singing of two songs, "He Keeps Me Singing" and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Mrs. J. L. Love led in prayer after the singing. The president, Mrs. M. L. Stallings, had charge of the Scripture reading. She read from the second chapter of James, and then several interesting pieces were read.

We had the roll call and several of the members were not present. The collection was $5.30.

The meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. P. L. Garmon in May.

Mrs. Stallings served delicious refreshments.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—The second Sunday in April our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, preached a wonderful sermon on glorying in the cross of Christ, after which he administered the Lord's Supper.

Joash Day was observed. I don't know what the collection was. The crowd was not so large; some are sick. We hope that the sick will soon get well and be out at church. We have lost one member by death since our last report, Mrs. Emma Walker. She was a good woman. She leaves four fatherless and motherless children. Let us not forget them. She also leaves her mother and six sisters. May they all live so as to meet her in the better land, for we believe that she is at rest.

We will have preaching again the fourth Sunday. Quarterly meeting will be held on Saturday at 2 p. m. Don't forget to go.

We will try to get all of the comforts for the Children's Home that we can.

ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Salem, Saxapahaw Charge.—We were delighted to have our president, Dr. Taylor, with us Sunday morning for our service. He brought us one of his splendid sermons. We trust he will visit us again soon. Just remember, Brother Taylor, you are always welcome and we are glad to have you worship with us.

We are planning to observe Joash Day at our church at our afternoon service on the fourth Sunday of this month. We are very anxious that we have a large crowd and that each one present will make a donation. Though it be great or small, let's remember that the little things count with God just as well as the large ones. A penny given in the right spirit would mean more than a dollar given in the wrong spirit.

We hope to add two more Sunday school rooms to our church soon. Part of the money has already been raised.

Our C. E. is still doing good work and our attendance is much better since spring has come.

Our pastor, Mr. Whitehead, is giving us an extra preaching service on the third Sunday night of each month. We feel sure our people are interestet and appreciate it, for they show it by their attendance.

We are very sorry one of our members, Mr. L. F. Durham, has been confined to his bed for several weeks on account of sickness. It seems that he is slowly improving. But we pray God's blessings upon him.

MRS. T. R. CRAWFORD, Reporter.

Tabernacle Charge.—We are endeavoring to work the "Lord's Acre Plan" on Tabernacle charge this year. The C. E. Society at Tabernacle church has agreed to sow one acre in beans and give the proceeds from the sale of the hay to the church. Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Jones have kindly consented to furnish the acre. It is hoped that the young people of Julian church will also sow an acre for the church. A number of the children who belong to this church are setting hens to sell the chickens for the church.

A missionary meeting for our district was held at Julian on the third Sunday in March with Mrs. E. T. Coble, the chairman, in charge. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. W. C. Hammer and Mrs. C. W. Bates. The attendance was gratifying, especially in the afternoon.

On Easter Sunday the pastor preached Easter sermons at Tabernacle in the morning and at Julian at night. Just previous to the sermon at Tabernacle the young people presented a pleasing pageant. The children enjoyed an egg hunt at Tabernacle on Saturday afternoon before Easter.

Bros. P. A. Hardin and W. T. Hanner are the nominees for delegate to our next Annual Conference.

Mrs. I. L. Trogdon and children have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the passing of the husband and father. May the Lord comfort them in their bereavement.

Most of our members who have been sick are improving. H. L. ISLEY.

West Forsyth.—It was the privilege of the writer to attend Sunday school and preaching services at First Church, Burlington, last Sunday morning, the pastor and family being called to Burlington on account of the serious illness of a sister of Mrs. Way. It is always a genuine pleasure to visit our home church and receive the inspiration from the services. It was indeed an inspiring scene to behold the nearly 400 people, all ages, in the Sunday school, and the 73 men in the Baraca class, which is taught by Bro. George Smith. In the preaching service there was a congregation which completely filled the large auditorium of the church. Dr. Paschall, the popular pastor, seemed at his best in the delivery of his sermon, which was based on Ephesians 6:14, "Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth." We learned that splendid progress is being made by the Burlington church under the efficient leadership of Dr. Paschall and Mrs. Paschall.

Owing to the downpour of rain just preceding the hour for the service at Tabernacle last Sunday night, there were only about a dozen persons present for the service, which proved a very helpful one. Our oldest member among the men, Bro. S. H. Speas, was there, and a number of young people attended.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. John Blackburn, local preacher, of Baltimore church, conducted the service at Union Hill church last Sunday morning. We have not had a report of the service, but presume a good service was enjoyed.

The second quarterly conference for West Forsyth church will convene on Saturday of this week at Stony Knoll church. We are pleased to announce that Dr. Taylor will be with us and preach to the quarterly conference at 11 a. m. He will preside over the business session in the afternoon and preach at Pleasant Hill church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. We will observe Joash Day at that church Sunday morning.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

First Church, Burlington.—Our church is still migrating wonderfully in spite of the fact that everybody is still talking "hard times."

There were 383 present at Sunday school yesterday and the church was filled at the 11 o'clock hour to hear Dr. Paschall preach on "The Girdle of Truth."

The C. E. had a good meeting last night. On every second Sunday they hold a mission study, taught by Mrs. F. W. Paschall. She explains everything so clearly and makes the programs not only helpful but real interesting.

All circles held their first auxiliary meeting for the new missionary year last week. The year closed at the end of March. Their report was handed in so that it might be reported at the N. C. Branch meeting to be held in Enfield this week. The writer does not know whether or not the budget was completed. Several ladies besides the delegates from our church are planning to attend this meeting. The pastor called off the mid-week prayer meeting this week as he also would be at the Branch meeting.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—Our congregation has again been bereaved by the loss of a member, Mrs. Maude McPherson Welch, who died Saturday at 3:30 a. m. at her home near Brentwood school in the southeastern part of the city after an illness of ten days of pneumonia. A daughter of A. and Louisa Horney McPherson, she was born in Rockingham county, July 22, 1884. She was married to Wm. H. Welch on December 25, 1906, and came to make her home on Morris St., this city. For a time her husband was chief of police of High Point; he died in 1927. She is survived by two sons, Marion A., and Joseph Welch. Funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon by her pastor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, and burial was made in Oakwood cemetery.

Mr. Franklin V. J. Welch, a brother of the late Mr. J. C. Welch, Sr., died last Friday at his home, 1301 E. Lexington Ave. He was a well known and highly esteemed citizen of High Point, having been a member of one of the oldest families of this section Born September 9, 1862, he spent his entire life on the original home place, having been a son of Jonathan Welch, one of the pioneer citizens of High Point. His wife, who was before her marriage on February 13, 1889, Miss Roxie Meredith, two sons, James W. Welch, who was a captain in the World War, and J. Adolphus Welch, and four daughters, Mrs. J. L. Lowe, Mrs. R. L. Patterson, Mrs. A. B. Goodman, and Miss Halcie Welch, and a sister, Mrs. Henry M. Sechrest, are surviving relatives. Funeral services were conducted at Deep River Friends church Sunday afternoon by Rev. Clay Madison, pastor of Lebanon church, and Dr. A. G. Dixon of the Children's Home. Services at the grave were in charge of the Trophy Council, Junior Order, of which he was a member. To the sorrowing relatives of these two bereaved families we offer our sincere and cordial sympathy.

The Workers' council of the Sabbath school will meet Tuesday evening at the church, and there wil be an important meeting of the Stewards Tuesday evening, April 19.

It has been announced that "Joash Day" will be observed Sunday, April 24. At this time one-half of the conference year will close, and it is hoped to be able to bring our financial obligations up to date by this sacrificial offering. The minister made a very encouraging announcement Sunday morning that the sum of $1,000 has been paid recently to reduce the building fund debt, and interest on the notes has been met.

As a result of the evangelistic services, we were greatly pleased to receive the following new members Sunday morning: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Burrows by transfer from Giles Chapel, Mrs. A. W. Gibson from Wesley Memorial M. E. Church, Misses Dorothy Dean Davis, Eunice Boyd, Celeste Payne, Caroleen Ellison, Billy Sexton Wall, Thurman Wall, John B. Wall, Ralph W. Johnson, Percy Robbins, Darrell Sechrest and Clyde Johnson. The little daughter of Mrs. Gibson, Jois, was christened by Rev. Mr. Farmer. Nineteen accessions to our membership have been made.

Mrs. G. I. Humphreys was gracious hostess to the Woman's Auxiliary Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the president's home on West College Drive. There was a fine attendance of members. The president, Mrs. Paul S. Kennett, was in the chair, and many plans were discussed for the work of the coming year. The new Circles are organizing with the election of chairmen and officers. A committee is arranging the programs for the year. It was decided that the ladies would meet on Tuesday afternoon, April 19, and clean the church. While we have a very efficient janitor, there is some extra spring cleaning that needs to be done.

Mrs. C. C. Robbins, will entertain the Alexander Martin chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at her home on Archdale road, south of the city. This will be an important meeting, as a new regent and other officers for the coming two years are to be elected.

Mrs. Esttella Ray, of Liberty, is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. Paul S. Kennett on W. College Drive.

The annual Junior-Senior banquet at High Point College was held last Saturday evening, and proved to be an enjoyable occasion. Miss Gladys Guthrie and Zeb Denny, who are members of this year's graduating class, are fortunate in having already obtained positions to teach next fall. Little Miss Mary Jane Ross, of Asheboro, sister of Miss Elizabeth Ross, a Junior, has been elected mascot of the Junior class.

A debate between High Point College and Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., was held Monday evening in Roberts Hall auditorium. The High Point team, Messrs. Clay Madison and John Morgan, won by a unanimous decision.

The new college catalogue for 1931-'32, containing announcements for '32-'33, has recently been issued, and presents a neat and creditable appearance.

High Point College will hold two terms of Summer School of six weeks each this coming summer, and courses will be offered in the following subjects: art, biology, education, chemistry, English, geography, history, modern languages, music, and religious education.

Mesdames P. S. Kennett, R. W. Riggins, S. S. Coe, and Miss Mary Young left this morning for Enfield to attend the sessions of the N. C. Branch of Woman's Work as delegates from High Point

We regret to announce that Mrs. J. B. Spencer had the misfortune to fall on the terrace in front of Dr. Humphreys' home Monday afternoon, and fractured a bone in her shoulder. This has been very painful, and her physician thinks it will be a few weeks before she can use her left arm again.

Mrs. J. C. Welch, Jr., is recovering from an operation performed last Wednesday in Guilford General Hospital.

Miss Anne Robbins left Sunday for Cincinnati, Ohio, where she is studying voice in the Conservatory, after spending her spring vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robbins. She sang a beautiful solo at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning with fine effect. Her voice is a strong, clear soprano, and gives pleasure to all who hear her.

Pleasant Grove.—Our Sunday school seems to be holding its own. Wish more would come out and make it a larger and better school. In the absence of our superintendent, Mr. Clarence Robbins, the assistant superintendent, Mr. Clyde Payne, had charge of the Sunday school.

Our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, brought us a helpful and inspiring message Sunday from the ninth chapter of I Corinthians. Paul was running a race for the crown of life.

Some enter races at schools and colleges for medals or some kind of reward; they put forth every effort possible to win. But how about running the race for Christ? If we put our whole self into the race, stepping out 100 per cent for Christ, or do we just run in the race on Sunday? If we must win in a race we have got to keep a steady pull and not stop and sit down to criticize. Paul said, I have got to watch and pray lest I fall. If we are true followers of Christ we will be anxious to get in the race and work and pull together for Christ and the upbuilding of the kingdom. Christ said: "Be thou faithful until death and I will give the crown of life."

Christian Endeavor met Sunday evening at 6:45. Owing to the absence of our leader Mr. Clyde Payne had charge of the program.

For the evening worship our pastor used as his subject the 37th chapter of Isaiah on the conditions of the country in Hezekiah's day when he was receiving letters from the king of Syria.

We would be glad to see more out to the mid week prayer service and choir practice on Wednesday night.

The Sunshine Auxiliary and Servotha class held their monthly meeting the first Monday night with Mrs. Clyde Payne. Mrs. Rob Kennedy presided over the class meeting and Mrs. J. R. Meredith the Sunshine Auxiliary. One new member was added to the Auxiliary, Mrs.

A. R. Craven. After the business the hostess, Mrs. Clyde Payne, served a lunchionette.

The Ladies' Aid met Wednesday evening with Mrs. B. E. Kennedy. Mrs. Clyde Payne and Mrs. W. H. Newby had charge of the program. Mrs. Newby read the Scripture lesson. Questions were answered by Mrs. W. H. Burton, Mrs. Clay Beck, Mrs. J. R. Meredith, Mrs. D. R. Williams and Mr. D. R. Williams. After the program the president, Mrs. J. R. Meredith, took the chair. After the regular business the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mis Mary Kennedy and Mrs. Donald Newby, served potato salad on lettuce with crackers, pickles, chicken salad sandwiches, pumpkin pie topped with ice cream, hot coffee with marshmallows. REPORTER.

Liberty.—On the fourth Sunday morning Pastor Chambliss brought to us the beautiful Easter message. An Easter program was given by the children.

Sunday evening a cantata entitled "At Dawn," rendered by the Liberty High School Glee Club, observed white Easter. This was very impressive.

Yesterday, the second Sunday, was a good day for us both in Sunday school and church service.

Mr. Chambliss' subject was "Certainties of Christianity," which was heard by a reverent and attentive congregation.

Mesdames Jno. W. Curtis and DeLacy Foust rendered beautifully "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." The Lord's supper was administered.

The fourth Sunday Joash Day will be observed.

One of our members, Mrs. Boyd Reitzel, is in Wesley Long Hospital, Greensboro. She is getting on satisfactorily.

Dr. Flavius Amick, of Indianapolis, Indiana, and Miss Joy Amick, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, have recently visited their sister, Mrs. F. A. Shepard.

Miss Margaret King Shepard, of N. C. C. W., has been enjoying the spring holidays at home the past week.

F. A. Shepard, Jr., of the University, spent the week-end at home.

Little Miss Jene Brower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brower, two of our good and faithful members, is improving nicely.

Mrs. Wade Hardin will entertain the Literary Department of the Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

BERTINE SHEPARD, Reporter.

First Church, Thomasville.—The Woman's Auxiliary met in regular session on Thursday evening, April 7th. Mrs. T. A. Lloyd had charge of the devotionals, reading the Scripture lesson from Luke, the ninth chapter. The program was in charge of Mrs. T. Glenn Madison. India was the subject for April. India's problems were read by Mrs. Ella Williams, and progress of Christianity in India was discussed by the different members.

Mrs. A. H. Ragan was elected delegate to the N. C. Branch Meeting to be held in Enfield the week of the 12th.

For the one new project for the year it was decided to put on "The Diminishing Tea." Mrs. A. H. Ragan is to start the tea with 16 members of the Auxiliary.

Three new circles are being organized; all of 15 years and up in a group with Mrs. W. J. Loftin and Mrs. W. G. Myers as leaders; from 10 to 14 years with Mrs. T. Glenn Madison and Mrs. S. R. Westmoreland as leaders; and all under 10 years in a group with Mrs. J. W. Baity and Mrs. J. J. Watts as leaders. This will give us three circles and it is hoped that a greater work may be done.

We had a very good and unusual program last Sunday evening given by the students of High Point College. Everyone present learned more about the college and the ability of its students. We are very proud to claim it as our denominational institution, and we trust that it will grow in every way that is good.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—Rev. Mr. Trollinger delivered a very fine message at the Sunday morning service. At the morning service on Easter Sunday our pastor delivered a fine message, after which the Lord's Supper was administered.

Our Sunday school is moving along with good interest, there being 88 present last Sunday.

We were very glad to have Bro. Henry Wilson and family worship with us the first Sunday. After Sunday school Bro. Wilson made a good talk, which was enjoyed by all.

The fourth Sunday in this month is Joash Day at our church. We are hoping for a good service.

Our hearts were made sad on March 24th by the death of one of our devoted members, Mrs. C. W. Butler. Midway church and community has sustained a great loss, and the family has lost a devoted wife and a loving mother. May God bless and comfort the bereaved. Funeral services were conducted on Friday before Easter by Bro. Trollinger, Bro. Lowdermilk and Dr. A. G. Dixon, and were attended by a lage congregation of sorrowing relatives and friends. The flowers were beautiful. MRS. G. W. APPLE, Reporter.

West End, Greensboro.—The auxiliary held the first meeting for the new year Monday evening, April 11.

The old year's work was finished with our Mission Budget paid in full and our Local budget over paid.

This meeting for the new year was a very interesting meeting with Mrs. P. A. Burns as president and Mrs. G. L. Curry as secretary.

Business for the new year was discussed with the hope thatt we might get more interested in this work, and that we can do a greater year's work for our Father in Heaven in 1932-33. With all good wishes to the Herald and its readers.

MRS. F. S. STOCKARD,
Cor. Secretary.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Sunday morning, Joash Day was observed at our church. Our congregation was small. There is so much sickness in our community. Pastor Bingham read for his Scripture the 15th chapter of St. Luke. His text, "And when he came to himself."

In the C E. Society the fourth Sunday we were glad to have Rev. N. M. Harrison; come again, you are welcome.

The second quarterly conference was held Saturday at Littleton.

First Sunday after Sunday school the class leader, Mr. C. F. Hawkins, read for his Scripture the 14th chapter of St. John, which is one of the prettiest chapters in the Bible. He called on Mr. Baldy Green to lead the next meeting, which is Sunday morning.

We missed our superintendent, Mr. Leo Pittard, Sunday as he is sick.

My mother-in-law, Mrs. Captain Hawkins, suffers with a broken arm.

Mrs. R. E. Green has returned home after spending a while with her sick mother, Mrs. Mollie Hawkins, of Roanoke Rapids.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Winston-Salem.—The women of the church are exceedingly glad to have as much money as they do to turn into the treasury before the Branch Meeting. The Branch Meeting will, no doubt, be inspirational and helpful to those who are so fortunate as to attend. Mrs. J. E. Pritchard, Mrs. I. D. Voss, Mrs. S. M. Johnson, and Mrs. B. K. Millaway are among those who expect to attend from here. The new officers are working hard already to get the new missionary year started off well. Mrs. J. E. Pritchard is the newly-elected president of the auxiliary and we bespeak for her the hearty co-operation of every woman in the church.

Rev. J. E. Pritchard was ill with the flu and was away from church worship one Sunday, but he is out again and feeling better, we are extremely glad to say.

The Gypsy Smith revival is being attended by many people, from our own city and from other cities, also. Great good has been accomplished in the past two weeks of Gypsy Smith's preachng and the climax no doubt, will bring finer results than before.

PAULINE BRANSON, Reporter.

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge.—Rev. E. A. Bingham the second Sunday broughtt us a good message. His text was "Therefore be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." We never grow tired of his great messages; they are always new and inspiring to us. We pray that we will be of more service to our pastor and all the church this year than ever before. Our Sunday school is very good. Our former superintendent left us, but we elected Mr. B. C. Lanier in his place and he is doing his best, I think. We greatly miss Brother A. L. Lamar; he was so faithful to his church.

Our quarterly meeting will be held at Pine Hill on Saturday evening before the third Sunday in April.

MRS. F. L. SMITH, Reporter.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—Sunday night, April 3, at 7:30 o'clock, 69 young people met at the church and heard the lesson on "Why Do We Have a Church?" led by Miss Alma Koonts and discussed by those who had parts; after which Pastor Troxler made a wonderful talk, painting so clearly on our minds the picture of the world without the church We think of the world today as black with sin, but what would it be if it wasn't for the Christian people, or if it wasn't for the church and its principles?

Sunday night, April 10, despite the rain, 72 were present to hear the lesson on "How Should We Use Sunday?" led by Mr. Frank Shoaf and discussed by each pasticipant. Frank isone of our new members and we are always glad to see them step in and take an active part; it shows their interest in behalf of the spiritual welfare of the society as well as their willingness to serve God.

Most of the lessons for this quarter can be applied so closely to the life of today, that if you are not in service each Sunday you are missing a great opportunity. It will be well worth your time so meet us next Sunday night at 7:30 at Shiloh and study with us, for a short while, our lesson on "Putting Purpose Into Life." If Shiloh doesn't happen to be your choice, let me urge you to attend God's services wherever you may choose. Remember that the first day of the week is God's day, the one that is set aside for public worship.

Asheville.—Although it has been two months since we have given a report, work has been carried on actively. Every department of the Sunday school is wide awake. The Young People's class is showing keen interest. Mrs. Robey Wilson, teacher, has done much to build up and strengthen this department. A contest for membership that was carried out is still having effect, several new members being added recently. A benefit party in the form of a St. Patrick's entertainment was given, and the proceeds amounting to $15 were applied on the general expenses of the church.

The Primary Department had an unusually large attendance for the winter. They are being taught to attend the church services and to give systematically. Decision Day on Easter Sunday resulted in the addition of five members of the department to the church. Rev. Homer Casto preached on this Sunday and conducted the baptismal service. Several social affairs have been given the department as award for faithfulness and attainment of certain goals which were set. Much credit for the loyalty of this department is due the teaching corps and assistants, consisting of Mrs. E. A. Bolick, Miss Estelle Swain, Miss Novella McIntire, Miss Mary Waters, Mrs. C. B. Baker, Miss Eva Moore and Miss Ruth Drake, Miss Verda McIntire, superintendent.

The Christian Endeavor societies are doing outstanding work. The Junior Christian Endeavor was recently organized, and is being sponsored and financed by the Senior society. A church supper was held in February and the proceeds were used on the church budget. Ninety-five persons were served. The business and social meeting for March was held at the home of the Misses McIntire on Merrimon avenue, with a large crowd in attendance. Rev. A. B. Dennis, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, was the speaker for the occasion. His talk was very instructive, dating back to early Methodism. The society is very fortunate in having an artist numbered among its members. Miss Elsie Drake has contributed generously of her gift. She has started a scrap-book for the society which contains some quite remarkable pen sketches, illustrating various functions carried out.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society bears special mention for the excellent work it is doing under the guidance of Miss Verda McIntire and Mrs. E. A. Bolick. The Juniors are very enthusiastic over an attendance contest which is in progress. The attendance averages between 15 and 20. Church attendance is also stressed. With an intensive program having been undertaken by the Juniors for beautifying the church grounds, our church will soon have a much more attractive appearance. Every Junior is co-opeating to make this pogram a success. The officers for the Junior Society are as follows: President, James Clouse; vice-president, Howard Charnock; secretary, Eva Moore; treasurer, Jack Bolick.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. J. A. McIntire, with Mrs. Ralph Beachman, who is retiring after two years' service as president, in charge. The entire budget for Home and Foreign Missions was reported raised. Mrs. J. S. Williams was honored as delegate to the Branch Meeting in April.

We are still without a pastor, but Mr. F. C. Steadman and Mr. A. J. Buckner of the Men's Evangelistic Club of this city have proved able substitutes, and have kept the pulpit supplied. Speakers for the past two months have been Rev. Homer Casto, Dr. Wells, W. R. Murray, also members of this club, and Seth Perkinson, Y. M. C. A. secretary.

"Easter Vision" was presented in the church auditorium Easter night and despite the fact that we were handicapped by a very small audience due to a downpour of rain at the time, it was very beautifully and effectively rendered. There were about 25 who took part in the pageant.

We are very fortunate in having Mr. E. C. Faucett as our superintendent. In the absence of a church of his own denomination in this city he has worshipped with us for a number of years. At the last quarterly conference of the church Mr. and Mrs. Faucett were voted as honorary members of the conference and of the church. The Young People's Sunday school class has presented him with a subscription to the church paper as an appreciation of his services and his faithfulsess in conducting the prayer meetings.

Mrs. C. C. McNeill and daughter, Josie, visited relatives in High Point during the Easter holidays.

Illness among many of our members has brought the church attendance down for the last several Sundays. Those who are on the sick list are Mrs. D. L. West, Mrs. E. A. Bolick, Mrs. H. L. Hanner and daughters, Louise and Arline, Miss Novella McIntire and Mrs. Y. D. Eller. We wish them a speedy recovery and will welcome their return to our midst.

MISS AMY MITCHELL,
President C. E.

You can only imagine how the last two items cheered our hearts. It gives us joy to make so good a report covering the first week in April. If the second week in April would yield us a similar amount we could pay all our bills.

A sum in addition and a bit of imagination will enable you to see us scaling down our bills during last week by a little over $3,000. This brings us a great measure of relief, because men were pressing us for payment. Some will still be presing us, but if each of our Sunday schools will stress the matter a bit and send us a liberal offering each month we will keep down bills to the lowest possible level.

We have gone through the North Carolina Branch year, for the Woman's Auxiliary, with a shortage in income of about $2,500.00, and yet we are not more than $500.00 further behind now than we were the 10th of April, 1931. We praise the Lord and thank His people.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Trogdon

In the death of I. L. Trogdon the Tabernacle Community and church have lost a man of unusual energy, wide influence and worth. He was, perhaps, the community's most successful farmer, not only in growing and marketing farm products but in conserving and enriching the soil. He was a man of excellent judgment in the management of his secular affairs, and possessed of the spirit of progress. He was also much interested in spiritual affairs, which is far better. For many years he was very active as a local leader in the work of the Methodist Protestant church, of which he was a member at Tabernacle. We regret his passing and sympathize much with his bereaved ones. J. A. BURGESS.

Coble

Louisa Jane Garner Coble was born in Randolph county May 11, 1846, and died in Chatham county April 6, 1932. As a young lady she was married to Arlington Coble, who died more than five years ago. To this union were born five children, four daughters and one son. The living daughters are: Mrs. Della J. Freeman, of Gulf, N. C., Mrs. J. C. Fields, of Pleasant Garden, N. C., and Mrs George Fink, of Spencer, N. C. One daughter died in childhood. The one son, Mr. C. M. Coble, died about two years ago. There are 22 living grandchildren and 57 great-grandchildren. There have been a total of 90 descendants. Out of this number there have been eight deaths. Of the Garner family, of which Mrs. Coble was a daughter, there were eight children and until four months ago all were living. Mrs. Coble was of a people who have been greatly blessed with good health and long lives. Besides the great number of relatives there are a host of those who learned to love this good woman during her long life and are now sad because of her going.

In early life Mrs. Coble became a Christion and joined Shiloh Methodist Protestant church near Julian, N. C. She remained a member of this church until she and her husband became residents of Greensboro, N. C., and on December 25, 1921, they became members of West End Methodist Protestant church. In this church they remained consistent members until they were called to the church triumphant. In earh case when death came it meant taking the oldest member of the West End church. Indeed, they are the oldest people that have ever graced the West End membership roll. It was not the privilege of the writer to know Grandmother Coble, but every word of information has been a testimony to a good life and a sweet and good old mother in Zion, ripened not only for the grave, but for her home prepared for her by her Savior.

The funeral was in the Shiloh church, the church she had learned to love in early life and where she had spent most of her many years in service and worship, in the presence of a large audience, many of whom were her neighbors and loved ones when she had lived in that community. The body was then gently laid to rest beside that of her husband in the church cemetery to await the coming of the Lord.

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last."

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. C. L. Wicker, a Presbyterian minister of Gulf, N. C., where Mrs. Coble had lived with her daughter, Mrs. Freeman, since the passing of the father and husband some years ago.

G. L. CURRY, Pastor.

THE BRIGHT SIDE OF LIFE

If you should happen to meet a friend,
Greet him with a smile;
Show him that you're still living
A life that is worth while.

If you should happen to find a day
That seems all dark and gray,
Remember that it can be changed
If everybody is gay.

If an enemy you should see
Traveling down a lonely road,
Help him to safely carry
All his heavy, weary load.

And, last of all, if you should be
A worker for our King,
Remember that you must faithful be
And ever His praises sing.

FIRE AT PINE RIDGE

Dear Friends of Alvan Drew School:

Monday, April 4, 1932, will long be remembered as an outstanding day at Pine Ridge. At the school, we were eating breakfast. Practically all were in the dining room when one of our non-resident students came to the door and cried "Fire! The grade building is on fire!" Mrs. Woodford called to the girls to remain and give the men and boys an opportunity to hurry out. We soon saw it was too late to save the building as the fire had started on the second floor and the smoke was already pouring through the belfry; indeed, it was unsafe for anyone to venture to the second floor, so in a few minutes before the fire had gotten all through the building we got out as many desks, chairs, and tables as we possibly could from the first floor. We also saved one of our two pianos that were in the building. And then we could only stand by and see the dear old building go up in smoke and down to the very ground in ashes—an, oh! how it touched our hearts as we thought of that host of women led by Mrs. M. O. Everett in the beginning days, whose prayers and sacrifices and holy endeavors were given so freely in the erection of that first building. It was touching also in this respect that quite a number of our children had left their own books, tablets, and other things in the school rooms and the tears were streaming down their faces in their distress. One little girl said, "I didn't know how much I loved school till I saw the building burning down."

The building cost originally $7,500.00 about 20 years ago. It was remodeled and improved about two years ago, as it had spread and was beginning to look dangerous. We installed turnbuckle truss rods to hold it together and a new roof was put on with other minor items. Mrs. Woodford had been using the auditorium for her classes in expression and there was a case of her books for use in these classes that cost over $200, and the piano that burned in the same room was a very good one and had been in use only about five years.

It is comforting to know that a large number of good friends will be sympathizing with us in our loss and inconveniences. As to the origin of the fire—it is not to be blamed on our natural gas. There was a small coal stove in the auditorium used a supplement to our furnace heating system in extreme weather. A fire had been built in this stove, and we suppose became overheated.

A little while after the fire we gathered in our high school auditorium for chapel and sang, "Oh, God, our help in ages past, our hope for years to come," and we felt Him very near, and after many touching expressions in prayer by students and teachers we also sang very heartily "Blest Be the Tie That Binds Our Hearts in Christian Love."

Our county school superintendent wrote us soon after the burning, offering sympathy and gladly extending to us the use of the nearby county school building for the remaining month of our term. So, by making use of this and also the assembly room of the boys' dormitory, we were enabled to go right on with school. We were carrying an insurance of $4,000 on the building and furniture and we trust it will be promptly paid and we are hoping to be able to rebuild in the near future.

THOS. R. WOODFORD.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

The energetic Secretary of Literature will arrange her wares attractively in a convenient place, and call attention to them by every means possible. Placards may be placed in conspicuous places about the auditorium, setting forth the engaging features of the literature table.

The Standard for Woman's Auxiliary should be given prominent wall space, and attention called to it as a goal for each Auxiliary to attain. A poster contest might make an interesting feature, a prize being offered for the most original missionary poster. The poster would be an additional attraction in the literature display.

Satan's Garden

It lies among the marshy flats,
'Mid croaking frogs and screaming bats,
Where slimy reptiles creep about
And poison snakes glide in and out.

A fitting place for Satan's use
To bear the fruits he would produce:
He sows his seed and cultivates
And grows great crops of loves and hates.

Diverse the fruit in kind and name:
To think of some you'd blush with shame;
To rest of it would bring you pain
And prove your mind no longer sane.

Beware of fruits from Satan's garden:
Your mind they'll dull, your heart they'll harden.
In paradise of God you'll find
Quite all you need for heart and mind.

What Is "The American Idea?"

The United States government has some peculiar fundamental principles: what are they? There are three of them and together they constitute what is called "The American Idea." The first is that all men are born with equal rights. At a stroke this cuts off the heads of all "kings by divine right." It also in course of time strikes off the manacles of slaves. It also opposes itself to the division of human society into classes, as upper, lower, and middle. The second principle is that people should not be taxed without their consent. This principle moved Americans to action in the Revolutionary War. It denies to unauthorized governments the right to levy tribute. The third principle is that men may choose representatives to act for them in relation to their affairs. Our national and state governments are all modeled in accordance with this principle. There are no independent sovereignties. All officials derive their legal powers ultimately from the people.

All these principles were in mind in framing the organization of the Methodist Protestant Church. It was fashioned after the American idea. The people are the ultimate source of authority, the people honestly imbued with the Spirit of Christ. Christ is the Head of the church and the mass of real church members constitute the body of Christ. The church is thus more than a human organization: God is in it in a peculiar sense. The founders of the Methodist Protestant Church were guided by two manuals: the New Testament and the Constitution of the United States. Our church aims to incorporate in its government and ecclesiastical life both the Christian idea and the American idea.

Sin in High Places

People are often shocked by crimes committed by men and women in high places. But the unexpected would not happen so often if people only knew better what to expect. High places bring opportunities and temptations for wrong-doing that low places do not bring. If you put in a high place a person who is a moral weakling you may expect a downfall. If the Raleigh young lady had been placed where there are no opportunities to "borrow" money for stock gambling, she probably would not now be a convict sentenced to the penitentiary. If her father had been a plain farmer and not a lawyer, he would not have forged letters to free his daughter from charges. If Albert Fall had remained a private citizen, he would probably never have been sent to a federal prison. Yet high positions do not make criminals of men and women who are not criminally inclined. They simply serve to develop and manifest what is in people. Some men seek high positions to find better opportunities for gain at the expense of others. The wrong-doing that follows need not be surprising.

High position ought to make people more careful to do right. It does have that effect on those who rightly consider the matter. High position is a help to the morally inclined. They realize that more is justly expected of them because of their exalted station and they try not to disappoint.

—Joash Day is observed with enthusiastic interest in some churches.

—Dr. George R. Brown writes interestingly of the coming General Conference. See his article on second page of this Herald.

—The Southeast Convention of Congregationalist and Christian churches meets next Tuesday in Burlington, N. C., for a four day's session. We hope for a fruitful meeting.

—Our Board of Missions has issued this year an especially attractive service for use on Children's Day. It is entitled The King's Children and includes an entertaining pageant in addition to songs and other parts.

—Mr. Grenville Kleiser, the apostle of good cheer, edits "Good Luck Poems," a booklet of 16 pages issued four times a year by Keller Publishing Company of St. Paul, Minn. The price is 50 cents a year, 15 cents a single number. It makes an attractive gift book, carrying good cheer with it.

—The members of our General Conference this year have a great responsibility. They should approach their task prayerfully as well as thoughtfully. We cherish the hope that they will make no alliances that will prevent progress in the coming years.

GENERAL CONFERENCE ORGANIZATION

I read Dr. J. H. Straughn's article on General Conference Organization which appeared in the Methodist-Protestant Recorder on April 8, and have given it careful consideration. I am sure Dr. Straughn will not think me presumptuous if I venture to suggest a plan differing from his in several particulars.

After having tried our present plan for several years without accomplishing any outstanding piece of constructive work for the denomination, it seems to me that the plan needs revising, and I suggest the following changes in it:

1. Abolish the traveling presidency, which, in my humble judgment, has not benefited the denomination to any appreciable extent.

2. Abolish the office of Promotional Secretary. It was not needed in the first place, as our pastors are supposed to do this work. If they do not do it, or will not do it, let them hand in their resignations and not continue to hamper the work.

3. If we are to have an Executive Committee, a department, which I do not believe has justified its existence, I am in favor of selecting five of the most outstanding workers in the denomination, no two of whom shall be members of the same annual conference, to compose the committee.

4. I am in favor of reducing the Board of Missions to ten members, to be selected from the best business men and women of the denomination, no two of whom shall be members of the same annual conference. I am in favor of having one Executive Secretary for this Board. If he, or she, is as capable and as efficient as he, or she, ought to be to fill such an office, no Associate Secretary will be needed. Let me add that I have been in favor of turning all of our missionary work over to the women of the denomination, and have so expressed myself in season and out of season. If, as it is asserted by those in position to know, two out of every three dollars raised for our General Conference Budget comes from the women of the church, I think they deserve to administer the affairs of this particular Board. By all means let us take church extension away from this Board, and save time, trouble and expense.

It seems to me that the sensible thing for us to do is to organize to face conditions just as they are today. I do not know what "normal conditions" are; but I do know that we have been more or less hysterical since 1913 both in church and in state. We were swept off our feet by the inflation of things, including our ego, and planned accordingly. Now, we are told that inflation by some trick or legerdemain has become deflation and we must change our plans to meet conditions, which, by the way, is a very sensible thing to do.

5. I suggest that we make our General Conference Budget $250,000.00 for the first year of the new quadrennium, and go back to our churches and raise the full amount. Whenever this amount is raised the budget is automatically increased by $50,000.00, and so on from time to time during the quadrennium. I mean to say that every time we pay our budget in full an additional $50,000.00 be added to it.

6. Stop flirting with other denominations in the hope that one of them will take us over and pay our debts for us. We need to keep constantly in mind the fact that if our debts are ever paid we shall have to pay them.

Geo. R. Brown.

I WORSHIP WITH THE JEWS

By Luther K. Long

For many years I have had, from time to time, Jewish people in my congregations. Their children have attended Sunday School, I have been in their homes, they have called upon me to bury some of their dead, and there has been a good measure of friendship between us.

It is only during the past few months that I have attended services in their synagogue. Here in Washington, Rabbi Simon has been pastor of the Washington Hebrew Congregation for the last 28 years. He is a scholar, a fine gentleman, a member of the public school board, a highly respected citizen, and a man of fine spiritual character and life. It is a pleasure to know him and to listen as he speaks and to join in the worship as he conducts it.

The synagogue, in its structure and equipment, is not greatly different from our Christian churches. The organ, the choir, the hymns and responses and special selections do not seem strange—except that some use is made of the Hebrew language. Often the sermon would be entirely appropriate in our churches, as many of our sermons would be entirely acceptable to a synagogue congregation.

The prayerbook is exceedingly interesting. It contains responsive readings, prayers, responses, meditations, and orders of service for many occasions. Large use is made of the Psalms. I should say that their use of the Psalms is far more Christian than that made of them by the average Christian congregation reading directly from the Bible or from the responsive readings found in some of our hymn books. Looking through prayer book I do not recall a single instance of the use of any of those un-Christian expressions so frequently encountered in the responsive readings in the Methodist hymnal—expressions which, it is believed will be largely omitted from the new revision soon to be issued.

The prayers, as lead by Rabbi Simon, are exceedingly helpful in every way. This should not be strange, since they were a praying people when our ancestors were ignorant and naked savages. Let me give a few selections that can but do good to any devout praying person:

Silent Devotion

O God, who art the strength of all that trust in Thee, my soul is filled with gratitude for the numberless blessings Thou bestowest on me. With a father's tender care Thou rememberest me every day and every hour. Thou hast endowed me with reason to distinguish between right and wrong, with freedom to choose between good and evil. Thou hast opened mine eyes that I may know the wonders of Thy creation and, above the fleeting things of earth, seek Thee, who art near to the hearts of the lowly.

Teach me, O Lord, to obey Thy will, to be content with what, in Thy wisdom, Thou hast allotted to me, and to share Thy gifts with those who need my help. Guide me, O Father, with Thy good counsel, and hold in Thy keeping the lives of those dear to me. May Thy presence dwell within my home; may peace and happiness abide in it, and love unite all who who live under its shadow. And when, in Thy wisdom, Thou sendest trials and sorrows, grant me strength to bear them patiently, and courage to trust in Thy help. Guard Thou my going out and my coming in, now and evermore. Amen.

Minister and Congregation

Let us adore the ever-living God, and render praise unto Him who spreads out the heavens and established the earth, whose glory is revealed in the heavens above and whose greatness is manifest throughout the world. He is our God; there is none else. We bow the head and bend the knee and magnify the King of kings, the Holy One, praised be He. Amen.

Minister

May the time not be distant, O God, when Thy name shall be worshiped in all the earth, when unbelief shall disappear and error be no more. We fervently pray that the day may come when all men shall invoke Thy name, when corruption and evil shall give way to purity and goodness, when superstition shall no longer enslave the mind, nor idolatry blind the eye, when all inhabitants of the earth shall know that to Thee alone every knee must bend and every tongue give homage. O may all, created in Thine image, recognize that they are brethren, so that, one in spirit and one in fellowship, they may be forever united before Thee. Then shall Thy kingdom be established on earth and the word of Thine ancient seer be fulfilled: The Lord will reign forever and ever. Amen.

Morning Prayer for Children

Praised be Thou, O Lord my God, Father of all, for letting me see this new day. Be with me always that I may be loving to my parents and dear ones. Help me to be kind and grateful. May I willingly obey those who teach me. Lead me in Thy path of truth. Help me to be faithful to do all my duties.

Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is One. Praised be His name, whose glorious kingdom is forever and ever. Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, with all thy soul and with all thy might. O God, guard my tongue from evil and my lips from speaking falsehood. Amen.

Perhaps I should say that this is a Reformed Jewish congregation. That probably has something to do with the liberal character of its teaching and worship. One feels that in their use of the conception of the fatherliness of God they must have added to the Old Testament ideas of God something of the ideas that Jesus has made so prominent in his teaching.

A NEW FEATURE

The Religious Education Council of our Conference has made arrangements with Dr. McCulloch to publish the Christian Endeavor notes each week. These will be prepared by the president of the C. E. Society at High Point College, who at the present is Miss Gladys Guthrie. Dr. Paschall, the leader in this work, also suggested that I prepare the Sunday School lesson outlines for the Herald. We have not fully decided yet on the latter project. The Christian Endeavor notes are beginning this week, and if the demand seems to justify it we may also publish the Sunday School material.

P. E. Lindley.

THE PARENTS SPEAK

First, the splendid recommendation of High Point College given us by one of your recent graduates.

Second, the splendid educational and religious opportunities given the students.

Third, that High Point College is a Christian college, and our son is proud to say that he is a student of High Point College and says that he will regret when his college days come to a close in High Point College.

We are more than grateful for the splendid services given our son in High Point College.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Swart,
Waynesburg, Pa.

* * *

I am sending my son to High Point College because of: the efficiency administration of college affairs there; the fine academic standard maintained by a carefully-selected faculty of culture and ability; and my confidence in the ability of the institution to develop the mental, physical, moral, and manly qualities of its students.

J. E. Hight,
Henderson, N. C.

* * *

My reasons for sending my daughter are:

1. The high grade of work being done by the instructors.
2. The opportunity afforded students of personal contact with the officers and instructors.
3. The expenses are moderate.
4. The Christian influence which the college staff is exerting on the student body.

A TEST OF OUR SPIRITUAL STATE

Ps. 84:2, ''My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord, my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.'' The author of this Psalm was deprived of attending the public worship of God. He felt the need of those services. In this verse the writer gives expression to the longing of his soul for those delightful and helpful services. This longing for the courts of the Lord gives proof of his spiritual state. Life is known by its wants. The spiritually dead do not care to please God. There is no life in a corpse.

Carlyle says in his, ''French Revolution,'' ''when the heart is full, it seeks for a thousand reasons in a thousand ways to impart itself. How sweet and indispensible in such cases, is fellowship, soul mystically strengthening soul.'' The inward determines the outward, the man who gives no outward expression, has no inward grace. Life will manifest itself. Why did not the author of this Psalm say, I will meditate and pray at home. No doubt he did that, yet he felt the need of the services of the sanctuary. Man is a social being, there is a help in the social worship of God's people which cannot be had anywhere else.

Num. 21:15: ''Gather the people together and I will give them water.'' Matt. 18:20: ''For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.'' The people who have no desire to attend the worship and services of the church give no proof that they are spiritual, it is proof of a back-slidden state of heart. Many church members go to places of amusement, they are regular attendants, but they do not go to church. Matt. 6:21: "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

WHAT THE BIBLE MEANS TO ME

By Helen Keller, L.H.D.

I am always glad to bear witness to the blessing the Bible has been to me. Ever since I was a little girl, I have read it constantly for courage and for joy.

Through all kinds of difficulties the Bible has kept my hope of accomplishment bright. In the desert of darkness and silence the Bible has planted concepts of inward sight and hearing, which have exercised an ever-increasing power over my thoughts. It has rendered less bitter the separation from those whom I have loved and lost a little while. It has made the spiritual world very real to me.

I should like to say to you, my friends, the Bible is our surest balance amid the confusion and wavering elements of earth-life. It gives us a right perspective of the great things on which we waste our energies. It is a faithful reminder of our high capabilities, a fearless monitor against belittling aims. A daily walk in the sweet fields of the Word renews our faded enthusiasms and enlarges our aspirations.

We have not learned the Lesson of Life, if we do not every day open the Word for a moment of spiritual refreshment.

UNSKILLED

It is interesting to note that of the 14,000 homeless and needy men recently investigated by the Welfare Council of New York City, more than 10,000 were found to be unskilled laborers and but 48 described themselves as professional men. This fact would seem to be of great significance in fixing the cause of the present unemployment situation. It proves beyond the shadow of a doubt the value, in fact the necessity, of every young man and young woman learning a profession or trade.

The unskilled laborer who has reached the age of forty has little choice in his vocation. If he can secure work it is of a menial nature and can, in many cases, only be performed by a pick and shovel, or by an axe or bucksaw.

The fact that a young person may be raised in the lap of wealth does not necessarily admit the conclusion that his entire life will be marked by every comfort and luxury. Money is transitory in these complex days, and the affluent young man of today might perchance be the penniless, unskilled outcast of tomorrow.

No doubt, many charitable institutions are caring for those who in their youth were never taught a useful profession or trade, who seemed to feel that they would always be taken care of, would come into inheritances, would marry wealth, etc. These are indeed poor ambitions, for it is a known fact, proven again and again, that the biggest men from a financial standpoint in this country today are those who started in life with the barest necessities and comforts and who, by hard work and persistence, have amassed vast fortunes. On the other hand, it has likewise been proven that certain well favored men and women, whose early life was marked with every comfort, in fact, every extravagance, have by some ironic fate been reduced to absolute penury, and in their declining years have eked out a miserable existence.

How much better it is for people to be self-supporting. In this respect the manual training departments of our various high schools are performing a wonderful service in early instilling in the minds of the students the practical application of technical knowledge that will, after they leave the educational institution, prove of marked advantage in the securing and retaining of a position.

WANTED: A TOBACCO LAUGH LEADER

When a preacher says a word in favor of tobacco he is sure to be patted on the back by the tobacco men. The Tobacco Record copies an article by Rev. C. H. Dutton, pastor of the First Unitarian church, of Troy, N. Y., first published in the Albany Sunday Telegram, who argues against the church entering the fight against tobacco, and closes his article with these words, presumably in the hope of cheering up the tobacco men: "Let's kill this one reform wave before it gets rolling big; kill it by laughing it out of court."

All right, Brother Dutton, suppose you start the laughing! And when you get any considerable number of the tobacco men to joining in the laugh, please let the No-Tobacco League of America know at once, by notifying its National Secretary, C. M. Fillmore, of Indianapolis.

It might be in order to inform the Reverend Dutton that the tobacco men are not doing any laughing over "this one reform wave." It is evident they clearly see the handwriting on the wall. The tobacco organs give unmistakable signs of this. By the way, it would be interesting to know just what they think of any preacher who attempts to defend a business that is causing the havoc that tobacco is, in our schools, and in the commercial world, where hundreds of firms are refusing to employ users of tobacco because of its victims being incapacitated for the highest grade of mental and physical effort.

"GOOD LUCK"

"GOOD LUCK" has a double meaning—"chance" and "prosperity." In the first sense it means adventure, hazard, fate, accident. In the other and better sense it means well-being, success, the smile of fortune, getting on in the world.

"GOOD LUCK" in the sense of success and prosperity is not a thing of chance, but the logical result of right thinking, wise planning and diligent working. It is the result of singleness of purpose, high ambition, and untiring industry.

"GOOD LUCK" in this laudable sense is for you, if you earnestly cultivate right thoughts and put them into regular use. The thoughts you hold habitually in mind tend to express themselves in your daily life. Multiplied right thoughts lead to multiplied right results.

"GOOD LUCK POEMS" will enlarge your mental horizon, inspite you to better effort, and help you to make the most of your opportunities. As you read and apply these poems of practical help and uplift, you will develop the fine qualities of sympathy, generosity, and the desire for human service.

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Saxapahaw

April 9-10.—We were in the second quarterly conference of this charge on the 9th, Saturday, and preached in three churches on Sunday. The conference was held at Saxapahaw, with seven officials present, and a small number of others. The pastor's report indicated steady and thoughtful activities. All appointments have been met during the year but one. Vacation Bible Schools are being planned for Concord and Salem, and probably at Saxapahaw. Pre-Easter services were held at Concord church. The pastor notes an increase in church attendance, and an improvement in the spiritual condition of the charge. The Sunday Schools of the charge are good. This is particularly true at three churches. The school at Orange Chapel was closed during the winter months, but was started again on the first Sunday in April. The school at Salem is doing better work than it has done in many years. The vestibule of the church is to be altered so as to provide two rooms for primary classes. Extensions have already been made on the sides at the rear of the church, and two good rooms provided. The largest school is at Saxapahaw—a union school, as this is a union church. Recently an addition has been built on to the rear of the church, and by this means a large assembly room and four class rooms have been provided. With the other rooms already provided the school is now well-housed. The recent improvements cost $1,200, and the bills are paid. Concord church is using a nearby school building for Sunday School purposes. This helps much in the work here. But it is only temporary. Already plans are on foot for a new church building. We expect to see this realized at no distant date. The church is able to build and will do it when the time seems ripe. Mrs. J. J. Crawford is the financial secretary of the charge She was present at the quarterly conference and made report of her work. She is much interested in an improved financial system for the charge. The finances are much in arrears. Salary paid to date is $184.85. The budget payments are, A. C. B. $16; N. C. S., $6. Payments were made on the A. C. B. Sunday in the following amounts: Salem, $2; Concord, $4; Saxapahaw, $2.25. Total, $8.25. The services Sunday at Salem, Concord, and Saxapahaw were well attended, and it was a pleasure to us to meet the people in these services and share with them in the worship. The people love Pastor Whitehead, and he is devoted to the work. We are indebted to the following for entertainment: Brother Loy Guthrie and family, Brother Graham Crawford and family, and Sister A. N. Robertson and family.

Better and Better

The following are reports from JOASH DAY observed last Sunday: Shiloh church, Shiloh charge—"Nearly everybody present contributed." Amount of offering, $154.

Vickory church, Guilford charge. Amount, $4.80.

Orange Chapel, Saxapahaw charge. Amount, $7.33.

Concord church, Saxapahaw charge. Amount, $24.00.

Brother Whitehead writes: "There was a fine spirit in these services."

Rockingham church. Amount, $11.30.

Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon charge. Amount, $75. Pastor Mabry says: "Everybody contributed. The church has decided to observe JOASH DAY every year on the 3rd Sunday in April."

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth charge. Amount of offering, $12.50.

And you must have this from Dr. Johnson: "Yesterday was JOASH DAY at Mt. Pleasant Church (This is Mt. Pleasant charge). Considerable interest, amounting to enthusiasm, was manifested. Envelopes had been distributed two weeks before. Two little girls met me as I approached the church to get envelopes, saying, 'We didn't get ours, but Daddy is here and he'll let us have the money.' There were pennies, nickles, dimes, quarters, halves, ones, fives, and tens, with one dollar bills predominating." The offering amounted to $107.56. And besides this, the regular church offering was taken at the beginning of the service as usual. Dr. Johnson says further: "The Sunday School Superintendent remarked after the service that he believed a larger number of people would participate if the day were observed next year." And then Dr. Johnson adds: "I wonder if it might be well to make it a permanent event in our church activities?" If many churches are of the opinion as Mt. Pleasant and Mt. Hermon, it certainly will be worthwhile, Dr. Johnson.

The total for these seven charges is $385.19—an average of $55.02. Not so bad, is it? JOASH IS MARCHING ON!

Mt. Carmel, Forsyth charge, observed the Day last Sunday, we learn, but amount of offering is not available at this time. On the previous Sunday Hickory Ridge of the same charge observed the Day, receiving $10. Mitchell's Grove and Hickory Grove, on Guilford charge, observed the Day on the second Sunday, and received, in the order named, $10 and $3.35. We are grateful for these reports. They make good reading for our weekly letter. Keep us posted, brethren.

We apologize to Rockingham and Melton's Grove. By oversight these charges were not included in our list of charges that would observe the Day.

Send It In

We mean that JOASH MONEY, or other budget money that may be in hand. Don't wait until the last of the month, or until more is in hand. Please send in NOW what you have, and let the other go in when you get it. Every dollar that Dr. Brown gets each week makes it possible for him to get more off to Dr. Straughn before his books close April 30. PLEASE send it in, brethren. Just swamp Dr. Brown with it, and make him forget that he ever, in all of his life, heard of "tight money."

South Winston

We were with this church for a Sunday night service on our way home from West Forsyth charge. The house was full of attentive worshipers. We were glad to share in the service with them. A business meeting followed the preaching service. They are without a pastor now, since Brother Troxler gave the work up some weeks ago, and we were trying to arrange a supply for them. Their serious problem, however, is the completion of their church building. The frame is up, but it is without roof or weather boarding, and in a short time more it will seriously damage if left in this condition. Our people there think that with this church available for use they could easily have in a short time from 200 to 300 in Sunday School. In the little crowded building that they are now using they have 100 in Sunday School, and the house filled for preaching service. There is, we think, a field here for a church, and some way must be found by which their building can be completed. We are asking Brother Pritchard to hold quarterly conference for them this week—Thursday night. We shall do our best to take care of this work.

On our way in to South Winston we spent a short while pleasantly with Brother R. A. Hunter and family, and enjoyed supper with them.

Committee on Transportation

We are naming today the following persons to constitute a Committee on Transportation to arrange for a trip of Representatives to the General Conference: Rev. C. W. Bates, chairman, Rev. Roy I. Farmer, Rev. B. M. Williams. It is quite likely that most of our Representatives will make this trip in automobiles. If we can go in parties the expense will be greatly reduced, and this is a very necessary consideration for some of us. We suggest that this Committee be communicated with at once by all Representatives who desire its assistance. We urge our Representatives to make every possible effort to attend this Conference. The work of the church must go on, and in our system the General Conference is vital to its progress.

Representatives Expense

Calvary Church has paid this in full, and we understand that First Church, High Point, will pay in full in due time. Aside from these two, we know of no other churches that have raised the allotment for this purpose. West Forsyth took action last Saturday in the quarterly conference to raise the allotment of that charge. It will be raised, of course, on many other charges. We can not expect our Representatives to bear their own expenses while attending to this business of the church. But, brethren, "the time is short," and what we do must be done quickly. The allotment to the individual church is very small and it can be raised, we trust, without much difficulty, if the pastor, or some one whom he may designate, will take it in hand and present it to the people. Let's begin next Sunday.

Assigned

On the 12th of this month Rev. J. Elwood Carroll was assigned to the pastorate of the Asheville Church. He will enter upon his work there June 15, and remain until October 1, at least; possibly longer. We are glad to be able to make this arrangement for this church, and we are expecting it to prove a happy relationship for both pastor and people. Brother Carroll is a student at Yale university.

Appointments

April 23.—Rally of Third District, at Mt. Hermon church.

April 24.—Calvary, in Anniversary service.

I'LL STAY WHERE YOU'VE PUT ME

"I'll stay where You've put me, I will, dear Lord,
Though I wanted so badly to go;
I was eager to march with the "rank and file,"
Yes, I wanted to lead them, You know.
I planned to keep step to the music loud,
To cheer when the banner unfurled,
To stand in the midst of the fight straight and proud
When the enemy's darts were hurled,
But I'll stay where You've put me.

"I'll stay where You've put me, I'll work, dear Lord,
Though the field be narrow and small,
And the ground be fallow, and the stones lie thick,
And there seems to be no life at all.
The field is Thine own, only give me the seed,
I'll sow it with never a fear;
I'll till the dry soil while I wait for the rain,
And rejoice when the green blades appear;
I'll work where You've put me.

"I'll stay where You've put me, I will, dear Lord;
I'll bear the day's burden and heat,
Always trusting Thee fully; when even has come
I'll lay heavy sheaves at Thy feet.
And, then, when my work is ended and done,
In the light of eternity's glow,
Life's record all closed, I surely shall find
It was better to stay than to go;
I'll stay where You've put me."

THE BETTER COUNTRY

"I seek another country, and therefore, am content to be a wanderer upon the earth," wrote John Wesley in his Journal on June 4, 1759, as he left Newcastle, where he was inclined to linger, and resolutely mounted his horse and went on to his next appointment. The devoted old pioneer speaks for us all who have our hearts set up enternig the heavenly home when this life is over.

OUR STORY PAGE

FRANZ'S COWS

Franz ate his last mouthful of bread and toasted cheese and drank the last drop of frothing, lukewarm milk from his breakfast bowl. Then, reaching to the wall for the long curved cow-horn, he walked over to the door that opened into the cow shed.

One, two, three—Franz counted 15 cows, all white and black.

''I always seem to want to count them,'' Franz laughingly explained to his father, who sat on the milk-stool milking the last cow.

''I don't blame you. Gretchen's capable of doing anything. She's just stepped into the pail,'' his father answered. ''I'm glad you're taking grandfather's old horn. It's much louder than the new whistle.''

This was Franz's first day in charge of the cows in the higher pasture, called in Switzerland an alp. He had come last summer to the lower level, or May pasture. Then when June sent his father and Heinrich up to this level, he had gone back to help his mother and Hilda cut the hay on their valley farm.

But this year it was different. Early last winter Franz had hurt his ankle ski-jumping. And all the rest of the cold months he had spent his after-school hours indoors instead of playing with the other boys.

''It was a lucky accident; I learned to make toys, toys that uncle sold in England,'' Franz had told his mother proudly, when summer came and he could walk and run and climb again.

''Not so lucky, son,'' his mother had answered. ''You're pale and peaked from being indoors too much. You'll have to go to the higher pastures this summer, with your father and Heinrich.''

Franz had shouted for joy at this good news. He couldn't imagine anything so lovely as the whole summer in the mountains with the cows.

It had been an exciting day for Franz that day in May when he had left home with the village men and older boys to climb to the mountain huts. It had made him feel important to have Hilda chosen May Queen and have the girls weave garlands for her hair. But the most exciting part for Franz had been putting on his long trousers and his short vest with the large buttons, just like Heinrich's, and carrying the long herdsman's stock, and then walking beside the 15 cows with his father and Heinrich, just like any other herdsman. He had felt as proud as if he had owned every single cow himself. And when the women and the girls had tied big bunches of valley flowers to the cow's horns he had just sung for joy, as all the men were doing. He had thought there never had been such a day as this, his mother and Hilda and all the other girls and women coming part way up the hill to see them off.

But the most exciting time for Franz had been a month later. They had left the May pasture to grow again, and had their way up to the alp with their 15 cows. For this had been new ground to Franz. The wooden huts of the May pasture with their overhanging roofs—covered with stones to keep the winds from blowing them off—these Franz had known the year before. But he had never been up on the higher level where the huts were all made of stone, because there was no wood.

While in the May pasture Franz had enjoyed holding the strainer over the cheese vat while his father poured the milk through. He had enjoyed carrying the cheese to the storehouse where it was to stay till they came back here in the autumn to take it down to the village. He examined with curiosity, as he had done last year, the four stone feet which raised the storehouse from the ground. He knew now that they were there to keep the mice from getting in and stealing all the cheese which his faher meant to sell to a Canadian merchant. All this he had thought more interesting than just watching the cows as he had done last summer. So Franz was a little disappointed when, on the way to the higher and more rugged alp, his father had announced, ''On the job all the time, Franze. Stay with the cows and watch them—Gretchen particularly. She's the youngest, and most likely to stray.''

Watch the cows all day? He'd have to do something to keep his hands busy. Franz felt in his pocket, pulled out his jacknife, cut off a branch of spruce as big and thick as he could find. They'd soon be above the line where trees could grow. At least he'd have a little wood for whittling. Franz had not spent all last winter with his uncle making toys for nothing.

As Franz started out with the cows that first morning in the high pastures he gazed in wonder across the valley at the high peaks crowned with snow, and at the strange white streaks running down the mountain sides, the glacier sources of the rivers down below. And now, as he watched his charges grazing in the new pasture which looked like thick, green carpet, he caught sight of little dots of color here and there upon the grass and in the black grey rocks. These were mountain flowers, pink, blue, red and white, fresh and waxy from their moist cool beds.

Franz stooped to pick them. But no! These flowers were not to gather. They were far too lovely as they were. And, anyway, his job was watching his cows. Franz lay on his back with knees up in the air, his eye along the green edge of the pasture where the cows were drinking at a mountain stream, his ears open for any change in the tinkle of the cow bells.

The hot sun and the fresh air must have made Franz close his eyes. Suddenly he sat up with a start. ''It won't do to nod. I'll whittle instead. But first I'll count my cows, just to be sure.''

One, two, three, Franz counted, as he did twenty times a day, to be sure none had wandered. One, two, three, up to fourteen! He'd count again. He must have been wrong. One, two, three, up to fourteen again! One cow was missing. Franz said their names over this time as he counted them.

Franz looked up stream and down stream. Then putting the long curved horn up to his mouth, he blew three loud blasts. Clearly the call echoed through the valley below. Deafeningly it hit against the high rocks above. But no Gretchen answered. No Gretchen came in sight. Three more blasts he blew and waited. Still no Gretchen! Fourteen rambling cows came gathering at the call, wondering why they should be disturbed so early. Franze drove them back and started up the high mountain. He couldn't blow his horn now or the cows would follow him along this narrow path where goats and sheep were taken to the still higher alps. He kept calling Gretchen. No answer. He turned and looked down far below. No sign of Gretchen. He looked back to be certain that his cows were grazing peaceably. Then he went on up and up around the mountain side. "Gretchen! Gretchen!" he was calling as he turned the sharp curve.

"Moo! Moo!" at last the answer came.

Franz looked. Yes, it was Gretchen, Gretchen with her head up calling. Gretchen standing on a narrow goatpath. Franz couldn't take his eyes off Gretchen. She looked so beautiful, the tall grey rocks behind her, and far off the Alpine peaks.

Just how Gretchen got back to the pasture Franz never could explain. A misstep on that narrow goat-path would have dashed her to the rocks below.

"It must have been her wisdom," he explained to his father.

But Franz's father was not so sure of Gretchen's wisdom. "That settles it," he announced, "Gretchen shall be tied."

Tied! His beautiful Gretchen tied! And all because he had shut his eyes for a brief moment and allowed her to stray. The thought was too much!

Franz begged hard for Gretchen's freedom. He took all the blame. He promised to watch Gretchen every single minute. His father relented.

Franz kept his promise. He watched Gretchen with the other cows. He watched her by herself. He watched her drinking. He watched her grazing. And more and more, as he watched, he saw how beautiful she was.

Just when the happy thought struck Franz he wasn't quite certain. He says now that it must have begun on that first day in the higher alp when she stood there on the rocky precipice and called "Moo!" He would carve Gretchen, carve her out of wood as his uncle had taught him the past winter to carve dogs and goats and children.

But how could he carve Gretchen with only a spruce branch, and no wood on these higher alps? Well, he could carve part of Gretchen any way.

Franz's mind was filled with Gretchen more than ever now. He could call her name to hear the answer "Mo!" He would blow his horn to see her throw her head back. Then he would take his knife and carve. It might be only her leg. It might be only her horn. Only once did he manage to get out of a particularly large piece of his spruce branch a tiny, tiny, little head. But all the time his mind was on the lower pasture where wood grew in abundance. There, not legs and horns and heads, but whole Gretchen he would carve. And underneath each horn he would carve a tiny G for Gretchen.

When Franz reached home in October his mother couldn't stop gazing in delight at her son's rosy cheeks and happy eyes.

"See what the mountains did for our boy," she said the first night as they sat down to supper.

"The mountains and Gretchen," Franz's father laughed.

"Gretchen and the mountains," called uncle, coming in to join them.

"The mountains may have made those rosy cheeks," Franz's uncle went on, "but it was making little Gretchens that made his eyes sparkle. Gretchen should have more credit than the mountains."

And do you know Franz's uncle probably was right. For, far off in England, when Christmas came, and five little girls each pulled a little wooden black and white cow out of her stocking, five more pairs of eyes began to sparkle. And they kept sparkling for a long while, even though they never knew that the tiny carved G under the horn stood for Gretchen.—Alice Wetherell in The New Outlook.

"I'M GLAD YOU'RE MY MOTHER"

"Mother, did you see that woman ahead of us on Boston Avenue jerk her little girl along and tell her to 'shut up'?"

"Yes, I did, Jerry, and I felt sorry for both of them."

"For both of them? Why I just felt sorry for the little girl. I wonder what she was crying about?"

Jerry and his mother were resting on the lawn under their favorite tree after their trip to town. Although only six years old Jerry was learning to think reflectively.

Both were silent for a while, then the boy continued, "You wouldn't have done that way if something had bothered me until I cried, would you?"

"I hope not, son, but a mother gets quite nervous and upset sometimes. What do you think I would have done?"

"Well, I believe you would have said, 'What's the trouble, Jerry boy, can't you stop crying and tell me about it?' Then I'd have tried to stop and if I couldn't you would have stood still and talked it out with me. Then everything would have been all right. But I'm too big to cry on the street though. * * * I'm sure glad you are my mother, and that we can talk together the way we do."

"That is sweet of you, Little Man, and I appreciate it very much. I'm just as glad you are my son as you are that I'm your mother."

"I guess we are chums," the boy said as he smiled up at his mother. Then he scampered off to meet the dog.

The mother sat wondering about the woman who had impressed her son so unfavorably. Why had she not tried to discover the source of the trouble and to remedy it instead of being so rude and unkind.

"I wonder if the child will ever feel like going to her and talking over her troubles. Will she tell her mother they are chums and she is glad to be her little girl? Why I'd almost have halted traffic, I believe, if necessary to see what caused the child to be unhappy enough to cry like that. Why didn't the woman lead her gently to one side, where they could have discussed the matter quietly until unhappiness was erased from the sweet young face? Then this child, too, could have said, 'I'm glad you're my mother'."—Texas Christian Advocate.

APRIL 24: OPPORTUNITIES FOR LIFE INVESTMENTS.

Scripture Text—Matt. 25:14-29

Daily Bible Readings

Monday: Investing in the Home. Prov. 31:10-12, 27, 28.

Tuesday: Call to Missionaries. Mark 16:14-20.

Wednesday: Medical Missionary. Acts 14:8-18.

Thursday: Business Man. Job 29:1 17.

Friday: Teaching. Acts 19:8-10.

Saturday: Literature. Acts 1:1-8.

Leader's Talk

We are all stockholders in the Kingdom of Heaven. God has endowed each of us with some talent which He expects us to invest for His service. We can sing, or speak, or cheer, or give, or teach, or do something with some especial gift lent by Him. Some do not have as much to invest as their fellow-investors.

We would like each of you to see the wonderful opportunities for life-investment here presented, and of the dividends which these investments bring to its investors. We would have you to understand something of the safety of each investment; an last of all, the ability of every one to make a real worthwhile investment. The Kingdom has been impoverished because many have felt that their investment would be too small to help in any way.

Banks and trust companies and other trustees are called to make reports of how they have invested the funds intrusted to them. So God expects us to give an accounting of our trusteeship over our powers of body, mind, and spirit that should be invested in helpfulness to others.

Suitable Songs

"Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," "Where He Leads I Will Follow," "Will There Be Any Stars?" "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go," "Help Somebody Today," "Work for the Night Is Coming."

Questions for Discussion

1. Are the opportunities as great, or greater, today than they were in years gone by?
2. Why is it that some folks can not see the opportunities for life-investment?
3. What could our own Endeavors do in their life-time, if every talent and every life was completely consecrated to the Lord?
4. What is life?
5. What are some of the dangers which we face of making bad life-investments?
6. What seems to you to present the greatest of all opportunities for a life-investment?

The Day and the Work

"To each man is given a day and his work for the day;
And once, and no more, he is given to travel this way.
And woe if he flies from the task, whatever the odds;
For the task is appointed to him on the scroll of the gods.
There is waiting a work where only his hands can avail;
And so, if he falters, a chord in the music will fail.
He may laugh to the sky, he may lie for an hour in the sun;
But he dare not go hence until the labor appointed is done.

To each man is given a marble to carve for the wall;
A stone that is needed to heighten the beauty of all;
And only his soul has the magic to give it a grace,
And only his hand has the cunning to give it a place.

Yes, the task that is given to each man, no other can do!
So the errand is waiting; it has waited through ages for you.
And now you appear; the hushed ones are turning their gaze,
To see what you do with your chance in the chamber of days."

Octagon and Other Coupons

Rev. C. W. Bates of Greensboro, has offered to give $5.00 to the Auxiliary in the North Carolina Branch which sends in the most coupons during the next three months. Let those three months be May, June and July since we are already passed the middle of April. Gather the coupons and send them after May 1st to Mrs. A. G. Dixon, and be sure to mark them so she will know which Auxiliary they came from.

The Branch Meeting

We were privileged to attend the entire Branch meeting held in Enfield last week. It was a very fine meeting in every way. The interest ran high from the very beginning until the very closing moments.

We promised the women to publish some needs of the Home in this week's Herald.

Needs of the Home at Present

Sheets in three sizes: 48 by 72 inches; 60 by 84 inches; and 80 by 91 or 96 inches.

These sizes give room to "tuck in" which is a very important part of the bed for a child. We like to make them out of the seamless unbleached sheeting. If several went together and bought a bolt of the goods, or if after you had the money together you preferred to send it to us and save the postage. We can get the very best—the Cannon make

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—"Fear God, and keep His commandments: for this the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil." Ecclesiastes 12:13-14. This was the text taken by the pastor at the first appointment in April. The missionary report was given on that date, showing the church what the Woman's Auxiliary had accomplished during the year.

Miss Crystal Bobbitt and Lucy Rogers were elected at delegates to the Branch Meeting held at Enfield. They report a good meeting.

The last appointment was observed as Joash Day. The service was very impressive. The sermon at this time was from Chronicles 24. There was a large congregation at this service, many casting into the chest their offerings. REPORTER.

Liberty, Davidson Charge.—On April 17th at 2:30 p. m. our pastor preached on "The Return of Jesus Christ." An interesting sermon and a very good attendance. Mr. Bingham held communion service, and also took the Joash offering.

Our Sunday school is right good, but we would be very glad if the attendance were better. To those who visit our church services we invite you to come again. We extend an invitation to all. Papa's ill health has made our attendance some less at church; very sorry; his health is now improving.

Our pastor called in his next appointment at Liberty, as that is Circuit Rally day at Chapel Hill; all-day services. He is planning for a program from all his churches and some good speakers also. Mr. Bingham will preach for us the fourth Sunday in May at 2:30. Sunday school at 1:40 except on preaching day.

ANNIE HILL, Reporter.

Siler City.—On the second Sunday night the C. E. of Bonlee rendered a very interesting program in our church. Several splendid talks were made by the boys and girls and also a good talk by the pastor, Rev. F. R. Love. We were indeed glad to have them visit us with this good progrom which was enjoyed by all present. A goodly number of our older people were present and made some very complimentary remarks in regard to the program. We hope they can visit us again. Immediately after this program Mr. Love preached one of his splendid sermons to an attentive audience.

The Emma B. Siler circle met with Miss Minnie Cooper on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a good attendance. New Officers were elected for the year as follows: Mrs. B. E. Fox, chairman, and Mrs. F. L. Smith, secretary and treasurer. At 8 o'clock on the same day, the Clyde Auman circle met with Mrs. C. E. Brady. Mrs. Brady was elected chairman of this circle and Mrs. J. N. Johnson, secretary and treasurer. Delicious refreshments were served at each circle by the hostess. We are hoping that some wonderful things may be accomplished by each circle through the coming year.

Mesdames D. L. Johnson, L. L. Woody, C. E. Brady and Miss Minnie Cooper attended the Branch Meeting at Enfield. They are very enthusiastic over their trip and are hoping they may have this same opportunity another year.

Mrs. E. D. Woody has had charge of the mid-week prayer service for the past two weeks. Mr. W. E. Sharpe was the leader for the past week, but owing to sickness in his home he could not be present. We are glad to report his two children are improving. Mr. D. L. Cooper is our leader for this week. Noah is the character we study.

Rev. W. M. Pike was with us again the third Sunday morning and brought a very helpful and inspiring message from Revelations 3:12. Mr. Pike is one of our superannuates, but he can still preach some mighty good sermons and we are always glad to be numbered in his congregation.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Coley Fox, who has been sick, is improving.

MRS. J. A. COOPER, Reporter.

First Church, Lexington.—The revival which began in this church April 3 was well attended and much interest was shown. Rev. O. C. Loy was the visiting preacher. Mr. Loy, in an impressive way, brought the people some soul-stirring messages It was my pleasure to be with this church again. Both choir and the congregation helped me in song so much some of the best singing that might be had in any church revival was in this one. Some of the very "salt of the earth" help make up this church membership. Rev. C. G. Isley, the pastor, is a progressive. Something like 260 persons have been taken into the membership of this church since Mr. Isley's going there. May the Lord ever lead the people of this church. WAYNE CURTIS.

Henderson.—The union revival meetings which have been in progress for over six weeks came to a close at our church Friday night, April 8th. Rev. Mr. Whitten, pastor of the local Christian church, preached the closing sermon, which was a splendid message for young people. It was also voted by four of the city churches to conduct a union prayer meeting service, each Wednesday night. The churches doing so are the Methodist Episcopal, Presbyterian, Christian, and Methodist Protestant.

On Friday night before Easter a very pretty and impressive pageant was given at the church, "The Easter Vision." Mrs. J. M. Baity was the reader and Mrs. H. A. Jordan, director.

The following ladies attended the third annual Branch Meeting at Enfield, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday: Mesdames L. W. Gerringer, F. R. Harris and Misses Lucy Taylor, and Agnes Harris. Visitors Wednesday were Mesdames J. B. Fox, Roy Dixon, E. G. Finch, Clyde L. Finch, and Rev. L. W. Gerringer.

There was a large congregation present at the morning worship April 17th. Mr. Gerringer preached on "Stewardship" and emphasized how simple and reasonable were the requirements of God of His stewards. At the close of the services, Captain Stafford, of the Salvation Army, made a short appeal for the work of that agency here.

Next Sunday, April 24th, will be Joash Day for our local church here. All members are urged to come with their special offerings and gifts for the Lord's treasury.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Trogden attended the funeral of Mr. Trogden's brother, Mr. I. L. Trogden, of the Tabernacle community, last week.

We are glad to report that Mrs. C. F. Tankersley, Jr., will be able to return to her home in a few days. Mrs. Tankersley has been in the Jefferson Hospital in Philadelphia for over two months. We pray for her a speedy recovery of her normal health.

We were pleased to have Mrs. O. O. Young and daughter, Miss Eleanor, with us today. Miss Young had as guest her room-mate from High Point College. REPORTER.

Fairview Church, Anderson Charge.—The Ladies' Aid of our church held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Smith with Mrs. H. A. Foster as joint hostess. A very interesting discussion of the book of Exodus, chapters ten to twenty, was given by Mrs. Enoch Pepper. The program was in charge of the president, Miss Montez Henderson.

Plans are now being made for our Annual home-coming and Mother's Day, which is to be the first Sunday in May. This is a day which is looked forward to by the members of our church.

The many friends of Sara Ruth Jones, one of the members of our church who is in training at Memphis, Tennessee, will regret to learn that she is seriously sick. We are hoping to hear soon that she is greatly improved. Her mother is with her.

We are very proud of some of the younger members of our Sunday school in their school work. Sara Henderson, with her colleague, won the district debating contest this year, and Janie Sue Freeman, was chosen as one out of 15 in the district Biology contest to represent her school in Columbia during High School Week. Miss Henderson will also go to Columbia.

Two of the members of our Young People's Department, Miss Ino Nalley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olar Nalley, and Mr. Robert Nalley, son of Superintendent T. B. Nalley, were recently married in Pickens. The wedding came as a complete surprise to their many friends, who wish for them a long and prosperous journey upon the sea of life.

Christian Endeavor met Sunday night at 7 o'clock. We were pleased to have with us at this time Mr. Zeb Wolfe, of Easley, who is known as the "Plumber Poet." Mr. Wolfe gave several of his poems, which were very much enjoyed by everyone present.

Lineberry, Davidson Charge.—Pastor E. A. Bingham, as usual, gave us a splendid sermon on the first Sunday, after which the Lord's Supper was administered. Things are moving along in the usual way; a few cases of measles have slowed down attendance at Sunday school slightly, but attendance and interest have been fairly good.

People of the Davidson charge in a great host met and tore down the old parsonage barn and built a new one in one day. This shows what people can do when they co-operate. Brother Bingham also built a pasture, properly wired off and grassed. Last year he dug a splendid cellar or basement under the parsonage; so the best way I know for him to reap a full reward for his labors is to stay a long time with us. We are glad to note that Mrs. Eb Haltom has returned to her home from a High Point Hospital where she underwent a serious operation.

We are told that Prof. Lindley of High Point College will speak in the afternoon the third Sunday in May at the Chapel Hill rally.

The second quarterly conference convened at Pine Hill church Saturday p. m., April 16. The usual business was transacted. Brothers Lee Surratt and N. L. Fine were nominated for delegate.

Brother Bingham will fill his regular appointment at Lineberry tonight.

J. P. Elliott, Reporter.

Midland.—We have just held our second quarterly conference. It was pervaded by a vein of earnestness, optimism and hope. The financial reports, except Pageland (which only lacked $1.71 being paid up to date) were sadly displeasing to the entire conference. However, they pledged themselves to arrange a financial program that will enable the pastor to carry on.

Bro. John Little, of Love's Grove, and Silas Garmon, of Midland, were nominated for delegate to Annual Conference.

The woodwork on the exterior of Love's Grove has been painted and paid for. They like the plan, pay as you go. They have a fine Sunday school and the number and interest are continually increasing.

Pine Bluff has outgrown its quarters and is talking of enlargement. They have very efficient teachers in the persons of Professors James and John Jenkins and other efficient workers.

Pageland continues to do things in a business-like and big way—pounded? Yes, again. Not single handed, but in group. They filled our car with packages galore, and we shall not go hungry for days to come. God bless you all.

Sorry to find the wife of our sainted Bro. Quick sick in bed. Our prayers go out for her speedy recovery. W. D. REED.

Welch Memorial, High Point.—Dr. J. D. Williams, our beloved pastor, brings us great sermons each service and his talks at the mid-week prayer service are uplifting indeed. We have never had a bettter or more loved pastor than he.

Our finances are coming up rather slowly, as so few of our people are working. But the attendance is the best it has ever been after the "newness" of the pastor has worn off.

We had quarterly meeting Wednesday night, April 13th. Howard Voncannon was elected secretary to succeed I. B. Ridge, who is leaving town in a few days.

We observed Joash Day yesterday with a splendid sermon by the pastor, followed by the Joash offering, which amounted to $75.80.

Immediately after the morning service a short business meeting was held for the purpose of electing a pianist and a choir leader. Mrs. W. L. Edwards was elected pianist and Mr. W. B. Delk, choir leader.

Mrs. D. B. Eldridge, who has served as pianist for a number of years, has left town and Mr. I. B. Ridge was former choir leader. The church will miss these workers more than we can yet realize. The meeting voted to each a rising vote of thanks for their faithfulness.

The Sunday school, C. E. Society and Woman's Auxiliary are getting on fairly well, but are suffering some on account of lack of money.

Our revival is to begin the third Sunday in May. Rev. D. R. Williams is to be our pulpit help. We ask an interest in the prayers that this may be a greatt time for old Welch.

A MEMBER.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—April 17 we had 52 bright-faced young men present. Our teacher taught a very interesting lesson. He told us: "Be thou a blessing to our families, neighbors, friends, and community. The only pleasure we have is the pleasure of helping others." It has been said that all we have is what we give. May we give our lives to the Master so we may be a blessing to others. He who obeys God's call and who walks in love and keeps the righteous path, God will bring him home. We must serve God in order that we may reach others.

We were proud of the young men as they marched by the "Joash Box," giving of their means to help support the church. The opening in the box was too small for all that was put in, so Mr. Troxler opened the lid of the box, then it filled very rapidly.

Young men, if you are not in Sunday school anywhere, we will be glad to have you at Shiloh. Visitors, we are always glad to have you.

Orange Charge.—The second quarterly conference met at Union Grove church Saturday, April 16th.

Each church was represented. Good reports were given by a number of the officials. The business of the conference was transacted harmoniously. The following candidates were nominated for delegate to the next Annual Conference: M. P. Efland and L. M. Riley.

Money is scarce, otherwise the work seems to be going very well.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Shiloh.—Today, the third Sunday of April, was Joash Sunday at Shiloh, and what an interesting service it was! Two hundred and fifty-three people were at Sunday school. This reporter always hesitates to even atttempt to give a report on a sermon, for she feels sadly her inability to do justice to the message or the messenger. It is for the sake of those who by sickness or some other good reason are kept at home that we attempt to give even some of the crumbs that fall from the table of good things that are fed to those who are fortunate enough to be able to partake of them. At the 11 o'clock service Bro. Troxler took for his text Luke 14:23: "Go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled." He said Christ came from heaven, and completed the plan of salvation that all might be saved. The invitation is to "whosoever will." Then He sent His servants to invite the guests, but they "with one consent began to make excuse." It was then that He bade them go into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in. There are different methods of constraining people to come into the kingdom, some of which are wrong, and some right.

In the days of Constantine, they legislatel people into the church, and so all kinds of people came in; the church lost its purity of apostolic days and corruption entered in. Later, brutal force was used and those who refused to join were imprisoned, fined or otherwise cruelly treated. In modern times, even amusements have drawn many into churches.

But the Christ-approved method is for His messengers to preach the straight-forward Gospel in its purity, for Jesus said "If I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto me." The other method is to live a Christ-like life. The most convincing argument any witness can offer.

At the close of the message the offering was dropped into the Joash Box, most of the Sunday school classes going up in a body. The co-operation was fine, there being 158 contributions. The offering was $154.80.

Mrs. R. S. Troxler went to Enfield last week as delegate to the Branch Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary. She reports an interesting trip, and we know we will soon hear from her some of the interesting things she saw and heard there.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Leatherman are the happy parents of a little son, Noell Smith. We hope to soon have him in Sunday school.

Mrs. Avery Beck has been right sick for several days and does not improve much. We hope for her an early recovery.

Mrs. Artis Berrier has been suffering from an attack of appendicitis.

On the first Sunday in May Bro. Troxler will preach on "The Treasure of the Aged," and asks that the older people sit together. At the beginning of the service he will preach a three-minute sermon to the children on "Truth in Play."

MRS. W. L. SHOAF, Reporter.

Pleasant Grove.—Our Sunday school attendance was not as large Sunday as usual. There are a few cases of mumps in the school. The monthly offering for the budget was taken Sunday.

Our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, filled his appointment Sunday, bringing a wonderful message, using for his subject "The Barren Fig-Tree."

Christian Endeavor met Sunday evening at 6:45. The topic for study was "Putting Purpose Into Life."

Our pastor used as his subject Sunday night "Wisdom and Knowledge."

The Brotherhood will hold its monthly meeting Saturday night with Mr. Homer Veach. A full attendance is desired.

REPORTER.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Since we were last heard of through the Herald we have been going along in a very satisfactory manner.

John L. May passed away at his home near Alamance on March 30. His health had been gradually declining for some time, and he was critically ill a week. The funeral was held at Friendship church where he was an active member. Surviving are his wife and the following children: Mrs. J. B. Sharpe, Everette, Lonnie, Goley, John, and Coy May, of Alamance, and Curry May, of Burlington; 15 grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Robert Clapp, Graham; Miss Janie May, Haw River.

Miss Norva C. Stinson and Mr. Fleet W. Iseley were united in marriage on March 26 at Danville, Va. Rev. M. T. Sorrell, pastor of the Third Avenue Christian church, officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Stinson, of Belmont. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Iseley.

The Woman's Missionary Society of this church will meet with Mrs. A. C. Iseley Saturday afternoon.

Our C. E. has started again and we hope that everyone who can will attend, as we are planning some good programs.

Asheboro.—The young people of our church have recently re-organized into a Senior Christian Endeavor Society with Catherine Presnell president. On Sunday evening, the 10th, the society was in charge of the evening service, with Rev. Clay Madison, of High Point College, delivering an able address.

Last Sunday evening Mr. Adam Hunt, of the high school faculty was the speaker. He spoke interestingly to the young people on "Putting Purpose Into Life." This society plans to sponsor the evening services with the co-operation of the pastor, and from time to time will have an outside speaker.

On Sunday morning, the 10th, Miss Sylvia Hurst, who is making her home with her sister, Mrs. D. M. Carlton, was received into our church membership by letter from the Baptist church of Oxford. We were very glad to have Miss Hurst unite with us and we feel sure she will be a valuable member. She has been a member of the choir for some time and is a member of one of the missionary circles.

Miss Hettye Sanborne, of Columbia, S. C., was the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., last week.

Mrs. R. D. Lowdermilk and Mrs. R. A. Briles have recently lost their father, Mr. K. L. Winningham, by death. Mrs. S. L. Hayworth also has been called upon to give up a brother, Mr. S. E. Lowdermilk, by death. The church extends sympathy to all these and their families.

Miss Virginia Henry and Mr. Carl Lamb were united in marriage Thursday morning, April 14, at 7:30 at the M. P. parsonage in Greystone Terrace, by the pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins. A few intimate friends and relatives were present. After a motor trip to Charleston, S. C., and other points they will be at home at 209 Church street. Mrs. Lamb. is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Henry and Mr. Lamb the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lamb, of North Asheboro.

Miss Maude Lee Spoon and Mr. Everett F. Boling were united by marriage at the Spoon home Wednesday morning, April 13th, by Rev. R. C. Stubbins. Only members of the two immediate families were present. Mrs. Boling is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Spoon of our church and town. After a motor trip to Washington and other places of interest they will be at home at 607 South Fayetteville street. We extend congratulations to these young people and are happy that they are remaining in our city.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Robert T. Lloyd, who has been confined to her bed with rheumatism for several weeks, is showing much improvement, and we hope she will be back with us in the church activities before a great while.

We have also been missing Mrs. A. R. Winningham and Mrs. Lacy S. Lewis, who have been kept away for some time on account of sickness. We are hoping these may be restored to health and to us in the near future.

Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Harrison attended the annual meeting of the N. C. Branch of Missions of the M P. church at Enfield last week; while there they were the guests of relatives.

Mesdames Wm. C. Hammer, J. T. Pugh, J. P. Pritchard, R. F. Routh and Miss Lollie Jones also attended the Branch Meeting at Enfield. They were entertained in the hospitable home of Mrs. Ruby Pierson, who is a relative of the late Rev. C. L. Whitaker, a former pastor of Asheboro church. Mrs. Hammer was re-elected president of the N. C. Branch for another year. Everyone enjoyed the meeting and the fine hospitality of the people and the privilege of visiting several nearby places of interest.

Next Sunday Joash Day will be observed in our church. All are urged to pay up to date

First Church, High Point.—After the regular session of Sabbath school at 9:45 o'clock Sunday morning under the leadership of Mr. J. H. Jennings, superintendent, the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, at the 11 o'clock worship period delivered an able and eloquent message on the theme, "A Vagrant On a Throne," based on the text in Acts 24:25, "When I have a convenient season, I will call for thee." He said in part: Tomorrow is a cheat; the present is the only time of life. The highways of life are strewn with the wrecks of what was intended to be done tomorrow. The translation of Goodspeed says, "I will find time later." No one can find a chunk of time, but who has not lost it? The biggest fallacy of the age is that we cannot find time to do something worth while. A vagrant is one who lives without any aim or purpose; such an one was Felix. Like Dickens' Mr. Micawber, he was always waiting for something to turn up. When Paul was sent to Felix for trial, his witness of his faith caused Felix to tremble, but he never found time to decide for Christ. He had been born a slave, but rose to be governor, and found time for whatever else he wanted to do; could steal another man's wife, had itching palms for bribery, and took time to satisfy his curiosity about the preacher's views, but not to make a definite decision. "Procrastination is the thief of time," so the old copybooks put it, and every neglected opportunity or stifled conviction leaves the sinner weaker and worse. "To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." More people have gone to hell by putting off decision than by intellectual heresy. So many otherwise sensible people are vagrants, looking for something they never find. "Behold, now is the day of salvation." The Lord of Pretty Soon is a gay deceiver. What have you done with your opportunity?"

The Young People's Christian Endeavor Society held its weekly meeting at 6:45 o'clock Sunday evening at the church. The Senior C. E. Society met as usual Monday evening at 7:30, and those in attendance had the pleasure of hearing an uplifting address by Prof. Henry Grady Owens, assistant principal and well known English teacher in the local high school.

The following ladies have been elected chairmen of the new Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary: No. 2, Mrs. Lucy Oakes Harper; No. 3, Miss Naomi Morris; No. 4, Mrs. J. T. Ryan; No. 5, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker; No. 6, Mrs. S. D. Shelton; No. 7, Mrs. J. H. Allred; No. 8, Mrs. R. H. Gunn. These leaders are efficient and loyal workers, and we bespeak for them the cordial support of every member of these groups. The Circles held meetings Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the attendance at each was promising. Many plans and projects for the coming months were discussed, and some adopted. Circle No. 5, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, chairman, held its meeting with Mrs. P. E. Lindley with an attendance of 13. Officers of this Circle besides chairman are: First vice-chairman, Mrs. P. E. Lindley; second vice-chairman, Mrs. H. A. Moffitt; secretary, Mrs. R. T. Pickens; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Pritchard; ways and means committee, Mesdames C. C. Robbins and J. C. Whitesell. This Circle will hold a sale of flower and vegetable plants on the church lawn Friday morning, April 22nd, beginning at 9 o'clock. Circles Nos. 4 and 5 are planning to unite in the presentation of a play, possibly "The Old District Skule," or one of a similar nature, at a date in the near future.

Rev. Mr. Farmer will deliver the Baccalaureate sermon at a consolidated school in Cleveland county next Sunday morning, April 24th—hence "Joash Day" will be observed on the following Sunday, May 1st.

The ranks of our membership have again been invaded by death. After a long period of ill health, the past five years of which she was practically an invalid, Mrs. C. A. Vuncannon died at her home, 823 West Green street, Monday morning, April 18, at 8 o'clock. Born June 25, 1864, near Randleman, she was a daughter of the late Samuel and Martha Odell Underwood and niece of the late Capt. J. Milton Odell, of Greensboro. On August 21, 1881, she was married to Charles A. Vuncannon, who survives her. They moved to High Point 28 years ago. To them were born ten children, eight of whom survive: A. M. Vuncannon, Waverly, Kansas; S. C. Vuncannon, A. C. Vuncannon, Mrs. R. C. Boyd, Mrs. R. J. Shumaker, Mrs. Dora Guin, Mrs. M. B. Shoemaker, and Miss Altah Vuncannon, all of High Point. There are 12 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Last August Mr. and Mrs. Vuncannon celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary, and the children, grandchildren, and a number of friends held a happy reunion in their honor. Impressive funeral services were conducted at the home, 823 West Green street, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, and burial followed in the family plot in Oakwood Cemetery. Mrs. Vuncannon was a faithful wife, devoted to her home and children, a kind neighbor, and possessed many warm friends. Truly it may be said of her, "She hath done what she could." To the bereaved sons and daughters who have lost their best earthly friend, a loving and unselfish mother, and to her companion who walked by her side for more than a half century, our sincere and heart-felt sympathy is offered.

We are pleased to learn that little Miss Anne Auman has recovered from an illness of three weeks with measles and influenza.

The large number of friends of Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., and Capt. A. M. Rankin, who have been ill, will be rejoiced to learn that both are improving.

Mrs. J. C. Welch, Jr., left Guilford General Hospital Tuesday morning for her home on Greensboro Road. She is recovering from a recent operation.

Mrs. John B. Spencer, who had a bad fall a week ago, and sustained a painful injury to her left shoulder, is showing decided improvement, to the gratification of many friends.

Messrs. C. L. and J. A. Gray and their families motored to Tabernacle church last Sunday afternoon, and attended the Concert by High Point College Choir.

Miss Elizabeth Welch, who underwent an operation for goitre at Guilford General Hospital last Thursday, performed by Dr. Herbert H. Ogburn, of Greensboro, is making progress toward rapid recovery, and expects to go home the latter part of this week. This will be good news to many friends.

The Senior class of the college is presenting a play, "Four Hearts Doubled," a comedy in three acts by George Savage and Edouard Peltret, this (Tuesday) evening in the auditorium. Leading soles will be played by Miss Sue Morgan, of Asheboro, and Frank Robbins, of High Point.

Many friends who remember Miss Eugenia Williams, member of class of 127 at High Point College, who is now Mrs. Reginald Strouse, of Hagerstown, Md., will learn with great interest of the arrival of a baby daughter on Wednesday, April 13, at Burlington, N. C. The little girl has been named Julia Anne.

The oldest member of our congregation, Mrs. Harriet Trogdon Guire, of Lenoir, N. C., who is the highly esteemed widow of the late J. Wesley Guire, of this city, is today, April 19th, celebrating her 90th birthday at the home of ser son, Virgil D. Guire, in Lenoir, N. C. A large number of relatives and friends here, who remember her so pleasantly, are extending greetings and best wishes for many happy returns of the day.

Mount Lebanon, Randleman.—On the first Sunday in April we had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Taylor, president of the Conference.

Last Sunday was Joash Day at our church. The offering amounted to $21.66. We also observed the communion of the Lord's Supper.

Next Sunday is Joash Day at New Salem and Level Cross.

We are very sorry to report that our pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, is at this writing confined to his bed. He has not been well for some time. We are hoping for him a speedy recovery. REPORTER.

Lebanon, High Point Our Sunday morning service was taken care of by our pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison. He brought us a helpful message on "The Responsibilities and Possibilities of the Church." At our evening service we had a visitor, Rev. W. M. Howard, from High Point tCollege. He brought us a good message on "The Significance of the Cross." We have enjoyed the sermon brought to us by this visiting minister and hope to have him with us again soon.

Our services on April 10 were especially good. At the 11 o'clock service our pastor delivered a most inspiring message on "The Seriousness of Christianity." After the sermon I believe everyone left resolving to live a more perfect life.

Sunday evening Rev. Clifford Peace preached to us, our pastor being called to Asheboro at this time. His subject was "The Lost Christ." This sermon was well delivered and very original.

Our representatives to the Branch Missionary meeting were Mrs. C. B. Welch and Mrs. J. M. Horney and Miss Jewell Welch, visitor. They were royally treated by the people of Enfield and enjoyed the meeting.

We will observe Joash Day next tSunday. REPORTER.

First Church, Albemarle.—On last Friday night Mrs. J. P. Green entertained the Intermediate department in the social room of the church. After enjoying games and contests refreshments were served to about 15 children.

The Men's Bible class has had on a contest for the past three months, and a very enthusiastic race has been enjoyed. Both teams endeavored to win up to the very last Sunday. Last Sunday was the winding up date for the race. When the scores were tallied it was found that the red team had won. The losing team will furnish the dinner in the dining hall of the church Friday night. All members are urged to attend and bring your friends.

Due to the fact that Mr. Anderson is holding a revival at Kannapolis, Rev. O. B. Williams, of Friendship, filled the pulpit Sunday evening. Mr. Williams delivered a very inspiring message, using as his subject "What Makes Christians?"

Mr. D. F. Harkey, one of our faithful members, has been ill for the past week. Our prayer is that Mr. Harkey will soon be with us again.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge. One hundred and twenty persons were present for Sunday school Sunday morning and others came for the preaching hour. Rev. O. C. Loy used as his text the first eight verses of the second chapter of Ephesians. His subject was "The Eternal Building." "In life, men build various structures when in time to come they crumble down in the dust. We build for our own convenience. For instance, a farmer would not build an office for a tobacco barn. What we build determines the style and design. We build our characters while we hire the other buildings to be builded. The Eternal Building lasts as long as God exists himself. People are very careless how they design life's character. We build a temporal foundation whereas we should build a permanent one. Lots of people today build on education, yet many crimes are committed by highly educated people; so education is not a permanent foundation for life's character. Nothing can harm us if we are founded on the teachings of Jesus Christ. The very thoughts of our minds are material to develop life's character. When a man thinks of evil things you find him acting his thoughts. Money serves as a coat of paint to evil character. Men may do their evil in darkness to earthly people but it is another piece of material added to life's character. When a new building is completted, an inspector inspects the building to see if it will stand and can be used safely. When we leave this earth and go before our Father we go before the greatest inspector of man. Everyone enjoyed this splendid message.

Miss Bessie Swaim, who for some time has been a patient at the High Point Hospital, has returned to her home and is doing very nicely.

The Young People's C, E. Society will meet Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Myrtle Byerly will be in charge of the program.

Mrs. I. I. York, Misses Esther Mae Dillon and Votra Swaim were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam L. York and family Sunday.

Miss Alma Beck, of near Thomasville, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hilton.

The five churches on the North Davidson charge are building a parsonage at this time. It is situated near Canaan church and will soon be completed.

Chapel Hill, Davidson Charge.—Pastor Bingham preached a good sermon today and administered the Lord's Supper. Also Joash Day was observed. The collection was something over $6.00. The congregation was not very large.

Rally Day or home-coming day will be observed the third Sunday in May. Come.

We have lost three of our members by death: Mrs. Mabry Russell, one of our friends and neighbors, one that we loved and had spent pleasant hours with; Mrs. Mary Luther, we will miss her at the camp meeting; Mrs. George Smith, loved by all.

We ask all Christians to pray that we may have a great outpouring of the Holy Spirit at camp meeting the third Sunday in September. LIZZIE CRANFORD.

West Forsyth.—Last Sunday was a good day for Pleasant Hill church. In the Sunday school we had several visitors. Prof. Carl M. Felts, principal, and Mr. A. M. Thomas, teacher, of Old Richmond Consolidated school, were welcome visitors, and each taught a class, Professor Felts speaking to the adult class and Mr. Thomas teaching the young ladies' class. The Friendly Road male quartet, of Guilford College, which had been invited to sing for the preaching service, arrived in time for the Sunday school, and rendered one selection for the Sunday school.

Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of the North Carolina Annual Conference, was the speaker for the church service, and delivered one of the best sermons ever heard at Pleasant Hill. His theme was, "Building the Church." "Joash Day" was observed at the close of the sermon, and a very fine response was given to this part of the service. The offering received for $12.50, and 50 cents added later. The Friendly Road quartet, led by Rev. J. C. Trivette, rendere four selections during the service.

After the service at Pleasant Hill last Sunday morning, the pastor, Dr. Taylor, Professor Felts, Mr. Thomas and the members of the quartet went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hunter, where a most sumptuous dinner was enjoyed. The family of Brother C. G. Hunter was present for the dinner, providing their share. The pastor and wife also provided their share of the dinner. The quartet rendered a number of selections after the dinner.

The second quarterly conference was held at Stony Knoll church last Saturday with four of the six churches represented. Dr. S. W. Taylor was with us and preached at the morning service, discussing the subject, "Jesus, the Solution of All Our Problems." A good dinner was enjoyed during the noon hour, which was provided by the members of Stony Knoll church. At 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon the business session of the conference was held. Dr. Taylor presided. Fairly good reports were made by the pastor and superintendents of Sunday schools. The finances were reported far behind what they were one year ago. The pastor reported having received $195.14 on the salary since the beginning of the new Conference year. Plans were adopted for providing a better financial support of the pastor, after a statement was made to the conference that the amounts being received were not sufficient to meet the financial obligations of the pastor. Bro. A. R. Long, of Pleasant Hill church, and Bro. A. A. Doub, of Baltimore church, were elected nominees for delegate to the next Annual Conference.

Our appointment for next Sunday will be at Harmony Grove church. We are expecting to observe the ordinance of the Lord's Supper at that service.

West End, Thomasville.—We were very glad to have our pastor, Rev. H. W. Bell, back with us on Sunday evening, as he has been away for two weeks helping Rev. R. L. Vickery in a meeting at Draper, N. C. We were also glad to have Mr. Vickery come and preach for us on Sunday evening. While our pastor was away his place was filled on April 3 by Dr. Dixon, from the Children's Home, and on April 10 by Rev. T. Glenn Madison, pastor of First M. P. church, Thomasville. We enjoyed all these sermons very much and we pray God's blessings on all these pastors.

At this writing one of our faithful members and workers of the church and Sunday school, also one of our Sunday school teachers, are on the sick list. We are sorry to note this and we all wish them speedy recovery.

We feel that our Sunday school and also our Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor are progressing nicely. Our C. E. Society is planning on visiting the society at Advent Moravian church, near Winston-Salem, some time in the near future.

Our revival starts the first Sunday in May with Rev. Robert Short assisting. We are praying for a great success.

Winston-Salem, First.—Imagine, if you can, what an audience of twelve thousand people would be like. That is the approximate number that Gipsy Smith, the great English evangelist, preached to here yesterday afternoon and almost the same number heard him again last night in the closing service of the three weeks' campaign. Six thousand heard him in the warehouse yesterday and six thousand more crowded the great auditorium and Sunday school building of the First Baptist church and the great new Centenary M. E. church, South, and the State Theatre. All of these buildings were equipped with amplifiers which carried the sound from the warehouse. The meeting has been a great blessing to our city. Approximately 27,000 cards of profession or reconsecration, the larger amount being reconsecrations, were signed. Gipsy Smith is a great preacher. He has preached for more than 50 years and has been on all five continents of this world.

In our Sunday school yesterday we had about a dozen decisions for Christ. The pastor will meet these boys and girls Friday afternoon of this week at 4 o'clock to give them instruction in baptism and church membership with a view to receiving them next Sunday. We also are to receive several by letter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Coble and son and daughter and Mrs. Coble's father, Brother E. M. Routh, moved to Burlington last week. For the past eight years Mr. and Mrs. Coble and Brother Routh have been in our church here and all have been identified with the organizations of the church. Brother Routh is a class leader and also one of our most faithful stewards. We are very sorry to lose these good people from our city, but in these strenuous times we cannot censure anybody for going where he can find work.

English Street Church.—Our revival meeting has been going on for a week now. We have been having some wonderful meetings. Our pastor, Rev. C. H. Hill, has been conducting the services. There have been approximately 25 conversions. We have been having many visitors and plenty of special music. The Goodwill Quartet has been with us several nights, and a trio of girls from Midway have been present also. Sunday night the church was filled to overflowing. We were indeed glad to have with us Rev. and Mrs. G. L. Reynolds, former pastor and wife.

The Sunday school is also doing good work under the able leadership of R. T. Holcomb.

We have organized a new Intermediate Christian Endeavor which is doing splendid work. They have approximately 30 members, with around 90 per cent attendance at all meetings. The Senior C. E. Society is also trying to go forward, not without many obstacles, however. The society holds prayer meeting each night before the services.

Mrs. M. J. Embler, of this church, is able to be out again after an attack of influenza.

Calvary, Greensboro.—A letter has gone out to the membership of Calvary church setting forth our hopes and aims for next Sunday, when we shall celebrate our eighth anniversary. We are expecting a record-breaking attendance at the Sunday school session, to start the day off right. At 11:00, the president of the Annual Conference, Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D., will preach the anniversary sermon. As part of the morning service other than the sermon, we shall have the calling of the roll of the honored dead; and the calling of the roll of the living membership. We expect every member to respond with an offering which they will bring forward and place is the Joash Box. (We challenge any church in the Conference to produce a finer box than one of our carpenter-members has made, and, shall I say it, we challenge any church to put more in the box than we propose to put in it.) We are hoping to get $500 as our offering. And we have expectations of getting 33 folks to unite with us, rounding out a net membership of 300. We have a good many more prospects than that from which to secure that number.

At the close of the morning service we will have dinner on the ground. A good many of our folks fasted last Sunday, when we observed "Sacrifice Sunday." I think they are going to feast next Sunday.

And in the afternoon, as soon as we have recovered from the dinner and have had a chance to chat a while, we will enter upon a fellowship service. We are hoping to have the pastors of the other Methodist Prottestant churches with us, and a good number of their members. Come on, folks, and help us celebrate.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

APPRECIATION

Dear Editor:

I want to express my appreciation to the 49 churches for their response and assistance in making the Thank Offering Demonstration at our Branch Meeting last week such a splendid success.

My faith was strengthened and lifted at their interest so gladly and willingly expressed. We wish we could convey to Rev. J. F. Minnis in India just the spirit as it was expressed. We are sure he would take courage and new zeal and realize we are with him in mind and heart, and it's for him, the N. C. Branch, and myself that I say "Thank you."

We believe Henderson was really blessed while they were gathering in their offerings for the pastor seemed happy over it as he told me of their efforts and results. We are proud of them and everyone who really gave a thank offering for the Lord and His work, and a prayer for the workers.

When you Auxiliaries elect your T. O. secretary I will appreciate you sending me her name and address.

MRS. J. W. BOYLES, Sec'y T. O.
Thomasville, N. C.

DUTIES OF THE TREASURER

The office of treasurer is one of very great importance and one that should be magnified in the estimation and appreciation of Christian people. It should be considered a privilege to be chosen as a custodian of the Lord's Treasury, and an ideal treasurer is one who should have an absorbing passion for the work which she undertakes. She should be systematic, methodical, neat, prompt and accurate in her work, but above all, she should emphasize the teaching of the stewardship of possessions. She should be always, "not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord."

Here are some suggestions which may be of practical use to all treasurers:

1. She should be exact, and should keep accurate account of each receipt and disbursement.

2. She should have love for, and enthusiasm in, her work.

3. She should secure a complete list of the treasurers in her special department, and should keep in close personal touch with them.

4. She should know the Methodist Protestant Program and its objectives. She should be thoroughly familiar with all the financial plans of the Branch and Auxiliary. She must also know the plans, budget and percentages of the New Century Service and the budgets of her own Conference, Branch and Church and be prepared for full co-operation in them.

4. She should be thoroughly acquainted with the Missionary Record, her own church papers, and if possible the outside periodicals, such as, the Missionary Review of the World, and so forth. Her aim should be to keep her people in touch and sympathy with the needs of a suffering world.

6. She should encourage letters of inquiry from her treasurers, she should answer them promptly, patiently, fully, giving all possible help to the solution of problems that are brought to her.

7. She should emphasize the importance of making a budget at the beginning of the new church year, and she should stress the necessity for first meeting that budget. At the same time, she should encourage the assuming of special objects, after the budget has been raised.

8. She should strive to establish a regular systematic, scriptural standard of giving, which shall observe the relative percentages between the various department of the church's work, "the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor that ye through his poverty might be rich."

9. She should endeavor each year to make her work more efficient and more characterized by the grace of giving. She should never apologize for asking for money, if it is to be used for the extension of our Lord's Kingdom upon the earth.

10. She should begin, continue and end all her efforts in the spirit and exercise of fervent prayer.

The Branch Treasurer

This treasurer shall receive direct from the local Auxiliaries the contingent fund and all other funds pledged to the budget, all offerings made at annual and special meetings, and any other funds which have received the endorsement of the Branch Executive Committee. She shall disburse these funds according to the direction of the Executive Committee. She shall close her books on or before April 15 of each year. She shall, with two others, appointed by the president, constitute a finance committee, whose duty it shall be to prepare the apportionment for Auxiliaries for the ensuing year and present the same at the annual meeting of the Branch. She shall give a full report, properly audited, at the annual meeting.

She shall forward at least once a month all funds credited to the Budget and Board of Missions to 516 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Maryland.

She shall stress the grace of Christian Stewardship in the local Auxiliaries, and secure co-operation in having funds remitted promptly.

The Treasurer of the Local Auxiliary

This treasurer shall receive all the funds of the Auxiliary. She shall collect all voluntary offerings, and the pledges from the Circle treasurers. She shall pay bills and disburse funds as directed by the Executive Committee, and shall make a monthly statement to the Auxiliary. She shall close her books on or before March 31, and shall compile an annual financial report of the Auxiliary.

She shall stress the grace of Christian Stewardship, and secure co-operation in having all funds remitted when due. She shall urge upon the Auxiliary the importance of maintaining the proper relationship between the various causes represented in the Budget.

She shall place in her pastor's hands pastor's receipts for all funds sent to the Branch Treasurer, which are to be credited on General Conference Budget.—Leaflet, Committee on Education.

THE PRE-REGISTRATION CAMPAIGN FOR THE CONFERENCE LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

This campaign has started. We want to get as many registrations as we possibly can before the school meets on June 27. If this campaign is to be a success, we must all do our part and do it NOW.

I would like to request all pastors to send me the names of the agents for all the churches on their charge before May 1. I am very anxious to get instructions to these agents at the earliest possible date.

A number of the pastors have already selected their agents. Agents, do not put off your work to the last minute but begin it at once. Send me the names and the money as fast as you get the registrations. The registration fee is 25 cents for all. I feel sure that you are going to do your part to make this campaign a success. Let us all remember the Conference Leadership Training School at High Point College June27-July 3. It will be a week of FELLOWSHIP, INSPIRATION, INSTRUCTION.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

—at whole sale prices and getting the heavy weight it wears well. We have a friend in the laundry business here who does all our flat work free of charge. This is a fine donation but the clothing does not last quite as well as if we could do it all ourselves. At the present this is impossible until we can get new laundry equipment. Our old equipment has worn out, completely.

Pillow Cases: 3 sizes—18 inches wide by 32 long; 20 or over inches wide and 36 inches long; 12 by 20 inches for the little folks. We use the regular 18-inch size for most of our beds but have several wide pillows that require the wider slips, then the little folks have quite tiny pillows.

Bed Spreads: Same size as sheets except from a half foot to a foot shorter.

Knives and Forks and Spoons: Teaspoons and tablespoons. Knives and forks of the stainless metal last so much longer and are so much cheaper than silver that we like them better. Then too they always cut better and stay sharp.

Hose: For girls from number 7's to number 10's, cotton, ankle, knee and full; for boys from number 7's to number 12's, cotton, socks and long stockings.

All Kinds of Pretty Prints for Dresses: The sun and tub-proof as no other pays to make up when you have to pay help to do it. These pieces can often be gotten at sales for small amounts, in three and four yard lengths and for the smaller children two and two and one-half yards will do with white bloomers.

Unbleached muslin, or as called some places, bleaching. We can get at the wholesale house just the weight we like for this by taking a whole bolt at 7 or 8 cents per yard. This is for underclothing—bloomer waists, bloomers and slips.

Window Curtain Material: Our windows are very large, both wide and high. It will take 5 1-2 yards full width for a pair of windows. We would rather have the material in the yard goods as it would be difficult to tell you the number of windows in each room or rather it would take a bit of time and then those facing on sides and on each story of the buildings.

Towels and Wash Cloths: 12 to 15 dozen of these.

Tooth brushes and tooth paste and children's combs are a standing need.

Clothing: Good worn clothing and shoes and new clothing for children are always acceptable. However, if any one think of buying clothing to send to us, they would far better send the money and let us buy the clothing since we can get it at wholesale and at factory prices.

We thank you for your constant thought of us, and for your prayer and your help.

ONE IS YOUR MASTER EVEN CHRIST AND ALL YE ARE BRETHREN.

VOLUME XXXVIII GREENSBORO, N. C., APRIL 28, 1932 NUMBER 25

God's Way Is Best

It matters not
How you're imprest,
It's clearly true—
God's way is best.

With other way
Your mind's obsessed,
But you'll find out—
God's way is best.

Most selfish ways
Are often stressed:
Beware of them—
God's way is best.

The way of ease
Is strongly pressed:
But seek it not—
God's way is best.

Your vital force
Is best expressed
When you are sure
God's way is best.

An Unsolved Problem of the Children's Home

Our Children's Home has rendered a great service during the years of its existence, yet its superintendents have been made to realize that its service might have been much greater if means had been sufficient. For support it is absolutely dependent upon the gifts of benevolent people. It has appealed for help to churches and especially to Sunday Schools. Churches are asked for an offering at Thanksgiving and Christmas and Sunday Schools are asked for a monthly offering. A very large proportion of its receipts comes from the Sunday Schools in their monthly offerings. But some Sunday Schools have not formed the habit of contributing once a month. This fact presents an unsolved problem. It is surely fitting that all our people become supporters of the Children's Home. It is surprising that even one Sunday School should have failed so long to enlist in this humane and Christian service. Without stopping to consider who is responsible for the failure in the past, we propose that there be earnest consideration of the problems of enlisting all unlisted Sunday Schools. Not only does the Home need the additional help for its work, but the children and older people in all our Sunday Schools need the moral and spiritual development which they would experience through this exercise of charity. Children are naturally sympathetic and would freely share what they have with other children if informed of the need and given opportunity. May we make a suggestion? It is that the pastor and the superintendent of the Sunday School talk the matter over and try to agree upon a course that will result in regular monthly giving to the Children's Home by the Sunday School. If the question were asked in any Sunday School after proper explanation, "How many of you would like to make an offering to the Children's Home once a month?" we believe many hands would go up. The first responsibility is on the official leaders.

Behold What Spring Is Doing!

Look out upon the fields and forests and see! What a miracle is being wrought before your eyes! The Great Artist is at work. He is painting a masterpiece. What beautiful combinations of colors He exhibits, what graceful forms He brings out! He is clothing the hills and valleys and mountains with beauty. Every detail receives attention. Each leaf and flower and blade of grass is in itself a perfect design. What delightful harmony in the whole. The spring should move to praise and prayer and song.

The God who makes the lily—
Does He not love the pure?
Who makes the leaves of healing—
Will He not bring a cure?

O wondrous Wonder-Worker
Who fillst the world with beauty,
May we have eyes to see,
And hearts for ev'ry duty!

An Interesting Sight

Along the highway between Concord and Charlotte, N. C., may be seen numbers of water-worn stones. Some of them resemble the bodies of huge beasts stripped of their limbs. Some of them are as large as small houses, and show only their rounded upper surface above the ground. What a story these stones could tell if they could remember and relate! Quarried by earth-quakes and volcanic eruptions, shaped and dressed by ocean waves, transported in trains of glaciers, unloaded here by torrid southern suns. The monuments of Egypt cannot begin to compare with them in age. These stones have traveled far and might tell an amazing story if they could be awakened and induced to talk. It is worth while to travelers with a little time to spare to stop and gaze upon these sleeping stones. Older than the human race, they will probably remain after man has gone hence.

THE WET PARADE

By Luther K. Long

Something more than a year ago the talking picture version of that old temperance drama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," commenced its deservedly interesting and popular career. That career is not yet ended; and it should not stop until every man, woman, and child in the entire country has had at least one opportunity to see and hear it.

The picture is realistic, vivid, and tremendously impressive. And its influence is not only against the old-time saloon, which nobody is willing openly to invite to return, but also against the custom of drinking—that many people are thinking is not so bad.

This picture is based on Upton Sinclair's novel by the same name. The novel has been characterized by an able religious editor as the best prohibition tract produced in recent years.

The first part of the picture deals in detail with drink and its dreadful consequences. A southern colonel with a loving wife, a promising son, and a beautiful daughter—Dorothy Jordon plays that part—ends his life with a razor in a pig pen. Walter Huston takes the part of the hotel-keeper whose wife and son do the work while he drinks and plays politics. So successfully destructive does his drinking become that he finally kills his wife, and he lands in the penitentiary for the rest of his days.

The second part of the deals with conditions under prohibition. Boot-leggers, racketeers, and the organization of rumrunners with the consequent corruption of officials, and the imperfect and only partically successful efforts to enforce the law, all come in for condemnation.

"The Wet Parade," as a drama is not so well organized as is the "Ten Nights in a Barroom." The latter, from the beginning to the end, carries conviction in every scene and in every word. Every performer is absolutely true to his or her task. There is never the least doubt as to the purpose and end of the whole performance. The audience is moulded into one, and the people go out of the theatre as from a church in which they have heard God's message of sympathy for the victims—innocent or otherwise—of strong drink, and His condemnation of the business and those who would profit by it.

One does not feel quite the same in the case of "The Wet Parade." I asked the man who sat next to me, before the show began, whether it was a picture that favored the wets or the drys. He said he didn't know. He knew that it made a great impression in New York where he went every two weeks.

He admitted to being wet, though he would be willing to have prohibition if it could be enforced—but present conditions are very bad. As the picture moved along there was great interest. Sentiment was divided in the audience. There were scenes when opponents of drink could not help expressing approval by clapping of hands, and there were situations developed when the wets did not restrain themselves from expressing disapproval of the law and its enforcers. The son of the Colonel who had taken his own life in a pig pen, was made blind by poison boot-leg whisky. The Doctor explained that the government had used a denaturant to render it unfit for beverage purposes, and the boot-legger forgot to take the poison out. Of course, the fault in the unfortunate transaction was the government's rather than that of the boot-legger or the drinker, and a section of the audience evidently approved.

Jimmy "Snozzle" Durant was the chief of the prohibition enforcers in the field. He evidently got lots of fun out of his job and amused many in the audience. But he is scarcely the type to give a picture crowd a fair view of the gravity of the job to which he was assigned. The head of the enforcement department was made to admit that he didn't believe much in the law, but did what he was told.

There are serious problems connected with prohibition. Did the temperance people make a mistake in getting national prohibition so soon? Have we relied too much on law? Are we now in a strong position to continue the educational and moral fight effectively? Will the best strategy lead us to a readjustment of our front, and a re-aligning of our forces for more effective warfare? I may have some things to say on those matters later.

I trust that the end of talkies dealing with temperance and prohibition is still a long way in the future. With the right sort of pictures, tremendous impressions for good may be made. People should let producers know how they feel. Demand for certain sorts of films will undoubtedly make a difference in the supply.

TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

The quarterly conference of the Methodist Protestant Church in Henderson met Monday night and adopted some resolutions which they asked be formulated by the committee whose names are appended to this report. First, we ask the General Conference to abolish the office of traveling President and that of the Promotional Secretary.

Second. That not more than ten members constitute the Board of Missions nor more than six for the Board of Christian Education and that they undertake to cut all expense except where it is absolutely essential and will be so recognized by our membership generally.

Third, that the President of the General Conference, the Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions and the Editor of the Methodist Protestant-Recorder constitute the Executive Committee.

Fourth, that the apportionment of monies to the different boards and agencies be reported separately to the conferences rather than by budget.

Fifth, if they fail to adopt item four, then to allow the Children's Home four per cent. rather than the present allowance of one per cent.

Sixth, that if a fixed amount is mentioned in the budget, it will not be more than can be reasonably expected.

Seventh, that we do not set up many separate organizations inside our church and at the same time weaken ourselves by talking Union with other Churches.

S. R. Harris, Sr.,
T. J. Evans,
Committee.

OBSERVE MOTHER'S DAY IN THE GOLDEN RULE WAY

The Golden Rule Foundation of New York has released the following facts and suggestions for publication in the Magazines and church papers of the country.

Of course send flowers, candy and telegrams to your mother—if she is living.

But Remember—Myriads of widowed mothers and orphaned children are today praying—not for flowers but for flour; not for candy but for bread.

Therefore whatsoever Mother would do for a sick neighbor or a hungry child, do in her name for destitute mothers and children who lack the necessities of life.

Preparatory to an observance of Mother's Day that should bring new hope and joy to many despairing mothers, the Survey Department of the Golden Rule Foundation has made a study of the influence of the present economic depression upon aged persons and dependent children. The following facts are gleaned from 803 replies to questionnaires sent to 3,442 institutions caring for aged people and dependent children.

Eight-one per cent of the orphanages reported increases in applications from 25 to 100 per cent over former years. One superintendent reports, "Greater numbers are applying than ever before in the history of our institution."

Eighty-eight per cent of these benevolent organizations report serious financial problems. Estimates on decreases in income range from ten to 60 and average about 30 per cent. One superintendent said, "Financing our work has simply been a nightmare." Another said, "Our work has increased 100 per cent without funds to meet this."

Many parents and relatives are no longer able to contribute to the support of children under institutional care. Thus the full cost of support falls upon the already under-financed institutions.

Many children of discharge age cannot find employment and must be kept on in the institution at added expense.

Seventy-seven per cent of the homes for the aged report large increases in applications for admission. Says one superintendent, "Received more appeals in 1931 than we did in previous 15 years?

"I'm Hungry, Mother"

That is the cry that is breaking the heart of mothers today. They have done all they can. They have made every possible sacrifice. They too are hungry, but it is the hunger of their little ones that is breaking their hearts.

"I was left a widow last September.—Am under doctor's care and not able to work. I applied for Mother's Aid. They said I must wait at least a year and a half, and could not promise me even then. I had a few dollars in the bank from my husband's insurance, but the bank closed and I lost every cent."

The above are some facts gleaned from literature sent out by the Golden Rule Foundation.

We have before us the following letter which must be answered today. How would you answer it?

"My dear Dr. Dixon:—I am a widow with five children, and would like to have a home for the two youngest. One is six and the other is nine. I have been struggling along for three years trying to care for the children hoping that I could care for them without asking for help. But I realize that I cannot care for them longer, so am asking you to please help me by giving two of them a home." This letter comes from one of the most faithful little churches in this Conference. And it comes backed by the appeal of one of our leading laymen, a layman who is delegate to the approaching General Conference.

This letter and others like it come to us almost every week. WHAT SHALL THE ANSWER BE? The 200,000 Methodist Protestants in this country must give the answer.

We are at our extremity. But thank God, "Man's Extremity Is God's Opportunity."

Yours in His blessed service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent,
M. P. Children's Home,
High Point, N. C.

TITHING IN HARD TIMES

There is no better time to begin to tithe than a time of business depression. Then it takes both faith and courage.

If tithing were a sure thing, like buying five dollar bills for $4.00, it would have no more moral value than any other form of bargain hunting. Everybody would tithe; the man most careful to pay the tenth might be the most avaricious man in town.

That's not the tithing God has promised to bless. Tithing is a sure thing; and usually it leads to material betterment. But not always; and never, in any magical or non-moral way.

The law of the tithe is not a law for times and seasons. It does not rest on circumstances, whether good or bad. The true Christian will begin to obey it as soon as he realizes that it is a law, and that it is for his guidance and his good.

All true enough; nevertheless, there are special reasons and special values attached to tithing in hard times.

It is easy enough to thank God for pleasant experiences, though we know that often they may be spiritually barren. It is not so easy to be thankful for adversity, though difficulties and disappointments in our material affairs can provide the finest of disciplines.

Listen to Habakkuk the prophet:

> For though the fig tree shall not flourish,
> Neither shall fruit be in the vines;
> The labor of the olive shall fail;
> And the fields shall yield no food;
> The flock shall be cut off from the fold,
> And there shall be no herd in the stalls:
> Yet will I rejoice in the Lord,
> I will joy in the God of my salvation.

The tither who can make the prophet's words his own will not be deceived by prosperity, if and when it comes.

Prosperity is quite likely to come to the tither; remember that. Somebody has counted the Bible's references to giving. They total seventy-two. And forty-eight "show open promise of God's blessing to the giver."

During a spell of hard times a bank auditor examining the books of many Toronto business houses found entries in the books of John Macdonald & Co., that showed the firm was setting aside a tenth of its profits for religious and philanthropic work. He closed his audit and recommended to the bank that the Macdonald house should have all the credit it desired. It was the beginning of a new prosperity.

John H. Converse, when president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, was a tither who believed in doing more in hard times. One year, when his business was less profitable than usual, he gave $400,000 to religious and charitable work.

It is known and admitted that not everybody gets ahead financially by tithing. Why should he? "Getting ahead" may be a great curse. A tithing business man puts the fact thus:

"There are other successes than money ones. I've got something more than money out of tithing; it's given me happiness and contentment that I never could have bought. Suppose some of the New England families who tithed did not succeed financially? Could science measure the contentment which these families might have through knowing that God was a partner in home affairs?"

A man who is almost at the end of his resources will find his time of stress a good time to make new study of his life.

The head of a great business did this once, when he was worse than bankrupt. One day he opened his Bible at Genesis 28:22, drew a pencil mark around the verse, and said, "From this moment on, as long as I live, of all that God gives me I will give him one-tenth."

Since then he has prospered far beyond the ordinary. But what is more, he has made "hundreds of investments for human betterment and to advance righteousness on earth." The feeling that one can thus be a co-laborer with God is the greatest incentive to true living which man can have. It can make one's sunset days his best days.

A conscientious examination of your affairs now may actually show how you can save enough to pay the whole tithe. Consider more methodical ways of buying. Wait a week before buying something you think you want. Buy for use rather than for appearance or luxury-value.

Budget your income and outgo. Many people who begin to spend by a budget make a surprising discovery. They find that from ten to twenty cents of their dollar is being spent without producing any corresponding benefit.

Whenever it can be put into practice, there's a big saving hinted at in the old saying, "He who cuts his own firewood is twice warmed."

Hard times are hard times for God as well as for us. His work suffers because, when depression threatens, so many cut off, first of all, their gifts to religion.

Never mind trying to explain the theology of it. You know that benevolent agencies face lessened incomes. Students who would gladly work must leave college for lack of funds; church enterprises are forced to retrench their work; the poor, the sick, the distressed, all must know keener their sufferings because the church has less money to spend in their behalf. So the tither who tithes in hard times is doubly blessed—in his own life and in being the friend indeed who comes as the friend in need.

Tithing in hard times is a sharing of life with those whose "times" are harder than ours. None of our tithe literally gives "to God;" it goes to men and women like ourselves. It broadens the base on which the world's total of usefulness must rest.

Hard times are good times to begin tithing, because it doesn't take so much moral backbone to tithe a small income as a big one. Many people have been tempted to quit tithing because their incomes became "too big to tithe."

A rich man told a missionary secretary during the war, "I'm sorry, doctor, but I can't give you anything for your work this year. Why, my income tax is a million and a quarter."

The tithe in hard times contributes to our spiritual self-respect. When we are prosperous, we may feel—as we should—that the tithe ought to be supplemented by free will offerings and gifts far beyond the tenth.

In hard times we may not be able to make these gifts. But we know that in tithing we are acknowledging God, and declaring our faith. We are not offering to God that which has cost us nothing.

It costs, to tithe in hard times. But not to tithe costs more, in values that are as real then as ever, and that will last beyond all times, whether hard or easy.

EVERY MAN IN HIS PLACE

Dr. Parker once illustrated this statement by calling attention to his watch. "On that small space, the face of my watch, you have three workers," he said. "There is the second pointer, performing rapid revolutions. There is the minute pointer, going at a rapidly reduced speed; and there is the hour pointer, tardier still.

"Any one unacquainted with the mechanism of a watch would conclude that the busy little second pointer was doing all the work. It is clicking away at sixty times the speed of the minute pointer. As for the hour hand, that seems to be doing no work at all.

"So it is in the church. There are active fussy men who appear to be doing the work of the whole community, and others who are slower. But can we do without the minute and the hour pointer? The noisy second hand might go around its little circle forever, without telling the world the true time.

"We should be thankful for all kinds of workers. The silent, steady hour hand need not envy its noisy little colleague. Every man must fill the measure of his capacity. Our business is to do our allotted work so as to meet the approbation of the Master."—Finest of the Wheat.

CHRISTIAN GROWTH

Are we growing in Christian character? Dr. Bonar once remarked that he could tell when a Christian was growing. In proportion to his growth in grace he would elevate his Master, talk less of what he himself was doing, and become smaller and smaller in his own esteem, until, like the morning star, he faded away before the rising sun. Jonathan was willing to decrease that David might increase.—Elim Evangel.

EVANGELISM

"Speak Unto the Children of Israel, That They Go Forward."

Deceased

On last Friday morning, April 22, the spirit of Rev. R. E. Andrews passed into the great Beyond. He had been a sufferer for a number of years and bore his afflictions with patience and hope of recover mother, being the only Christian, led her own little service. "It was not I that did it," she said later. "It was not I that spoke and sang. I seemed to have left my body. God had stepped in and taken possession of me." But the hardest test was to return childless to her heathen husband, from whom she expected the utmost condemnation and abuse. But strangely half-way to her home she met him and found him sympathetic. "God had prepared his heart," she declared.—Missionary Herald.

THE RICHES OF CHRIST

Mr. Spurgeon used to be fond of telling how he once laughed when preparing a sermon, the only time he ever remembered to have laughed in so serious a business. He was going to preach on Joseph. He had drawn a picture of the colossal stores of corn in Egypt, every granary bursting with the abundance. There was a supply for seven years. And there, in the midst of his vivid conception, Spurgeon saw a little mouse in one corner of the granary, worrying itself to skin and bone, in the fear that there wasn't enough to live on!

But I am afraid that believers in the Lord Jesus Christ, who have obtained access by faith into the granaries of grace, are often found worrying in the uncertainty as to whether the resources of grace are adequate to carry them through. "Shall I be able to stand?" they ask themselves in fear. "Can my sinful inclination be really conquered?" Shall I really be perfect at last? It is the fear of the mouse. Yes, there's corn enough in the granary! Where sin abounds, grace doth much more abound; and there is enough for all eternity. charge was held on Saturday, the 16th, and on Sunday our appointment was at Pleasant Hill. The conference was held at Stony Knoll church, preceded by preaching in the morning and dinner on the grounds. Thirteen officials were present, representing four churches. Tabernacle and Union Grove were not represented. The usual routine business was transacted, with reports by pastor, officials, and the various organizations of the charge. A Sunday School is in operation now at all the churches, Baltimore and Pleasant Hill have active Auxiliaries, and Harmony Grove has a C. E. Society. Two schools—Pleasant Hill and Stony Knoll contribute to the Children's Home. The General Conference Easter program was not observed on the charge, nor Young People's Day, though Baltimore church took an Easter offering. Pleasant Hill church is having the best Sunday School ever. It was our privilege to be in this school Sunday morning, and to study the lesson in an adult class that was taught on this occasion by Professor Felts, principal of Old Richmond high school. I shared his feelings when he spoke of the clean, attractive condition of this church. It is a model in this particular. All the Sunday Schools of the charge seem to be in good condition. Finances are much in arrears. The pastor reported $195.14 received on salary. Nothing was reported on budgets. The charge will attempt to raise, within the next 30 days, $100 in salary. The general activities of the charge, and the spiritual condition, appear to be normal. The attendance at Pleasant Hill Sunday morning was gratifying, and an attentive hearing was given to our message. Joash Day was observed, with $12.50 as the amount of offering. Perhaps other churches on the charge will yet observe the day. We enjoyed our visit to this work, as we always do, and we wish to express our appreciation to Brother Way and his family for entertainment in their home, and also to the Hunters, Brother J. F. and his family, Brother C. G. and his family, and Brother Way and his family for entertainment at dinner, served at the home of Brother J. F. Hunter. Quite a number of guests shared in this hospitality. We were sorry to find sickness in the home of the pastor, though we trust that it may not be serious and that all may be well soon.

Calvary

Last Sunday, April 24.—This church observed its Eighth Anniversary. By invitation of the pastor, it was our happy privilege to preach at the 11 o'clock hour. A pleasing and thoughtful attention characterized the attitude of our hearers. The large auditorium was not filled with worshipers, though a gratifying attendance of members and friends were present. The program took recognition of the church's honored dead. As the pastor called the roll of these—thirteen in all—as many girls marched to the front, each bearing a white flower, and placed them in a receptacle in honor of these who have their places now in the church above. The roll of the membership was called also, and this was a signal for the congregation to make the JOASH OFFERING.

In connection with this the JOASH OFFERING was made. Those who found it possible to respond with an offering came forward as their names were called and placed it in the JOASH BOX. It was interesting and pleasing to see them come—children, boys and girls, young men and young women, those in middle life, and those in ripened years,—all making an offering unto the Lord. We have told elsewhere of the amount,—the largest of any church yet to report. The doors of the church were also opened, and five received into membership. We noted in the congregation four ministers besides the pastor—Brothers J. F. McCulloch, T. F. McCulloch, W. F. Ashburn, and E. G. Lowdermilk.

We observed from the Sunday School record board that the attendance on this day was 253, and the offering was $70. We should have noted, too, that the regular morning offering was not omitted because of the Joash offering. It was taken also. There was a brief service in the afternoon but we could not stay for this, owing to another appointment. However, we did have a few minutes in this service, and learned from some statements made by Pastor Bates that the membership of the church has grown from 135 (we believe that is correct) books of John Macdonald & Co., that showed the firm was setting aside a tenth of its profits for religious and philanthropic work. He closed his audit and recommended to the bank that the Macdonald house should have all the credit it desired. It was the beginning of a new prosperity.

A pleasing and thoughtful attention characterized the attitude of our hearers. The large auditorium was not filled with worshipers, though a gratifying attendance of members and friends were present. The program took recognition of the church's honored dead. As the pastor called the roll of these—thirteen in all—as many girls marched to the front, each bearing a white flower, and placed them in a receptacle in honor of these who have their places now in the church above. The roll of the membership was called also, and this was a signal for the congregation to make the JOASH OFFERING.

In connection with this the JOASH OFFERING was made. Those who found it possible to respond with an offering came forward as their names were called and placed it in the JOASH BOX. It was interesting and pleasing to see them come—children, boys and girls, young men and young women, those in middle life, and those in ripened years,—all making an offering unto the Lord. We have told elsewhere of the amount,—the largest of any church yet to report. The doors of the church were also opened, and five received into membership. We noted in the congregation four ministers besides the pastor—Brothers J. F. McCulloch, T. F. McCulloch, W. F. Ashburn, and E. G. Lowdermilk.

We observed from the Sunday School record board that the attendance on this day was 253, and the offering was $70. We should have noted, too, that the regular morning offering was not omitted because of the Joash offering. It was taken also. There was a brief service in the afternoon but we could not stay for this, owing to another appointment. However, we did have a few minutes in this service, and learned from some statements made by Pastor Bates that the membership of the church has grown from 135 (we believe that is correct) to nearly 300, and that the offerings of the congregation have mounted as the years have passed. This church has had a most gratifying growth in every way. It was a delight to us to be with them on this eighth anniversary, and we most earnestly bid them Godspeed as they begin another year of united and joyous service. The wise and earnest service of Pastor and Mrs. Bates is appreciated by this congregation. Mrs. Taylor and S. W., Jr., enjoyed this visit with us, and we are all three indebted to the pastor and congregation for the privilege of sharing in a generous and delicious dinner, served picnic fashion on the church lawn.

This is the total JOASH DAY offering that we have had reports on to date. Who said ''JOASH wouldn't go?''

Last Sunday, the Day was observed in the following churches, with results as here given: Calvary, $231.34; West End, Greensboro, $94; Henderson, $150; Lincolnton, $9.35; Bessemer City (Lincolnton charge), $8.50; Oak Grove, (Cleveland charge), $13.50; Friendship (Fallston charge), $10.35; Saxapahaw, $22.52; Salem (Saxapahaw charge), $19.35; Belmont (Mt. Hermon charge), $60; Pleasant Union (Mt. Pleasant charge), $40.36; Burlington First. $150; Lebanon, $65; Total from these 13 charges, $898.98—an average per church of $69.15.

The following churches observed the Day prior to last Sunday but have not been included in our weekly report: Pine Grove (Kernersville charge), $6.20; Mt. Carmel (Forsyth charge), $20; Welch Memorial, $75.80; Denton, (Denton charge), $38; Canaan (same charge), $8; Piney Grove (same charge), $5. Total for these six churches, $153—an average of $25.50. Total in this week's report, $1,051.98.

Other churches that have observed the Day have not yet reported. We hope to hear from them by next week. Give us your good word, brethren, about Joash.

Some churches have not realized their goals, though their offerings were generous. Calvary has a good lead in the total JOASH DAY offering, and may hold it, though we know of one other church that has a pretentious goal, and is yet to be heard from.

Dr. T. M. Johnson says, ''The interest at Pleasant Union, amounting to enthusiasm, fully equalled that at Mt. Pleasant the Sunday before. The participation seemed to be almost unanimous.''

Brother Mabry writes: ''Joash Day at Belmont went off well.''

Pastor Whitehead says, ''Joash Day was very successful on Saxapahaw charge yesterday.''

Brother Curry hopes to round out West End's offering to $100.

Brother Gerringer writes: ''Joash Day was a success with us yesterday.''

We want to express here gratitude to these brethren for these reports, and to them and their people for their splendid co-operation in this effort. JOASH DAY has already been a success, and several other charges are yet to report. We expect to give later the total number of churches participating, and the total amount of the JOASH offering.

THE PLACE OF EMPHASIS

The Church of Jesus Christ has a definite spiritual mission to perform. The emphasis of the pulpit should always be upon the preaching of the gospel. This is the duty and the joy of every true man who stands at the sacred desk. His preference and purpose is to do nothing else than to preach Christ and bring humanity into the way of salvation.

In accomplishing this great task, many kinds of messages must be delivered. There are occasions when the material interests of the Kingdom of God must be given attention. This is where the necessity of calling for money arises. If liberal and ready responses to these calls were made, their repetition would be unnecessary and the calls would be quite infrequent; but the hesitation of the people to contribute adequately puts upon the leaders of the Church the duty of multiplying the appeals. The Kingdom of God must not be allowed to perish for the lack of funds.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

"GOD HAD STEPPED IN"

In Africa if the first baby dies the woman is always blamed—that is, among the non-Christians. One mother, reports Rev. Richard S. Webb, of Dondi, West Africa, became a Christian and then decided to visit her home which was in a heathen village. On the way her baby fell ill and died soon after her arrival. Family and friends reproached her, saying that it was a punishment by the evil spirits for accepting Christianity. But this lone mother, grief-stricken and surrounded by heathen customs and the pressure of relatives and friends, insisted upon a Christian burial for her baby. Some of the men consented to dig a grave and carry the small body to its resting place. The mother, being the only Christian, led her own little service. "It was not I that did it," she said later. "It was not I that spoke and sang. I seemed to have left my body. God had stepped in and taken possession of me." But the hardest test was to return childless to her heathen husband, from whom she expected the utmost condemnation and abuse. But strangely half-way to her home she met him and found him sympathetic. "God had prepared his heart," she declared.—Missionary Herald.

THE RICHES OF CHRIST

Mr. Spurgeon used to be fond of telling how he once laughed when preparing a sermon, the only time he ever remembered to have laughed in so serious a business. He was going to preach on Joseph. He had drawn a picture of the colossal stores of corn in Egypt, every granary bursting with the abundance. There was a supply for seven years. And there, in the midst of his vivid conception, Spurgeon saw a little mouse in one corner of the granary, worrying itself to skin and bone, in the fear that there wasn't enough to live on!

But I am afraid that believers in the Lord Jesus Christ, who have obtained access by faith into the granaries of grace, are often found worrying in the uncertainty as to whether the resources of grace are adequate to carry them through. "Shall I be able to stand?" they ask themselves in fear. "Can my sinful inclination be really conquered?" Shall I really be perfect at last? It is the fear of the mouse. Yes, there's corn enough in the granary! Where sin abounds, grace doth much more abound; and there is enough for all eternity. "Having loved His own * * * He loved them unto the end." We shall never outlive our Saviour's love! It is a world which will never give up its last secret; it is the "unexplored wealth of Christ."—Christian Faith and Life.

THE NEED OF THE HOUR

No one will question the confusion of the times. One can scarcely gather ten people together and find complete agreement on any subject. There is rebellion of youth against maturity, and the better institutions, like the church and the family, are being put through the crucible. We noticed that Gilbert K. Chesterton said we needed simpler life, as did Charles Wagner thirty years ago. The time has come for each with authority in his own sphere to call a halt and to see that the call is obeyed. Halt in money extravagance; halt in personal indulgences; halt in exploiting man-made theories; halt in neglect of worship in the house of God; halt in the shallow-corrupting literature that floods homes. Large program to halt all that, but each in his own sphere can check some one of the harmful tendencies. Go to church. Have the family go to church. Keep output below income; pay God His tithe. Cease obeying every desire as if it were essential. Get back to the plain, simple, honest religious and moral life that made our ancestors strong and wholesome. Let preachers publicly and privately forget trivial plans and parties and witness for the Lord Jesus Christ our Saviour. Let the laity put the church in its proper place in thought, labor and finance.

Do you know that these simple things, generally obeyed, will do more to correct the financial, moral and political doldrums of our day than all the plans and conferences men may devise? Then, too, subscribe for a good, distinctly religious paper.—Presbyterian.

ON DIFFERENT TRACKS

Two gentlemen were riding in a railroad car one day some years ago. One had trusted the Lord Jesus as his Saviour. The other thought people could be good enough to win a place in Heaven without a Redeemer at all. After some talk he said to the first mentioned: "You orthodox" (that is, people of right doctrine) "have among you born again souls, as you call them, who often misbehave. On the other hand there are some believers who are very good and kind. Now what is the differences between a poor Christian and a good unbeliever?"

It happened that just then they were on a part of the road where two tracks ran side by side for a mile and then branched off. A train was moving by their side at the time. So the gentleman said: "You see that other train?" "Yes," was the reply. "With the same number of cars as ours?" "Yes." "And the two engines are alike?" "Yes." "Not much difference as to looks between them?" "No." "But, my friend, they are running on different tracks, and arrive in the end at very different places."

This is the great point. The Christian has trusted Christ, and if he sins he can go to Him at once and confess it. The unbeliever is away from God, and the road he is on leads to eternal sorrow.

Dear reader, make sure that you are on the right track. "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God."—The Life Line.

COMMERCIAL ALCOHOL AND PROHIBITION

The permissive features of the Volstead Act, governing the manufacture and distribution of industrial alcohol, imposes upon the government a tremendous task. This implies the necessity for an adequate supply of alcohol to meet the demands of industry, medicine and the arts, and at the same time prevent such alcohol from being diverted into bootleg channels. Distribution of wines for sacramental purposes must also be protected from the bootlegger. Hence, double duty devolves upon the government in making effective the will of the people as expressed in the Eighteenth Amendment, the duty of suppressing the manufacture and use of beverage alcohol and the duty of meeting all legitimate demands for industrial alcohol.—The American Issue.

OUR STORY PAGE

LITTLE RUTH'S NIBBLED BIBLE

Years ago, in Loughboro, England, lived a little factory girl named Ruth Orange. She was a fatherless child, one of a large family. The father had died, and when he was buried the little girl had to go to the factory and toil from morning till evening for daily bread. She had no school privileges, but yet in some way she had learned to read. But there were few books there, and she had very little reading matter.

Her mother had a Bible, a precious Book, a plain, cheap copy of the sacred Word, but it was kept with the utmost care. The children's hands were not to touch it. Sometimes, as a special privilege, they might, with clean hands, and with great care, take the Book, wrapped in a clean cloth or paper, and read it for a little while, after which it was carefully put away.

It was a great desire of little Ruth to have a Bible of her own, and so she subscribed for a copy, and paid six cents a week out of her scanty wages, until she was the owner of the precious Book. But there was still one trouble about it. She tended a spinning machine, and when the work was running right, she had a little time that she might read; but the Bible was too large for her to carry to the factory where she worked; and so she felt a strong desire for a smaller and more portable Book.

Small Bibles were then very rare, but after a time Ruth found a lady who had a Bible so small that it could be carried conveniently. The Book was somewhat worn with use, but little Ruth was glad to make a bargain, and exchange her new and larger Bible for this little worn Bible. Accordingly, the change was made, and then Ruth had a Bible that she could carry with her.

But there were new troubles ahead. She carried her Bible to the factory, and one day the overseer saw it and promptly took it away from her, and locked it up with his tools. She was disconsolate, but she could not help herself. She thought perhaps he would give it back the next day, but he did not. Day after day passed. Her work-fellows pitied her, for they knew how much she thought of her precious Book. One time she had occasion to go to the tool-chest, and she saw her little Bible there.

After about a fortnight the overseer gave her back her Bible; but the mice had got at it, and when it was opened, a mass of paper chips and shavings fell out. The Book of Genesis was almost destroyed. The mice had made mincemeat of Revelation, and of some of the Epistles. Poor Ruth was almost broken-hearted over her loss, but there was no help for it. She had only to make the best use of what remained. She did so; she read the holy Book, and learned many precious verses; and sought to serve the Lord, who had done so much for her.

This was a long time ago. Little Ruth grew up, was married, came to America, became the mother of a large family of children, and not long ago, their friends in the old town of Stroughton, celebrated her golden wedding-day. She is now old and feeble, but still loves the Bible and loves the Gospel.

Cannot some of the children who are so well-supplied with beautiful Bibles, and other good books, learn to be more thankful for the mercies which they enjoy and to make as good use of their new Bibles as little Ruth did of the Bible which the mice so sadly nibbled?—H. L. Hastings in Sunbeams.

HAPPY SERVICE

A Sunday School superintendent related the following:

Some years ago while visiting the Sunday School in H—, I was greatly cheered by the clear answers the dear children gave me.

When I asked how many of them really loved the Lord Jesus, I noticed all hands went up, except one little girl. Thinking she might not have heard me, I addressed her individually, and said:

''My dear child, don't you, too, love the Lord Jesus?'' Hesitatingly she raised her little hand. After a few more encouraging words to the interested listeners, I told them that the following Thursday we would have another such meeting to which their parents were cordially invited.

''Who will promise me to earnestly invite your dear father and mother; and if possible, bring them along?'' A few responded, and to my great surprise that little girl too.

Afterwards I learned that she had come to the Sunday School that Lord's Day for the first time.

The appointed day arrived, and as I took my place in the front, I watched the people coming in. There came my little girl with a happy face, and with a well-dressed lady.

''I am glad, my dear child, that you have kept your promise so faithfully. I suppose this is your mother?''

''Yes, sir, this is my Mamma.'' Then the lady told me how the child had not ceased to invite her to the service.

''Although I had strictly forbidden her to go to any Christian Sunday School,'' the mother added, ''yet she pressed me so earnestly last week, that I finally consented. I pushed her away in anger, but when she still persisted, I finally punished her with the rod. But the dear child continued to beg me to come, and I could do nothing but to promise her to come. I can assure you, I do not regret having been here.''

''And, now, my dear child,'' she said, turning to her daughter, and pressing her to her heart, ''you may go to the Sunday School as often as you wish.'' The little girl grasped the hand of her mother and covered it with kisses, filled with joy over the sudden change that had taken place, and turning to me, she whispered in my ear:

''Now, I will love the Lord Jesus dearly, too.''

Shortly after that, the lady turned to the Lord in true repentance, and was converted, rejoicing in the forgiveness of her sins through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ. She henceforth walked faithfully with God's people, and her daughter is now active in blessed service in this very Sunday School.

''Come, see a Man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?'' (John 4:29).—Messages of the Love of God.

A Hint to the Leader

Ask a successful representative from each of the principal professions, trades and businesses to tell why he or she believes that his or her particular calling makes a good life work. Included should be a doctor, lawyer, teacher, preacher, and as many others as are wanted.

Suitable Songs

"Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow," "There Are Lonely Hearts to Cherish," "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go," and " Help Somebody Today."

Thoughts for the Leader

The problem of finding one's place in life is no small task, and yet each of us must face and solve this great difficulty. "Peter has been confused by the betrayal, the crucifixion and his own denial of Christ, and did not know exactly what his place was in the program of the Lord. Maybe some of us have felt that we have not found our place for Him. Putting on, assuming some form of active Christian work makes it harder for us to fit ourselves into the place that Jesus would have us fill. We may have the benefit of wise counsel. Let us seriously try to get help in this meeting to find our places in life.

For Discussion

1. Promoting community religion.
2. Creating our own places.
3. Should parents ever choose the life work of their children?
4. How can youth disable themselves for life work?
5. To what extent should the desire for wealth go in shaping our choice of life work?
6. What is the supreme work of every Christian?

Quotable Poetry

O MASTER, LET ME WALK WITH THEE

O Master, let me walk with Thee
In lowly paths of service free;
Tell me Thy secret; help me to bear
The strain of toil,, the fret of care.

Help me the slow of heart to move
By some clear, winning word of love;
Teach me the wayward feet to stay,
And guide them in the homeward way.

Teach me Thy patience; still with Thee
In closer, dearer company,
In work that keeps faith sweet and strong,
In trust that triumphs over wrong.

In hope that sends a shining ray
Far down the future's broadening way;
In peace that Thou canst give,
With Thee, O Master, let me live.

LORD'S ACRE TO SUPPORT CHURCHES

The Rev. Dumont Clarke, director of the religious department of the Farmer's Federation at Asheville, explains the plan in a folder just published as follows:

"The Lord's Acre plan is that each member of the church and Sunday school shall set apart and dedicate to the Lord a part of the farm land or some farm animals, and on the land raise some crop, or rear the animals, and at the harvest season sell the produce or the animals and give the cash yield to the church.

"The project may be an acre or a quarter of an acre of corn or potatoes, or a pig, a brood of chickens, a calf or Sunday eggs—just what each member resolves to undertake and so pledges on the covenant card. Cash may be pledged by members who are on a salary basis."

H. H. Weir, Presbyterian layman of Meridian, Miss., is working out a commodity marketing group to further the plan in that area.

GOOD LUCK

"Good luck" is not chance
As many surmise;
Nor does it depend
Upon seers, stars, or skies.

The men who succeed
Are lavish in praise,
Of all the good things
That gladden their days.

The men who complain
And suffer bad luck,
Are victims of fear
And lacking in pluck.

If you want "Good Luck,"
Toil on with a will,
And smile while you climb
Prosperity Hill.

TITHING IN HARD TIMES

Now you can plan a Tithing Campaign and save money by using the church bulletins we furnish, including one especially written for this hour: "Tithing In Hard Times." The Layman Bulletins, now 32 in number, are printed in the regular twopage church bulletin size, with two blank pages for your own bulletin material. This saves one-half of your printing cost, not counting cost of paper.

Send for samples, which include pamphlet, "Teaching the Church to Tithe," containing full directions for a ten weeks' program of silent, church-wide education at trifling expense. Non-profit, non-sectarian, non- legalistic, but simple, clear and workable.

Please mention the Methodist Protestant Herald, also give your denomination. The Layman Company, 730 Rust Street, Chicago.

SCHOOLS AND SCHOOLING

When Rev. A. O. Lindley had the high school in hand I went to the school with him one morning. After he read and prayed he let me speak to the school about 12 minutes. I then talked about trees and fruits, and rather about keeping winter apples. However, soon I learned that school children had rather hear something of lively stories, etc. Later on I had occasion to be at the Rural Hall schools several times and other schools near and far. I started in venturing amongst the schools very gradually on.

Near 20 years ago a Mr. Love went to school here at Hingard. He was rather the first "boy" to set me on to venturing amongst the schools. He said, "Come and help us debate." Later on, he and a teacher urged me to. Once he surprised this old farmer by saying "Come and speak to us on education." I was seriously surprised. (However, I have ventured some on the line of education.) Professor Smith was rather the first authority to help me on. However, as to quiet church work I could date back to the help of other names, such as Prof. W. A. Flynt, Rev. Jeremiah Hunter, and others. Looking back, I was sure that I was not up to my task; but I do not claim to be up now. All the while that I have been school-going I have felt the real character of a beggar. Although the treatment has been good I felt burdened while going to the schools and asking permission to speak a while.

About four years ago I was at Capella school here in Stokes county, and Professor Carson, who is county superintendent, walked in. He at once bade me speak on a while. Then in his talk to the teachers he urged for the use of the Bible, and also told the teachers to give much encouragement. I was and am glad over and over that the high schools of Stokes county put me right in the order of the Bible amongst the schools.

Prof. J. T. Smith was the first official to show me the way to the school interests that I now refer to. This short article only glances at things, but I count my school-going a great privilege. The treatment at the schools has been good, but a thing that I have often thought of is that if I could speak to the younger grades, say from first to sixth, at once the treatment all told would be much better. However, Mr. Professor, let me come to your school and give me a hearing. The children and the teachers say come, but going into two or three rooms on a visit amounts to but little by the coming.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Shiloh, Randolph Charge.—Our pastor gave us a very interesting sermon on the past Sunday. Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Isley were visitors. We were indeed glad to have them present. Mr. Isley with Mr. Suits' help hopes to organize a vacation Bible school combining members of both Julian and Shiloh churches. We sincerly hope that their efforts will succeed and that much will be accomplished.

Shiloh is planning Mothers' Day and Home Coming services for May 8. Rev. W. M. Pike, a former pastor, will preach at eleven o'clock. After dinner on the grounds, the afternoon service will be held. There will be short talks by former pastors, and probably special music by special groups. Every one, especially former pastors, church members and friends, is invited.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—Sunday, April 24th, was Joash Day at our church. Dr. Johnson read passages from 24th Psalms, 50th Psalms and other books telling us that our material wealth is really not ours but God's. It is only loaned to us to use during our lives. He pointed out the fact that we ask one-third of what is made on land that we leased while God asks only one tenth of what we make on his earth.

Almost every one in the church brought an envelope for the Joash Box. I do not have the exact amount that was is the box.

The Lord's Supper was also observed in this service.

The Woman's Missionary society will meet with Mrs. T. Grady Bowman on Wednesday, April 27, at 2:00 p. m.

Those who are graduating from Natanael Greene high school from our church are Misses Dorothy Shepard, Florence Bowman and Frances Causey. We congratulate them.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—On the third Sunday in April Joash Day was observed at our church with much interest and enthusiasm manifested. Envelopes had been distributed two weeks before. Men, women, and children came eager to put their donations in the Joash Box. It twas very gratifying to find that the Joash Box contained $107.56.

At the beginning of the sermon on Joash Day, Dr. Johnson put the congregation to thinking by asking, "Who Owns the Earth?" After reading from Psalms 21, 50, and Malachi 4, Dr. Johnson showed us that Man does not own the earth, and that God has given Man only the possession and control of the land. We are to contribute money for things other than our own needs in order that we may not be selfish, but be open-hearted and generous.

The first Sunday in May we will observe Mothers' Day as Dr. Johnson will be at Pleasant Union on the second Sunday. The Philathea class will provide flowers for Mothers' Day.

The young people's Christian Endeavor is preparing a Mothers' Day program to be gives the second Sunday night in May at 7:45. Every one is cordially invited to attend this meeting. Dr. Johnson is intensely interested in the Christian Endeavor work and is working with a committee to make plans for the good of the society. The new officers of the Christion Endeavor have been elected with Condon Coley as president.

Dr. Johnson has been givisg some lessoss on "Temperance," for young people. The two lessons that have been given were very interesting and instrucctive. The only regret we have is that there were not more young people present. The next lesson will be first Sunday afternoon in May at 3:00; make an effort to be present.

Concord Church, Saxapahaw Charge.—Several very impressive services were held at our church during the Easter season. Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Whitehead, gave us a series of instructive and helpful semons on the life of Christ during the week preceding Easter. On Easter Sunday night the childres of the Sunday school presented a splendid Easter program. Mrs. R. S. Woody, Miss Bessie Coble, and Mrs. Loy Roberson are to be congratulated on their work in training the children.

Dr. Taylor made his annual visit to Saxapahaw charge on April the 9th and 10th. He presided at the quarterly conference held at Saxapahaw church on Saturday afternoon. He preached at Concord Sunday afternoon, preaching at other churches on the charge Sunday morning and evening. Dr. Taylor's visits always leave us with a greater determination to go forward.

We observed Joash Day Sunday afternoon, April 17, at which time Rev. Mr. Whitehead preached an inspiring sermon. The offering amounted to $23.75.

Since ours is a rural community we have adopted the God's acre plan to raise money for the new church building which we are contemplating. Several of our memebrs have pledged to plant an acre, the returns from which will be given to the church. We are planning to hold a service soon dedicating the land to God.

Memorial Day will be observed the first Sunday in May. In the morning service Rev. G. W. Holmes will preach to us. We always welcome Mr. Holmes to our church. In the afternoon, Rev. N. M. Harrison will give us an address. We are also expecting a quartet from High Point College for the afternoon service. We are anticipating their coming with a great deal of pleasure.

First Church, High Point.—In the absence of the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, who drove to Cleveland county to deliver a commencement sermon at Northbrook Consolidated school, on Sunday morning the pulpit was filled in a happy manner by Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, who brought a most helpful and encouraging message from the text in John 16:33, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome." He said that most of us will admit that the big problem of life is adjustment to human relationships. We must frankly face the fact that difficulties are going to be met along the highway of life. Our biggest business is making a life, and the problem of meeting and handling difficulties is the art of making a life. The things that test our moral fibre are normal, for life is a mingling of joy and pain, of sorrow and gladness. We can't throw obstacles out of life, but we turn handicaps into spurs to greater effort and a chance to find strength. We can make our own springs of refreshments along the way if we will. The great trouble with the Methodist Protestant church is that its members are not content to sit at the feet of Jesus. Why should you and I always be timid and hesitant? Why can't we tap the source of power, so that the sun of attainment may shine on us? Sometimes we get off the right road; how are we traveling? Have we lost our grip? Let us ask somebody the right way. I advise you when you go home to read over the wonderful Psalm 84, and realize afresh that "no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly." Dean Stanley says: "Let us hold on though the land be miles away; let us hold on till the morning breaks. That speck on the distant horizon may be the vessel for which we must shape our course. Forward, not backward must we steer—forward and forward, till the speck becomes a friendly ship. Have patience and perseverance; believe that there is still a future before us, and we shall at last reach the haven where we would be."

"I cannot hear thy voice, Lord! dost thou still hear my cry?
I cling to thine assurance that thou art ever
nigh;
I know that thou art faithful; I trust but cannot see
That it is still the right way by which thou leadest me."

Rev. R. E. L. Andrews, a member of First church, died at his home, 208 Venable St., early Friday morning, April 22, after a lingering illness covering a period of several years. He came to the Methodist Protestant church from the Baptist church about eight years ago. A painter and decorator by profession he worked here and at Greensboro until overtaken by ill health. Funeral services were conducted in First church Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by Dr. Geo. R. Brown of Reidsfille, assisted by Dr. S. W. Taylor, Rev C. H. Hill of English Street church, Rev. M. C. Connor of the Wesleyan Methodist church, and Rev. W. C. Loving, president of the N. C. Wesleyan Methodist conference. Services at the grave in Oakwood cemetery were led by members of Numa F. Reid lodge of Masons. Rev. Mr. Andrews is survived by his wife, who has just recently recovered from an operation and serious illness.

Joash Day and Holy Communion will be observed next Sunday, May 1. The rite of baptism will also be administered to any who wish to connect themselves with the church.

The Sunshine Circle of little folks of the auxiliary is holding its monthly meeting this (Monday) afternoon under the leadership of Mrs. S. W. Taylor and Miss Margaret Walton.

The circles of the Woman's auxiliary are beginning to work actively their projects for the new missionary year; Circle No. 5, of which Mrs. C. L. Whitaker is chairman, held a plant sale of vegetables and flowers on the church lawn last Friday morning, and in a short time sold $5.00 worth. Circle No. 7, Mrs. J. H. Allred chairman, gave a supper at the church Thursday evening, from which $38 was realized. Circle No. 6, Mrs. S. D. Shelton chairman, plans to give a supper Friday evening at the home of Mrs. G. I. Humpreys.

Dr. George H. Crowell, the first superintendent of the High Point graded school established in 1897, spoke to the Excelsior Sabbath school class of college girls Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. He chose for his theme the lesson for the day, "Abraham's Generosity to Lot."

Rev. Clay Madison, a senior in High Point College, won the annual oratorical contest at Lenoir-Rhyne College, Hickory, last Friday evening. His opponents were representatives from Guilford, Elon, Lenoir-Rhyne, Wake Forest, N. C. State, Asheville Normal and Appalachian State Teachers' College. This victory entitles High Point to keep the loving cup in permanent possession since it has won this honor three times. Mr. Madison chose for his subject, "The Cities' Future." He has served as pastor of Lebanon church for the past two years.

A series of vesper services sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and C. E. society, will be held in the auditorium at High Point College each evening this week, beginning at 6:40 o'clock and closing at 7:30. Dr. John N. Link, pastor Starr church, Baltimore, Mr., will speak at these meetings. He is not a stranger to our people, having delivered a series of addresses to the young people of the Leadership Training school at the college two summers ago. He is chairman of the Committee on Religious Education of Maryland Annual Conference, and is a popular and pleasing speaker in great demand with other denominations than his own.

The names of the following chilren of First church appear on the Honor Roll of the junior high school for the past month: Edith Vance, Y. S. Cecil, Mildred Free, Reginald Hinshaw, Joe Gray, Jeanne Rankin, Pauline Kennett, Marie Koonce, and Jack Lee.

Mrs. H. W. Maier and Mrs. A. H. Ragan of Thomasville were here last Thusrday attending the meetting of N C. Garden club at the Sheraton hotel.

The numerous friends of Miss Elizabeth Welch, who is recovering from an operation at Guilford General hospital, will be pleased to learn that she has returned to her home on North Main street.

Lester B. and Hunter Teague and and Miss Gertrude Teague, of Sumter, S. C., came to spend the week-end with relatives.

Wilbur Pritchard, a junior at State college, Raleigh, spent the past week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard.

A committee from the Sabbath school has been appointed by Superintendent Jennings to prepare a program for Children's Day.

Miss Claire Douglas, member of the faculty of Davenport College, Lenoir, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Douglas, on Montlieu Ave., over Sunday

Miss Louise Jennings left Saturday for New Orleans to attend the annual meeting of the American Library association.

Mrs. C. C. Robbins was the gracious hostess to the High Point Chapter and the Laura Wesson Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy at her home on Archdale Road, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Sixty-one Japanese cherry trees, the gift of the Kiwanis club of this city, were set out on the grounds of the junior and senior high school last week. In a few years these trees will make a beauty-spot of note.

Canaan, Denton Charge.—The work in general is progressing nicely. Rev. Robert Short delivered a very eloquent sermon Sunday morning at 11 o'nlolk, his subject being "The Yielded Life," placing the spiritual life into three classes, the "hoarded life," the "crucified life," and the "germinated life." Preceding the sermon an offering was taken through a Biblical term known as the "Joash Box."

The attendance in Sunday school is increasing since the weather has become more favorable. There were 70 present for Sunday school Sunday morning, and there is much improvement to be made yet. The prayer meetings are still active under the leadership of Mr. J. M. Gallimore.

Concord Township Sunday School Convention will convene at Canaan M. P. church Saturday night, May 7, and all day services will be held Saturday, May 8. The county president and other interesting speakers will be present. The public is invited to attend and bring a basket.

Draper.—Our revival closed April 17. Rev. H. W. Bell delivered a wonderful message each service There were eight happily converted and united with the church. We can not understand why more did not accept Christ under the earnest pleadings. But God in His wisdom knows. We still trust that the wonderful sermons delivered will bring forth much fruit, for God has said His ward shall not return unto him void.

Our Sunday school is increasing some in attendance.

The C. E. Society, with Mrs. W. W. Streator as president, is still growing. Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Vickery, delivered a very impressive sermon Sunday night on "Bridling the Tongue." I am sure if we all take heed to his message we will live closer to God and a more consecrated life.

Pray for us as a church that we may live such lives, that we may win many lost souls for God. A MEMBER.

◆

Kannapolis.—The church and its organizations have been doing unusually well, the attendance increases every Sunday. Our Sunday school has marks of great improvements in every way until it has outgrown our space, so just a few weeks ago we had some little benches made and added another class to our school but come on, folks, there is always room for more.

The C. E. society has grown beyond all expectations under leadership of Mrs. J. L. Lisk and Mrs. Kiser, they seem to have a grip on the young folks in some way, perhaps it is all done by their sweet and masterful dispositions as leaders in the Kingdom work of God's vineyard where the vines are young and tender, and call for the best and tenderest care. May God help them to continue to lead on in the right way until the end when they shall be crowned by Him for their noble leadership.

We have just closed our revival. Brother J. R. Aendrson was our pulpit help and he did real good preaching and every message was enjoyed by all who attended the services and we feel that there was great good done; while we failed to do all we had hopes of doing we feel that the church was greatly helped and there were several conversions and we will add several members as the result of the meeting.

We are planning for a special Mothers' Day service in which we have appointed a committee to see that all our dear old mothers in this community are at church on that day. Come on, folks, let us do something in honor of Mother, and God will honor us.

Enfield.—This is the first report sent in from us since the Branch meeting. I think our entire membership was delighted with the meeting; it was certainly an inspiration and help to us. We enjoyed greeting again some of our former pastors and wives, co-workers and the new friends and acquaintances.

We observed Joash Day Sunday morning. The congregation was not large but we feel that the results were very much worthwhile. Our pastor brought us two splendid messages on Sunday; our only regret is that our entire membership was not present to be blessed by worshiping with us.

Our Woman's auxiliary met Monday at the hut, Mesdames Walter Moore, Arthur Vick and Miss Alene Locke were the hostesses. Several interesting plans were decided upon to raise money, also a committee was appointed to make out a budget for the year.

Many of our number are on the sick list: Mesdames P. S. Bellamy, Arthur Vick, E. E. Stallings, Mary Barnhill, Bustin and Pike; Mr. Henry Neal also continues ill. We trust all of those mentioned will soon be well.

Our Sunday school and C. E societies are doing very well, but could improve considerably. The writer noticed that the Intermediates, supervised by Mrs. Ernest Bellamy, had a large attendance last meeting and were very interested. REPORTER.

◆

Stalings, Mecklenburg Charge.—Rev. Mr. Love delivered a splendid sermon Sunday afternoon. The attendance was very good, but we wish that more would come out and worship with us. We enjoy the services and the encouragement which Brother Love always brings helps us to press onward and upward.

The Sunday school is holding its own very well, but we shall not be satisled until each one in the community who is able is attending Sunday school somewhere and of course we rather hope that it will be with us.

Most of the shrubbery planted around the church by the Ladies' Aid society is living beautifully. We hope to improve the grounds much more.

Our pastor has been planting a garden and we hope that he and his will be blessed with many good things to eat. He wishes to thank Brother Luther Stallings for plowing for him.

First Church, Winston.—The Sunday church worship was particularly beautiful and inspirational. There were ten persons who came into the church, six of whom were baptized. Those who were baptized were Louise Hauser, Betty Jo Hauser, James Thomas Hauser, David Carroll, Harry Lee Hauser, and Porter Fulp, Jr. Two had previously been baptized, they were Marie Shouse and Louise Kirk. Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Pritchard came in by letter from First church, High Point. It should always help the onlookers to make new resolutions and adopt higher ideals after impressive services like these.

Joash Day was observed Sunday. Two lovely baskets of dogwood were used is the pulpit. One on either side and the Joash Box was on the small table in front of the pulpit and was a large white box. The congregation reponded wonderfully to the contributing of their personal donation in the Joash Box.

Rev. J. E. Pritchard did not preach on Sunday morning. After the receiving of the above into the church and the contributions had been received in the Joash Box, it was getting rather late and Mr. Pritchard asked if he should deliver the sermon or if the congregation was in favor of singing the closing hymn and since it was rather late the congregation voted to sing the closing hymn and go home. Mr. Pritchard's sermons are always fine, and it surely wasn't that those present didn't want to listen to what he had to say.

The Christian Endeavor society is growing here of late. There is a contest on which closes with next Sunday night and we hope to get more new members by then. They are sponsoring a "Hobo Party" on Tuesday night, the proceeds of which are to buy literature for the organization.

The Sunday school purchased 100 new song books from the Gipsy Smith party. These books have splendid songs in them.

New Hope.—The New Hope people put me in for a reporter and I am going to do the best I can. I hate that I haven't done my duty for our church. We have a mighty good preacher this year, Mr. J. L. Love, he has brought to us some good message each time he has preached. His regular appointment the third Sunday, 11 a. m. On the first Sunday, 7:30 p. m., a week ago, the Sacrament was prepared and served.

We have Sunday school each Sunday if the weather is fit, and prayer meeting at 7:30 p. m. On Wednesday night in some one's home anywhere they ask for it, the Wednesday coming we are going to have prayer meeting with two old people who are unable to attend regularly, Mr. and Mrs. Memp Belk. Mrs Mary Belk has been faithful to her church work for a long time and we are mighty glad to meet in their home for prayer.

Our young folks are interested in the prayer meetings and church work. We have a nice bunch of young boys and girls and some good mothers and fathers yet who are filled with the Holy Spirit. We enjoy hearing them make good talks.

We are now planning to have a Children's Day some time in May.

Charlotte, First Church.—Dr. Andrews is improving although weak yet, he preached for us Sunday after an absence of eight weeks. We were delighted to have him back and Dr. Andrews seemed happy to get back into his place. It is rather hard on him trying to be patient and get well and so much to be done. Our attendance is off considerably, due partly to flu and colds.

Miss Rosalie Andrews spent the week-end here with her parents, returning to High Point Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. G. P. Younginer went to Enfield to branch meeting as delegate from our auxiliary. Mrs. Younginer is now visiting her daughter in Memphis, Tenn.

The Woman's Auxiliary met Tuesday afternoon, April 19, with Mrs. R. C. Millaway on East Boulevard. Plans for work and committees were appointed for the new year. Mrs. R. S. Garmon enducted the question box. Mrs. Andrews and others gave items of interest from Branch meeting. Mrs. Millaway served delicious refreshments. We are working as an auxiliary until we can interest more of the ladies, and this year each month the various secretaries will put on a program. May will be "Missionary Education," by Mrs. C. H. Daughtry.

Mr. J. C. Penny has an interesting class of young men. They played basketball during the winter. They with some of the other Sunday schools of the city are organizing a baseball team.

The second quarterly conference was held last Wednesday night at the parsonage with Dr. Andrews presiding. We have much work to do.

Cleveland Circuit.—It has been sometime since we have written to our church paper, some things have taken place that should be of interest to our readers and I think more of our preachers ought to write to our church paper. We all enjoy the letters from the pastors and reporters in the field. We are glad to see the C. E. topic, with the comments on the lesson by Miss Guthrie of High Point College coming to us again through the columns of the Herald, and I for one would be very glad to get Dr. Lindley's comments on the Sunday school lesson through the Herald also. (Dr. Lindley I hope you will do this.)

Dr. G. I. Humphreys preached our commencement at Polkville high school on Sunday afternoon, April 17. He delighted the large audience with a strong sermon, said by many to be the best ever delivered there. Dr. Humphreys made a fine impression for High Point College, and it was a privilege to our Methodist Protestant people in this part of the state to hear him.

Our second quarterly conference was held Saturday afternoon at Kistler's Church. All churches on the charge were represented.

Everything seems to be moving along nicely, (except the finances). Brothers John S. Hunt and F. H. Grigg were nominated for delegate to the next Annual Conference

Joash Day has been observed at all churches on this charge with good response.

Let us all hope and pray for a great revival of Religion among our people this year.

Mizpah, Haw River Circuit.—On account of illness in the family, my report has been delayed.

Our revival services began Easter Monday night and continued ten days. Rev. C. E. Ridge did the preaching with the exception of one sermon which was by the pastor.

As a result the church has been greatly revived. There were six to unite with the church. The attendance throughout the meeting was exceptionally good. Mr. Ridge is highly esteemed by all who were fortunate enough to attend the services and hear him preach, or to know him otherwise. He has promised to visit us during his vacation. We hope to see him fulfill his promise. We were glad to have his mother, his sister, and family with us one day during the meeting.

Much interest has been manifested by the people of the community in cleaning church and the surroundings this spring. As a result, as the summer passes we hope to gather flowers from our church flower garden. Mrs. A. D. Jones and Misses Lola and Effie McCollum of the Reidsville church have donated shrubbery and flower seeds, which we appreciate.

Our pastor, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, was with us the third Sunday morning. His sermon for the service has been highly complimented. If he gave the subject I failed to get it, but I would call it, "Reminiscences of Our Church Vows."

Joash Day was observed.

Our Sunday school and C. E. society are very much alive. There seems to be a fine spirit of co-operation.

Roy Stuart is recovering from an attack of side pleurisy. Ernest Jones has been sick, too.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—Our Sunday school is moving on very well with our faithful superintendent always on the job.

Brother Williams has been preaching some very inspiring sermons. The week preceding Easter he conducted a series of evangelistic services. These services or messages were of the best type. He has also filled the regular appointments with good messages. He is urging the members to follow the "God's Acre" plan to finance the church. Several members have already taken this into consideration. May this plan be a benefit to our church.

The auxiliary is doing some good work. Plans are being made to make this year one of the best.

Mrs. J. F. Cook went as a delegate to the branch meeting. She returned with lots of information and ideas which are going to help carry on this organization in the future.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—Our revival has just closed Sunday night. It had been going on for two weeks. Our pastor, Rev. D. I. Garner, did all the preaching and I must say that he was at his best and left with us some real gospel sermons to think about. Rev. J. L. Neese, from the Christian church, led the singing for the meeting, and he and our pastor did a lot of visiting during the meeting. They went from house to house and invited people to come out to church; they visited several members homes uring the two weeks and while it was not what we had hoped to make it, it was not a failure by any means, for there were several converts and four joined the church. Mrs. G. F. Millaway being one of the four and any church should be glad to have this dear woman for a member. There were visiting quartets as well as our own that furnished special music. Also visitors from other churches throughout the meeting.

Last Sunday was Joash Day at our church, the box seemed to be filled up right much at the 11 o'clock service but I am not saying how high the box was. Anyway we were not expecting as much as Rev. C W. Bates was at Calvary church.

Two weeks ago 20 of our members of the Ladies' Aid Society visited the Thacker's dairy, went through at milking time; it was a nice trip to most of us that had never been through a big dairy barn at milking time. We were shown around and how the milk was cared for from start to finish. We were then given all the ice-cold milk and chocolate milk we could drink, and, best of all, Mr. Thacker gave the ladies a five-dollar bill for our going.

Mr. and Mrs C. E. Wilson and family spent Sunday in Lexington with Mrs. Wilson's brother that has been sick for quite a spell.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—When we heard the church bell ringing Sunday morning at 10:00 for Sunday school, we began to gather up Bibles, quarterlies and song books, and rush off to the Sunday school to worship and hear more about our great Savior. Although our congregation was small, we had an interesting Sunday school.

At preaching hour the bell called us again in the afternoon to hear Mr. Ferree's message he was to give us, but for the small congregation, rain, and various reasons, Mr. Ferree decided to wait until evening to preach and perhaps he would have a better congregation. For the third time the bell called us to Christian Endeavor, although lots of our members were absent and late our program was successfully carried out by Jeanette VanHoy. Next Sunday night we are looking forward to a real good program from Delegate Harris. After our Christian Endeavor Mr. Ferree gave us a wonderful message. His topic was: "What Must I Do to be Saved?" This question should confront all of us. What must you and I do to be saved? There is only one way to be saved and that is to "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Oh, people! Everybody listen! Watch your step, actions, company, thoughts, words, and deeds.

Thoughts

"Let us walk softly, friend;
For strange paths lie before us, all untrod;
The new year, spotless from the hand of God,
Is thine and mine, O friend!

Let us walk straightly, friend;
Forget the crooked paths behind us now,
Press on with steadier purpose on our brow,
To better deeds, O friend.

Let us walk gladly, friend;
Perchance some greater good than we have known
Is waiting for us, or some fair hope flown
Shall yet return, O friend

Let us walk humbly, friend;
Slight not the heartsease blooming 'round our feet;
The laurel blossoms are not half so sweet,
Or lightly gathered, friend.

Let us walk kindly, friend;
We cannot tell how long this life will last.
How soon these precious years be overpast;
Let love walk with us, friend!

Let us walk quickly, friend;
Work with our might while lasts our little stay,
And help some halting comrade on the way;
And may God guide us, friend!"

We are looking forward with eagerness for Mr. Ferree's next sermon, which will be worth listening to, I'm sure. As our church work is about the same, but hoping it will improve in the future, I haven't got any news. We are only trusting in God and hoping everybody else is. May God bless and help everybody is my prayer. God bless you!

Spring

"Hear the whiperings of springtime.
Birds are calling everywhere,
From the bluejay's timely yodel
To the thrush's chanting prayer.

"The meadow larks are flying low,
The red birds whistling clear,
And silent robins flit about,
Distilling love and cheer.

"A tender haze is drifting
'O'er the hills and near the sky,
And the lowlands, full of sweet unrest,
Await the harvest's cry.

"How that tired feeling haunts us
As the slumbrous stillness reigns,
And the season's magic quiet
Is as softest music strains.

"God is love and love is springtime,
Gentle springtime, wondrous—rare!
And our hearts grow tender, wistful,
In a 'nameless, voiceless prayer'!

"What a wealth of early greenness
Covers moorland, dale and hill;
Flowers springing forth in beatuy
Radiant—in the Master's will!

"The daffodils and buttercups,
And violets darkly blue,
The jonquils and anemones,
And blooms of every hue.

"The crocus and the snowdrop,
Bold harbingers of spring.
Then comes the friendly tulip race,
A message sure to bring!

"How the charms of field and forest
Seem as precious olden Psalm,
That sweet peace of hills and pastures,
Springtime's glory—Heaven's balm!"

—Bessie Gatch Jones.

May we work and worship for the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, until the end and at last meet around the throne of God.

Liberty.—Our Sunday school was very much alive, and altogether encouraging today.

Mr. Chambliss delivered an able and eloquent message based on the text: "I Will Build My Church." These were the words of the Great Galilean Teacher. Mr. Chambliss said in part: "There is no other business to be compared with the church of Christ. Where ever a church has been true it has been a great blessing. There are more than five hundred million members of the church of Christ.

At the evening service our pastor gave us another good sermon. He spoke of how we should pray for our pastor and love him and co-operate with him in all church work. I'm sure he has the prayers of a number of our members and each good and noble message he brings to us makes him nearer and dearer to our hearts. We were glad to have Dr. Johnson with us in the evening service. Please come again, Dr. Johnson.

Miss Helen Isley who is attending Greensboro Commercial College, spent the week-end at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Isley.

Mr. Chambliss was the dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Elkins Sunday.

We were indeed glad to have Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Shepard worship with us Sunday. This is the first time they have both been able to attend church since last November. Father and mother are both getting feeble. When our church paper arrives they can hardly wait to read the article written by Mr. Millaway. Then they look to see Mr. J. D. Williams' name. He was our good and faithful pastor last year. Then they like to read the report by Dr. A. G. Dixon, he was our good pastor only a few years ago. They still love and speak of so many of our former pastors and hold them sacred in their memory.

One night around the fireside we counted more than 50 ministers who have dined with us in our home. What sweet memories! Anytime any of you are passing through Liberty, stop in to see us. The great sorrow and loss of their son, and my brother, Dr. F. A. Shepard, drew all these old friends nearer.

Palestine, Flat Rock.—Brother Hutton filled his appointment Sunday. The crowd was larger than the past three months. Some of those that had not gotten any numbers for their car have got some and we are looking for a large crowd from now on.

Brother Hutton's sermon was sweet and interesting all the way through. He preached to us Moses as he led the Children of Israel out of Egypt. In spite of the wildreness, hardship, and difficulties, neither carrying food or clothing, Moses led them on. They were fleeing from sin. God was leading them. If only our people today would flee from sin, and let God lead them. What a diffeernt country we would have to live in.

Next Sunday the Sunday school will begin and we hope to have a good attendance. The health of our superintendent made the opening some later than was expected.

Brother Bill Sharron, one of our soldier boys and one of the best members of our church, who has been confined to his bed for the past six weeks, was carried this past week-end to a Norfolk hospital with the hope of getting better. Brother Bill is suffering with heart disease. We are hoping and praying that he may soon be home again improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Lemons were unable to attend church Sunday.

Calvary, Greensboro—Something brought our folks out to Sunday school, most of them being on time. We had 252 present this past Sunday. Just fen short of our record attendance. Perhaps it was to celebrate the anniversary of our church and Sunday school.

Calvary is all of eight years old, having celebrated her eighth anniversary Sunday, April 24th. Our choir rendered special music for the occasion. Five new members were received into the church. Two came by letter and three by profession of faith. Honor was shown our members who have been taken from us by death. We have lost only thirteen members in the eight years. As the names were called thirteen young ladies of the church each placed a white rose on the altar in honor of the dead. The church roll was then called and each member responded by placing his or her gift in the Joash Box. This box yielded $231.00 in cash and about $35.00 in pledges. This to be paid on the church debt.

Our guest of honor for the day was Rev. S. W. Taylor, D.D., president of the conference, who brought us a message that enabled us to appreciate our church more. His theme was, "Building the Church." He was accompanied by his wife and S. W., Jr.. We were glad to have them with us and hope they will honor us again.

At the close of the service the ladies served dinner on the church lawn. The birthday dinner was enjoyed by all, including the preachers. For 'tis said, "Preachers do Eat." After satisfying their appetites the folks held a Good Fellowship service in the church. Messages were brought to us by Pastors D. I. Garner, of St. Pauls church, Rev. G. L. Curry of West End and Mr. J. Norman Wills spoke for Grace church. Mr. Bates read an interesting statement showing the growth in finance and membership during the eight years. Last year being the best in the history of our church in both respects.

Mr. Arthur Fiddler of High Point sang a solo, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Williams, our pianist. The whole day was enjoyed by all present and pronounced a happy anniversary. May Calvary celebrate many more.

Our delegates to the annual branch missionary meeting at Enfield April 12-13-14th reported a successful and enjoyable meeting. Some good advice was given us and we received it with pleasure. The auxiliary promises fair Farmerettes. They are 'tater planting. Each lady was asked at our April auxiliary meeting to plant a large potato to be harvested in July. The potatoes are to be turned into dollars by the magic wand of the said farmerettes, to swell our treasury. A way for raising funds was suggested for each month of the year. We hope to work harder than ever and make this a record year for the auxiliary.

Moriah.—Our pastor, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, brought to us the last two Sundays, two helpful and inspiring messages.

Thursday, April 7, the Woman's Missionary auxiliary met wtih Mrs. Carey Glass. The attendance was very good and each one enjoyed the splendid program given by the president, Mrs. E. P. Sharpe. Two delegates were appointed to attend the branch meeting at Enfield. They were Mrs. Ed Berry and Miss Rebecca Sharpe. The delegates attended the branch meeting and enjoyed every minute of it.

Joash Day was observed Sunday, April 17.

Our Sunday school is growing rapidly in interest and attendance.

The Christian Endeavor was reorganiped last Sunday night with 30 present. We are engaged in a contest which we hope will bring many new members and hold the interest.

Midway, Shady Grove Charge.—The Ladies' Aid society met last week with Mrs. J. C. Watkins at her home on the High Point road. Dr. Joy Glasscock of West End church met with them and organized a junior missionary society.

Our pastor, Mr. Grant, has been absent from our services for about two weeks because of illnes in his family. We hope that he will be able to return soon.

Dr. Taylor will speak at our church next Sunday. We hope to have a large congregation for him.

Some of our young people are putting on a play sponsored by the Ladies' Aid. This play will be given at Sedgefield school Tuesday night, May 3rd, at 8:00. This is a clean rural comedy and very entertaining. The title is "Aaron Slick from Pumpkin Crick." It's just as funny as the name sounds. We want to urge any who can to be present that night and help us raise some money as well as enjoying two hours of fun. The admission prices will be very low and we hope to have a large crowd.

ELECTRICITY IN AIR

Did you know that there are mysterious pulses of electricity in the air? These pulses, occurring at about 12 second intervals, were accidentally discovered by P. A. Sheppard, of the Kew Observatory in England. As reported by him in Nature magazine, he set up at the observatory a series of instruments to record the electrification of the air as the atmosphere is known to contain a number of electrified particles called ions. But much to his sprprise the instruments were found to record successive pulses of electrification, occurring at the same instant in all of the instruments and following each other at about five times a minute. The most probable interpretation of these mysterious cycles, says Dr. E. E. Free, is that the air ions increase and decrease periodically.—Exchange.

—At present the college of cardinals, which is the senate of the Catholic church, contains 26 Italians and 29 non-Italians. There are 15 vacancies. The general policy is to maintain a balance between Italians and non-Italians in the college of cardinals.

—Maine led all the other states in the Union as a pioneer in the regulation of liquor business and in 1846 she adopted what may be regarded as the first prohibition law in the United States. This act drastically restricted the sale of liquors, but it proved inadequate and a new and stricter law was passed in 1851.—Exchange.

REPORT FROM A NEW CHARGE WITH A LITTLE ADVICE

Lumpkinville Charge, Lumpkin's Chapel.—Sunday, April 15, pastor had a good day. Large Sunday school assembled (37 present) and the efficient teachers (3) on hand. After Sunday school the large audience assembled in the main auditorium for preaching (audience 23, old men and women, the efficient Sunday school teachers, 3, and large number of students, 27, on way home). They gave rapt attention (the few old folks who could hear), and we feel great good was done (to those who did not hear) and in all was a most pleasing hour. After services the pastor had a most sumptuous dinner at the home of Brother John Grill and family. Dinner consisted of skinned beans, goat butter, hot-pork flakes, chicken liver on toast, rooster brains, mustard pudding and veal dessert. The pastor had a very gracious invitation to return at next regular appointment. The pastor then made a hurried call (of 12 1-2 miles per hour), to next appointment at Jug Mouth for 3 p. m. service. The congregation was unusually attentive, while the pastor preached on "Where did Cain get his wife." It was a very strenuous day, but we very greatly enjoyed it all.

Brethren, please take notice (and not one of them takes the Herald), second quarterly conference convenes at Lumpkin's Chapel April 9. Important business to transact (and they have no financial program, and have not had in fifty years). (Not one of the officials has ever asked the pastor about his needs.)

We wish to say, there was a delightful wedding solemnized at the parsonage April 10. The bride, who was before marriage Miss Susie Etta Rickenhamhouse, a descendent of Nicholatian fame. The groom is a son of the late Rt. Rev. Dr. John Sargo, of Biddieville university, North West, Washington, D. C. Dr. Sargo is a decendant of the Bismarc's. His great grandfather crossed the Atlantic in a steamboat, centuries before "Battoes" were invented. The accomplished couple are now honeymooning about a mile this side of Washington city. The groom's father was once prime minister of the Laodicians. In ten days, the groom and bride will be at home, running a filling station, three miles this side where he used to live.

Moral: Unless there is a paper in at least the home of every official, there is no need to notify the annual conference through the Herald. Herald is a good means if the people are readers. Cut down expenses by using less space. But if you must say it, just arrange for a net-work hookup, and give a general radio broadcast, financed by the pastor and Brother Grill.

Sincerely,

JAMES BOAZ.

THANK OFFERING SERVICE

Rendered at the N. C. Branch Meeting by Mrs. J. W. Boyles

(Published by request)

"Thank Offering."

Leader: Ingratitude is a very common sin for it's so easy for all of us to fail to make acknowledgement for benefits conferred. Carelessly children accept the loving service of father and mother and in turn parents fail to express appreciation for the thoughtfulness of a child. Friend forgets to thank friend; neighbor forgets to thank neighbor and Christians forget to thank their Heavenly Father, who is the author of every good and perfect gift. How easy it is to tell God what we need and forget to thank Him for what we have. Thankfulness, like other virtues, must be cultivated in the garden of the heart or else the vices of envy and malice will spring up like noxious weeds.

Some one said that many favors which God gives us ravel out for want of hemming—through our unthankfulness. We are come together today to hem up our favors and hear the gratitude of those who have received favors.

Let us thank God for His goodness and mercy: Praise ye the Lord. O give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good: for His mercy endureth forever.—Psalm 106:1.

I will take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord. Oh, what men would praise the Lord for His goodness and for His wonderful works to the children of men. Blessed be the name of the Lord forevermore. Amen.

Hymn, "Savier, Thy Dying Love."

2. The Call. By President of the Auxiliary.

"Women, waken to the need,
Of those across the sea,
Of bondaged souls that must be freed,
By aid from you and me.
There millions die that never heard
Of Jesus and His love,
Without a chance to read His word,
Nor learn from Heaven above.
In sin and agony of life,
In evil lust they go,
As struggling on in daily strife
For want of Christ to know:
O Women, waken to this call,
And help to save from eternal death,
For whom Christ died,
For He died for all.

3. Roll Call.

4. Candles Lighted.

Hold high the torch—
You did not light its glow;
'Twas given you from other hands you know.
'Tis only yours to keep burning bright
Yours to pass on when you no more need light.
For there are little feet that you must guide,
And little forms go marching by your side;
Their eyes are wet, their eyes are watching every tear and smile,
And efforts that you think are not worth while
May sometimes be the very help they need,
Actions to which their souls would give most heed,
So that in turn they'll lift it high and say,
I watched my mother carry it this way.
If brighter paths would beckon you to choose,
Would your small gain compare with all you'd lose?
Then lift the torch. You did not light its glow:
'Twas given you from other hands you know.
I think it started down its pathway bright
The dav the Maker said, "Let there be Light."

5. Thank Offering Creed, In Concert.

I believe that God is my Heavenly Father, and that I am His little child.

I believe that to me His mercies are new every morning, and that He daily loadeth me with His benefits.

I believe that in return I should daily load Him with thanksgiving, and prove my gratitude with thank offerings.

I believe that He has called me to be a co-worker with Him in bringing the world to a knowledge of Christ, the Saviour.

I believe that He wants me to use my time, my talents, my prayers and my means to this end.

I believe that by His Holy Spirit He will enable me to consecrate my all to Him. Amen.

6. Benediction.

GASOLINE FROM COTTON SEED

Scientists have discovered that high-grade gasoline, as well as salad oils and butter substitutes, can be made from cotton seed. This startling discovery was reported to the American Chemical Society convention at New Orleans by Dr. Gustav Egloff and Dr. J. C. Morrell, chemists of the Universal Oil Products Co. They found that by running cottonseed oil through a metal coil at a temperature of 900 degrees Fahrenheit and a pressure of 150 pounds per square inch it "breaks down" or "cracks up," yielding 50 per cent of gasoline, a heavy fuel oil, coke,, 13 different gases and water.—Exchange.

It belongs to the same animal as our common earthworms. The progress of these gigantic worms through the soil is attended by gurgling and sucking sounds clearly audible to persons walking on the surface. Their eggs resemble large olives. Related species which attain a length of several feet are found in parts of South America, Java and other parts of the world.—Exchange.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Hawkins

The whole community was saddened Wednesday evening, April 16, 1932, by the death of Mr. W. W. Hawkins, aged 77 years.

He professed religion when he was young and joined the Methodist Protestant church at Hawkins Chapel, where he remained faithful until death. We will miss him, and not only him, but the sound of his crutch he had to use since he was paralyzed some years ago. His place was not at the back, but always at the front. He has left an influence in the community that will live throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity. Truly, he bore hardships and trials as a good soldier of Jesus Christ, and was a man loved by all who knew him becaue of piety and patient endurance. His pastor said he felt like he could have given up some of his relatives as well, for to know Brother Hawkins was to love him.

As Jesus said In my Father's house is a place for you, so it was with him when you went to see him. He greeted you with a smile, and wanted you to feel at home.

In his young days he was married to Miss Zudie Hale; to this union were born seven children: Mrs. Willie Dickens, who preceded him in death some years ago, Messrs. Howell, Jack, Wyatte, Roger, Fitzhugh, and Mrs. Berta Hawkins, all high standing citizens of Halifax county. He leaves 15 grandchildren, one half brother, Mr. Squire Cullom, many relatives and hosts of friends, far and near.

The funeral was held at his home Friday evening by his pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, assisted by Rev. Mr. Bradly. An effort was made to have Dr. S. W. Taylor, a former pastor of the deceased, present, but Dr. Taylor could not reach here. He was laid to rest above the house beside his dear beloved wife, who went on to rest about four years ago.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the children and grandchildren whom Grandpa loved so well.

"Jesus, while our hearts are bleeding
O'er the spoils that death has won,
We would at this solemn meeting
Calmly say, Thy will be done.
By thy hands the boon was given,
Thou hast taken but thine own,
Lord of earth and God of heaven,
Evermore thy will be done!"

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS.

EXERCISE WITH PRIME NUMBERS

A prime number is a whole number that cannot be exactly divided by any whole number except itself and 1. The prime numbers smaller than 100 are 1, 2, 3, 5, 7, 11, 13, 17, 19, 23, 29, 31, 37, 41, 43, 47, 53, 59, 61, 67, 71, 73, 79, 83, 89, 97.

Some persons find pleasure and mental improvement in dealing with numbers. To such among the readers of the Herald we propose as an exercise the finding of all prime numbers between 100 and 200. The list should be sent us by May 11 if we may be permitted to publish the name of the person solving the problem.

DR. R. M. ANDREWS STILL IMPROVING

Dear Dr. McCulloch:

I think I may say with assurance that Dr. Andrews is really making substantial progress toward recovery now. His condition has been quite changeable for the past three weeks. I guess a correct graph of it would look somewhat like a succession of capital W's—fever and in bed a day or two and sitting up the next day or two. He enjoyed an automobile ride of an hour on two successive days last week, and was in bed the next two days. We do not attribute the necessity for staying in bed to the drives, however. He has had announced for tomorrow (Wednesday) night, the second quarterly conference, at the parsonage, and says if he can't sit up to hold it, he'll hold it in bed.

Our doctor, says to Dr. Andrews, "That fan mail seems to be doing you a lot of good!" in which statement I most heartily concur.

I hope to be able to express convincing thanks later to the senders of the "fan mail," who responded so nobly to my S. O. S.

Sincerely,

MRS. R. M. ANDREWS.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Circle No. 2, Missionary society, Haynesville, La., 15 little dresses, 1 tea coth, 2 pair pants, 6 pieces of underwear. Mr. R. O. Lindsay, High Point, 1 fine Holstein calf.

You will note that the list is short this time, but we very deeply appreciate everything that has been given. We also appreciate fully the thought and the prayers and the kindly feeling our people are giving this home.

Two Graduates

We have two very fine girls who are graduating from the Jamestown high school on the 18th of May. These are Flora Coble of Benaja, and Christine Latham of Bath.

Doubtless very few graduating presents will be coming to these two girls. If anybody reading this feels to send a bit of money, or something suitable for a 17 year old girl, we will try to see that they share about alike. Flora wishes to take a business course and Christine plans to enter High Point College. To do this they must have help from some source.

May the Lord richly bless His people in spiritual and material things.

"O Where Is My Mother?"

Mother's gone and I can't find her,
Though I've looked in every place,
Searching house and barn and garden,
Finding not a single trace.

When I went to Uncle Henry's,
Leaving her so sick in bed,
"You will stay till she is better,"
Was the very word they said.

Every day I asked my uncle,
"Is my mother better yet?"
Every day he answered brightly,
"She'll be better, don't you fret."

Longer could I not endure it—
Home I ran with all my might—
Rushing in to see my mother—
Vacant room was shocking sight!

Down the road there came a neighbor:
Out I ran to him and said:
"Tell me how to find my mother!"
Sadly did he shake his head.

Mother, mother, dearest mother,
Can't I find you anywhere?
Can't I make you hear my calling?
Mother! Mother! Mother dear!

Prohibition Catechism

Mr. W. G. Calderwood has prepared for The Allied Forces for Prohibition a valuable handbook entitled "Prohibition Facts." The interest is enhanced by its question-and-answer form. It is of coat-pocket size and has 100 pages crowded with pertinent facts. This little book will do much if widely read to dispossess the public mind of errors regarding the effects of prohibition. It states and proves these four facts:

1. Prohibition did practically eliminate the manufacture of intoxicating drinks. (If there has since been an increase it is wholly because a rebellious minority were disloyal to the principle of government of the people, for the people and by the people.)

2. Prohibition did immediately and sharply reduce crime.

3. Prohibition did immediately bring an era of unprecedented national prosperity.

4. The faith of the people has been confirmed in the soundness of the prohibition principle.

Here are some of the questions the book asks and answers:

Is prohibition violated more regularly, brazenly and habitually than the old regulatory laws were?

Were there more blind pigs before prohibition than since?

Did not saloons protect the health of patrons by providing them with pure liquor?

Is it not generally admitted that crime has very greatly increased in the United States since prohibition?

Has prohibition improved the conditions under which children live?

Do such social agencies as The Salvation Army find bettered conditions?

Has there been any apparent change in the children's courts since prohibition?

Is the average criminal younger now than heretofore?

Is it not a fact that youth is getting wild—wilder than it was in former days?

How do educators judge prohibition in regard to the children and youth?

In the olden days did children and young people drink more than they do now?

What are the physiological effects of the use of alcohol?

Is a small dose of alcohol injurious to the human system?

Is not alcohol valuable as a medicine?

Is a single drink of liquor enough to reduce the safety with which a driver would operate an automobile?

Does one get much more alcohol in the ordinary glass of whiskey than he would in the ordinary glass of beer?

Do the drinking habits of the parents affect the health of their children?

Is denatured alcohol more poisonous than before denaturization?

Is it not true that there is an increase in the number of drunken drivers?

The wets say that prohibition has ruined the farmer: How about that?

Would it help the farmer to sell his grain at a better price if beer were manufactured?

Why did the prices of grain go up when its manufacture into liquor ceased?

Does it take as much grain to produce a gallon of milk as to produce a gallon of beer?

Is it not reasonable that alcohol, which is a product of nature, is intended for drink?

Would not the return of the manufacture of liquor give employment to more than a million men now unemployed?

What about the claim that prohibition is largely responsible for the depression?

MORE ABOUT THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

In the HERALD, April 21st, we had the privilege of reading an interesting article written by an individual, once a denominational secretary and for two decades or more a continuous member of each succeeding General Conference, in which he at length arrives at the following conviction touching our denominational machinery:

"After having tried our present plan for several years without having accomplished any outstanding piece of constructive work for the denomination, it seems to me that the plan needs revising, and I suggest the following changes in it."

This statement, in the light of the proposals which follow it, will strike a responsive chord in the hearts of eighty and perhaps ninety per cent of the Methodist Protestants in North Carolina. However, following the article to the end, it has just one major defect; it clings to our old method of "handing down a budget." Whereas, it is plainly evident that any financial approach which encouraged or even permitted our present status is to say the least obsolete.

The weakness of the system to which the article clings is to be found just here; it gives to our legislative bodies the power to tax without the power to collect. This is the crux of the whole situation. Our last General Conference attempted to overcome this weakness by making the pastor a tax collector. It said, get the money or "else." (See additions to Discipline by last General Conference). It will be interesting to see whether the approaching General Conference can discover anything more futile.

The fruits of such a system are invariably debts, estrangements, disintegration. Further, the greater strain to which the system is put the more rapidly the fruits mature. Behold the results about us! No structure, not even the church, can ever rest securely upon such a dual foundation.

The system is impossible because it is based upon a false assumption; namely, that the few have a right to decide for the many. It was this same error pressed in another phase of our life which occasioned the Methodist Protestant church; the same error pressed in its present form can destroy the Methodist Protestant church. This, some at length have sensed.

Therefore, it is interesting to behold the increasing number of individuals, standing face to face with the fruits of their own volition, shift over on the other pedal and begin to speak the language of retrenchment and frugality as though it was their own peculiar creation However, the depth of their conversion can best be measured by discovering whether or not they are willing to discard the system which made possible our present status and address themselves to the problem of finding a proper substitute. This is the challenge of the new century.

A resolution looking in this direction was before our last Annual Conference. (See HERALD, Nov. 12, 1931). This resolution was "referred to" our representatives in the General Conference. The motion which did this was made by an individual already elected to that body; another indication of how the few are sometimes ready to decide for the many. Truly, has a distinguished student of government said: "the great danger of representative government is lest it should slide down from representative government to delegated government." Certainly this is the evil that has overtaken our church.

We hear much about the virility of our Woman's Missionary organization, how that two dollars out of every three raised for our General Conference Budget comes from and through this organization. Now it would be interesting to know just what part of their strength grows out of the fact that they permit each local organization to exercise that which in some cases at least amounts to a determining influence in setting its budget. Certainly such a procedure has strength because it is steeped in both morality and democracy. Such a method has two advantages, it gets the money and it coordinates.

It is just here that the approaching General Conference has an opportunity to render the most constructive service in the history of our church: namely, formulate and inaugurate a financial system springing directly from the will of the people, supported by such principles and surrounded by such safe-guards as may be necessary to produce and maintain a balanced budget and a united, solvent church. If the above resolution is ever received it will be found to imply all that Dr. Brown well suggested and, further, point a finger in this direction.

THE WORLD COUNCIL AND CONVOCATION OF YOUTH AT THE ELEVENTH WORLD SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

July 25-31, 1932—Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

The World Council of Youth will meet for four sessions under the guidance of Dr. George Stewart, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Stamford, Conn. These sessions will include Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings of the Convention Week. Attendance will be limited to a selected group of 100 young people with each nation participating being proportionately represented.

Beginning Friday afternoon, the Council will be expanded into a Covention of Youth to which the youth of Brazil as well as other young people available will be invited. On Saturday night, young people chosen by the Council of Youth will bring messages in the Youth Session of the Convention.

The themes suggested for consideration in these youth gatherings include Jesus and Nationalism, Jesus and the Social Order, Jesus and War, Jesus and Personal Conduct. Thus the challenge of "the living Christ" will be faced by the young people, and after thoughtful consideration their findings will be brought in stirring messages to the Convention.

The Cost of the Tour. Including first class passage, New York to Rio and return—$480.00. Second class—$360.00. Third class—$271.00. This is a total cost statement from New York to New York, except passport and strictly personal items, and includes steamship ticket for the round trip, United States war tax, Brazilian embarkation tax and visa, Convention registration fee, and board and meals in Rio from July 22 to 31 at Bennett College, and from August 1 to 3 at hotel.

The chief sailing will be on the SS American Legion, leaving New York, July 9, arriving at Rio de Janiero, July 22; returning leave Rio, August 4, arriving in New York, August 17.

We are very anxious that some young person represent the Methodist Protestant church in the Youth Council and Convocation. You can help us secure this representative by informing us immediately of any church interested in sending one of its young people, parents who wish to send a son or daughter, or any young person, who because of the reduced cost, would like to pay his own expenses. Should you know of anyone interested in this project, please let us know at your earliest convenience.

A TRUE STORY FOR MOTHER'S DAY

By Rev. Rennetts C. Miller, D.D.

Mary Anna Miller was born October 19, 1840, in southern Ohio. Her father was born in England but came to this country when very young. He was related to Edward Everett, the distinguished orator, statesman and scholar. Her mother came from Virginia. Her maiden name was Smith, possibly distantly related to the famous Captain John Smith.

Mother taught school two years, then at 18 married Joseph Warren Miller, a farmer, and they lived in the small village of Rome, Lawrence County, Ohio, near Proctorsville, where their four children were born—the editor of the Civic Bulletin, the writer of this story, a younger brother and a sister.

"She'll Be Dead by Sundown"

Soon after my twin brother and I were born, Mother was stricken with puerperal fever. In those times it proved fatal in nearly every case. She grew steadily worse. One morning the doctor came and found her very weak. He said, "She is past hope. She will be dead by sundown." With breaking heart and frantic spirit father paced the floor in despair. But there were many people in that village who believed in prayer, in spite of the doctor's verdict.

Someone ran to the church and rang and rang the bell until the whole community was aroused and excitedly rushed into the street inquiring what it meant. The word quickly passed from lip to lip, "Mary Miller is dying and the people are gathering at the church to pray that God may spare her life for those twin babies in the cradle." A large number gathered at the church and spent the afternoon in importunate prayer for her recovery. But no cheering word came from the home not far away. But, as the sun went down Mother opened her eyes and smiled on father, which brought a thrill of joy and hope to his distracted spirit. She soon recovered.

Our Early Home Life

Mother was just as solicitous for good food for our minds and souls as for our bodies. Good books were provided in our home. Mother would have them if we had to go short on other things. It was her practice to read or carefully inspect each book that came into our home, before we children read it, even if it came from the Sunday School library. She was an omnivorous reader herself. She was particularly fond of history. Many an hour we boys sat entranced as she told us stories of the great nations.

When the writer was sixteen years old a "revival" was in progress in our village church. I wanted to be a Christian. Parental teaching and example, together with the Spirit's influence, had prepared my heart for this step. But I hesitated. I was timid. I needed another's help, the personal touch. Mother, probably divining the struggle in my heart, sat down beside me, alone, in our home, and, with a Mother's solicitude shown in her trembling voice, anxious look and moistened eyes, calmly talked to me about God's claim upon my life. Before that day her life had made its appeal; but that hour her lips re-enforced it with irresistible emphasis.

The quiet sacred interview was short, but it was impressive and momentous in results. She did no preaching. She simply made a tender, personal appeal in helping to answer her own prayers for her boy's conversion. I recall but two sentences of her earnest entreaty that day, but they have been burned into my memory forever. "I have been hoping and praying that you are going to give your heart and life to Jesus now. There will never be a better time than right now." That was the supreme moment of my life career. Mother's appeal won me. I soon surrendered to God.

Mother and Our Sabbaths

We ate breakfast about 7 o'clock, Sundays. At 8 o'clock father took us with him to the Methodist class meeting where usually 75 or 100 people gathered every Sunday. At 9 o'clock we went to Sunday School. At 10:30 o'clock we were at "the preaching service." Some people today, who can sit uncomplainingly three hours with their children at the movies, may think my parents a bit severe to require us to go to three church services on Sunday forenoon, but I have not the faintest recollection of the services ever becoming tiresome or irksome, even though I fell asleep, at times, but some older folks did likewise. Mother's psychology, as well as her theology, of church attendance, was correct. She started us going regularly to church when very young, before we dared to protest. We also went to church Sunday evenings; so that regular church attendance early became a life habit with us. We had family prayers every morning.

An incident, illustrating this habit, is still vividly recalled. One Sunday morning, when about ten years old, I said to Mother, "I don't want to go to church today." Mother's tact and wise reply have made me smile many times since, "Very well, you do not have to go to church if you do not feel like it. Go upstairs and undress and go to bed and stay there today. You surely must be ill if you do not want to go to church." I changed my mind quickly and was eager to go to church as usual.

Our Sabbaths were holy days, not holidays. Sunday visiting, except in times of sickness or sorrow, was unknown to us. Sunday visitors were not encouraged to come and they rarely came. We were taught that the Lord's Day was different from other days. Yet on that day Mother seemed to know how to make the home bright and attractive, even for restless, wide-awake boys. Our Sabbaths were rich with spiritual fragrance, holy quiet and real rest.

Sick

We received information a few days ago that Brother T. A. Williams was sick with flu, a malady that has been more or less prevalent for the past month. He will have our prayers. We trust that he may be entirely well in due time.

District Rally, Third District

This was held at Mt. Hermon church, Mt. Hermon charge, on Saturday, April 23. Chairman Whitehead had arranged an all-day program, with dinner on the ground. The charges in this District are Mt. Hermon, Alamance, Saxapahaw, Orange, and Mebane. All were represented, and the program, as arranged, was carried out with a fair measure of completeness, and with much helpfulness, we trust. It was our privilege to preach during the morning session, and to assist Brothers Holmes and Mabry in the observance of the Lord's Supper, which followed the sermon. The pastor of each charge in the District was present, and each shared in some part of the program of the day. Each charge in the District was represented also by laymen and laywomen. The program provided a group meeting in the interest of Women's Work, with Mrs. H. A. Garrett as the leader. Other ministers present besides those mentioned, are Holmes, Isley (H. L.), Paschall, Williams (J. D.), Pegg, and Braxton. A pleasing and helpful devotional service was conducted in the afternoon by Miss Keck. The High Point College choir, directed by Prof. E. B. Stimson, was present in the afternoon, and pleased and edified the audience by a number of vocal and instrumental numbers. But we shall not attempt further details. It was a good rally, and we congratulate Chairman Whitehead and his District upon the success of the day. May the great Head of the church conserve the good that was accomplished, and cause it to increase.

Western Pastors' Federation

This was held at Bess Chapel, Rev. J. D. Morris, pastor, on Monday, April 25. Dr. Andrews, chairman, was present and presided. Other members of this Federation present are: Morris, Ridge (C. E.), Morgan, Henderson, Shelton, Trogdon, Love (J. L.), Bingham, (E. A.), Williams (O. B.), Hendry, and Cranford. In addition to these ministers, quite a number of the members of this church were present.

EVANGELISM was the general theme of the meeting, and the following phases of it were discussed: "Personal Evangelism and Special Day," by Rev. G. H. Hendry. "The Pastor His Own Evangelist," by Rev. J. M. Morgan. "Evangelism, the Greatest Need of Today," by Rev. C. E. Ridge. "Evangelism and the Church Budget," by Rev J. B. Trogdon. Speakers for three other phases of the subject were absent. The brethren discussed thoughtfully their respective topics, and received the earnest attention of their hearers. Brother Morris, the pastor, was in charge of the opening devotional. It was our privilege to address the meeting in the closing period of the afternoon. We are sure that these meetings are helpful. We believe that every one left feeling that way about this one. The next meeting will be held the last week in September at Friendship church, Rev. O. B. Williams, pastor. "The Church At Its Best" is to be the general theme for this meeting.

Representatives' Expenses

On April 30 Dr. Brown writes: "To date I have received $126 on Representatives' Expenses." This is practically $4 per Representative, which won't go far toward the expenses of a thousand-mile trip, and a stay of ten days in the City of Columbus. But we are not in despair. There is more on the way. Alamance, Mt. Pleasant, and First Church, High Point, will pay in full. So will West Forsyth, according to word received from Pastor Way today. The brethren are working at this, and we are confident that the people will respond. Two more weeks remain for the raising of the allotment, and during that time much can be done. Let us suggest again that the money be sent promptly to Dr. Brown as it is raised. Don't hold it back for last returns. Let him have every dollar possible for distribution before the brethren start to the General Conference, and what comes in after that can be distributed later. On behalf of the Representatives I wish to express appreciation for what is being done by pastors and people to raise this necessary expense money.

Better and Better

High Point First has a long lead in the JOASH offering. The day was observed last Sunday in a splendid service, the offering amounting to $768. This included $470 in cash, and certain credits between the church and High Point College in the amount of $315. This is by far the largest offering that has been made by any church in this undertaking, though other churches have been generous in the amounts they have contributed. The following churches have not yet been included in our report: Roberta, $20; Asheboro, $75; First Church, Thomasville, $73; West End, Thomasville, $3.50; Community Church, $200; Charlotte, $28; Mebane, $128; Orange, $22; Tabernacle, $97; Alamance, $22; Concord, $40; Draper, $6. The total for these 13 charges is, $1,500.50,—an average per church of $115.46.

Our total JOASH offering to date is $2,990.46, with a number of charges to be heard from yet. Did somebody say, "Joash won't work?"

We wish to express again our keen appreciation of the splendid co-operation that this undertaking has received by both pastors and people. "All Together" is the way to do it.

Herald Campaign Month

Chairman Douglas, of the HERALD Directing Committee is suggesting that June be designated as HERALD Campaign Month. I give hearty endorsement to this suggestion, and most gladly unite with him and his committee in so designating this month.

Brother Douglas is publishing an article in the HERALD this week, which shows the results of the campaign for the first six months of the conference year, and what remains to be done, and the necessity for doing it. He and his committee are certainly behind this movement, and the cause certainly merits our fullest support. Let's give it! Let's give it!

Attention, everybody: JUNE IS HERALD MONTH.

Organize in May, and get ready for a big success in JUNE.

The General Conference

This Conference, which meets in Columbus, Ohio, May 18, is the first in the second century of our Denominational existence. For 100 years God has blessed our Zion, and used us to His glory. And we can enter upon the business of this coming conference in the full confidence that He is still with us. He has not blessed us and led us for 100 years, only to forsake us now. And there is nothing that we shall need in this Conference more than His presence Problems will confront us, and there will be differences of judgment regarding them. Plans for the church, covering another quadrennium, must be made, and these plans will concern every aspect of the church—General Church officers, boards, missions and missionaries, educational and philanthropic institutions, finances, the spiritual purposes of the church—everything that is a part of the work of our Church at home and abroad. And who is sufficient for these things? The whole Church should be much in prayer for this General Conference. We are hereby earnestly asking that our Conference pray much that the guiding and controlling presence of God may be in evidence in this great meeting of our Church. And will pastors, please lay this upon the hearts of their people, and request their prayers.

Appointments

May 14.—Guilford charge, in quarterly conference.

May 15.—Hickory Grove, Guilford charge, in Church Dedication Service.

May 18.—General Conference.

May 29.—Commencement Sunday, High Point College.

May 29.—Rally of 7th District, at Mt. Pleasant church.

June 26.—Anniversary service, Burlington church.

"God is love."

S. W. TAYLOR.

CRIMINALS DO NOT ENJOY HANGING

Even Harry Powers, who was hanged recently in West Virginia, objected to capital punishment. This notorious criminal, who had a private graveyard in which to bury women and children he had murdered, after all avenues of escape had been closed and he saw the hangman's noose dangling just ahead, railed against the wickedness of the state in allowing capital punishment. And Powers is not alone in his attitude towards the gallows and the electric chair. They are all violently opposed to it.

And that is just the reason for the widespread opposition to capital punishment in this country. The disposition is to consult the wishes of the criminals. This is not only true in regard to capital crime, but to all crime.

If a man is convicted in the courts and sent to prison and happens not to enjoy his incarceration, we must turn him out. If he is content, all well and good, but if not, he hires an attorney, rallies some of his friends, and on ex-parte hearing besieges the executive office for a pardon or parole, and in far too many instances a weak-kneed Governor turns him out.

If we solve the crime problem we must put away maudlin sentiment and observe the behests of justice and righteousness toward all, both the criminal and the innocent victim As it is now, the innocent victims of another's wrong-doing are forgotten and the criminal becomes a hero in the eyes of the "sob sisters." Some of these so-called "sob sisters" wear dresses and some of them are clad in men's garments, but they all alike bathe the feet of criminals with their tears and wipe them with the bloody garments of the slain.

In all seriousness, the American people must set themselves to law enforcement on a basis of common justice or else continue to reap the fruits of present attempted law enforcement.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

FACE THE SUN

Don't hunt after trouble,
But look for success;
You'll find what you look for;
Don't look for distress.

If you see but your shadow,
Remember, I pray,
That the sun is still shining,
But you're in the way.

Don't grumble, don't bluster,
Don't dream, and don't shirk;
Don't think of your worries,
But think of your work.

The worries will vanish,
The work will be done;
No man faces his shadow
Who faces the sun.

—Arthur Chamberlain in the Way.

COME LET US REASON TOGETHER

We have just passed the first half of the Conference year, and it is time to take stock of where we are. I want to call attention to the report of the HERALD Committee to the last Annual Conference in which it was stated that it required 2,000 subscribers per annum, to the HERALD to pay for the printing alone. This is equivalent to 1,000 subscribers for each six months. As a matter of fact actual subscriptions in this first six month are only 700, or 300 short of the number necessary to pay the printing bill for the six months, which means we are $300.00 behind on printing for the six months just passed and nothing at all for Brother McCulloch. In other words our deficit on the HERALD has increased by that amount or more.

Some of the charges have rallied nobly to the needs of the HERALD, and some of the subscription chairmen have done splendid work. But what about those charges that have not even tried? The time is coming soon when either the church must rally to the support of the HERALD or its existence cease. We just can not expect Brother McCulloch and the printers to continue to furnish the financial support which we refuse to give. To reach our goal we must have more than three times as many subscribers in the next six months as in the first six months. It is time for every pastor to rally to this cause. More subscribers on your charge will mean more of your salary paid. Let us get busy, help each other and save the HERALD and incidentally our denomination. Let us look the issue squarely in the face. Either let us save the paper or stop running Brother McCulloch, the printers and the North Carolina Conference further into debt.

I suggest, if it meets the approval of the President, that the month of June be officially designated as HERALD Campaign month. That on every charge or at every church where the subscription chairman is not functioning that the pastor personally take charge and see to it that every non-subscribing member or home is canvassed for a subscription to the HERALD. Use the month of May to organize, advertise and plan the June Campaign.

E. L. DOUGLAS, Chairman,
HERALD Directing Committee.

OUR STORY PAGE

A MIS-ADVENTURE OF MICKEY-THE-MODERN

"Oh, what ever shall we do?" wailed Mrs. Dunn of Field Mouse Row in Corn Patch Town, as she gazed at her only son, Mickey, who lay exhausted and gasping for breath at the door of the family home, with, of all things, a mouse-trap clamped tight to his beautiful tail.

Mickey, or Mickey-the-Modern as his admiring friends were wont to call him, had been worrying his parents of late. Until now he had been in no real trouble, but he was so venturesome! Foolhardy, Daddy Dunn had called him, only that morning week, when at the breakfast table father and son had disagreed over the ways and means of making a living.

"Keep away from houses," Daddy Dunn had said, "and of all things avoid cheese. Cheese, nine cases out of ten, means a trap. We are a conservative family; ye were born in the fields and we stick to the fields. There is good, wholesome food all about us; seed and grain and tuberous roots enough to satisfy any normal appetite; a vegetable diet is better for for us anyway. Why take a chance on cheese? The worse of it is, that once acquire the taste and you can't keep away from the stuff. I'm not averse to a crumb now and then at a friend's house, but I never run risks to secure it."

"What peeves me," said Sister Fan, "is that he is stingy with it. Never a crumb for the rest of us. Eats it all himself and then tells how good it is."

"Aw, Dad!" argued Mickey, "you're too conservative. You are living in the past. A lot has been learned since you were young. Just consider for a minute a few scientific facts. As a race field-mice are light in weight. If I sat on a trap I'd scarcely spring it. I really take very little risk for I have developed a real system. In fact I find it scarcely exciting any more. As to bringing cheese home—well, if I take the risk, big or little, I am certainly entitled to the gains. If you want cheese I'm willing to show you half a dozen traps in the village. I've never seen a field-mouse in one of them yet; only those fat house-mice that would spring a rat-trap," and Mickey-the-Modern curled his tail with a very sophisticated air, which made his mother realize what a very handsome young field-mouse he had become, even though his father did think him so foolish.

Every night for a week thereafter, Mickey had a marvelous time. He had several new traps on his route which he managed to visit before the house-mice were abroad, and he stole from them many a choice morsal, and then one night, after successfully robbing three traps ,a fourth suddenly went "snap," and quick though Mickey was he was not quite quick enough, for his beautiful tail failed to escape the little wire bar, which caught and held it just one inch from the pink tip. Had the blow been heavy enough to sever the tail entirely it would not have been so bad, but bruised and sore he must drag the hateful trap behind him to the door of his home in Corn Patch Town.

To make matters worse Daddy was still out on his nightly rounds and Mother Dunn was never very good at making decisions alone. So she wrung her paws and cried again to Sister Fan:

"What, oh, what shall we do?"

"Do?" answered Sister Fan, "why, get Dr. Dapple at once. He is the best surgeon in Corn Patch, and any one can see it will be a surgical case. I'll run right over for him," and off she went to his office on Scarlet Runner Ridge. She was soon back with the doctor, looking very grave and wise. He felt Mickey's pulse and listened to his breathing.

"While it is not a major operation," he said, "I think I shall give an anesthetic. He seems quite weak and his heartbeat, owing to a distended condition of the stomach, is somewhat irregular."

He opened his case, and from a tiny vial selected a single crumb, which he held to Mickey's nose, meanwhile gently lifting and lowering his paw and slowly counting. Very shortly, a smile played over Mickey's features and one could see he was in a land of pleasant dreams. Even Mother and Fan became slightly affected b ythe fumes, and Mother exclaimed:

"Oh, Doctor, Mickey's trouble has all come from his love of cheese. Don't you think he may become more addicted to the habit after having this anesthetic?"

"No danger, madam. Traps are never set with the finest Roquefort. If I were to tell you what this cost you would scarcely believe me. I got it from a specialist in New Rat City on the eastern waterfront. He keeps a highly-paid staff who do nothing but explore ships for this particular brand."

Then Dr. Dapple whipped out his lancet, and before you could say "Scat" the trap and an inch of tail were severed from Mickey.

"Now," said Dr. Dapple, "it must be made surgically clean. When he awakens, have him lick it for five minutes every half hour. I think there will be no complications. I used to give the first dressing myself, but I got a bad case of blood poisoning once and I am too valuable a citizen to run such risks."

"Oh, indeed you are, Doctor," exclaimed Mother Dunn, "and we are eternally grateful. Though you could not save our son's tail I am sure you saved his life. Send in your bill and Mr. Dunn will settle with you soon."

"That's all right, Mrs. Dunn; but if I did not know Mr. Dunn for a cautious, conservative gentleman, I'd insist on immediate payment. I do not credit practice with the younger generation; too many of them are among the missing at the end of the month; they pay on the spot. Tell Mr. Dunn it will be ten perfect grains of the best hard winter wheat."

"Oh, how very reasonable! He will gladly pay. He has quite a saving account in spite of hard times. But do tell me, Doctor, how do you think Mickey came to be caught? He has never been in trouble before. Do you think he could possibly be rheumatic at his age?"

"If your mother-love did not blind you, madam, you would see that he is far too fat for a field-mouse. Cheese is extremely fattening, and I dare say that he, like other young bloods, would eat it all himself, never bringing a crumb home. Consequently his increased weight sprung a trap that he could not possibly have sprung a week ago."

"I'm afraid you are right," sighed Mother Dunn, while Sister Fan nodded rather smugly. "What treatment do you prescribe when he awakens, Doctor?"

"Nothing whatever to eat for several hours. He won't want anything for he will be pretty sick with all that cheese, probably a cheap, indigestible brand, inside him. Then a strict diet of sunflower seed for at least a week. Well, good morning, ladies! I must hurry on. I'm due at the hospital this very minute. My regards to Mr. Dunn."

Mother Dunn saw him out, and then knelt sobbing beside her mutilated son.

"Oh," she wept, "those cruel, diabolical traps! There ought to be a law against them. To think that one of them has maimed my darling boy for life!"

"Yes," murmured Fan, "they are particularly bad for greedy and disobedient mice."—Martha Lindsay Hall in the New Outlook.

Prohibition Catechism

What about the alcoholic content of liquors consumed prior to prohibition?

Was the saloon active in politics in the old days?

What is the exact form of the 18th Amendment?

What is the Volstead Act?

Is the 18th Amendment now an actual integral part of the Constitution of the United States?

Has the Supreme Court decided this Amendment constitutional?

Does government sale reduce drinking and its evils?

Are not prohibition organizations divided and working at cross purposes?

Are not club women generally against prohibition?

How about society women?

Has the press turned against prohibition?

How many states are there which do not have State Enforcement codes?

Do most of the opponents of the prohibition law loyally obey it as good citizens?

These and many other questions are truthfully and fairly answered, but some answers will surprise you.

RADIO PROGRAMS

Here is a man who expresses our opinion about radio programs.

For several nights, we have turned in and "fished" all over the dial to find a program that would interest us for a few minutes.

Nothing doing. We quit and went back to a popular magazine or newspaper for entertainment.

But, read the following from a radio fan, clipped from The Albany Herald:

"I am off radio. The end came the other night when dog-tired from the daily grind, I twisted the dials and drew the advertising patter of a firm of cheerio undertakers.

"But, truth to tell, I was already fed up with the inanities of broadcasting and ready to quit. I do not feel that for the sake of mangled fragments of opera, an occasional symphony or a public address which I can read a few hours later over my morning coffee I can longer stomach the constant society of high-pressure salesmen. I believe, as did my English forefathers, that a man's house is his castle, and decline to allow cheeky fellows on whom I would shut my doors to steal into my home by way of a box of vacuum tubes.

"Henceforth, the merchants who get my patronage will be those who use other channels than the ether to advertise their wares. I claim the privilege of reading or ignoring advertising matter as I see fit. I intend, by my own fireside at least, to choose my company. No agents or peddlers need apply. I shall not receive crooners, saxophone players, soothsayers, cheapjack masters-of-ceremony or any of the other leather-lunged hucksters of the air. My house shall no longer be a market-place. I propose to have peace. I have sold my radio."—Selected.

COURAGE

By GRENVILLE KLEISER

Courage compels opportunity. Courage does not say, "I may," or, "Perhaps," but, "I can," and, "I will." Courage boldly surmounts difficulty. Flashes of inspiration, sudden impulses to do well, are valuable, but not nearly so productive as a life of uniformly courageous purpose. Have the self-reliance to push on in the performance of your immediate work. Right work is energizing. Always think right, work right, do right, and you will always have with you the supreme courage with which to achieve the best results.

You are not a machine, but a thinking mind with power to initiate and execute. If you are in a repressive atmosphere, in which you feel you are not able to give the highest and fullest expression to your nature, plan to make a change as quickly as possible. Deeply believe in your personal power and greatness and you will naturally seek the proper outlet for your abilities.

Devote your time more and more to things of importance. Look for large aspects. See life in big ways. Secure a comprehensive grasp of your work. Labor diligently and courageously toward definite ends. Perseverance and well directed purpose will, like faith, remove mountains.

This fine type of courage is closely bound up with energy and decision. The way is now clear to you. These qualities you should build into your thought and life. Constantly feel inspired by a high sense of duty. Develop in yourself conviction, judgment, truth, integrity, and kindred qualities. Inspire courage in others by means of your own splendid courage. Apply your courage in such ways as to achieve the most complete and conspicuous success.

The Leader's Talk

Safe is the home, the commmunity and the nation, whose sons and daughters have a deep and abiding appreciation for their parents and home. What about the home and the commnity where the children have nothing but ingratitude for their parents? It is lost. This may at first though seem a bit overdrawn, but it cannot be overstated. In the darkest picture that Paul ever painted, he gives us a part of that horrible picture in these words, "Disobedient to parents, without understanding, without natural affections!"

Safe is the young man or woman who truly appreciates their father and mother. Appreciation fosters respect for their wishes. Few young people would stray away if they heeded the words of their fathers and mothers.

All of our parents desire the very best thing for us. We may not agree as to what is best. They may sometimes be wrong, but their intentions are always right.

Why not show our appreciation to our parents for the things that they have done, and are still doig for us? There are other ways of appreciating them in addition to saying so. Our "actions speak louder than words." May we show by our daily life our love and appreciation for our parents.

DISCUSS QUESTIONS

1. What do you appreciate most about your parents?
2. What causes should prevent children respecting their parents?
3. What has been the greater influence upon you, your parents' words, or their life? Why?
4. What do you owe your parents? Can you pay it?
5. What is the greatest contribution to the success and happiness of the home that her sons and daughter may make?
6. How may we honor our parents?

"DADDY"

Always my counselor, always my friend,
Always with patience his help he would lend.
Always at hand when life's problems I met,
Through all my lifetime my best friend yet,
Always consistent, understanding my case;
Midst all my troubles there shone his kind face.

"TIRED MOTHERS"

A little elbow leans upon your knee,
  Your tired knee, that has so much to bear;
A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
  From underneath a thatch of tangled hair.
Perhaps you do not heed the velvet touch
  Of warm, moist fingers holding yours so tight;
You do not prize this blessing overmuch;
  Almost you are too tired to pray tonight.

He's coming home for holidays tonight.
  That stalwart boy of mine, now grown a man.
Whom in my arms, a babe, I held so tight.
  How mother's tender thought the years can span
But can a son's thoughts, too, when he is grown,
  Go backward and appraise the things his mother did,
And love and cherish mother as his very own?
  Ah, there's reward that e'en heaven can't outbid.

YALE STUDENT DELIVERS ADDRESS

No more thrilling address has been delivered before the Peace Conference at Geneva than that by James Frederick Green, Yale 1932. His plea for his generation, the generation that the next war, should it come, will force to commit virtual suicide, should be read around the world. We quote only a part of it:

The other speakers have much at stake; we have even more, for we are literally fighting for our lives. I stand before you as an attorney for the defense, pleading for a reprieve. It is my generation which will be called upon to surrender all we consider worthwhile in life in order to become targets for machine gun bullets and victims for the latest poisonous gas. It is the young men and young women of my age who will be commanded to commit suicide. It is my generation which will be requested to destroy the best of human culture, perhaps civilization itself, for causes which future historians will discover to be erroneous, if not utterly stupid or actually vicious. We have thus lost interest in being prepared for cannon fodder.

In a sense, I am presenting an ultimatum, rather than a petition. For behid your deliberations stands staring down at us the spectre of Death. We desire to live and to live at peace. We desire to construct a world society providing freedom, equal opportunity, and a sense of security. We desire to make possible for every human being full development of personality in terms of the highest human and spiritual values we know.—Selected.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Miss Genevieve Moore, High Point, 2 books. We are profoundly grateful for all these gifts.

Reporting Gifts

We always try to report all gifts from whatever source. And it is our will to report every gift as coming from the person, or the organization sending the gift. If it is desired that in any case we report differently we shall gladly follow instructions.

Our friends can help us by writing plainly, and giving us proper street and R.F.D. addresses, so we can so thank you properly.

The Octagon Coupons

In sending a check for coupons this last week the Octagon company said:—"My dear Mr. Dixon: Herewith is the firm's check for $55.00 covering shipment of 11,000 coupons recently sent us.

"Now that we are enjoying spring months and general housecleaning has to be done, your friends throughout the conferences ought to be able to send you in a great many more coupons by mid-summer.

If every household could buy a box of Octagon soap, special size of 120 cakes, which is selling at ridiculously low prices, you should realize a minimum of half a million coupons for this product alone."

Rev. C. W. Bates' Offer

Rememebr that Brother C. W. Bates is offering to give $5.00 to the Woman's auxiliary which sends to the Home the largest number of coupons during May, June and July. Put your women to work. Send them to us plainly marked, so Mrs. Dixon can keep proper records of where they come from. The $55.00 as per agreement was promptly paid on the refrigerator for the boys' dormitory. Just $16.00 more finishes paying for that. We thank you for your help.

Dr. McCulloch's Editorial

We greatly appreciate the editorial last week in re the Home, by our good editor.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Fallston.—This charge is located in one of the finest farming sections of the state. Most of the people own their homes, and are independent. The charge has six churches and about one thousand members—more members than any other charge in the conference. What possibilities there are here!

The great problem here, as elsewhere, is to get more of the members to give themselves in service to God through the church program. And we are doing our best to lay this upon the hearts of the people.

We have organized an auxiliary at Friendship and a Sunday egg club at Knob Creek. We are hoping to get some of these organizations going at the other churches.

I am convinced that we must give more attention to working what we have—getting more of the members to be a real part of the church. Why put forth great effort to get people into the church and stop with that?

The second quarterly conference has been held, with three of the churches not represented. The financial report was not very encouraging, but we are hoping and praying for a better day for the churches. Brethren, remember us and our work when you pray.

West Forsyth.—We had a good attendance and splendid interest in the services at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches last Sunday. We arrived in time for Sunday school at Baltimore: There were 98 persons present for the Sunday school, and many more came in for the preaching service. Practically all of those who attend Sunday school at this church remain for the preaching service. After the sermon the ordinance of the Lord's Supper was observed.

The pastor and family enjoyed a visit and dinner in the home of Brother W. H. Kelly, of Baltimore church, last Sunday. Mrs. Ella Doub was also a guest in the home for dinner. We were compelled to leave soon after dinner to meet the appointment at Stony Knoll, where we found the usual size congregation for the service. Owing to sickness, preparation for the Lord's Supper was not made, and the ordinance will be observed the first Sunday in June.

Baltimore church has decided to have their revival meeting during the week following the fourth Sunday in July. Stony Knoll church decided last Sunday afternoon to begin their revival meeting the first Sunday in July. The other four churches on the charge will decide dates of their meetings later.

Miss Mary Speas, faithful member of Stony Knoll church, and secretary of the Sunday school at that place, has been confined to her bed with a severe case of measles for over a week. We trust that she will soon recover from the malady.

A number of gifts have been made to the pastor and family since our last report for which we are very thankful. We wish to give here the names of the donors: Mrs. S. M. Speas, of Stony Knoll church; Brother A. A. Doub and Rev. J. A. Blackburn, of Baltimore church; Mrs. C. G. Hunter, and Mrs. Elmer Whitman, of Pleasant Hill church; Brother H. W. Doub, of Stony Knoll church. We appreciate the help of Brothers C. G. Hunter, C. E. Sprinkle, A. R. Long, J. F. Hunter, E. G. Long and Speas Sprinkle, all of Pleasant Hill church, who came to the parsonage one day last week and planted our garden. They also erected a fence around the garden.

We wish to commend the article written by Brother "Silas," which appeared in the Herald of April 14. Every steward of every church in our conference should have read the article. Those who failed to read it, find the issue of April 14 and read the comments by one who calls himself "Silas".

Our appointments for next Sunday will be at Union Hill church at 11 a. m., and Tabernacle church at 7:30 p. m. Tabernacle church is still having prayer services every Sunday night except the second Sunday night when the regular preaching service is held. Harmony Grove church has a Christian Endeavor society which meets every Sunday night.

Corinth, Littleton Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, delivered a very impressive sermon Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. We are sorry more of our members were not present to hear the sermon.

The many friends of our choir leader, Mr. Henry Morris, will be glad to know he is improving after having been critically ill in the Roanoke Rapids hospital for several days. We hope he will soon be able to be back at home and attending church services, for we miss him.

Rev. and Mrs. Bingham returned last week from a few days' visit to their parents at Blacksburg, S. C.

We were glad to have Miss Daisie Lee Carter, of Portsmouth, Va., worship with us Sunday.

Macedonia, Fallston Charge..—Our Sunday school was much improved yesterday; so many have been absent on account of sickness.

We had a very large number for preaching on last second Sunday.

Next Sunday we are going to observe Joash Day. We hope everybody will come and bring something.

We are going to organize a Christian Endeavor society May 8, and we will also have preaching; hope every one of our members can be present.

Mrs. Pearl Barnes is still improving; hope she will soon be back at church. We are glad to see Mrs. Emma Cline back at Sunday school.

With best wishes to the Herald and its readers. REPORTER.

Whitaker's Church.—I may seem tardy in saying anything concerning the branch meeting in our part of the state; it is not from a failure to appreciate or lack of interest, just procrastination. It was certainly inspiring and encouraging to those of us who attended the various sessions to see such a number of visitors, delegates and some pastors who have served in this part of the country again and such spirit of Christian fellowship. The reports were good. The Thanksgiving service was so impressive. One feature of our work that seems to be overlooked by so many Sunday schools is a failure to make monthly donations to our Children's Home. If every Sunday school would send in enough to average over the state $5.00 a month it would mean so much to Dr. Dixon and should mean much to the individual school. Let's rally to him! It's our business and concern in a sense, as it is his.

We observed Joash Day at our service last night. Our pastor gave his Mothers' Day message as he will be with another church next Sunday.

Our Sunday school has dropped in attendance lately; do hope it will pick up in interest soon. Best wishes to the editor and the readers of the Herald. REPORTER.

Shady Grove, Midway-Shady Grove. — We are very glad to report that our Sunday school continues to grow in interest and attendance and we hope to reach the goal of one hundred before very long. We are in the third month of our Sunday school contest and we believe it has been the means of bringing a number of people into our Sunday school that otherwise would not have become interested.

We are planning to organize a ladies' organization at our church in the near future.

We enjoyed a special sermon delivered by Dr. S. W. Taylor Sunday afternoon.

We were very glad to have with us a number of visitors Sunday afternoon including some from High Point and Rev. W. F. Ashburn of Greensboro.

We were glad to have our pastor, Rev. C. L. Grant, back with us after making a favorable recovery from an attack of mumps. We hope his family will be with us at the regular appointment the second Sunday afternoon.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—We are glad to have such a large number present today. When we see the beautiful sunshiny morning after a refreshing rain, it makes us think of God and we feel that it is our duty to go to Sunday school and church every Sunday morning.

Our teacher brought a wonderful message on the lesson. He said, "We should spend more for world peace rather than spending our millions for war. We must give over many times instead of raising a disturbance and we must trust God and do to our fellowman as we would like for him to do unto us."

May we put God first in all that we do, and let us do more for Him and for the upbuilding of His kingdom.

We were very glad to have the visitors with us; we always give them a hearty welcome.

Lebanon, High Point.—We had two fine sermons last Sunday. At the morning service our pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison, said in part: "How big are you? not physically of course, but how big is that self that is measured by your interests and sympathies and is expresed in love. We are all selfish, but is that self large enough to take in your home, your church, your neighbor, and foreign missions. The love of Christ took in the world, are you a Christian?"

At the evening service he brought us a very impressive message stating that, "Life is not always happy. Disappointments must come our way but they should not make us morbid in our outlook, or despondent. After the eunuch accepted Christ he went on his way rejoicing. Christ can do as much for us."

On the fourth Sunday in April Joash day was observed at our church with much interest and enthusiasm manifested. It was gratifying to find that the Joash box contained $81.43.

The Joash program was continued that night with a playlet, "Excuses." This was very practical and enjoyable. The scripture lessons were read by Mr. Orest Hedgecock, Mr. Herman Yokley and Mr. John Morgan, all of High Point college. Mr. Norman Hayworth, a member of our church, died at the High Point hospital Monday night, May 2. Funeral services were held from the residence on the Winston-Salem road Wednesday afternoon by Rev. J. C. Madison, pastor of the church, and Rev. Edward Suits, a former pastor.

The family, relatives and friends have our sympathy.

First Church, High Point.—The Sabbath school met as usual on Sunday morning under the leadership of Superintendent J. H. Jennings. The different departments are well organized with classes for all ages from the tiny tots of the Cradle Roll department, under Mrs. W. C. Hammond, the Beginners with Miss Grace Koontz leader, the Primary under Mrs. L. R. Johnston, Juniors under Mrs. Theodore Ballard, Intermediate, Miss Annabel Thompson, Senior department with Miss Lucille Pickens and Clyde Pugh, superintendent; Mrs. C. L. Whitaker in charge of the Home department. Chas. C. Robbins, Jr., is president of the Baraca class, and Mrs. R. H. Davis of the Philathea class. Professor McCanless of the college faculty is the popular and efficient teacher of the Aunt Lizzie Welch class. The collection on the first Sunday of each month is sent to the Children's Home.

At the 11 o'clock service after a well-rendered Anthem by the choir with Prof. E. B. Stimson at the organ, an impressive Holy Communion was celebrated in which the unusually large congregation joined. Twenty girls from High Point College then collected the "Joash Chest" contribution, which amounted to $786.15. The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, was greatly pleased with this splendid and generous response by his people, which was really surprising under present economic conditions. To him belongs the credit for inaugurating this custom in the N. C. conference last year, which has been followed by a large number of churches throughout the state. Dr. S. W. Taylor expressed himself as being very happily surprised at this result. First Church people may always be relied upon to make a sacrificial offering to a worthy cause.

At the Sunday evening service Rev. R. I. Farmer chose as the text for a helpful sermon the Ideal Friendship, Matt. 14:27; "Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid." He said that there is no big helpful life that has not had the benefit of friends. Perhaps nothing since childhood has so shaped our lives as our friendships. True friends by instinctive acts of love or kindly deeds of helpfulness or by no words at all express to us their deep sympathy and understanding. The storm on the Galilean lake created fear in the disciples, but the familiar voice of Jesus brought calm to their troubled hearts. Does the coming of our friends bring calm or produce a storm? The test of a Christian friendship is whether or not it is easier for our friends to be good when we are with them. Ideal friendship brings cheer and confidence in failure or success, in hours of defeat or trouble. Addison said that friendship is the strong inclination of two persons to promote the good and happiness of each other. In Christ alone we may live the life that is fully helpful.

On Saturday afternoon a brief funeral service was held for James Franklin Peacock, who died Thursday evening at the residence of his son, Lester R. Peacock, by Dr. A. B. Conrad, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Rev. R. I. Farmer, pastor of First church. During this service Mesdames J. H. Allred and J. C. Whitesell, C. L. Gray, Jr., and Arthur Fidler, of First church choir, sang "Rock of Ages" and "Abide With Me." At 1:30 o'clock the funeral party left the city for Tom's Creek Baptist church near Denton, where after services were conducted by Rev. H. S. Williams, burial was made in the church cemetery. Mr. Peacock was 66 years of age, and had made his home with his son and wife for a number of years. He was a member of the Baptist church, but his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clayton Oakes Peacock, is one of our most loyal and devoted members and workers. To her and her husband the sympathy of a large number of friends is expressed.

There was an attendance of 150 members of the Home Economics Department of the High Point Night School at an enjoyable picnic Saturday afternoon on the Ray Street School grounds. Mrs. D. A. Neese is the efficient instructor of the seven classes, and reports remarkable progress in the work of these groups. The purpose of this unique work is to teach the importance of preparing well-balanced meals at an economical cost, and how to buy groceries in order to obtain the most wholesome foods for their money. The classes opened last December, and will be conducted through June. They are sponsored by the local Woman's Club; they meet once a week, and this is the second year that Mrs. Neese has been in charge. Three classes are conducted at Highland Mills in the homes, two classes at Pickett Mills, and two at the Stehli Silk Mills, with a total enrollment of 184 members. This is a worth-while project and deserves high praise.

Officers for many organizations on the campus of High Point College have been elected recently. The new staff of the Hi-Po, college weekly, is as follows: Editor, John Ward; managing editor, Robert Williams, with John Taylor, assistant; associate editors, Miss Frances Taylor and Dwight Davidson; sport editors, Ben James and Robert Cory. The new president for Nikanthan Literary Society is Miss Elizabeth Gurley, and Mrs. Folly Patrick was chosen to head the Day Student Council. Officers for the C. E. Society for 1932-33 will be: President, William Howard; vice-president, Miss Ola Stafford; secretary, Miss Margaret Pickett; treasurer, Lester Furr, and pianist, Miss Ruth Braswell.

Next Saturday, May 7, will be a gala day at the college, and doubtless a large number of alumni will return for the day's festivities. The Nikanthan and Thalean Literary Societies will observe their sixth annual celebration. At 10:30 a. m. a program will be rendered in the auditorium, when the principal address will be delivered by Rev. J. W. Braxton, class of '28 and a Thalean. He will be introduced by Rev. Clay Madison. The intra-society debate will be held at 3 p. m., when the query discussed will be: "Resolved, That church colleges and academies justify themselves." Affirmative will be upheld by Joe Coble and Adrian Thompson, while the negative will be represented by Aubert Smith and William Howard. The May Day festival will be given at 5:30 p. m. and at 8 the festivities will be brought to a close with a banquet in the college dining hall.

The largest graduating class in the history of the local high school will receive diplomas at the approaching commencement on June 3, according to announcement by Principal L. R. Johnson. The number will be approximately 180, and the following are noted from families of First church: Miss Frances Bodenheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Bodenheimer, 313 Sunset Drive, Miss Sue Everhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Everhart, 601 Jones street, Miss Mary Louise York, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. York, 700 Montlieu avenue; Billy Foister, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Foister, North Hamilton street; Robert Guarino, ward of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Welch, Jr., Greensboro Road; Buster Moffitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Moffitt, 712 Morris street; James Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Montgomery, 1204 North Hamilton street; Basher Wall and Thurman Wall, sons of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Wall, 1126 Campbell street.

Mrs. Martha E. Blair is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. E. L. Auman, on Montlieu avenue.

We are much pleased to note that Mrs. Ernest L. Auman, who has been suffering from an infected hand, is rapidly improving. Her little daughter, Anne, who has had an attack of influenza and measles, was able to return to school today.

Hickory Grove, Guilford Circuit.—On the second Sunday in April, Rev. E. O. Peeler, our pastor, brought us a wonderful message as usual.

Our Sunday school is very active and a lot of interest is being shown among teachers as well as pupils. The attendance is good, but still we would like to have more join us.

The third Sunday, May 15, we are planning to dedicate our church. We are hoping to have President Taylor and Professor Kennett from High Point college with us on that day. We would like very much to have all members of the church present and also wish to invite everybody who would like to attend.

The ladies are planning a picnic dinner and the service will last through the entire day.

Thomasville, First.—The work of our church in general is going very well. Nothing spectacular, of course, is being done but all of the church organizations are keeping a steady pace.

Our Christian Endeavor society is doing a splendid work under the leadership of Mrs. W. G. Myers. We have a total enrollment of 68 in the Senior society with an average attendance of 54 for the month of April. We have won the City Union banner for three consecutive times. The Junior enrollment is about 35.

Sunday, April 24, was Joash day at our church. A fine spirit of co-operation prevailed and a surprising result followed. Our total offering was $73.02. We are up-to-date on practically all of our conference claims.

The second quarterly conference met on Wednesday evening, April 27, with a good attendance. Mrs. T. A. Lloyd and Mr. I. A. Teague were elected as nominees for delegate to Annual Conference.

We were happy to have Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin unite with our church on last Sunday. Three others came in at Easter. They were Kiser Pope, Austin Yates and Clunette Westmoreland.

◆

Graham.—Mrs. J. G. Black represented our local Auxiliary at the Branch Meeting in Enfield. Since her return she has been sick for a week or so, but is able to be up again.

Our Joash offering was $70. We had a good attendance and every one seemed to be pleased with the service as well as the offering.

At the Second Quarterly Conference, Dr. W. R. Goley, and Mr. R. R. Bain were elected as nominees for delegates to the next Annual Conference.

For next Sunday, Mother's Day, a special service has been planned, which will occupy a part of the Sunday school hour. A committee will make a special effort to get all mothers there for the service.

Brother A. L. Lewis, a faithful member of our church, has been seriously ill but is making progress toward recovery.

The church sympathizes with Mrs. J. S. Cook in the loss of her sister, Mrs. Ed Hinton, of Pittsboro.

New Hope.—Our preacher, Mr. J. L. Love, met us as usual on tthe first Sunday at 7:30 p. m. His subject was where we live and where our treasures are. Our treasures are with our mind and heart. If our heart is on God there will our treasues be. God gives us a mind and a heart to lead our minds. Through our heart we can be made sad, or we can be made glad. It is the way we live day by day We must keep in that narrow way and have our treasures in God and He will repay. You can always tell where a man or a woman lives by their smiles and approvals.

We are still having mid-week prayer meeting.

I have a class of little boys and girls of 6 to 13 years old and we meet on Sunday at 2:30 p. m. You ought to see what a good interest they take in their little prayer meeting, how they love to be in it and sing and talk and pray and learn about Jesus. While a child is youg and heart ttender plant seed in minds and heart.

Lexington, State St.—The past three weeks have been in many ways quite strenuous ones with us. All branches and departments of the work are enthusiastically working to attain certain worthy goals.

One of the most pleasing and outstanding features of the month of April was an address given by Judge Teague of High Point. Mr. Teague came at the request of the Men's Brotherhood, the Sunday night service of April 10 being sponsored by this organization. The address inspiring and interesting and was a challenge to faithful effort to do God's will trusting the result to Him.

At the last auxiliary meeting Mrs. C. L. Koonts gave an interesting and instructive report of the recent Branch meeting held at Enfield.

Circle No. 1 met last Thursday p. m., a week ago with Mrs. John Leonard. The women's Bible class met last Thursday night with Mrs. J. F. Bankhart. Mrs. John Baxter Leonard, president of the class, read a paper on the duty and privilege of service. Mrs. W. L. Sink gave a beautiful and touching reading, telling of the power of prayer and the power of God to transform lives.

A week ago Sunday Mr. Hendry preached the commencement sermon at Milloway school, a few miles out from Albemarle.

The regular monthly meeting of the auxiliary will be held at the home of Mrs. Lester Koonts on the fourth Wednesday evening of this month. Plans are being worked out for an unusually interesting meeting.

Mr. Hendry was slightly ill last week but was in the services and filled his pulpit Sunday morning and evening. We hope he is feeling quitte himself again by this time.

Quarterly conference was held Sunday night immediately after the preaching service.

The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Potts, born last week, has the distinction of being the youngest baby of the congregation just now.

Asheboro.—Circle No. 2 of our Auxiliary gave a miscellaneous shower Tuesday evening, April 19, at the home of Mrs. J. L. Lamb for Mrs. Carl Lamb, a bride of the month. Mrs. Lamb received the gifts in a most gracious manner. Delightful refreshments were served to all, including several invited guests.

The Philathea class held the monthly meeting Thursday evening, April 21, with Mrs. R. C. Stubbins, at the parsonage in Greystone Terrace. There were 20 members present and four visitors. After the business meeting a social hour wa directed by Miss Thyra Wright, which was very entertaining. The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mr. S. F. Thacker, Jr., served a delightful course of refreshments.

Mrs. L. F. Ross and Miss Thyra Wright were delegates to the Baraca-Philathea convention in Salisbury, April 22, 23, and 24. Mrs. A. B. Copenhaver, Misses Bertha Presnell, Mabel Cox and Exie Calicutt attended on Sunday.

Joash Sunday was on the 24th of April. The box was placed on a table in front of the pulpit. Mr. L. F. Ross, church secretary, and Miss Kate Hammer, chairman of board of stewards, stood at each end of the box, as the congregation came voluntarily and put their offering in. It was necessary at times to raise the lid in order to get the envelopes in. The offering amounted to $70.00. On account of much sickness the congregation was not large. Our pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, preached a most interesting sermon on "Earthly Recognition." At this time the church was very glad to receive into membership, Mr. Carl Lamb by profession of faith.

At the evening service, Mr. Robt Lloyd spoke to the young people and congregation.

On Sunday morning, April 24, a short while before the 11 o'clock service, our church and town was saddened by the death of one of our most loved members, Miss Margaret Coe Wood, 15 daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde H. Wood, at their home on Cox street following a short illness with septic pneumonia. She is survived by her parents and a sister, Lorrene, age 9, and her grandmothers, Mrs. Mary Ann Wood and Mrs. Sallie Kennedy, who have our sympathy. Since 12 years of age she has been a member of the junior choir, the Christian Endeavor society and an officer of the Willing Workers Sunday school class. Miss Wood was a member of the junior class of the Asheboro high chool, a member of the glee club and a marshal for the commencement. She served as marshal at the senior class play, April 15 and at the grammar grade operetta, April 19. She was an outstanding pupil in the high school, loved by her friends and teachers for her sweet disposition. She will be remembered by her life of love and sunshine.

The funeral service was held on Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from our church, with her pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbis in charge. A special duet, "Give of Your Best to the Master," was rendered by Misses Mildred Mills and Catherine Pressnell, members of the junior choir, also a quartet, "Into the Woods the Master Went," by R. T. Lloyd, J. A. Spence, Mrs. G. C. Pritchard and Mrs. H. W. Walker. Pallbearers and flower girls were mainly from the junior class of the high school. Interment was in the Asheboro cemetery.

Last Sunday morning our pastor preached a helpful sermon on "Clouds." At the evening hour we worshipped in the school auditorium. All the ministers having a part, with Rev. R. C. Stubbins preaching the baccalaureate sermon. There was a class of 40 graduates. Reitzel Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Smith and William Bulla, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Bulla, are members of our church. Misses Nan Andrews and Geneva Stockner, members of our Sunday school.

The Asheboro community choir will present a program of music in our church next Sunday evening, with Mrs. S. B. Stetdman, director. Rev. Herman Stevens, of the Baptist church, will speak. All churches invited to the service.

English Street Church.—Our revival meeting was brought to a close last Monday night. We have had a wonderful meeting and many souls have been saved. So far, we have added ten new members and are expecting more as soon as letters can be secured.

The Scrap-Iron Sunday school class had a wonderful speaker for one of their meetings lately, Colonel Selders spoke to the boys and also the girls of the Searchlight class on "What it means to be a true Scrap-Iron Boy."

A quarterly conference was held on last Wednesday night. We were glad to have Dr. Taylor with us at this meeting to talk over affairs. The reports were very good, considering present conditions.

We feel that we have not done our duty in getting Herald subscriptions. Those of us who do take the paper consider it a fine one and could not do without it. We are going to try to encourage others to begin taking the paper. We have also noticed that the page on the Christian Endeavor topic has been started again. The members of our society who take the paper want to express our appreciation for this page, for it is indeed a great help to Endeavorers and believe that other societies feel the same way about it.

An invitation has been extended to the "Good Will" quartet of High Point to furnish special music for the Mother's day program.

The Sunday night service and mid-week prayer service were omitted owing to the commencement at Hasty high school. Dr. Lyerly, pastor of the First Reformed church, Greensboro, delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Hasty high school Sunday night. Every one seemed to enjoy this splendid message.

Wednesday night Dr. J. Henry Highsmith, director of school inspection, Raleigh, N. C., will deliver the address.

REPORTER.

Elbaville, Mocksville Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, preached a splendid and inspiring sermon Sunday morning at the 11:00 o'clock service.

Our Sunday school is moving along as well as usual.

We are sorry to report that one of our aged members, Mrs. Jane Waller, was laid to rest in the cemetery here April 25. But we are made happy to know she has gone to dwell with her loved ones who are in heaven.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—C. E. was held last Sunday evening at 8 o'clock with Myrtle Byerly as leader. The following program was rendered to quite a few visitors:

Hymn, No. 47. Scripture—Edith York. Prayer—Colen Haynes. Minutes of the last meeting. Roll call. Leader's talk—Myrtle Byerly. Questions: (a) Is the church a human or divine institution?—Everette Swaim; (b) Where and when and how was the church born?—Treva Craven; (c) Why do some folks oppose the church?—Altha Craven; (d) Is the church dying?—Garnet Pickard; (e) To what extent has the church accomplished its purpos?—Blanche Swaim. Hymn, No. 242. 1. Lesson in life: (a) Alice Haynes; (b) Jessie Garner; (c) Helen Moore, (d) Vatra Swaim, (e) Colen Haynes, (f) Mildred Swaim, (g) Mrs. Richard Byerly.

Poem—Ruth Cecil. Hymn, No. 28. Bible Readings: (a) Alfred Swaim, (b) Howard York, (c) Daniel Craven, (d) Clyde Swaim, (e) "Buck" Griffin, (f) William Hayworth. Hymn, No. 28, Benediction.

C. E. will be held Sunday evening May 8 with Miss Stella Moore as leader.

Sunday school was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and preaching at 3. Mr. Loy centered his thoughts on "Mother and Motherhood," and made clear to us what a real mother is.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet Saturday evening at 2 o'clock with Mrs. Roby Craven.

EDITH YORK, Reporter.

First Church, Concord.—Our attendance at Sunday school was very good. We had 340 present with two star classes and $18.76 offering.

Brother Morgan brought to us a very inspiring message Sunday morning. His subject was, "He That Winneth Souls Is Wise." After which the Lord's Supper was served.

Another feature in our morning service was a duet which was beautifully rendered by Misses Eula and Mildred Burris.

Our revival started Sunday night. We are expecting to have one of the best revivals our church has ever known.

We are very sorry to report that one of our oldest members, Mrs. Little, known as Aunt Lou, died several weeks ago. She was one of the most faithful members our church has ever had. She attended church as regularly as possible to the last year which was spent in sickness. We feel that we have lost a rich treasure by her death and yet have been honored by her admittance into heaven.

Pray for us that we might do bigger and better things in the future.

SIAMESE NIGHTMARES

The Smithsonian Institution has just received a number of specimens of rare creatures from Siam. They were collected by Dr. Hugh M. Smith, formerly with the Bureau of Fisheries, who is now employed by the Siamese government to develop that nation's fishery resources. Included in the collection is a giant Siamese water lizard, the hia, which looks all the world like the great dinosours although not quite as large. Then there is the ngu kon kob, or "tailbiting snake." The Siamese believe it bites with its tail. Among other snakes in the collection are the ngu seng atit, or "sun-ray snake," considered one of the most beautiful creatures in the reptile kingdom; the ngu saiman praindra, or Brahmin curtain-cord snake, known for its leaping ability; the white-mouthed chinchuk, an almost pure white snake with black markings; the rat snake; the peacock snake (in various colors); the fish snake, which can be caught on a line like a fish; the terrifying "krait" snake of the Siamese jungle and some beautifully colored water snakes whose bites mean practically certain death. There were also some "transparent tadpoles."—Pathfinder.

—When the apple trees are in full bloom, many North Carolina gardeners use this as a signal to make their first plantings of tender vegetables in the open.

—From a field which had been abandoned 11 years before and was re-seeded by black locust trees, William C. Mason, of the Brasstown community of Clay county cut $90 worth of fence posts from one acre and left enough sprouts from which to cut another crop in a few years.

J. CLYDE AUMAN, Treas.

—Mayor J. C. Thompson, of Wilmington, Ill., urged voters to abolish his office along with that of the local altermen as an economy measure.

"Faith is needed all the way,
Faith to toil and faith to pray,
Faith to learn and faith to teach,
Faith to practice, faith to preach,
Faith to start each day anew,
Faith to do our duty, too;
Faith to help the weak along,
Faith to bear, in patience, wrong;
Faith to smile, though sad within,
Faith to conquer every sin;
Faith to ask Him for His care,
While we earthly trials bear;
Faith to smother every sigh,
Faith to live and faith to die."

—When a 12-year-old girl and a boy of 14 admitted they stole a $700 brooch, a Uniontown, Pa., judge sentenced them to attend Sunday school regularly for two years and never to associate with each other again.—Exchange.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

A GOOD START

The thank-offering at Enfield gave us a good start for the new year, so let's take courage and keep the good work going. The Branch Treasurer sent to the Ex. Treas., $526.93 for the month of April, of which $398.91 was thank-offering. Last year the Branch Treasurer had only $155 to send to the Ex. Treasurer, so you see we have a good start. Let us not forget the N. C. budget and High Point college for their report for April doesn't show up very well.

Suggested plans for raising money each month have been sent to each auxiliary. Now if you have a plan that will work better in your auxiliary than the one suggested, by all means use it, but don't let a month pass without doing something definite. If you have found a plan that works well in your auxiliary please tell me about it when you send in money and I shall be glad to pass it on to other auxiliaries and in that way we can help each other.

Remember that our N. C. S. budget for the Branch is $6,000, our N. C. budget, $3,500, and for the college, $1,000. Let each auxiliary plan now to raise not only your budget but to overpay, as so much of these budgets has not been appoitioned to the auxiliaries. So you see if you just raise your auxiliary budget and stop, all these worthy interests will suffer.

All together now for the best year ever; and I just believe we shall have it.

MRS. S. W. TAYLOR, Treas.

REPORT OF SECRETARY OF LITERATURE

At the last moment the Secretary of Literature was unable to attend the Branch meeting at Enfield. I give a brief summary of the activities of this department.

Your secretary has mailed promptly each month the program material to the auxiliaries. About 105 sets are being sent out monthly. During the past four months the Christian Education literature has been mailed along with the monthly program material. One month a prayer calendar and a Missionary Record was included and mailed every auxiliary. A vast amount of free literature has been mailed to new auxiliaries, and others that required it; such as, constitutions, Missionary Record blanks, prayer calendars, missionary blanks (50). Life certificates, "How to Organize," pamphlets, information about High Point college, songs, etc.

Twenty-nine letters have been written, 71 cards sent, and two articles for the Herald written. For the third quarter printed material was furnished for publication by the Herald.

For information of those that may be confused about the monthly program material, I will repeat. One subscription is free for every auxiliary. If you are now receiving yours please write me, but be sure to state the church you represent. If any additional sets are wanted they cost 2 cents a copy or the average of 4 cents a set.

There have been printed several leaflets, "Duty of an Officer," in the Herald. I have a packet of 17 of these leabets called "Duties of Officers and Secretaries." This includes duties of every officer of the branch and auxiliary, as well as circle and district chairmen. We have long felt the need of these leaflets, but not until now have we known where to got to get direct information. These should be accessible to every officer in every auxiliary. These packets sell for 35 cents per packet.

This department has spent during the year 1931-32, $21.31 for stamps, envelopes and cards. Received during the same year: Year Books, $11.71; Duties of Officers, $3.15; Pledge Cards, 15 cents; Thank Offering material, 49 cents, and Program material, $3.26. Some money has been received for year books which has been immediately forwarded to Mrs. Marie Thompson.

Tho new study books for this year, 1932-33, are not off the press as yet. The Methodist Protestant women usually use the booksh chosen by the Council but there have been a few exceptions. After the convention next month I will publish a list of books as accepted. However, the general theme will be China.

MRS. D. S. COLTRANE,
Sec. of Literature.

COLLEGE TRAINING SCHOOL

The High Point College Leadership Training school is just what the name implies—a Leadership Training school. The leaders in our churches and church schools need to go to become effective in religious education. Our young people need to go to learn how to become leaders.

There are classes in the mornings, recreational programs in the afternoons and addresses by the best speakers in our conference in the evenings. You must not miss those evening addresses. They are always so very inpirational and challenging that you just have to want to be good and do big things.

Then you have a perfectly delightful time, might I say, "fellowshiping with the instructors?" And it is so fine to meet new friends who are bent toward the same great mission that you are.

Allow me to tell you what the Leadership Training school meant to me in just three words, then you go and find them too,—Inspiration, Education, Association. Let's all do what we need to do—go this summer.

3. Music --.................A Capella Choir
Benediction ....Rev. S. W. Taylor
3:30—Adjourment.

Every number on the program was most inspirational and helpful. We appreciate the efforts and co-operation of every one who helped to make this program a success.

We were especially glad to have the High Point College A Capella choir, under the direction of Mr. Stimson, present to sing for us. The students exhibited splendid talent and training.

We hope that we can carry the inspiration of prayer, sermon, conference, and song back into our churches, and that it will enable us to do more acceptable service for our Lord and Master.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

See his suggestion again. "Let the pastor and the Sunday school superintendent talk it over and lay some plan for a monthly offering in each Sunday school for the Children's Home."

Many Sunday schools send that monthly offering regularly. But where there is one that doesn't there is a special job for the pastor and superintendent. If these fail then some good mother take up the task. Mothers' Day will be a good time to start it.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

WESTERN PASTORS FEDERATION MEETS AT BESS CHAPEL

On April 25 the Western Pastors Federation held its second meeting of this conference year at Bess Chapel church. Chairman Andrews was able to be present and preside. We were all happy to know that he was able to attend, though he is not very strong yet. Morris, the pastor, conducted the devotional. Short being absent, the chairman asked for a discussion of "Preparation for Revivals on Country Charges." Bingham stated the lack of preparation and the felt need. Morris suggested that the pastor preach special sermons leading up to the revival and direct cottage prayer meetings. Trogdon spoke of the need of Sunday school teachers leading their students to accept Christ. Hendry made a good speech on "Personal Evangelism," giving specific instances of individuals who had been won through personal contact. He stated that he was not much on special days, but that some had used them to advantage in winning souls. Morgan spoke on, "The Pastor His Own Evangelist." He has had considerable experience holding his own meetings, and says the results have been gratifying. Morgan thinks that the pastor can have just as great an ingathering to do his own preaching if he has any evangelistic ability. It is good for the pastor to do this work. It helps pastor and people to appreciate each other, and may lengthen his pastorate.

The good ladies of the Bess Chapel church served a bountiful dinner in one of the Sunday school rooms at 12 o'clock. We wish to thank every one of them for their splendid entertainment.

In the afternoon Ridge spoke on "Evangelism the Greatest Need of the Day." He told us about the lawlessness in our country and how evangelism would solve all these problems. Trogdon spoke enthusiastically on the need of revival work and genuine conversions.

Dr. Taylor brought us a good message as usual. We are always glad to have President Taylor with us to inform us and give us inspiration for the work of the ministry. It was voted that the next meeting be held at Friendship Station near Albemarle on Monday after the fourth Sunday in September, and that the subject be "The Church at Its Best."

"Remember Lot's Wife"

The tragic fate of Mrs. Lot
Is one not soon to be forgot:
The Master saw its meaning deep
And urged that it in mind we keep.

The wicked place in which she dwelt
With stench of sin to heaven smelt;
No longer could it be endured
Without some hope it could be cured.

But God would save the righteous Lot
And all of his and slay them not:
They must go hence and cast from mind
All fondness for the life behind.

To rugged mountains must they flee,
Undaunted by the things they see;
They'd better live in desert heights
Than daily see those sinful sights.

But Mrs. Lot was not convinced—
In inmost heart she weakly winced;
She paused to take a look behind
And quick as flash was smitten blind.

Her eyes were filled with poison gas,
She fell to earth mid burning grass:
And when the awful storm was past,
Poor Mrs. Lot had breathed her last.

Her body lay in mound of salt,
Reminder of her grievous fault:
All passers-by who saw her tomb
Were saddened by her dreadful doom.

Her story sad is kept in mind
As warning sharp to all mankind:
When God would save from dreadful fate,
Do what He says and don't be late!

Pray for the General Conference

Jesus said, "I will build my church." Every Christian denomination is part of the Church of Christ and is therefore subject to the operation of Christ as He builds His church. It is assuring to us to believe that Jesus regards the Methodist Protestant Church as part of His Church. We may expect that He will try to preserve our church from the mistakes of its friends and the machinations of its enemies. We should earnestly pray that He will save our General Conference from serious error. Men know so little of the future that they are easily misled. Are we to believe that Jesus had nothing to do with inspiring the great and good men that organized the Methodist Protestant Church? Did the unique ecclesiastical conception embodied in our church come by chance? Evidently thoughtful men put heart and soul into it. Were not these good men sustained and encouraged by Christ Himself? Will He not today hear prayer for the enlargement and increased efficiency of this church if these prayers spring from hearts devoted to the principles incorporated in the organization of this church? A real church of Christ is not a piece of mechanism framed to repeat a message to other eyes or ears, but it is a spiritual organism that reveals through living form the life of Christ. Who is sufficient to meet the demands upon the General Conference soon to meet in Columbus, Ohio? Pray earnestly for the men and women who will compose it.

—Rev. Ernest Tittle, of Illinois, was recently reported in our columns as severely criticizing some passages in John's Gospel. Now he is reported by the daily press as making the motion adopted by the M. E. General Conference now in session in Atlantic City that that body meet no more in any city whose hotels and boarding houses make race discrimination. Some of the Negroes in the Conference objected to the motion on the ground that it seemed to reflect upon them the suspicion that they were aspirants for social equality which they said is not the case.

—Jesus did not teach all the truth, but all that he taught was truth. To the "fundamentalists" of his day he was a dangerous "modernist." But though he was in advance of his time, he was not behind any time that has since come. He was a perpetual prophet for all the world. He declared himself "the light of the world." He explained how he would communicate to men after he had withdrawn from view—through the Spirit of truth to be sent into the world. Men of today think that it was a great privilege to be contemporaries and acquaintances of Jesus. But we are now contemporaries of Jesus and many of us know it not. We may appeal to him for the truth needed in our time and he will give to all men liberally and upbraid not.

—Thus far no one has responded to the request of General Conference Representative Rev. J. A. Burgess. We presume there is such confidence in the chosen representatives that no special instructions are considered necessary or proper.

—Rev. H. L. Powell writes that because of urgent need of money he will sell his almost new Chrysler car (last of 1930 model) for less than half price. Write him at Thomasville, R. 3.

LETTER TO AN ATHEIST

By James L. Elderdice

I know you claim to be an agnostic, but I have discovered that you, like almost every other so-called atheist, repeat only the arguments and assertions of atheistic literature. In all the activities of life it is a recognized fact that the obtaining of certain results depends upon the observance of certain conditions. He who vehemently declares that he has an open mind, and desires to know only the truth concerning God and the Doctrines of Christianity as taught by Jesus Christ, but who yet not only refuses to comply with the required conditions for obtaining it, but denies the reality of such truth, and brands all who testify that they have experienced the results promised in compliance with the observance of these conditions, as being "ignorant, superstitious and bigoted boneheads," has no reason to complain if he forfeits the confidence of his fellowmen as regards his sincerity and veracity.

Rather does he confirm the conviction that he has neither desire for, or any intention of accepting the truth, whatever the character or amount of evidence produced to establish it.

But until proof to the contrary is forthcoming I assume that you mean what you say when you affirm that you are desirous to know, and ready to accept all reasonable evidence upon an honest test of the conditions laid down for the discovery of Divine truth. The only place where we can learn of these conditions is in the Book which claims to be a revelation of that truth. What are these conditions?

1. "For he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." (Heb. 11:5). That is, just as you believe that I am, so believe that God is. If there is a God metaphysical speculations as to how He came to be have no bearing whatever on the fact of His present existence, or of your relation to Him. Science and philosophy give no more authoritative or understandable information concerning God than does the Bible. This belief centers on "Him," on a "Rewarder," that is on a living, intelligent Personality. Denial of a personal God demands the alternative belief in a substituted, impersonal "Ultimate Reality," which, being impersonal, is unintelligent. The question comes to this, "Who is God?" or "What is God?" We are compelled to choose either "Who" or "What?" as the originator of the universe.

When you sneer at Christians because when, in the absence of proof of His existence, they accept by "faith" the teaching concerning God, you forget, (or perhaps you do not know), you also accept by "faith" the materialistic teaching concerning the existence of an "Ultimate Reality," since of the existence of which you are just as unable to prove, as is the Christian believer to furnish proofs of a God. He has just as good reason to ridicule your faith as you have to ridicule his.

But you boast that your beliefs are founded on what your "reason" accepts, and not on "blind faith." Is your reason able to show to a rational mind more convincing evidences of the existence of an "Ultimate Reality" than are the Christian's evidences of a personal God? If so, they have never yet been produced.

Unless you believe that God "is," and that He may be found by those who "diligently seek Him," it is in vain for you to go one step further in your search for divine truth. But, complying with this first condition, there comes the question "By what method of approach can I reach God?" On this condition:

2. "No man cometh unto the Father but by Me." (John 14:6). "Neither knoweth any man the Father save the Son and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal Him." (Matt. 11:27) If the Bible be true, then God has not only revealed Himself in the character of Jesus Christ—("He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father") but He is the only Mediator between God and man, the only One able to deliver from the power, cleanse from the guilt, and save from the consequences of sin. "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other Name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." (Acts 4:12).

To ignore Jesus Christ as the Saviour of men, to refuse to honor the Son even as we honor the Father, to deny His deity, and, for the offered free salvation purchased for us by His sacrificial atonement to substitute for the appointed means of obtaining it—repentance, prayer and faith—our own works, our self-built characters, in short, to attempt to know God by any other approach than "by the way of the cross," is never to be able to "acquaint new thyself with Him and be at peace." (Job. 22:21).

Jesus Christ is the world's central figure and is set before us for either our acceptance or rejection. "What shall I do with Jesus, which is called the Christ?" is the unescapable question that demands an answer from us all. If we seek to evade that answer by silence, that silence is itself the answer of rejection. We are at liberty, of course, to give whatever answer we please, but either by word or action we say "Away with Him! crucify Him! Crucify Him!" or else we inquire, "Lord, what will Thou have me to do?"

The third condition for the discovery of Divine truth is this:

"If any man will do his will he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." (John 7:17) He, and he alone, who has the disposition, and makes the effort to do the will of God, as revealed in the teachings of Christ, will have the evidence within himself that the doctrines taught are true. He will know by experience that the results promised by the doing of the will, follow, and that the acceptance of those doctrines is in every way fitted to give an enrichment, exaltation and fulness of life that are in every way satisfying to his conscience, heart and reason.

Three men testify that they saw an accused man shoot a neighbor's dog. The magistrate considers that the charge is proved by the testimony of these witnesses. The accused refutes this testimony by pleading, "Why, I can produce forty witnesses who will testify that they didn't see me shoot the dog." The only witnesses that atheists and agnostics can produce to refute the testimony of those who have proved, by experience, the truth of Christ's teachings are those who know nothing whatever about it.

The most irrational beings on earth are those who pride themselves on their rationalism. Both atheists and agnostics admit that they have never complied with the conditions which Divine truth has laid down for its discovery—that they have had no experience of a new birth, of being "a new creature," and yet they are thoroughly convinced that their self-confessed ignorance qualifies them to be competent witnesses against the truth of the Bible.

Surely one who is a man of world-wide prominence as a lawyer, scholar and scientist, the author of many books in both scientific and religious subjects, and who was himself, for over 40 years, a rank materialist, is competent to speak on this subject. He says: "The indisputable fact is that the Bible has been accomplishing for many centuries, and is accomplishing today in every land, the declared purpose for which it was given, enlightening human beings as to their own spiritual condition and needs, and as to God's provision for their salvation. 'And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men love darkness rather than light.' But now that the light is come, and has proved its presence to countless millions, it is idle for those who shut it out of their lives to write treaties in the effort to prove that light does not exist. . . . But light can be known only by experimental knowledge. So it is useless to argue about it. I know that I passed out of darkness into light 29 years ago."

To quote Josiah Kidder: "The whole world has not one solitary witness against the truth of the Bible, but every born again Christian has an experience of salvation, and this experience is knowledge. Therefore there are untold millions of competent witnesses for Christianity, but not one solitary competent witness in the world against Christianity."

CHRISTIAN RELIGIOUS EDUCATION, RELIGIOUS EDUCATION, CHRISTIAN EDUCATION WHICH?

There has been some discussion throughout the past quadrennium as to which terminology was the best for our denomination to use in designating the type of work being done by the present Department of Religious Education. Realizing hat there are many in our communion desiring to use the term "Christian" instead of "Religious" and noticing that the same trend was evident in recent publications of the International Council, we wrote Dr. Hugh H. Magill, General Secretary of the International Council, and asked him to tell the reason for such a trend if there was one. Dr. Magill replied to our letter as follows:

"I have your letter of April 27th in which you say that you have noticed an increasing trend in the use of the terminology "Christian Education" instead of "Religious Education," and ask us to give you any information we can on this subject.

When the International Council was formed, the term "Christian Education" had come to mean education in Christian colleges, including all the different branches of learning, and for that reason it was felt that the term could not be properly used to apply to the work of the International Council. It was also felt that since the International Council is made up exclusively of Protestant evangelical denominations, it should be understood that the only kind of religious education that we are interested in is Christian Religious Education.

In recent years there has been a general trend toward the use of Christian education in place of religious education as applied to what might be more accurately called Christian religious education. A number of the denominations have made the change. For example, the educational board of the Presbyterian Board of Christian education. The educational board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is now called the General Board of Christian Education.

A year ago an amendment was proposed to the By-Laws of the International Council changing the name to the International Council of Christian Education. Consideration of this amendment was postponed for one year, until the annual meeting in February, 193. When it was taken up for consideration it was referred to a committee which brought in a report recommending the change. However, after some discussion the matter was postponed for another year. There is undoubtedly a decided trend in favor of using the broader term "Christian Education" to refer to what is more perfectly defined by the longer term, "Christian religious education."

Being one of the evangelical denominations, it seems that the most logical thing for us to do is to substitute the term "Christian" where we have been accustomed to use "Religious."

F. L. Gibbs, Associate Secretary,

EVIL SPEAKING

"Those are good teeth that can hold back the tongue!" Much harm and pain are caused amongst Christians by fault-finding and idle and mischievous gossip, and the evil speaking born of jealousy and ill-will. Evil is soon believed and leaves prejudice in the mind. The poisonous darts of slander cause intense smart and bitterness.

Two Christian ladies were discussing the peculiarities of Miss——. One had observed this and the other had observed that. As they were thus occupied an evangelist joined them. "Don't you think Miss——a peculiar person?" he was asked. "Yes, she is a very peculiar person," was his grave reply; "I never heard her speak against any one!"

How should mischievous title-tattle be treated? Some would refuse to listen to the tale-bearer, remembering that usually "he who gossips to you will gossip of you." It may be a good plan to demand the authority for the statement. A few have followed the practice of saying to the tale-bearer: "I will tell the person you speak against what you say."

We should be slow to believe any story against another believer. It may be a spiteful invention, or an exaggeration; at any rate there is the other side which we are not told. If we knew all the facts the impression left on the mind would be different.

We can learn from criticism even if ill-will is behind it. But it is well not to be anxious to know what others are saying about us. "They say. What say they? Let them say!" is often the best attitude. It is useful to have a blind eye and a deaf ear. Let us get on with our work, remembering the law of retribution here and the judgment seat of Christ hereafter.—E. Adams in Marching Orders.

Pastors' Reports

These were due MAY FIFTH. Only 40 are in to date. We can not complete our JOASH TOTALS until we get these reports. If pastors will get these reports in without further delay, we shall be greatly obliged. Already our Joash offering shows a gratifying amount, and we expect this to be increased when all reports are in.

Brother Auman reports $70, as the Joash offering at Graham. Thank you, Brother Auman, and your people.

Herald Campaign

Let us not lose sight of the fact that this is to be put on during the month of June. May is PREPARATION month, and June is CAMPAIGN month. Let every pastor, every church, every subscription committee, be diligent for the success of this undertaking. We can surprise ourselves by a real determination to do this thing. Why not enjoy a pleasant surprise like that? Everybody at it now for all Herald goals in JUNE.

Children's Day

June is Children's Day month, also. For long years this has been a fixed part of the program of the general church. And many local churches look forward to it each year with deep interest. The programs are ready, and will be sent for the asking. Address Rev. G. W. Haddaway, D.D., 516 North Charles St., Baltimore, Md., and he will gladly supply you with all needed Children's Day material. Send your order now, and get started in good time to observe this day.

Midway-Shady Grove

We were on this charge May 1, and visited both of the churches that make up this work. In the morning we were at Midway, attending Sunday School at 10 o'clock, and preaching at 11:00. Both the Sunday School and preaching service were well attended, and a pleasing interest in the work was in evidence. Through the efforts of Pastor Grant, and the ready co-operation of his people, and friends in the community, the church has recently been painted, a fact that adds much to its appearance. Shrubbery and flowers on the grounds would add further attractiveness to the place. Midway should have every possible attention. In a few years it will be a suburban church. If we can keep it growing with the community, it will become well established in the confidence of the people, and ultimately be a church of strength and influence. Already the housing facilities are inadequate for the Sunday School.

In the afternoon the service was at Shady Grove. Here we found most encouraging evidences of reviving life. Enough people were present for this service to very well fill the house. In our effort to preach, we were heard with most helpful attention. The Sunday School has grown during the year from a very few to a gratifying enrollment. A spirit of earnestness and co-operation seems to prevail, and the entire outlook for the church is hopeful and pleasing. We were glad to observe that attention was being given to the church grounds. It was a pleasure to have Brother W. F. Ashburn with us in this service.

Our day on this charge was pleasantly spent. Under the leadership of Pastor Grant, the work is making progress. He is giving himself thoughtfully and earnestly to his tasks, and the people are responding with full confidence in his leadership.

We are indebted to Brother C. F. Pinnix and family for entertainment at dinner.

Pastors' Needs

Like the needs of the people, these are going on all the time, and the pastor's source of supplying them is his charge. Look out for your pastor, brethren, remembering that the great Shepherd has said, "The labourer is worthy of his hire." A tank of gas would help your pastor to visit. Try that. And anything that is good on your table would be good on his; and in these times of close money, you can help your pastor a great deal by just having that in mind. I suggest that you try that, also. And don't forget that he must have some money. Of course, you will pay him up in the fall. And what he gets will be all right then, but some NOW is so essential. We trust that JOASH helped our pastors in this particular, and we are sure that it did on some charges. Please, brethren, do not forget your pastor's needs. You are his dependence.

Representatives' Expense

One more Sunday remains in which to get this in hand. Some charges have already attended to this; others have not. Please do it, brethren, next Sunday, and send the money in promptly to Dr. Brown. Thank you.

Appointments

May 15.—Hickory Grove, Guilford charge, in church dedication service.

TO STRENGTHEN AMERICA!

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, has issued a call to the first convention of Allied Youth and the closing conference of the Allied Campaigners to be held in Atlantic City, N. J., June 3, 4 and 5.

An effort is being made to bring in leaders of Allied Citizens and Allied Youth from all over the country, as well as others who wish to see the 18th amendment upheld.

Dr. Poling's stimulating message may bring hope and courage to prohibition's many loyal supporters.

The following is the call as it has just been issued:

"All local units of Allied Citizens supporting the Eighteenth Amendment and all Youth Councils are invited to send representatives and delegates to the final sessions of the field campaign of the Allied Forces for Prohibition and to the first convention of Allied Youth.

"An unprecedented speaking program, covering every state of the Union, including every state capital city and practically every great educational and industrial center, draws rapidly to a close. Millions of pages of literature have been distributed, thousands of meetings have been held, hundreds of local units of Allied Citizens and Youth Councils have been organized and more than a million people have been enrolled under the declaration 'We Stand for the Eighteenth Amendment and for Liberty with Law; on this Issue we Fight!' Day after day, for more than 261 speaking days, single audiences with an attendance of from a few hundred to more than eight thousand have been addressed by the Allied Campaigners. In many cities continuing programs have been developed that constitute now a great hope for the ultimate complete success of this cause. The record is written and as it will be revealed in the sessions at Atlantic City surpasses those high expectations with which this campaign was launched in Columbus, Ohio, on the eighth of September, 1931.

"Ours is a program to strengthen America. We believe in the Eighteenth Amendment because we believe in America on the march. We engage in this crusade because we would defend the Constitution, support law and promote that highest conservation—the conservation of human life. We know that prohibition is not the only issue. We recognize a deep-seated, honest difference of opinion. But to meet her present crisis, America must be a sober nation. To preserve her institutions and her freedom she must continue with reverence for the Constitution and for law.

"To maintain and advance these high interests and to perfect plans for larger service in their cause, all friends of prohibition and representatives of Allied Citizens and of Allied Youth Councils are called to meet in Atlantic City.

"To evaluate the past, to appraise carefully the immediate present and to plan the yet greater future, this call is issued."

Among the speakers who will appear during the three-day series of meetings are Dr. Poling, Colonel Raymond Robins, Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, Dr. Ira Landith, ex-Congressman Grant M. Hudson, and Miss Norma C. Brown, all prominent leaders in the prohibition cause. Robert C. Ropp, chairman of Allied Youth, and Harold Singer, executive counsellor, will speak in behalf of young people.

Mrs. Jean Rushmore Patterson, of Washington, who is chairman of Allied Women, Mrs. Rugh G. K. Strawbridge, dry social leader, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Daniel A. Poling are also scheduled to speak at the Atlantic City meetings.

Others on the list include W. G. Calderwood, of Minneapolis, author of "Prohibition Facts"; Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg, of the University of Chicago; Commander John D. Pennington, general prohibition officer for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware; Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, pastor of the Old First Presbyterian Church, Newark, N. J.; Arthur T. Morey, chairman of Allied Citizens in St. Louis; Earl Douglas of Philadelphia, editor of "Prohibition and Common Sense"; Bert Davis, well-known conference leader, of Utica, N. Y.; and Paul Cope, general chairman for the Atlantic City campaign.

ONE YEAR TO LIVE

If I had but one year to live;
One year to help; one year to give;
One year to love; one year to bless;
One year of better things to stress;
One year to sing; one year to smile;
To brighten earth a little while;
One year to sing my Maker's praise;
One year to fill with work my days;
One year to strive for a reward
When I should stand before my Lord,
I think that I would spend each day,
In just the very self-same way
That I do now. For from afar
The call may come to cross the bar
At any time, and I must be Prepared to meet eternity.
So if I have one year to live,
Or just a day in which to give
A pleasant smile, a helping hand
A mind that tries to understand
A fellow-creature when in need,
'Tis one with me—I take no heed;
But try to live each day He sends
To serve my gracious Master's ends.

IF

If I could live and appreciate the clouds as I do the sunshine; if I could love to endure the thorns to scent the roses; if I could greet the trial as the blessing; if I could be patient when I am crowded, set on, trampled down and unjustly oppressed; if I could smile when I am scowled at, frowned upon and double-crossed; if I could be pleasant when rebuked, criticized, condemned, and harshly spoken to and of; if I could be a worm God said He'd thresh a mountain with me, but if I must be the mountain, He said I must be threshed.—Church of Christ Advocate.

THE HERALD CAMPAIGN

Elsewhere in this issue you will find the standing of your charge arranged as to percentage of quota subscribed. Please see that your charge knows just where it stands in this list, give this the widest possible publicity and keep it constantly before them.

Our President has officially designated the month of June as Herald Campaign month (see page six of the May 5th issue). In the meantime subscription Chairmen are to go right ahead with their work, but especially during the present month on every charge and in every church, we are asking that plans be made for raising each charge's quota. Every Pastor and every Subscription Chairman are asked to accept the responsibility of raising their Herald Quota. June has been set aside for this particular purpose. It is an important matter and should take first place in the activities for the month of June. A failure to do this is a vote to stop publishing the Herald. Let us show our appreciation of the Herald and raise our quotas during this month and June.

E. L. Douglas, Chairman
Directing Committee.

FEAR

Mark 4:40: "And he said unto them, why are ye so fearful? How is it that ye have no faith? No faith: after all you have seen and heard, why is it have not such confidence in me as to prevent your fear!" Jesus and his disciples were in a storm on the Sea of Galilee. The disciples were full of fear, they awoke Jesus, saying, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?" Jesus arose and rebuked the winds and the sea, and there was a great calm. When the storm of life comes, it may seem that Jesus does not care if we perish but when we cry unto him, though our faith be weak and we are afraid, he gives his help, he bears with us. Many of God's doubting children have fear sometimes. Perhaps, the cause of most of our fears is omission of duty, sins of neglect, and weak faith.

1 John 4:18: "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." "Perfect love casteth out fear." This is the Christian who has grown strong in the Lord.

"Fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." This is the babe in Christ. Babes in Christ sometimes have alarming fears as to whether they are Christians or not. I am sure that the majority of Christians are babes in Christ, though they have been members of the church for years. They are described in Hebrew 5:12. For when for the time, ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God, and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat.

"Perfect love casteth out fear." This is strong meat for babes in Christ. Ps. 103:14: "For he knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are dust." Ps. 40:17: "But I am poor and needy; yet the Lord thinketh upon me." These references are milk for babes. Drink it.

A REMARKABLE INCIDENT

A broken-hearted young woman was in Rosedale Cemetery, Los Angeles, selecting a quiet spot in which on the morrow to lay away the precious dust of her dear little mother. She was overcome with grief and felt unequal to the task of facing the world with her unutterable loneliness of heart. How could she live without the little mother whom she had tenderly cared for throughout more than two years of invalidism?

When suddenly out of the sky there came at her feet, like a petal blown from a rose, a tiny copy of the Gospel of St. John. To be sure, it was dropped out of an airplane on its way to Exposition Park in preparation for the Bible Sunday celebration, but was it any the less a gift from God to all sorrowing hearts? She was attracted to the little Book, especially as her mother had come from St. John, New Brunswick. She picked it up and opened to the fourteenth chapter which brought this message to the sorrowing girl: "Let not your heart be troubled * * *. In My Father's House are many mansions; * * * I go to prepare a place for you." She read this sweet message of hope and was comforted, but looking up to see from where the Gospel came, there was nothing above her but blue sky. The aviator from 4,000 feet in the air had dropped the little Gospel. He was gone, but the message had found its way to the heart to whom God had sent it.—Publisher Unknown.

GOD OUR FATHER

The following story is told by an English pastor: I went to a wealthy merchant and asked him to give a church-member of mine employment on trial. At the end of the week I went to see the merchant. "It's no use," he said, "we can't keep him. He's totally incapable. Honest and well-meaning, yes; but you don't pay for that alone in business." I admitted that was quite fair. I stayed with my friend the merchant a little while longer, and he spoke of his son at Cambridge. The son had failed the second time to get his degree and the father was greatly disappointed. "Still," he said, "he's a good lad. He does try, and that's a great thing, isn't it?"

Now there was not the slightest inconsistency in the two positions. On the one occasion he spoke of a servant whom he valued for what he could do in business. He did not pay men for trying. In the other case he spoke of his son, whom he valued, not for what he could do, but for himself, and who was trying. After all, is not this what the world wants to realize today? God is not merely our Master, He is our Father. We are His children, not His servants. He values us, not for what we can do, but for the fact that we do try—and that is the great thing. The love and tenderness of God, our Father is infinite, and we can prove it by making infinite claims upon His mercy and goodness.—Selected and Adapted.

ARE YOU AFTER AN EASY JOB?

When there is an easy job going there are always hundreds after it. But when there is a hard job, there are very few. Very few people ask for difficulties. They prefer the broad road that leads to failure instead of the straight and narrow road that leads to success.—Jenner's Letter.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE STORY OF JENNIE

Once there was a woman student in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, who dreaded the "practical Christian work" more than any other duty she ever faced, and yet through the practical work God blessed her with a blessing that has never ceased. I am that woman.

Part of the setting of the story is a small ward in the Cook County Hospital of Chicago, but there is a little room on the fifth floor of the Women's Building of the Institute that knows a great deal more about the inside of the story.

What I said or did the first Sunday afternoon I entered that ward in the hospital I do not know. I only know that I then met a Miss K., a young woman of about my own age, who had been for many years a hopeless cripple. Her hands were useless, her jaws locked together so that she could not speak plainly, and her whole body was in an agony of pain. I did not speak to her of Christ, for she said she was "tired of religious people," but my whole heart went out to her, and she realized it.

That was the beginning of a real friendship, and after that, Cook County Hospital, to me, meant Miss K. By and by she learned to know Christ, the wondrous Friend, and we often read the Bible and prayed together.

Then—it was about the middle of my first term in the Institute—Jennie came into my life. She had moved into the same ward of the hospital with Miss K., and was considered to be in the last stage of T. B. of the spine.

My first contact with Jennie was, to say the least, humiliating. She cursed me and bade me go. That curse kept ringing in my ears, and finally forced me to God in a new way.

After weeks of struggle I took courage and returned again to her bedside. She was sinking fast. There was a screen around her bed, and the shade was drawn before her window to keep the light out. She was turning blind. At times she was out of her mind. All Christian workers had been sent away, as I had been, with a curse. Nevertheless, I bent low and spoke to her. Again she told me to go and leave her alone. I did, but the responsibility for her soul was upon me. In a sort of awful way I felt that I had come to the Institute and been sent to the Cook County hospital for the sake of Jennie. It seemed a desperate case, and the burden of it was tremendous. I prayed, and waited for God's answer.

For several weeks Jennie's condition was unchanged. Then—when it was the last Sunday of the term—they said she was dying. The doctors said it was only a matter of a couple of hours. It was my last chance. Once more I went to her bedside. She was conscious. I spoke to her of the love of God. She turned her face away and said, "There is no God, but if there is I curse Him." With these words ringing in my ears, I returned to the Institute.

In our chapel meeting that evening, I mentioned her case and asked prayer in behalf of Jennie. But the requests were many, and the time limited, and Jennie was not remembered.

Then I knew that Jennie's burden was mine. I locked my room door and met God. In His presence I saw myself, I saw Calvary. I stood by the Cross and saw my Saviour nailed there—for me. All His agony and shame was made a crushing reality to me. I saw Him go into the darkness so far that I could not follow; but I heard as I never heard before, the anguish of the cry, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me"? And then, in His marvelous grace, He revealed Himself to me, as the Risen Victorious One, "able to save to the uttermost." All my petty doubts vanished and my questions were answered, and with confidence I pleaded the cause of Jennie. When the night was far spent the burden was lifted, and a peace, fuller than I had ever known, filled my soul.

Strange to say, I did not again inquire about Jennie. There was such a conviction that God had saved her that I felt questions to be out of place. Meanwhile, Miss K. had moved to Oak Forest Infirmary, and there I occasionally went to see her.

Over two years passed, and upon my return to Chicago, after a trip abroad, I found that Miss K. had again been taken to the hospital for treatment. I called on her one Sunday afternoon, when suddenly a familiar face, from a bed across the room, attracted my attention. I asked,

"Who is that?"

"Why, that's Jennie. Don't you remember Jennie?"

"Jennie? I thought she was dead."

"So did I, but she is still here, the same old Jennie."

The same? It seemed incredible, still it was true. Eager to find out, I asked a friend who was with me to speak to Jennie. She went over with a smile, but came back with tears in her eyes.

I debated, but finally I went over to her bed and greeted Jennie, hoping she would read all the surprise in my soul, and nothing of its fear.

She looked at me questioningly, and asked.

"Who are you?"

"Just a girl who used to come to see you two years ago."

"Two years ago? I was awfully sick then."

"I know you were. They said you could not live, and you were blind. Is it not wonderful that you recovered?"

"Recovered nothing! Death would have been a thousand times better than this. Think of it! All this time I have been tied to my bed, unable to move. Do you believe there is a God who would permit such suffering? He is cruel, and I hate Him."

And she raved on.

I said nothing for awhile, only prayed. Then I began telling her about my trip abroad, and related all the amusing incidents I could think of. After awhile she laughed, and asked a question. I told her some more, and then put out my hand to say good-by. She took it, for the first time, and startled me by saying,

"Will you come again?"

I promised I would.

Three weeks later I returned with rather a heavy heart. I was puzzled, but how my faint-heartedness was punished!

As I entered the door, and Jennie caught sight of me, her arms went out to greet me. She spoke my name, and said she had been waiting for me.

What had happened? How did she know my name?

"Oh," she said, "I can walk. I have walked across the floor between two nurses. I have been over to see Miss K."

When I gave her some fruit and flowers, she said, "Why are you so good?"

My bewilderment was too great for words.

She kept on, "Is it not wonderful, I can walk!"

Then, confidentially, and a little timidly, she said, "Do you know what the doctors said? They said that some one must have been calling me back to life. Wasn't that a funny thing to say?"

And she looked at me, as if I could tell her something about it.

Then I knew God was very near. With a fervent prayer for guidance I said, "Jennie, you remember how sick you were that day, and how the doctors said you would not live two hours?"

She nodded.

"I was here that day. I heard about you, and spoke to you about the love of God. You only told me to go. I went home and spent the greater part of that night in prayer for you."

In an instant her face was transformed. Tears sprang to her eyes, and her lips trembled in strong emotion. What more could I say? God was speaking in Jennie's heart. I put down some Scripture texts on the table, and left.

The next time I saw her—it was the week before Christmas, she was sitting in a wheelchair. She told me the sad story of her life. She was almost sixty years old now, and had no one in all the world. One she loved wronged her deeply. After that she cared for no one, and believed in no one. "Everybody hated me, and I hated everybody." Then years of physical suffering came, and only increased her hatred.

"And all the time God's heart was hungering to tell you that He loved you so much that He died for you."

She bowed her head while tear after tear dropped down on the folded hands. One does not speak at such times.

When she looked up, she said, "Some young people were here the other day and sang a hymn I love so much. They gave it to me." And she reached out for a little leaflet on the table. "I can't sing, but I love to read it, and like this verse best:

"Other refuge have I none,
  Hangs my helpless soul on Thee;
Leave, oh! leave me not alone,
  Still support and comfort me:
All my trust on Thee is stayed,
  All my help from Thee I bring;
Cover my defenseless head
  With the shadow of Thy wing."

Christmas Eve I brought her a few little gifts, and when, in speaking of the birth of Christ, I asked, "Is it not wonderful that He should love us so?" tears sprang to her eyes as she took both my hands in her own.

As we left her, the friend who was with me, said, "How sweet and good she looks! You can't help loving her. Truly she is a Christian."

It is the last I saw of Jennie. Only a few sunsets later she went Home.—Agnes J. Lindgren in M. B. I. Monthly.

FAITH TRIED TO BE REAL

JOHN 7:37-39; ROMANS 1:14-19

"For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Rom. 1:16).

"I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ," said Paul. So long as I live in the religious compartment I have made out of my own theology, and wear my doctrinal "blinkers," and live only among the people who agree with me, I do not see where the shame comes in; but let me get shifted and brought into contact with people who are indifferent to what I believe and I will realize what our Lord said in John 15—"therefore the world hateth you."

Our Lord's teaching is contradicted on the right hand and on the left. There are some phases of His teaching that would make you a laughing stock in the eyes of the world if you believed them. It requires a miracle of God's grace to believe as Jesus taught us to. "Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God"? Every time your program of belief is clear to your mind you will come across something that contradicts it, but that is where you see the glory of God manifested. Faith must be tried before it is real. As I suppose myself to believe, I do not see God in spasms, I see Him all the time. I see His arm behind all the facts in history and in individual life, because by obedience I am disposing myself to believe as Jesus believed.—Oswald Chambers in Spiritual Life.

REJOICING WHEN IN ADVERSITY

There is a blessed passage in Habakkuk's prophecy (3:17, 18) that ought to cheer and strengthen the Lord's people who are in adversity and trial. After telling of disastrous times he says: "Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labour of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls: yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation."

Think of such a time of adversity when the trees do not blossom, and there is no fruit in the vines, and the fields yield no harvest, and the flocks are cut off from the fold. What a time of famine and distress that would be. But Habakkuk says, "Yet I will rejoice in the Lord." The famine and distress would not stop my rejoicing in the Lord. He goes on to say, "the Lord God is my strength."

And so it is also with us. No matter how dark the world becomes, no matter how the harvests fail, or how hard the times are, or how little income may be, we can go right on rejoicing in the Lord. All shall work together for our good. We are in His great loving hands, and He has promised, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee."—Church of Christ Advocate.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

President of High Point College C. E. Society

MAY 15: HOW MAY WE WORK FOR WORLD GOOD WILL?

Scripture Text: Acts 10:34, 35.

To Read Daily

Monday: Good will proclaimed. Luke 2:8-18.

Tuesday: Kindness to strangers. Lev. 19:9, 10.

Wednesday: Helping a foreigner. Mark 7:24-30.

Thursday: Insist on brotherhood. Acts 17:22-28.

Friday: Welcome foreigners. Lev. 19:34.

Saturday: Give help in distress. Luke 10:29-37.

Let's Advertise the Meeting

Make a poster and place in the vestibule or on the church bulletin-board. To make the poster: Divide a piece of cardboard with a heavy line down the center. On one side paste pictures depicting war. On the other side paste pictures that suggest peace. At the top print, "ARE YOU WORKING FOR THIS? OR THIS," At the bottom give subject of meeting, time and cordial welcome.

Suitable Songs

"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," "Come Thou Almighty King," "Help Somebody Today," "America," "America the Beautiful."

Leader's Talk

How may we work for world good will? We who desire world peace must work for it. It is the youth of today who would have to fight, should there be another war. It is the youth of today who must prevent another war. It will never come by chance, but by continuous, intelligent effort. We too often carry toward men that inward and outward attitude of pugnacity. Is our personal makeup to be such? No, it is to be one of timidity, love and far-sightedness. With these three characteristics we can conquer the terrible affliction confronting the younger generation. The C. E. Society is just one of a large group of organizations working for world peace. May each of us do our part in the great campaign.

For Consideration

1. The waste of human life in war.
2. The financial burden of war.
3. How do you believe that world good will may best be realized?
4. What are the things that are now hindering world good will?
5. What position does Christ occupy in the reealization of world good will?
6. Discuss some of the steps that have been taken toward world good will.

Poetry to the Point

O GOD OF LOVE, O KING OF PEACE

O God of Love, O King of Peace,
Make wars throughout the world to cease;
The wrath of sinful man restrain,
Give peace, O God, give peace again!

Remember, Lord, Thy works of old,
The wonders that our fathers told;
Remember not our sin's dark stain,
Give peace, O God, give peace again.

Whom shall we trust but Thee, O Lord?
Where rest but on Thy faithful Word?
None ever call on Thee in vain,
Give peace, O God, give peace again!

Where saints and angels dwell above,
All hearts are knit in holy love;
O bind us in that holy chain;
Give peace, O God, give peace again.

BETTER BUSINESS

Business is better—
How do we know?
Merchants and others
Say it is so.

Business is better,
Wear a broad smile;
Everyone brighter,
Life is worth while.

Business is better,
Spread the good news;
Old Man Depression
Is wearing new shoes.

Business is better,
Better each day;
Prosperous times
Are now on the way.

Business is better,
Better, 'tis true;
Be up and achieving,
Here's good luck to you.

LIFE'S SPAN

One, two, three,
Hours speed by;
Man cannot stop,
Needless to try.

Four, five, six,
Days follow days;
Nothing can change
Man's strange ways.

Seven, eight, nine,
Years roll by;
Man cannot stop,
Needless to try.

Ten, eleven, twelve,
Life is done;
Despite man's will,
Death has don.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Sunday at 11 o'clock our pastor preached another one of his splendid sermons. His subject was "Mother," and he used as a text the words found in John's gospel, 19th chapter and 26th verse, "Behold thy mother." He gave a fine discourse on the subject.

Several of our people attended quarterly conference at Zion Saturday. Delegates to conference were nominated.

We are all proud of our C. E. Society. The young people are interested and doing some good work. New officers have been elected. We are going to miss the teachers who have worked so faithfully with us.

Memorial service will be observed the second Sunday in June and we are planning to have Children's Day soue time in June.

Lexington, First.—We held our second quarterly conference on last Tuesday evening at Mount Carmel church. We heard some good reports from both churches. Both churches reported the best Sunday schools in the history of the churches. We do not remember the exact average which Mount Carmel reported but our church has an average of between 255 and 260 and we are expecting an increase during the summer months. Both churches had a very good financial report; our church reported all local expenses and pastor's salary paid up to date. We decided to let Mt. Carmel church send a delegate to the Annual Conference this year, so we let them nominate two candidates from their church, Bro. H. V. Swicegood and Bro. R. M. Rowe. Both of these men are good Christian men and we feel that either one will make a good delegate to the Conference.

Rev. C. G. Isley preached a sermon dedicated to the mothers at the 11 o'clock preaching hour today. His text was "Behold Thy Mother," the words which Jesus spoke to the beloved disciple as He hung on the cross. Bro. Isley brought out some real good thoughts and praises for the Christian mothers. We are all proud of the Christian mothers in our church, for we realize what a great work which Christian mothers can do, for we agree with the one who said, "The hand which rocks the cradle rules the world."

Mount Pleasant Charge.—Pleasant Union and Mount Pleasant observed Young People's Day and held Easter services with gratifying results. The response at each church on Joash Day was quite encouraging. The attendance at Sunday chool at Mount Pleasant ranges around 200. At Pleasant Union the school is not so large because of a smaller church membership.

There will be a community sing at Mount Pleasant Sunday night, the 15th inst.

Progress on the charge is being made in selling High Point College bonds.

A program for a district rally is being planned for the fifth Sunday in May, commencing at 9:45 o'clock, dinner on the grounds, followed by afternoon exercises. This rally, including Julian, Tabernacle, Moriah, Liberty, Mount Pleasant and Pleasant Union, will be held in Mount Pleasant church.

Memorial services are being arranged as follows: Mount Pleasant, first Sunday in June; Pleasant Union, second Sunday in June. Forenoon and afternoon at both churches. Memorial services at Liberty Grove, fourth Sunday in June, commencing at 2:30 p. m.

Local representatives are collecting registration fees for the Leadership Training School to be conducted in High Point College June 27th to July 3rd.

A local Leadership Training School will be conducted in Mount Pleasant church July 18th to 30th, on alternate nights, not, of course, including Sunday.

The Mount Pleasant Sunday school will hold the usual annual picnic during June, definite announcement to be made later.

The two churches, Mount Pleasant and Pleasant Union, wish to acknowledge the helpful co-operation in church activities on the part of members of the faculty of Nathanael Greene public and high school.

Two Christian Endeavor societies in Mount Pleasant church meet regularly on second and fourth Sundays after Sunday school. For a change the Mother's Day program of the young people's group was given at night.

Mother's Day was observed during the church hour at Mount Pleasant the first Sunday in May; at Pleasant Union the second Sunday. A unique feature in each of these exercises was a duet composed—words and music—by one of our young ladies; also a poem by the same authoress in each service. The duet and the poems, having been written for Mother's Day occasions, were especially appropriate.

The Pleasant Union Woman's Auxiliary has been re-organized. The Mount Pleasant Auxiliary has elected officers for the new year, re-arranged the members of the three circles, and added a fourth circle—a business woman's circle. Both Auxiliaries began activities on the new year's work before the old year had closed.

Siler City.—Although without a pastor, we are endeavoring to carry on the work as best we can and in a way that will be well pleasing to the Master. The first Sundaynight, Rev. F. R. Love filled our pulpit again and delivered a very interesting message from Exodus 4:2, "And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand?" Subject, "Using What We Have in Our Possession for the Glory of God." Mr. Love was at his best and we are sure every one present enjoyed this good sermon. Evans Stone, baritone soloist, sang very impresively, "The Old Rugged Cross." Immediately after the sermon Mrs. B. E. Fox joined our church by letter, coming from Piney Grove on the Chatham charge. We were very glad indeed to have her join with us, as the membership of the entire family is at this church. There are others to join later.

We are planning to hold our revival meeting at an early date and as soon as we can secure help.

Paul is the character we study at our next mid-week prayer service with Mr. T. L. Smith leader. This should be one of the most interesting meetings we have had as Paul is one of the outstanding characters of the New Testament, and Mr. Smith is a wide-awake leader.

The past few Sundays Mr. Sharpe, our Sunday school superintendent, has appointed different classes to have charge of the opening exercises in any way they deem best. The fourth Sunday in April the Baraca class occupied the choir and rendered some good music with their good singers. The program was good. The first Sunday in May Mrs. T. L. Smith's class of small boys and girls rendered a very intereting program. Then on the second Sunday, Mother's Day, the Philathea class was in charge with an appropriate Mother's Day program. Twenty-three Philatheas filled the choir and pulpit and read responsively, sang appropriate songs and the teacher, Mrs. E. D. Woody, read a poem about "Mother" from Edgar A. Guest. This was a very impressive service.

Young Men's Wide-Awake Class, Shiloh.—We were glad to see 51 young men present today. We feel that this will be the best year in the history of our class; it has been up to the present time. We are proud of the work that our teacher, Mr. J. L. Evans, and our president, Mr. Paul Leonard, are doing. We must have good leaders if we want to grow and accomplish great things for our Lord. The entire class seems to take an interest in the work. Our teacher always brings us an interesting and uplifting message. Today he told us: "We may sin and repent of our sins, but me will have to take the punishment, according to the deeds done in the body. We must remember that we will reap just what we sow." May we sow seeds that will please our Lord, then we know we will reap a harvest of praise and happiness. Our teacher urged that we be men for God and when we do this we will bring joy to our fathers and mothers. May we take the Christian training that our parents teach to us.

We are glad to have a day called Mother's Day; we should do something for mother or give her a small present to show that we appreciate the things that she has done for us. We cannot repay her for what she has done for us, but we can cheer her many times instead of bringing sorrow to her. We should let every day be "Mother's Day" and do something for her every day because there is not a day that she does not do something for us. It may be just a prayer, but that is what it takes to help one through life. As the song goes, "Mother's Prayers Have Followed Me;" this is true, because a sincere prayer always does good.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—On the second Sunday in May our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, preached a good sermon on holiness. He told what it takes to live holy and that we have to live holy and right to get to heaven, for without holiness no man can see God.

Mr. Foster Loflin, our superintendent, and Miss Mabel Yatch were married a few days ago and were in their place at Sunday school. We wish them a happy and successful journey in life.

The vote was taken for delegate: Mr. Lee Surratt, of Chapel Hill, and Mr. N. L. Fine, of Alleghany.

There will be no Sunday school at Alleghany next Sunday on account of the Rally Day at Chapel Hill. Preaching again the second Sunday in June.

ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—On Sunday, May 8th, we held our service in honor of our mothers. Several passages of scripture were read about mother. Miss Florence Bowman sang a solo, "Mother." Dr. Johnson read clippings from what some truly great men had said about their mothers. Many of them said they owed their success to their mothers. We were very glad to have Miss Rebecca W. Causey and Mrs. Floyd Amick sing a duet, "Mother, My Guiding Star," which was written by Miss Nila Amick. It was truly great to have Miss Amick, the writer and composer, accompany them. We are fortunate to have this poetess and composer near us. Miss Ethel Shepard then read a poem on "Mother" that was also written by Miss Amick. The very impressive service ended by singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Welcome visitors besides Mis Rebecca W. Causey, Mrs. Amick and Miss Amick were Mr. Floyd Amick and Miss Sallie Amick, all of Mount Pleasant church. We also had little Miss Evelyn Huffin, who is the grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Neese; also T. M. Johnson, Jr., who is a senior at High Point College.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Brown with us again. We were also delighted to have Miss Donnie Shaw.

We are glad to report that Mr. Lonnie Garrett is improving from his injuries received last Saturday afternoon. He has returned to his home near Julian.

Our District Rally will be held at Mount Pleasant church the fifth Sunday in May.

Our memorial service will be held the second Sunday in June. This will be an all-day service and every one is invited. The program has not yet been completed.

DORTHA E. CAUSEY.

Beulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—We were glad to have the B. Y. P. U. of Pleasant Plain to render a Mother's Day program at Beulah Sunday night; it was enjoyed very much by all. Our pastor also preached a fine sermon after the program was rendered. We were proud to see the nice attendance.

Our Ladies' Aid held its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon, May 4, with most of our members present. We were proud to add three new members to our roll.

Our Christian Endeavor is still progressing nicely. We have accepted an invitation through our pastor to take a program to one of our sister churches, New Hope. We will not be able to go until about June. We are always glad to be invited to worship with other churches and are always glad to have other churches come to our church and render a program.

Our Sunday school is still getting along well with very good attendance.

Home-Coming Day will be observed at Beulah church on May 29. We invite all to be present, especially all that ever belonged to this church and all the pastors that have ever served this church. Come and meet with your friends once more and have a regular good old time hand-shake. Bring well filled baskets, ready for a good old time lunch that will be spread on the ground.

We are sorry to report that one of our members has been taken since our last report. Mrs. Mattie Morris died on Monday afternoon, April 18, 1932. Her death came suddenly just after the noon hour. While she had been in failing health for some time, her condition was not thought to be serious. In fact, she had gone to the table with the family for the noon meal, and had eaten a very hearty meal, when she suddenly collapsed and expired in a few minutes. Mrs. Morris was the widow of Hugh Morris and she lived her entire married life in Beulah community. Surviving her are six sons: David, Lonnie, Green, Hugh, Rufe, and Lester; also two step-children, Jim Morris and Mrs. John Miles, all of Sandy township. The deceased was 66 years of age, was a member of Beulah church, at which place the funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon. The service was conducted by our pastor, Rev. J. L. Love, after which the remains were carried to Antioch for burial. A large concourse of people were present, and the flowers were beautiful and many.

MISS LULA DEESE, Reporter.

Henderson.—The last Sunday in April was observed in our church as Joash Day. Rev. L. W. Gerringer preached a most interesting sermon and the collection in the Joash chest amounted to over $150.00. We feel that in many respects this special day was a success.

The second quarterly conference was held on Monday night, April 25th, with a very good attendance.

Our Auxiliary was given the privilege of serving a banquet to the Business and Professional Woman's Club here on the evening of April 26th at the Country Club. It was the tenth anniversary of the organization here and a most attractive birthday program was carried out with the lighted candles on the individual cakes.

The meeting of the Philathea class was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. H. A. Jordan on William street, with Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Thomas Evans as joint hostesses.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Silas Powell. Mrs. T. T. Powell led the devotionals, reading a part of the sixth chapter of St. Matthew, followed by a prayer by Mrs. L. W. Gerringer. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Splendid reports frfom the various committees were given. The class voted to have a tacky party the third week in May in the basement of the Sunday school room, and a committee appointed to have charge of the party will be Mesdames Clyde Finch, W. B. Hight, T. T. Powell, H. A. Jordan and Miss Lucy Taylor.

The program for the evening consisted of two readings, one by Mrs. Clyde Finch and the other by Tom Hunter Powell. In the "telegram contest" Mrs. Clyde Finch was awarded the prize. At the conclusion of the program the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Gerringer, served delicious refreshments.

On Sunday morning, May 21st, at the 11 o'clock services, Mr. Gerringer preached a splendid sermon, using the theme, "Cultivating An Appetite for the Spiritual." His text was taken from Matthew 5:6: "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." Special music was furnished at this service by the high school glee club, of which Mr. W. B. Harrison is director and Miss Maxine Taylor, assistant and accompanist. They sang "Tarry With Me," by Mozart.

The first meeting of the Auxiliary for the new missionary year was held at the church Monday night, with a large attendance. The opening devotionals were in charge of Mrs. L. R. Gooch, who used the impressive installation service, as the various officers took their vows for the coming year. Rev. L. W. Gerringer closed this session with prayer.

The new president, Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, took the chair and in a hort speech pledged herself in service for this organization and asked the wholehearted co-operation of every member in helping her discharge her duties and responsibilities of this work. A solo, "The Prayer Perfect," by James Whitcomb Riley, was sung by Miss Elizabeth Fox, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. S. R. Watson. During the business period, reports from the circle chairmen were given, followed by the secretary's and treaurer's reports. The local treasurer was instructed to send $25 to High Point College, also to pay ten dollars to the Sunday school department for improvements made there. Committees were appointed to finish the work on the church grounds, to be responsible for flowers for Mother's Day and a pastor's aid for visiting. A splendid report from the annual State Branch Meeting, which was held in Enfield in April, was given by Mrs. Gerringer, supplemented by the other delegates, Miss Lucy Taylor, Miss Agnes Harris, and Mrs. F. R. Harris. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

The Young Ladies' Circle met with Misses Martha and Florence Faulkner on Monday night. Devotionals were led by Mrs. L. W. Gerringer and ten members answered to the roll call. As this is the beginning of a new year in the church, Mrs. L. W. Gerringer was appointed the new leader. She succeeds Mrs. L. R. Gooch. New officers were elected with Miss Mabel Hayes, president; Miss Catherine Faulkner, vice-president; Miss Mary Frances Gerringer, secretary; Miss Florence Faulkner, treasurer, and Miss Martha Faulkner, reporter. Captains were elected for two sides to get new members, these being Misses Mary Parham and Ruth Finch. It was decided that five cents dues should be collected from each member at the meeting. A collection of 70 cents was taken at this meeting. The program committee was appointed for the next meeting, to be composed of Misses Louise Powell and Katherine Faulkner. Refreshments were served following the meeting by the hostesses.

The Workers' Council of the Sunday school held a meeting on Tuesday night, May 3rd, at the church. Rev. R. A. Whitten, of the Christian church, made a speech on the subject, "Sunday School Evangelism." A large number was present from the various classes and reports were given by their officers.

Sunday, May 8th, was observed as Mother's Day and the following program was enjoyed, from the Primary Department of the Sunday school: Marching Song, Scripture reading, Praise, song, "The Sweetest Story," duet, "My Best Girl," Wilson Gerringer and C. L. Finch, Jr.; song, "Bring Them In;" prayer.

A large number was present for the morning services and Mr. Gerringer used as his theme "An Appreciation of Mother."

The high school baccalaureate services were conducted at the First Baptist church here Sunday morning, May 8th. Rev. Louis S. Gaines, of Raleigh, preached the sermon, using for his subject, "The Eternal Building." A large congregation was present and the class has a total of 61 graduates. Special music was prepared and offered for the excises by the choir, assisted by members of the other church choirs. REPORTER.

Shiloh, Randolph Charge.—Our Home-Coming and Mother's Day services, which were observed May 8th, were quite a success. Several people were present; among them were former members or members from a distance. Rev. Edward Suits, our pastor, preached in the morning at 11 o'clock. After a picnic lunch on the grounds the afternoon services were held. During these services talks were made by several former pastors, among whom were Rev. T. F. McCulloch, Rev. W. F. Ahburn, Rev. A. O. Lindley, and Rev. D. I. Garner. Special music was rendered by a group of Thomasville singers, among whom were the Freeman brothers. The music was especially suited to the occasion and everyone enjoyed it immensely.

Plans for the organizing of a Bible school with Julian church are going forward. A Christian Endeavor society has also been organized. May we have the prayers of everyone in the Conference for our progress in these undertakings.

North Davidson Charge.—This has been an encouraging year for the pastor of North Davidson charge. He has received four poundings, one each from Bethesda, Canaan, Mt. Pleasant and Spring Hill. These poundings were so complete that they have greatly reduced the pastor's grocery bill. These people were not satisfied with just furnishing their pastor with something to eat. They decided at our second quarterly conference to build a parsonage for him to live in. A committee was elected to decide on a location, to investigate plans for a building and the approrimate cost of the same. This they did, and nine days later (Easter Monday night), they made their report to the quarterly conference in a called session. It was approved with a few minor changes in the plan of the house. In this same session plans were completed to start the work immediately with Mr. John Lee Foust, of Bethesda, as foreman to oversee the work. This special session of the quarterly conference was held March 28; the pastor and family moved into the new parsonage May 6. The building is completed except the last coat of paint. Has this record ever been surpassed?

We have an eight-room house including the bath and breakfast rooms. It is plastered inside and has hardwood floors in every room. It is located beside the Canaan church, just off the tate highway 109, from Thomasville to Winston-Salem. It is within about eight miles of Winston. I feel safe in saying that this parsonage will compare very favorably with any in the North Carolina Conference.

About 50 people contributed labor in this building project. Canaan church gave the lot and all the framing, as well as a good part of the labor. People who are not members of any church, as well as members of other denominations, have made great contributions to this project in both material and labor. This we appreciate very much. We might say that both Spring Hill and Bethesda offered a lot and the framing in case the parsonage was located in their respective community. All these offers were appreciated by the entire charge. The writer has never known of any project of this kind to come to completion with so nearly 100 per cent harmony throughout the entire charge. We are proud of a people who can do a thing so well and in such a sweet spirit. We feel that instead of this building causing division and strife it has strengthened the bonds of unity on this charge. We are all proud of the new parsonage, for it is very nice and electrically lighted, being located on a power line. We credit Mr. John Lee Foust for overseeing the job so well and thank every individual who has made any kind of contribution toward this good work.

Our church work in general is going well. We have on this work a progressive people with high aspirations. Pray for us and visit our new parsonage when convenient.

Lexington.—Our work is moving along nicely. Our revival meeting was very successful. Rev. O. C. Loy, who did the preaching, was heard by large audiences. Although we did not have as many conversions as we were hoping to see, we felt there were good seed sown by the good preaching. Bro. Wayne Curtis had charge of the choir and he did a wonderful work while he was here. Bro. Curtis is a good, consecrated Christian man as well as an excellent singer, and we enjoyed having him with us and working with him very much.

Our Sunday school is looking good. Our superintendent, Bro. H. C. Koonts, requested each class to take note of the members absent each Sunday and for someone to go to them and try to get them back to Sunday school. We believe this will be a good way to increase our Sunday school.

Our preaching service is also well attended.

On Tuesday night our second quarterly conference will be held at Mt. Carmel church and we are expecting to hear a good report from both churches.

On this past Saturday night our Ladies' Aid put on a chicken and barbecue supper on which they realized a good sum.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—Sunday night, April 17, 79 young people heard the lesson on "Putting Purpose Into Life," led by Miss Helen Leonard. Miss Leonard is one of our new members and we are always glad to see them step into His work and take active parts.

Sunday night, April 24, the lesson led by Miss Vesta Troxler on "Opportunities for Life Investment," was heard by 72 young people.

We feel that the society is growing both in number and in spirit. The average attendance for the month of April was above any average for an entire month we have had this year. We are glad for the young people to be so interested.

On the fourth Sunday in April the C. E. Society had charge of prayer meeting. A good number were present. Those endeavorers who participated in the program are to be commended on the way they carried out their parts.

Saturday evening, April 30th, a group of the young people met at the church and did some much needed work on the church ground.

The society has started the month of May with good attendance, there being 79 present the first Sunday night. The lesson was led by another one of our new members, Miss Lois McMahan, on "Finding My Place in Life."

Immediately following this program Mrs. W. L. Shoaf addressed the society on "The Necessity of Christ in One's Life." She said: "To have Him as your closest friend throughout life means real joy and real happiness." She stressed "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." Those who heard Mrs. Shoaf surely went away with a determination to live closer to Christ and have Him as their nearest friend at all times.

Denton.—The Ladies' Aid Society held its monthly meeting on May 5th. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Mitchell. The following program was given:

Scripture reading, Marjorie Cranford.

Prayer, Rev. Mr. Short.

Two very interesting pieces were read by Mrs. A. L. Hill and Callie Bailey.

Song, "I Am Thine, O Lord."

After the program the business meeting was held. There was a discussion about new song books and repairing the church. The president brought before the society some of the needs of the orphanage. Each member made a pledge to aid in supplying the orphanage with sheets and bedspreads.

At the April meeting three quilts were made, two for the orphanage and one was given to the pastor at this meeting.

A flower committee was appointed consisting of two members each month. For the month of May Inza Hill and Kate Sexton, and for June, Marjorie Cranford and Ruth Lanier. We were dismissed by Mrs. D. M. Sexton.

First Church, High Point—Mother's Day was observed Sunday morning in an impressive manner; Miss Vera Smith sang the touching and beautiful favorite, "Mother Machree," and the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, read a part of Luke 1, which contains the annunciation of the angel Gabriel to Mary, the mother of Jesus, and John 15:25-27, the memorable and pathetic scene at the cross, when Jesus commended His mother to the keeping of John, the disciple whom he loved so dearly, when he said, "Woman, behold thy son!" and from that hour John cherished her in his home as his own mother. In May, 1906, Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, Pa., lost her mother by death, and in her grief conceived the beautiful idea of perpetuating the memory of all mothers by setting apart the second Sunday in May each year as Mother's Day. Congressman Tom Heflin introduced a bill in Congress to make the movement nation-wide, and the late President Woodrow Wilson ratified the bill. Rev. Mr. Farmer's sermon was eloquent and touching, and a large number paid tribute to the memory of Mother by attendance upon worship in God's house on this sacred day. A number accompanied their elderly mothers to church and sat with them. This lovely custom as it is observed annually throughout the country is a fitting tribute to noble Christian womanhood and motherhood, and is an honor to the American nation. Like Abraham Licoln, who said that all he was or ever expected to be he owed to his angel mother; so none of us can ever hope to repay our sainted mothers for their long years of toil and sacrifice. Let us strive to live day by day as worthy sons and daughters and do what we know Mother would advise us if she were living.

"Years of sacrifice, little of play,
Loving and giving, of smoothing the way,
Life is too short, Mother, ever to pay;
Strong in adversity, ready to do,
Gentle, unselfish, a friend ever true,
My proudest possession, dear Mother, is you!"

At the evening service the minister delivered a beautiful sermon on the subject, "A Companion in Adversity Forgotten in Prosperity," from the text in Gen. 40:23, "Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but forgot him."

The Commencement program of High Point College has been announced recently, beginning Thursday, May 26, and closing Monday, May 30. The Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered in First church on Sunday, May 29, at 11 o'clock. A recital by the music department will be an interesting and outstanding event on Thursday evenig, May 26, and on the following evening, May 27, the oratorical and essay contests will be held. On Monday, May 30, at 10 o'clock, the academic procession will form and make its way to the auditorium in Roberts Hall, where the annual commencement address will be delivered by a speaker whose name will be announced later. Forty-two young men and women will receive degrees this year, and the list contains ten students from High Point, three from Pennsylvania, two from Delaware, one from Virginia, and the remaining 26 from different towns of North Carolina. Thirty-four graduates will receive the A. B. degree, amog them being Miss M. Grace Koontz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Koontz, Fourth street, and Frank H. Robbins, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robbins, Archdale Road, of our First church congregation. Other well known members of the class are Lewis Bethea, son of Rev. and Mrs. N. G. Bethea, of Burlington, and Talton M. Johnson, Jr., son of Dr. T. M. Johnson, of Burlington. Two girls will receive the degree in music, Misses Truth Isley, of Graham, and Malloie Bogle, of Hiddenite.

Mrs. J. C. Whitesell is coaching a number of young people for a play, "The Old Deestrick Skule," to be given under the auspices of Circles Nos. 4 and 5 of the Woman's Auxiliary. Prof. McCanless, of the High Point College faculty, will be the old-time schoolmaster, with a number of pupils. The play is of a humorous nature, and will afford an evening of wholesome mirth and laughter.

The young ladies of the A. M. Idol Philathea class enjoyed a picnic at Municipal Lake, Jamestown, last Thursday afternoon at 6 o'clock.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its monthly meeting with Mrs. R. W. Riggans on Greenway Drive Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a splendid attendance of 45 members. Associate hostesses were the following: Mesdames R. H. Shaw, H. G. Ferree, L. F. Ferree, Gorrell Payne, R. S. Russell, T. D. Ferree, A. J. Koonce, and R. R. Blackburn. After the business session and program for the day, the hostesses served delicious refreshments.

Dr. and Mrs. P. S. Kennett and children, Pauline and Stanwood, spent last week-end at Candor with Mrs. H. N. Steed.

Mrs. Ben T. Moore has returned home from the High Point Hospital where she spent a few days for treatment. Her friends will be pleased to learn that she is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Pickens moved Saturday from the apartment, 217 Steele street, to the residence at 306 Montlieu avenue.

News of the election of Wilbur D. Pritchard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard, a junior at State College, Raleigh, to Scabbard and Blade, honorory military fraternity, has been received here. This honor comes to him for high scholarship, he having been one of 15 boys who made the best average out of 800, and his membership in this organization is life-long. His friends express congratulations on this honor, of which he is full worthy.

Representatives to General Conference at Columbus, Ohio, May 18-28, will leave High Point next Tuesday morning and drive through the country: Dr. G. I. Humphrey, Dr. P. E. Lindley, and Rev. Nat M. Harrison will represent High Point College; Rev. R. I. Farmer, Capt. A. M. Rankin, Judge L. E. Teague, and Mr. Chas. C. Robbins are delegates from First church. Dr. S. W. Taylor will deliver the Conference sermon this year.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Riggins have moved from Edgeworth street to 1117 Greenway Drive.

The members of Alexander Martin Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will motor to Thomasville this (Tuesday) afternoon, and hold their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank S. Lambeth. This chapter was organized October 19, 1916, with 12 charter members, and since that time 114 members have joined, but a large number have resigned, died, and been transferred to other chapters. The roster now contains 77 names.

We are highly gratified to see Miss Elizabeth Welch out again after recovery from her recent illness.

Mrs. Frank Armfield, of Concord, N. C., spent part of last week with her sister, Mrs. R. T. Pickens.

Charlotte.—The Ever Dependable Class held a meeting April 29th at the home of Mrs. J. C. Penny. At this time the following cfficers were elected: Marguerite Helms, president; Margaret Dellinger, secretary; Delores Penny, treasurer; June Sechrest and Agnes Bennett, lookout committee. After the meeting the class was entertained with a weiner roast. A good time was enjoyed by all present.

The Workers' Council of the Sunday school met last Wednesday evening at the church with 23 officers and teachers present. Much business was transacted and the spirit of the meeting was very encouraging. R. S. Garmon, assistant superintendent, presided. A number of vacancies have occurred recently and were considered at this time. A. A. Ledbetter was elected general superintendent; Miss Billie Aycock, primary superintendent; Mrs. A. A. Ledbetter, to have charge of the music; Miss Gray Stiles, secretary of the Worker's Council. Last Sunday our attendance had increased from 117 the previous Sunday to 142. This was also gratifying.

A committee has been appointed and is now working on a Children's Day program to be given on Sunday evening of the 22nd. Sunday morning of the same date Judge Harding will speak in the absence of Dr. Andrews, who will be in General Conference.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Tuesday afternoon (this week) with Mrs. Andrews at the parsonage. REPORTER.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Sunday Rev. P. E. Bingham brought to us a wonderful message about "Mother." Misses Mary Virginia and Lillian Hawkins sang, "Savior, Tell Darling Mother I'll Be There." At the close of his sermon he asked all who had mother there to go shake her hand. Oh, I could not reach my mother's hand. But, Savior, tell mother I'll be there in answer to her prayer. Yes, tell darling mother I'll be there.

The C. E. Society had a business meeting Sunday p. m.

Our Sunday school is getting along as well as usual. After Sunday school next Sunday prayer service will be held.

We are very proud of three of our members—Misses Erma and Elynor Hawkins and Mr. Leo Pittard graduated from Aurelian Springs high school. Campbell College invited all of the graduates to come and spend the week-end with them. I feel sure they had a splendid time. We feel very highly honored to know Mr. Leo Pittard, our superintendent, is going to college to study for the ministry.

We are very sorry to note Mr. Fitzhugh Hawkins is in the Roanoke Rapids hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Bingham and Miss Vera Morris were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Pepper Sunday.

Miss Ethel Hawkins has returned home from Roanoke Rapids after spending some time with her grandmother, Mrs. Mollie Hawkins, and Miss Esther Hawkins will spend this week. We as grandchildren extend our most hearty appreciation to Mrs. J. B. O'Briant for sending our sick grandmother and mother a pretty flower growing in a flower-pot. I asked grandmother yesterday where her flower was. She said she had sent it out to get some sunshine.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hawkins are the glad parents of a little girl.

Lebanon, High Point.—The Mother's Day program at our church last Sunday was very interesting and impressive all the way through. Our pastor read the story of the crucifixion from the 19th chapter of St. John. He then gave us a message on the memory of mother, which was delivered in a most touching and tactful manner. He said that just as the mother of Jesus followed Him to the cross, so our mothers will stand by with willing hands, with words of council and with humble prayer when we are being crushed and crucified by the crosses of this world. Of a truth, we can never repay our mothers for all their love and care, but he said the best way for us to pay our debt to her is by answering her prayers with a life of Christian living, a Christian character dedicated to her memory. The King brother sang "Will My Mother Know Me There?" which was enjoyed and appreliated by all. The oldest mother present and the youngest mother present were each presented with nice tokens of remembrance by the Christian Endeavorers.

In honor of their mothers, the Boy Scouts of our church attended the service in a body. The scout leader, Bro. J. C. Daniels, and assistant leader, Orest Hedgecock, both made interesting remarks concerning the work done by the boys.

Our evening service was cared for by one of our members, Bro. J. A. Jones. His message on "The Abundant Life" was very interesting and was enjoyed by all. He said in part: We are warned not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together. We need our church and the church needs us. There is mutual strength and gain by being faithful in our church duties, and there is mutual loss by neglect of this important duty. May He help us to see the great need of being more interested in the higher and better things of life. So may we believe God more fully and serve Him more faithfully, and so enjoy an abundant life.

Our next quarterly conference will be held Friday night, May 20th, at 8 o'clock.

Shiloh.—Mother's Day was observed Sunday night and a most appropriate and enjoyable program was presented by the C. E. Society. Every father and mother appreciates the C. E. Society and what it is doing for our boys and girls. It did our hearts good to hear them, our boys and girls, express their appreciation of and devotion to their parents. Those tender tributes to the living are worth infinitely more than flowers for the dead.

Next Sunday, May 15, is Memorial and Home-Coming Day at Shiloh. The mother church opens her arms to you and bids you come home once more. If you have flowers bring just as many bunches as you can and please have them bunched and tied ready to go on the graves. It is our aim to have a bunch of flowers on every grave in the cemetery. Of course you want to have a part in it.

Brother Troxler preached last first Sunday on "The Treasures of the Aged," and it was greatly enjoyed by all.

Remember, we are looking for you Sunday.

Calvary, Greensboro.—It is possible that our reporter will be sending some items for the Herald this week, but I should like to make some observations also.

First of all, to speak of the Training School, which was held last week at the church. About 25 registered, most of whom took courses for credit. There should have been many more, and doubtless would have been if the school had been held at some

REPORT OF BRANCH MEETING

The third annual meeting of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work was held in Enfield church, Mrs. W. C. Hammer, president, in the chair. The devotionals, called "Spiritual Clinics," were impressively conducted by Dr. Geo. R. Brown and Rev. C. W. Bates. Cordial welcomes were extended by Mrs. Robert Whitaker, president of the Woman's Club; Miss Mary Collins, of the Enfield Auxiliary, and Rev. H. F. Surratt, pastor of the Enfield church. The subject of the president's address was "Facing Facts Frankly."

At the first evening service Dr. George H. Miller, president of the Mission Board, gave a most inspirational and instructive address. A round table discussion of the missionary work brought out interesting phases.

Wedneday morning and afternoon had full programs of reports of officers and secretaries which will be published at a later date. The reports of secretaries of departments were unique in that they took the form of demonstrations which were greatly enjoyed. The Thank-Offering service was very effective. The offering for Mr. Minnis amounted to $352.40. Dr. A. G. Dixon, superintendent of the Children's Home, presented the work of the institution and announced that a list of immediate needs would be published soon. He presented recommendatios which were adopted by the Branch. Rev. Homer Casto brought greetings from Bethel Home. Rev. N. M. Harrison spoke on the urgent needs of High Point College and made a stirring appeal for Auxiliaries to buy and sell bonds now. He also brought regrets from Dr. Humphreys for his absence. Mr. H. A. Garrett also urged the women to place bonds.

One of the enjoyable features of the Branch Meeting was a short service conducted by Rev. J. E. Pritchard at Whitaker's Chapel, where the first M. P. Conference was organized in 1828. "Faith of Our Fathers" was sung, followed by prayer by Dr. Johnson. Mr. Pritchard read a paragraph from the 1927 Conference Journal which dealt with the early history of the denomination as it centered around this sacred and historic spot. After singing "O Where Are Kings and Empires Now," the meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mr. Bates.

The program on Wednesday evening was under the direction of the Young People's Department, with Mrs. F. W. Paschall presiding. Banners were awarded as follows: Burlington, First church, for Precious Jewels and Mission Band; Maple Springs, for Sunshine Circle and Young People's Society. An inspiring pageant was presented by the young people of Whitaker's under the direction of Mrs. J. M. Cutchin, Jr., and Mrs. H. F. Surratt.

At the closing sesion of the Branch held Thursday morning officers for the new year were elected. In addition to the list already published Mrs. N. M. Harrison was elected Secretary for Exhibits. A reporter for the Branch is to be elected by the executive committee. All the district chairmen have not been elected, but a complete list will be ready soon.

Delegates to the convention were elected as follows: Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, Mrs. C. W. Bates; alternates, Miss Mary Young, Mrs. S. W. Taylor, Mrs. A. G. Dixon and Mrs. H. W. Maier.

Mrs. Bates most cordially invited the executive committee to meet in Weaverville in July. The place for the 1933 Branch meeting is to be decided upon by the executive committee.

Mr. Bates offered a prize of $5.00 to the Auxiliary sending the most coupons to the Children's Home during May, June and July.

The session was dismissed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Hethcox. The 102 delegates then went back to their homes better informed about the work and after having enjoyed mountain-top experiences, ready to go into the valleys of service in their individual churches.

A TREASURE OF GOD

Here is a story of Poland which was told to a friend of mine by a Polish girl.

A peasant lost his wife by death. He was very bitter, denying the goodness of God. So he refused to go to church or to have anything to do with his neighbors. One night he dreamed an angel came to him and said: "The great stone post at the gate to your meadow has fallen down. Under it is a great treasure, valued even by God himself."

The peasant awoke. It was dawn. He dressed quickly and ran all the way to the meadow gate. There, in truth, the great stone post had fallen. Eagerly he dug under it and found a nest of tiny mice, new born. Nothing else!

So he was more bitter against God than before, for, he thought: "God has sent an angel to lie to me in my despair."

That night he dreamed again and the angel returned to him in the dream. So he reproached the angel for deceiving him in his sorrow. But the angel replied, "You found the nest of tiny mice safe and warm though a great stone had fallen above them. God loves those tiny creatures and cares for them, whether they be fortunate or not and whether they live or die, He cares for them. They are of His treasure and He loves all created things. If then those mice, new born, who know so little and live but such a short time, are dear to Him, how much more is your life His treasure and how much more dear are you to Him! And if He cares for even the mice how much more, in life or death, does He care for you and your wife, and how much more does He do that which is wise, though you, like the mice he loves and cares for, know it not!"

That day he peasant forsook his despair and again lived rightly in the world.—Selected.

Informed that his cash was in "status quo," a Valparaiso victim of an oily stock slicker asks the Indianapolis News if his funds are really safe "in such a queer place." Ducking painful details, the editor stalled in stanza:

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Blackburn

Mrs. Annie Dean Blackburn died at her home in Kernersville, N. C., Sunday, April 3, at 12:00 o'clock at the age of 32 years, six months and 24 days. Mrs. Blackburn had been growing ill for a number of years. She suffered a peculiar malady, but her condition was not considered critical for only a few days.

Mrs. Blackburn joined with the Methodist Protestant church at Pine Grove while yet a child and had lived a consistent Christian life. Some years ago she made her home in Kernersville and since that time has had loyal association with the Methodist Protestant church of Kernersville.

She is survived by three children: Louray, Gilmer and Howard; one brother, Howard Dean of Covington, Va., one half-brother, one half-sister, her father and five aunts: Mrs. W. A. Hepler, Miss Ellen Dean, Miss Victoria Dean, Mrs. Rufus Wagner and Mrs. Luther Smith.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer. May God look with favor upon the bereaved ones. D. D. BROOME.
